CHAPTER XXXV.

The Proxy of Pakenham.

A man can not possess anything that is better than a good woman, nor anything that is worse than a bad one.—Simonides.

When I reached the central part of the city, I did not hasten thence to Elmhurst mansion. Instead, I returned to my hotel. I did not now care to see any of my friends or even to take up matters of business with my chief. It is not for me to tell what feelings came to me when I left Helena von Ritz.

Sleep such as I could gain, reflections such as were inevitable, occupied me for all that night. It was mid-morning of the following day when finally I once more sought out Mr. Calhoun.

He had not expected me, but received me gladly. It seemed that he had gone on about his own plans, and with his own methods. "The Senora Yturrio is doing me the honor of an early morning call," he began. "She is with my daughter in another part of the house. As there is matter of some importance to come up, I shall ask you to attend."

He dispatched a servant, and presently the lady mentioned joined us. She was a pleasing picture enough in her robe of black laces and sulphur-colored silks, but her face was none too happy, and her eyes, it seemed to me, bore traces either of unrest or tears. Mr. Calhoun handed her to a chair, where she began to use her languid but effective fan.

"Now, it gives us the greatest regret, my dear senora," began Mr. Calhoun, "to have Gen. Almonte and your husband return to their own country. We have valued their presence here very much, and I regret the disruption of the friendly relations between our countries."

She made any sort of gesture with her fan, and he went on: "It is the regret also of all, my dear lady, that your husband seems so shamelessly to have abandoned you. I am quite aware, if you will allow me to be so frank, that you need some financial assistance."

"My country is ruined," said she. "Also, senor, I am ruined. As you say, I have no means of life. I have not even money to secure my passage home. That Senor Van Zandt—"

"Yes, Van Zandt did much for us, through your agency, senora. We have benefited by that, and I therefore regret he proved faithless to you personally. I am sorry to tell you that he has signified his wish to join our army against your country. I hear also that your late friend, Mr. Polk, has forgotten most of his promises to you."

"Him I hate also!" she broke out. "He broke his promise to Senor Van Zandt, to my husband, to me!"

Calhoun smiled in his grim fashion. "I am not surprised to hear all that, my dear lady, for you but point out a known characteristic of that gentleman. He has made me many promises which he has forgotten, and offered me even of late distinguished honors which he never meant me to accept. But, since I have been personally responsible for many of these things which have gone forward, I wish to make what personal amends I can; and ever I shall thank you for the good which you have done to this country. Believe me, madam, you served your own country also in no ill manner. This situation could not have been prevented, and it is not your fault. I beg you to believe that. Had you and I been left alone there would have been no war."

"But I am poor, I have nothing!" she rejoined.

There was indeed much in her situation to excite sympathy. It had been through her own act that negotiations between England and Texas were broken off. All chance of Mexico to regain property in Texas was lost through her influence with Van Zandt. Now, when all was done, here she was, deserted even by those who had been her allies in this work.

"My dear senora," said John Calhoun, becoming less formal and more kindly, "you shall have funds sufficient to make you comfortable at least for a time after your return to Mexico. I am not authorized to draw upon our exchequer, and you, of course, must prefer all secrecy in these matters. I regret that my personal fortune is not so large as it might be, but, in such measure as I may, I shall assist you, because I know you need assistance. In return, you must leave this country. The flag is down which once floated over the house of Mexico here."

She hid her face behind her fan, and Calhoun turned aside.

"Senora, have you ever seen this slipper?" he asked, suddenly placing upon the table the little shoe which for a purpose I had brought with me, and meantime thrown upon the table.

She flashed a dark look, and did not speak.

"One night, some time ago, your husband pursued a lady across this town to get possession of that very slipper and its contents! There was in the toe of that little shoe a message. As you know, we got from it certain information, and therefore devised certain plans, which you have helped us to carry out. Now, as perhaps you have had some personal animus against the other lady in these same complicated affairs, I have taken the liberty of sending a special messenger to ask her presence here this morning. I should like you two to meet, and, if that be possible, to part with such friendship as may exist in the premises."

I looked suddenly at Mr. Calhoun. It seemed he was planning without my aid.

"Yes," he said to me, smiling, "I have neglected to mention to you that the Baroness von Ritz also is here, in another apartment of this place. If you please, I shall now send for her also."

He signaled to his old negro attendant. Presently the latter opened the door, and with a deep bow announced the Baroness von Ritz, who entered, followed closely by Mr. Calhoun's inseparable friend, old Dr. Ward.

NEEDLE, SWALLOWED IN 1905, JUST RECOVERED.

Toms River, June 14.—To have removed from her hip a needle which she had swallowed five years ago has just been the experience of the thirteen-year-old daughter of Charles Clayton, a farmer at Pleasant Plains, halfway between Toms River and Lakewood. The needle was removed from her body at the base of the spinal column.

The needle was found and removed in a peculiar way. As the little girl went to bed and pulled the quilts over herself she gave a scream of pain. Her mother found the child crying and saying that her hip hurt. The only thing her parents could think of was that in some way she had dislocated the hip, and they sent five miles to Toms River for Dr. E. C. Disbrow. He found the hip all right. The child still complained of the pain, and at last he discovered a small projection. Anesthetics were applied, an incision made, and by means of forceps the needle was pulled out. The child is well again.

PARASOLS.

The "high cost of living," so freely discussed and generally deplored, has had no appreciable effect on the demand for luxuries in dress.

Parasols, for instance, are shown in greater variety this year than at any time in the history of this important dress accessory. Not only are the covers made from every possible frabric and color, or combinations of color, but the frames are almost as varied as the covers.

There is more than a suggestion of the Orient about the pagoda parasol, with its curved ribs following the beautiful lines of the roof of a Japanese temple, and the mandarin modeled on the lines of the Chinese functary's covering from the sun.

Another novelty is the handkerchief parasol, square in shape, as the name would suggest, and having but four ribs. This gives a particularly soft and pretty effect when closed. The lampshade is still another popular novelty furnished with a descriptive name. In addition to these are seen the oval and all the conventional shapes, with numerous variations.

Corporation Notice

PROPOSALS FOR SEWERS.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, at a regular meeting held Monday, June 6, 1910, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on the fifth day of July, 1910, at 8 o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149, North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for constructing storm sewer contemplated in the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Richmond Street, approved June 7, 1910, as provided for in the plans and specifications adopted June 6, 1910, by the Common Council, and filed in the office of the City Clerk, No. 151 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals, the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Council.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for $200, payable to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield.

The Engineer's approximate estimate of the work to be done, is as follows, the City furnishing the materials:

Laying 50 feet 15-inch inlet connections.

THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY

"The bank that pays four per cent."

ONLY $2.25 PER WEEK

Is all you need pay to use and own this splendid player-piano if you join our special limited club now.

We are selling a limited number of these player-pianos, on the club plan, for only

Which is a saving of $155.00 over the regular price of $650.00. The offer is made solely to introduce these instruments in Plainfield and vicinity.

We take your old piano in exchange, if you wish. $2.25 per week is certainly a very small sum to pay, when you consider what great enjoyment is constantly afforded the entire family—and the player-piano is yours to keep. It is a wise investment in every way.

You can get a still lower price if you induce one or more friends to join the club also, before this opportunity is withdrawn. Your money will be refunded within 30 days, if you are not satisfied. We supply you with a free library of music, with privilege of exchange as often as you like, during the life of the contract, without extra charge.

This is the most easily operated player-piano on the market—no strenuous exertion needed, because its pneumatic action is perfect.

There is an extra reservoir, by which an especially full tone or sustained swell may be brought out without retarding the action or tempo—an exclusive advantage.

Another patented device prevents the paper from running out of line.

Still another feature controlled only by us, is the ability to play pianissimo effects as they should be played—properly rendering trills and arpeggios in even the softest measures.

Remember, you needn't know the first thing about music to be able to use and enjoy this player-piano. Stop in and play it yourself—let us show you how easy it is to play, and how easy to own this player-piano at once, under our liberal club plan.

The Postal Telegraph.

Edward J. Nally, vice-president and general manager of the Postal Telegraph Cable Co., upon being shown a statement as to whether the Postal Co. was leasing wires to bucket shops, for which the Western Union Telegraph Co. has recently been indicted, said "That is a class of business which the Postal Telegraph Cable Co. has alway kept out of. It is a very lucrative branch of the telegraph business, the profits running into hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, but it is not the kind of business which we engage in Only a short time ago we went over all our numerous wire leases to ascertain whether any of them might possibly be for bucket shop purposes. We found one which was doubtful and we thereupon gave the usual thirty days' notice of cancellation as allowed by the contract and that lease has been cancelled.

I am confident that none of the wires of the Postal Telegraph Cable Co. are used for bucket shop purposes."

Missionary Society Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held on Thursday at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gavett in Washington Valley. The members will start from Warren chapel that morning at 9:30 o'clock sharp, if the weather is clear; if not, the start will be made Friday morning at the same hour. The picnic is for members of the society only and each one is requested to bring a box luncheon. A nominal charge will be made for transportation.

Festival and Dance.

The second annual mid-summer festival and dance of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be held at the church all day, June 25. There will be a baseball game in the afternoon the Women's Guild will hold a sale, the Young People's Society will provide amusements, there will be a musical entertainment by Harry and Vincent Keffer, a spiritualistic seance by Madame Aimes and magical tricks by Prof. Henderson.

Signed 40 Diplomas.

Forty diplomas were signed by the members of the borough Board of Education at the meeting last evening. All members of the board save Rev. Mr. Warner were present and signed them. Mr. Warner will add his signature today. Dr. Dundon was engaged to be the school physician for another year and Albert Steiner was re-elected clerk of the board. The diplomas are for the High School department.

Red Stars Victorious.

The Red Stars defeated the Colored Giants on the Fifth street grounds yesterday, by a score of 4 to 3. J. Jackson and B. Vail formed the battery for the winning team and Shondrus and F. Foose were in the points for the Colored Giants.

CHALLENGES GOV. FORT

J. S. Frelinghuysen, President of Senate, Replies to Charge of Legislative Corruption

HE CALLS FOR THE PROOFS.

Somerset County's Legislator Talks of a Special Session and Promises to Support Good Railroad Rate Bill.

Resenting Governor Fort's charges that the Legislature has been controlled by railroads and other "special interests," Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, president of the Senate, and the representative of Somerset county, yesterday sent a letter to the Governor demanding proof of the allegation or a cessation of the insinuations and promising to use his energy and influence to obtain enactment of the best railroad rate bill which may be proposed in the event of a special session being called. His letter follows:

"I read with interest your speech reported in yesterday's papers in reference to the increase of rates to commuters. If I understood it correctly you are of the opinion that the increase would have been impossible if at the last session of the Legislature a law had been enacted in accordance with your views and recommendations.

"Inasmuch as the advance in rates applies chiefly to commutations from points in New Jersey to New York city I have been of the opinion that the question was an interstate one, and therefore under the jurisdiction of the general rather than of the State government.

"However, as I have not had the advantages of either legal or judicial training, I am not as well qualified as you to speak on the subject. What to me, and I think to the entire public, is of more importance is the charge time and again made by you during the last six months that the Legislature was under the domination and control of corporations.

"Between the charge recently made that one branch of the Legislature upon its closing engaged in acts of immorality and debauchery and your oft repeated charge that the Legislature serves not the people but special interests the public will come to view their representatives as disreputable and dishonest.

"Call a special session of the Legislature, present to it a plan which you think will be fair and reasonable to the railroads as well as to their patrons—and, may I suggest which will also be within the power of the State to enforce so that in the future we may not be called pretenders or hypocrites.

"If you call such a session I pledge you that I will exercise all my energy and influence to bring about the enactment of the best bill which may be proposed. More than that, I will do my utmost to effect the appointment of a committee or other body with full power to conduct a thorough, searching and merciless investigation. To such a committee may I trust you will make known all the facts on which you base your oft-repeated charge of a Legislature corrupt and dominated by a 'most powerful special interest.'

"It is time for the public to have facts rather than mere charges and insinuations, so that they can distinguish the straightforward from the deceitful, the moral from the dissolute, the honest from the corrupt."

Knights Confer Third Degree.

Forty-five candidates received the third degree at a meeting of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, last night. There was a large attendance of members and visitors, including Mayor C. A. McGlennon, of Harrison. The initiatory work was conducted by Thomas McLoughlin, of Newark, State warden, and John J. Hickey, of Bayonne, State deputy, and was greatly admired. After the work refreshments were served.

Capt. Atkinson's Talk.

Regimental Commissary Captain Condit Atkinson gave a talk to representatives of Company K, of this city, companies C and I, of Elizabeth, and M, of Somerville, in the local armory last night. Captain Atkinson's speech was one of instruction in camp commissary work. He also told of rations, their packing and transportation and gave other interesting data relative to the safe care of provisions during service.

MURRAY PATROL FORMED

Y. M. C. A. Boys' Scouts for Effective Work Among City's Youths.

WILL EMULATE THE BRITISH.

First Tramp of Troops Will Take Place on Saturday and Orange Will Be the Destination.

A unique idea to do effective work among the boys of this city was put into operation yesterday afternoon when a local band of "Boy Scouts" was organized by C. William Bingeman, Secretary of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. The new organization is to be known as the "Murray Patrol" in honor of William D. Murray, of East Ninth street, who is a member of the committee on Boys' Work of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A.

The patrol was organized and put into working shape yesterday afternoon when five boys of the association in conference with Mr. Bingeman perfected plans for the patrol. The boys who took the initiative with Mr. Bingeman are Andrew Hetfield, George Leighs, James McNamee, Harold Sharkey and William Thompson. Six other boys were voted into membership of the patrol. They are Raymond Manley, Frank Dunning, Walter Scribner, Harold Williams, Craig Blair and Donald Ketcham. The patrol will meet again tomorrow afternoon in the association parlors to make plans for a trip to Orange Saturday where the State Athletic meet will be held.

Other troops will be organized in the association as occasion demands and the boys in the "Murray Patrol" will be available to do all in their power to help other organizations.

The boy Scout Movement was organized in England, where there are now 400,000 patrols. The object of the movement broadly speaking is to build up character and make good citizens, to prevent lads from becoming either loafers on the one hand or selfish money worshippers on the other. Any lad may become a member who takes a pledge setting forth the ideals of the patrol. The central idea in the movement is not a scheme of military drill; but it is to interest boys in nature and animal lore, and to make a strong appeal to boyish instincts that are wholesome. Boy scouts are springing up spontaneously inside and out of the Y. M. C. A. and all are looking forward to a national movement with which to affiliate. In a nutshell the aim of the Boy Scouts is the "going ahead of the rest for the good of the rest." The appeal to the boys is broad; physical, educational and moral and religious. There is no department of knowledge that may not be made interesting to a lad who has become imbued with the spirit of a Scout.

The local boys are enthusiastic over the new patrol and the movement bids fair to become very popular in this city. Already in this State there are strong patrols in Newark and in Paterson; and it is the aim of the local association to lead the State in this, as in other departments of association work.

MISS MARTIN RECEIVES PRIZE FOR EXCELLENCE.

Miss Anna Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Martin, of East Sixth street, and Miss Violet Durn and Miss Helen Poole, also of this city, were among the young women who took part in the recital of music pupils of Miss Frances L. Phillips at the M. E. church, Bound Brook, last night. Miss Ethel Cecilia Smith, of Newark, violinist, assisted.

Miss Martin played II Hungarian Rhapsodie, accompanied by Alfred Stryker. She also received the prize for excellence of work, and was highly complimented. The work of Miss Durn and Miss Poole was also of a high order.

The Same Old Story.

John Thomas, of Trenton, leaped from the Philadelphia flyer which passed through here this morning at 8:20 with the natural results. He was scratched and bruised and received a severe cut on his right hand. He did not tarry any longer than it was necessary to secure a ticket for Garwood, departing on the next train.

Taking Inventory of Estate.

Joseph P. Tate, executor of the will of Mrs. Minnie E. Edgerton, assisted by J. Fred MacDonald and Warren Marsh, are now engaged in taking an inventory of the effects of Mrs. Edgerton. It will require a considerable amount of time to complete the task.

LEAL'S BOYS IN COMEDY

Private School Pupils Win Applause in Eleanor Crane's "Next Door."

A CLEVER PERFORMANCE.

Large Audience at the Park Club Shows Its Appreciation—School's Closing Exercises Friday.

Eleanor M. Crane's three-act comedy, "Next Door," was presented at the Park Club, last night, by Leal's School Athletic Association, before a large and thoroughly appreciative audience. The play is full of wholesome fun and the clever way in which each member of the cast took his part won hearty applause throughout the performance. The young men who assumed the parts of women were especially good and reflected much credit on the painstaking efforts of the cast.

The honors were about evenly divided, but it is only fair to say that Thomas H. Leggett, Jr., who took the part of Prof. Courtney Martin, a woman hater, was commendable. Laurence S. Heely, as Mrs. Joseph Thornton, Morris M. Brandegee as Miss Betty Armstead, Frank E. Driscoll as Miss Alice Armstead, nieces of Mrs. Thornton, and Thomas W. Foote, as Miss Kathleen Covington, a Baltimore belle, interpreted their parts true to the lines.

Others who scored were Clarence R. Lawrence as George Chester, an artist; Edward F. Stevenson as Will Webster, lawyer; James O. Murray, as Fred Harper, a Harvard graduate and William P. Brandegee as Orange, from the Sunny South.

The cast was coached by Frederick B. Hanson, assisted by Benjamin P. Adams, both of New York city. Throughout the evening, Charles Suhr's Imperial Trio rendered a fine program of music. At the conclusion of the play the actors were presented with bouquets of flowers.

The officers of Leal's School Athletic Association, under whose auspices the play was given are as follows:

President, Thomas H. Leggett, Jr.; vice-president, Lyman Hibbard; secretary, Clarence R. Lawrence.

The closing exercises of the school will be held at the school Friday morning, when Dr. Scott, of Rutgers College, will make the address. There will be a dance at the Park Club in the evening this being the closing social function for the school term.

THEY DECIDE WOMEN SHOULD NOT VOTE

It was "Resolved, That Woman Suffrage is Desirable," but it didn' make it so when the debate between members of the Baraca class of the Temple Baptist church finished their argument last night and submitted the decision to the judges. The negative side won the debate by producing preponderating evidence that suffrage is not desirable in this country at this time.

The affirmative of the question was studiously cared for by U. S. Crane and Charles Gullberg, while the negative side was ably defended by Chris Utzinger and Edward Baker, Jr., in fact so well did the two latter present their facts and figures that the judges were compelled to render a decision in their favor.

In presenting facts for the consideration of their hearers the defendants of the cause of women said that in Wyoming ninety per cent. of the women voted at the last election and in Australia out of one million votes cast at the last general election, 400,000 were those of women. Again in the election of Judge Lindsay in Denver last year it was the vote of the women that elected the judge.

The undesirability of suffrage was something so out of the question in American politics was made plain by the negative side with the results above stated.

A meeting of the Baraca Jr. and Baraca Philathea was held during the evening. Another debate will soon be held between members of the Baraca Jr. and Baraca classes. The judges last night were Frank Stewart, Henry Jaeger and George Rockefeller. The next meeting of the classes will be held on July 12.

Peddlers Fined.

For peddling without a license yesterday Harry Klinefelter and Benjamin Sock, of New Brunswick, were fined three dollars each in the city court this morning by Judge Runyon. They immediately sought the Mayor's office to secure the necessary document.

WOMEN SUPERVISORS FOR LOCAL PLAYGROUNDS

A woman supervisor for each of the two school playgrounds in this city will be selected at the meeting of the Playgrounds Commission next Wednesday evening. Only applicants for the position who have had experience in playground work will be considered by the special committee appointed to receive them. This committee is composed of Lindsey Best and Harry Marshall. Applications for the position by prospective supervisors should be sent to Lindsey Best.

At the meeting of the commission yesterday afternoon it was decided to open the playgrounds from July 5 to September 10, week days between the hours of 9 and 12 a. m. and 2 to 6 p. m. Rules and regulations governing the playgrounds were adopted and these will be posted in conspicuous places. The sand bins which were recently ordered will be installed shortly in both playgrounds and everything will be in readiness for the opening July 5.

At the session yesterday all of the members of the commission were present and several matters of import were informally discussed. These will be taken up at an important meeting to be held next Wednesday in the mayor's office at 5:30 p. m.

FAVOR WOODROW WILSON FOR U.S. SENATORSHIP

The West End Democratic Club celebrated Flag Day last evening in their rooms with a salute to the flag, speeches and refreshments in which the large gathering took enthusiastic part. The event of the evening, however, was the launching of a boom for the United States Senatorship of Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University.

The speakers of the evening were James E. Martine and Samuel S. Swackhamer. The speeches of these two men were of a patriotic order to which the closest attention was paid by the assemblage. J. O. Stevens entertained the company with several phonograph selections which were thoroughly enjoyed.

Frank J. Shattle introduced the resolution nominating Woodrow Wilson for the senatorship which was as follows: "Whereas, The coming election is one of great importance, and the selection and election to the high office of United States Senator is before the people at this time, and

"Whereas, The people of this State have not the privilege of enjoying that great Democratic principle of the election of the United States Senators by direct vote.

"We, the members of the West End Democratic Club, of Plainfield in regular session assembled, feel it our duty to take our stand at this time and let the people of this State elect a man whose honesty, integrity and ability for the position above named, cannot be doubted by the masses of the people in any form whose daily life is composed of that great Democratic doctrine of equal rights to all, and special privilege to none, representing the masses and not the classes and who we feel will fill the office of United States Senator in the interest of all, we present our choice, Hon. Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton, and be it it resolved that we do everything in our power to further the selection of the Hon. Woodrow Wilson and see that our candidates for the assembly from this district are pledged to vote for Mr. Wilson as the Democratic candidate for the high office named."

The resolution was adopted unanimously and with cheers.

MISS FLORETTA TITUS H. C. ELDRIDGE'S BRIDE.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Floretta Titus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Titus of Dunellen, and Henry Clarence Eldridge, of Kennebunkport, Me., but now of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, at his home on Monday evening, June 6. The witnesses were Mrs. J. W. Musson and John LeMaty.

The groom is a native of Kennebunkport, Me., but has been making his home here for the past year, following his trade that of a painter. The bride is well-known in Dunellen and this city, and has a host of friends. The bride and groom expect to spend the summer at Kennebunkport.

REPORT SIX BURGLARS

And All of Them Occured in the Borough Early This Morning.

A BARE-FOOTED BURGLAR.

Marshall Keller, on Whose Beat the Hauls Were Made, Gets to Work on a Slight Clue.

Quite the most unusual burglaries ever perpetrated in this vicinity took place between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning in the borough, when six houses were entered and several childrens' banks, a work coat, a bottle of milk and a cake were stolen. Silverware was overlook entirely; and what makes the burglary particularly a mystery are the footprints of 12-inch feet which were found about the places entered. On Stone street the burglar worked barefoot; on Jefferson avenue he wore shoes. Just why he gave Jefferson avenue this kind of a preference is mystifying the police. Quite another feature, too, adds interest to the burglaries. A chocolate layer cake, and a bottle of milk, for instance, were taken from the home of Jacob Kirchner on Duer street and the cake was left on the backstoop of Harry Johns further up the street. The only clue to the burglar is a worn panama hat with a railroad ticket for New York in the band, and a copy of a New York newspaper with a temperance editorial penciled out. These were found at one of the houses entered.

The houses entered are those of Mrs. Anne Breakey, a widow who lives at 3 Stone stret; the Rev. Mr. Duschner, of Stone street; Jacob Kirchner, Lewis Bimble, Jr., of Jefferson avenue; Berton Waldron, of Somerset street, and James M. Way, of 8 Stone street.

Children's banks containing approximately $5 were taken from the homes of the Rev. Mr. Duschner and Lewis Bimble. A work coat was also taken from the later place. No entrance was effected in the James Way house, though the window in the rear was opened. Mrs. Way frightened the burglar away. Entrance to the other places was obtained by means of rear windows.

The borough police were notified of the burglaries early this morning and Chief of Police Weiss is now working on the case. Marshal Keller, on whose beat the burglaries occurred, was the first to be notified but as no description of the burglar was furnished by anyone and the clues are so unsatisfactory, the case is an exceedingly difficult one to ferret out.

PARK CLUB CELEBRATION ON 4TH TO BE SANE

The Board of Governors of the Park Club at a meeting last night, decided in favor of a "safe and sane Fourth of July." Instead of the usual display of fireworks at the club on that night there will be a band concert and refreshments will be served out-of-doors for the members and their guests. This action was taken partially because the Plainfield Country Club is planning to give a big display of fireworks at its grounds, and such members of the Park Club as desire, will have an opportunity to witness it. This will be out of the city with a minimum risk of accidents.

Heretofore, the Park Club has always celebarted the Fourth with a display of fireworks in the evening and no doubt the omission this year will be a disappointment.

The governors also granted Henry Johnson, the steward, a two months' leave of absence in the fall. He plans to return to his native home near Denmark, Sweden, to be present at the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of his parents. This will be Mr. Johnson's first trip home in many years and he anticipates it with much pleasure.

Enjoyed the Trip South.

Halsted C. Compton, of West Front street, returned last night after a three weeks' visit among old friends in North Carolina. Mr. Compton traveled among the shooting grounds where he has made some great friends, but he did not indulge in his favorte pastime, he did not even go fishing. He renewed some old friendships and made some new ones and thoroughly enjoyed the trip. Mr. Compton's daughter, Miss Mary D. Compton, also has returned from a trip through the Bahama Islands where she spent the last three weeks.

QUESTIONS FOR FOWLER

Aspirant for Two Big Offices Will Be Quizzed by Progressives.

RUNYON NOT A PARTY.

Former Leader of New Ideaites Not to Be Inveighed Into Any Sore-Headers Political Campaign.

When Charles N. Fowler appears at the conference of the local progressives tonight, and it is expected that he will be present, the State leaders in the "insurgent" or "new idea" policy in the Republican party, it is reliably reported, will quizz him as to his position on important issues in State and National issues. According to progressive leaders, the "anti-machine" is not yet committed to Mr. Fowler's candidacy either for United States Senator or Representative, and all will depend upon his platform as to be announced by himself at the private conference. This meeting was called at the request of William P. Martin, of Essex, to stir up interest in the "reform" movement here and Mr. Colby as well as Mr. Martin is expected to give advice to the local leaders. R. Henry Depew, the recent candidate against C. J. Fisk for the mayoralty and president of the New Jersey People's Lobby, will preside at the session at G. W. V. Moy's office.

Judge William N. Runyon, considered the popular card in the Colbyite movement here several years ago, will not be present. Mr. Runyon, it is reliably reported, will have nothing to do with the Fowler movement. As told in the Daily Press, Mr. MacMurray is not invited to the conference and it is reliably reported that the New Idea men while they may favor Fowler's candidacy will not be harnessed up with MacMurray.

ARTHUR DE FESTETICS AGED TWELVE DEAD.

The deepest sympathy of Plainfield friends will go out to Gyula de Festetics, in the death of his twelve-year-old son, Arthur de Festetics, which occurred yesterday afternoon at his home on Westervelt avenue. The boy was taken ill on Saturday with gastritis which later developed into a hemorrhage of the brain, causing his death.

The lad was a familiar figure on the street as he traveled about on a buckboard, accompanied by his father and his pet dog. He was admired by a great many people for his attractive face, being unusualy handsome. For a long time he had been unable to walk owing to a weakness of the legs, and his father took great delight in taking him about the city. Father and son were inseparable, being passionately fond of each other. Mr. de Festetics is grief-stricken over his loss, as his son was the only relative he had. The former is a native of Hungary. The funeral will be held at his father's residence, 62 Westervelt avenue, tomorrow at 3 o'clock.

W. D. MURRAY SPEAKS AT PARENT-TEACHER MEETING.

The final meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held last night in the Irving school when William D. Murray addressed a large audience on "Our Boys and Girls."

In addition to Mr. Murray's talk there was an entertainment. The members of the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth grades sang several of their school songs, and Miss Harriet Fillmore and Charles L. Lewis sang solos. Richard Bordman was roundly applauded for his able recitation, "Somebody's Mother." Following the meeting an informal social time was enjoyed and light refreshments were served.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pierson, of Dunellen avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion E. Pierson, to David N. Mauger, of West Seventh street. Recently, a luncheon was given by Mrs. Raymond Smith in honor of Miss Pierson, to which several intimate friends were invited.

Will Hold a Missionary Tea.

A missionary tea will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, when Miss Jennie V. Hughes, a returned missionary from China will make an address. The auxiliaries of the other local Methodist churches have been invited to attend.

Under the auspices of the Women's Relief Corps a strawberry festival will be held in Reform Hall, Friday night.

SPHERE OF WOMEN AS TO EDUCATION

Governor Fort Describes it at Flag Day Celebration at Mt. St. Mary's College —Others Speak.

Each had something significant to say of the part played by woman in past, present and future history; and each took occasion to strike a strong note of patriotism in their remarks.

It was a large audience of people gathered on the picturesque crest of the Watchung mountains by the college, where the exercises were held to hear them. Seated on the platform directly in front of the flag pole, were Governor Fort, Bishop McFaul, Hon. John Green, Mayor Fisk, David Kenny, Prof. John Brewster, Father Hogan, Judge Runyon, Chief of Police Kiely, Senator Askerman, General Collins, George Tobin, Father Edward Dunphy, of Dunellen; and Mayors Madden, of Trenton; Mravlag, of Elizabeth; Scully, of South Amboy, and Bolschweiler, of Perth Amboy. To the right of them were detailed the members of Company K, of this city, and Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R. To the left on a raised platform were seated six young women, who will be graduated, garbed in their academic gowns and motarboards; while just above them were seated a large group of college women attractively garbed in red, white and blue. Smaller children were also dressed in this way and they, too, took part in the exercises.

Following the blessing of the flag by Bishop McFaul, it was presented with impressive military ceremony by the local detail of the G. A. R. This was the first time in the history of the G. R. R. that any local detail has been reviewed singly by the Governor of the State.

The young women of the college then gathered about the flag pole, and the flag was raised by Miss Marie Tobin, the bright young daughter of George Tobin who presented the flag. Throughout the preliminary part of the exercises the band situated among the trees to the left of the main platform, played patriotic anthems. This was a fitting introduction to Governor Fort, who was formally presented by Prof. Brewster. Gov. Fort then took the platform and said in part:

"There was a time," said Governor Fort, "when the education of woman was satisfied by travel and a bit of sentimentality. Now that is past. Woman's mind is as acute, and her intelligence is as great as mans.' Now she is reaching a position shoulder to shoulder with man. Her mental processes, though, are different. Perhaps she doesn't reason, but she has an insuition that gets her there more quickly. They accomplish results without seeming to do so.

"You," he said, turning to the graduates who were present, "are going to leave this institution to go into the world in an age such as has never before been seen. In an age like this, simply to be living is sub-

Funeral services of Harrison Denman, sixteen-year-old son of Charles H. Denman, was held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Paul's church, Rev. Sidney Cross officiating. Interment was in the family plot at Salem, Mass.

No more meetings at which there is likely to be a large audience will be held in the Methodist church until the old building has been moved back and set on its temporary foundation. The trustees fear that it would be unsafe.

Westfield Park Commission learns that they will have to spray all the trees over again, as the rain has washed off all insecticide that had been sprayed on last week.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The married and single men in town will have the annual game of baseball on the afternoon of the Fourth. James Fitzgerald has charge of the single men's interest, while the benedicts are being handled by the veterans, Edward L. Hand. Both sides are claiming the big end of the score at this early date, so the town can look forward to a warm game when the two teams meet.

The boys in town are getting in shape for the running races to be held in connection with the celebration on the Fourth. Every night the several candidates are out on trial spins and some wonderful time is being made according to all reports.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Baptist church will be held tonight in the parlors of the church.

Mrs. William R. Buckley, of Front street, left yesterday for a week's visit with relatives at Brimfield, Mass.

WOMAN AND THREE CHILDREN MISSING.

Atlantic City is being searched today for Mrs. Lavinia Giberson, wife of Edward Giberson a waiter, in Philadelphia, who disappeared on Saturday night last at Atlantic City with her three little children. The woman had been in ill health and went to Atlantic City with her babies for hte sea air.

Relatives of the missing woman, who went to Atlantic City when they heard of her disappearance, say she has been acting strangely for some weeks, and fear that she may have started off with an idea of taking a long journey and run out of money, of which she had very little.

376 YOUNG WOMEN ARE GRADUATED AT SMITH.

Northampton, Mass., June 15.—The largest class in the history of Smith College was graduated yesterday, when 376 young women were made bachelors of arts. Of the number, eighteen hail from New Jersey. With the conferring of the degrees at yesterday's commencement exercises, President L. Clark Seelye, for thirty-five years the administrative head of the institution, practically brought his labors to an end.

Wanders Into Hospital Ill.

Elizabeth, June 15.—At the Alexian Hospital here is a man who on Friday applied for admission to that institution. He said he had been sent to the hospital by a man named Kelly, of Union Township, but his story is doubted by the hospital authorities. He is over sixty years of age and says he has a son-in-law, Denis Sullivan, who is a bicycle policeman in Jersey City. It is thought the old man belongs to that place and that he strayed away from home while ill. He was in pretty bad shape when he reached the hospital, but has considerably improved.

—The three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Kelley, of West Fourth street, underwent a successful operation yesterday for eye trouble. Dr. H. V. Hubbard performed the operation.

Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell, of West Seventh street, will entertain a number of friends at a porch card party Friday afternoon.

COMMUTERS LOOKING TO GOVERNOR FORT.

From a meeting in East range last night, at which the organization committee of the Commuters' League of New Jersey was appointed, an appeal went forth from 30,000 commuters and other patrons of the railroads in this State to Governor Fort, asking him to aid them in preventing the raise in passenger rates. A telegram was sent to the Governor referring to the monster meeting in East Orange on Saturday night when resolutions were passed by a thousand representatives of the commuters asking him to convene the Legislature in special session.

The committee appointed last night will meet tomorrow night and plans will be laid to join the tri-State movement, which comprises New Jersey, New York and Connecticut, and to broaden the commuters' league idea into a national organization.

Action was taken by the Glen Ridge Council, resolutions of protest being passed and the State authorities called on to have laws enacted that will afford relief from higher railroad rates.

At the meeting of the Montclair Council, the Mayor of that town was authorized to attend the conference of Mayors in this city tomorrow night, and to co-operate in the efforts of the executives to aid the commuters.

Six railroad officials will be on the rack before the State Railroad Commission today when the investigation into the action of the company in raising their rates will begin. The examination of these men will be of the most sweeping character.

ELIZABETH PLANS PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Plans for a red hot, systematic city advertising campaign to set forth the advantages of Elizabeth for business and home sites have been approved by the Elizabeth Board of Trade, which has appropriated $200 as a nucleus of a fund which, it is hoped, will be boosted into the thousands by subscriptions from professional and business men. The members of the board have expressed themselves as enthusiastic over the project and declare that the expenditure of a few thousand dollars on a carefully mapped out publicity campaign will bring results and mean the biggest boost Elizabeth has ever had.

The Publicity Committee of the Board of Trade, which will act in conjunction with the First Street Association, the Real Estate Board, the Insurance Club and the Master Builders' Association, consists of Charles D. Doctor, chairman; John Lammerding, E. D. Mulford, Theodore Bothman and Charles M. Hiller. A meeting of the Publicity Committee of the Board of Trade and the other civic organizations interested in the campaign will be held in the Board of Trade rooms Thursday afternoon, June 23, when a permanent organization will be perfected.

RECORD UPHOLDS FORT.

Agrees in Arousing Public Demand for Special Session.

Jersey City, June 15.—"I think the Governor's plan, as outlined in his East Orange speech, shows sound judgment. He is playing shrewd politics. It is just as he says—there is no use in getting the Legislature together unless there is public sentiment enough back of the move to compel the action desired," said George L. Record, who will probably be the New Idea candidate for the nomination of Congressman in the Ninth district this fall.

"To convene the Legislature before the public sentiment upon the rate question has been stirred up so that there can be no question as to the temper of the people and the general demand for action by the Republican majority or a new deal in the Legislature and the election of men who can be depended upon to keep their promises and give the public what it wants in the way of relief from the oppressions of the utility corporations, would be simply to re-enact the farce of the last session and once more to permit the corporations to control the lawmakers.

"The organization of commuters' societies and taxpayers' associations to protest against the increase in commutation rates is a healthy sign. It will not, in my opinion, be many days before the Governor and the members of the Legislature will be convinced that the people demand and will have a public utility commission with full power to fix rates, if not from the present Legislature and Governor Fort, then from the next Legislature and another Governor."

Rob Postoffice at Sussex.

Robbers broke into the postoffice at Sussex Sunday night, blew open the safe with nitro-glycerine and carried off $400 worth of stamps and $3 in ash. Three men who are believed to have been concerned in the robbery were followed over the mountains to Newfoundland, but no arrests are reported as yet. The suspected men are said to have been making for the camp of laborers near Newfoundland.

GOLF.

Golfers from coast to coast have entered for the National Open Championship Tournament to be held over the links of the Philadelphia Cricket Club next Friday and Saturday. From far off Oakland, Ca., McDonald and George Smith, two brothers of Alex Smith, the Wykagyl "pro," who holds the metropolitan and Eastern titles, have sent in their names to Robert C. Watson, secretary of the United States Golf Association.

McDonald Smith is the young fellow of whom Alec expects so much. The first named sprang into fame during the Portola tournament last fall. It is a long way to travel for two days of golf, but the brothers in question are ambitious to become champions the same as Willie and Alec did years ago.

With belated mails to be heard from the entry received at the secretary's office up to last night numbered sixty-four. The title-holder, George Sargent, has entered from Chevy Chase and so has Willie Anderson, a four-time champion. Anderson's home green is the cricket club, where the coming tournament will be held, and it is just possible he will be able to gain lasting fame by winning for the fifth time.

Alec Smith, who recently went round the cricket club's course in record figures, is at the top of his game, and the Wykagyl expert is willing to back himself against any other entrant. Other prominent ones who have entered are George Low, of Baltusrol; Jack Hutchinson, of Alleghany; "Nipper" Campbell, of Brookline; Jack Hobens, of Englewood; Fred McLeod, of St. Louis, a former open champion; Peter Robertson, of Oakmont; Isaac Mackie, of Fox Hills; Alec Ross, the Brae Burn player who won the last time the event was held in Philadelphia; the far driver from Wilmington, Gill Nichols, present open champion of the Philadelphia district, and a host of others.

The annual championship tournament of the Intercollegiate Golf Association will probably be held this year over the links of the Ekwanok Country Club at Manchester some time in July. When the collegians held their tournament last year at Apawamis the impression got abroad that they would return to the Rye course for their 1910 meeting, but Robert Hunter, secretary of the association, said last night that Ekwanok would surely have the event this time. The exact date has not been selected as yet, but Hunter says either the week of July 4 or July 18 will be taken.

Conditions for the intercollegiate championship will be similar to a year ago, starting with the team matches and finishing with the individual contests. Robert Gardner, of Yale the national champion, will take part in this intercollegiate and the occasion will afford followers of the game a chance to size up the conquerer of H. Chandler Egan. Since his national triumph at Wheaton last fall Gardner has been devoting most of his leisure time to pole vaulting, but recently the Westerner has returned to the links, and those who have seen him in action declare he has lost none of his cunning. Gardner recently made a 71 over the links of the New Haven Country Club.

At Montclair, where Jerome D. Travers plays when at home, amateurs will be required to compete under novel conditions. In the qualifying round of eighteen holes the first sixteen players must be those with metropolitan handicaps of nine or better, while a second flight will have to be players rated from ten to twelve inclusive. In the third division those handicapped from thirteen to fifteen inclusive must appear, while in the fourth all those sixteen or more will be eligible to qualify for the "duffer" cup.

The object of this classification is to prevent players dropping into wrong divisions made possible by a good man because of one bad hole qualifying into a set where he does not belong. There is considerable conjecture as to the feasibility of this ssytem, and the outcome will be watched with more than passing interest.

MT. ST. MARY'S FLAG DAY

lime. Within practically recent times we began talking over thousands of miles of wire. Today we fly—indeed only yesterday in this State of New Jersey—faster than the fastest express trains. What we are to come to and to see, no one can predict. You leave this institution in an age when nothing is impossible. No one today questions the sanity of a scientific man. In fact the mentality of the human race is so astounding that nothing seems impossible.

The forces making this change are not material. One of the signs of the times is to consider the greatest forces, moral forces—forces which make for eternity. In the future, perhaps," he said, "you young women will stand here as the governors of New Jersey or as legislators. In whatever capacity it is, we know that you will acquit yourself well.

"I would rather having a praying man or woman in government than any other kind in life. It runs hand in hand with patriotism. What is a nation, if that nation doesn't command love from the man who follows its flag? Those men," he said, pointing to the G. A. R. veterans, "didn't go to war for money, a meagre $13 a month—it was for the glory of the republic that they loved. To them we are indebted for the fact that our flag is proudly floating today. Let us emulate this patriotism. We will have no Hessians, no soldiers who fight for money; but we will have men, like those who fought under Washintgon in these Watchung mountains. Our heritage from our forefathers is that this nation should be the greatest nation in the world. The only thing to do, is to be loyal to that flag. May that flag float over our children, and our childrens' children, yet to be born."

In prefacing his speech the governor said that the location of Mt. St. Mary's College was ideal. "To get a better one, one must go to Switzerland." To the local G. A. R. he paid a tribute, saying that it was due to them that we have a flag to raise. He then touched on New Jersey. "We should be proud of New Jersey," he said, "because of its population which is great in comparison with the size of the State; because of its scenic and educational advantages and because of the average intelligence and character of its people. We are conservative and yet progressive. There are no lines in which you can view New Jersey, but that you will be proud of the fact that you are a Jerseyman and a part of the State."

An impressive pantomime, "The American Flag," was then given by the undergraduates who were seated on a small grandstand. Miss F. Martin was the spokesman while her collegemates went through the movements typical of what she recited. A final salute to "Old Glory" was a peculiarly apt introduction to Hon. John Green, of New York, who spoke on "Woman Under the Flag." He said in part:

"It is a grand thing to see women drinking lessons of patriotism, love and ardor from the chief magistrate of the State," he declared. "We know mans' place under the flag, and in the State—what is womans'? What is womans' place In the dark days of peril, to foster patriotism, even beyond the bounds of home; nursing soldiers stricken under the flag. This is a vast field, and a noble one. It is more. Men look to women in the time of a struggle and conflict, and in the time of temptation and repose. From our mothers we learn our first lessons. To woman has been given the privilege to teach and mould the character of the men of the republic.

"It is of the utmost importance that woman should realize her position and power; and all having to do with her education should likewise recognize it. She should realize that the time of trial of a nation is never past. Women—whether they have the ballot or not—have been of the greatest influence in social movements and have been the most active in such movements. Such training of women for a recognition of her position is to be had in higher institutions of learning; and hence it is of the utmost importance to the State and the church to encourage such institutions. In the hands of young women is the formation of our future citizenship—they can make it efficient and virtuous."

Miss Annabelle Jones then raised the college flag while her classmates in the graduating class, six young women, gathered about her. Bishop McFaul was then introduced. He said in part:

"The hand that rocks the cradle," rules the world. The lessons laid down for young women in the speeches of Governor Fort and Hon. John Green, will, I hope," he said, "bear fruit in the hearts of young husbands. Their influence is potent; and it is peculiarly appropriate that the higher institutions are meeting their obligation in this respect. The aim of this institution is to make learned, pious, and above all, virtuous women. The nation not founded on religion and morals can not endure. That flag," he said, pointing to the emblem that had been raised, "unites in itself the achievements of science and the patriotism of a great nation. Hand it down to your successors uncontaminated and untarnished—forever."

In the introduction to his remarks Bishop McFaul apoligized for his inability to make a long speech owing to the fact that he had just gotten out of bed where he was confined by illness. He declared that it was a great privilege to be present, and suggested that the person who selected the flag pole, on which the flag was raised had been troubled with some affliction of the eye. "May it be straightened out in the permanent one that succeeds it," he added, amid a burst of applause.

The exercises were formally concluded by maneouvers by Company K, under General Collins, and by Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R. The assembled audience then rose and sang the Star Spangled Banner, which completed the exercises of the day.

Following the formal exercises, a light supper was served to the distinguished guests present, including members of the clergy, speakers and newspaper men.

DANGER AT LEHIGH VALLEY CROSSING AT SO. PLAINFIELD

If there was no disasters at the South Plainfield crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad yesterday afternoon it was no fault of the man or men who have charge of the gates at that point. An automobile party consisting of two cars containing seven people, rode directly upon the rails, the gates being open, while four trains, three from the east and one from the west, were approaching the crossing.

Following the automobiles was an old man driving a horse and buggy who was either deaf or careless. His rig escaped the locomotive of one of the trains going west by about a foot. There apepared to be no one in charge of the gates and extreme caution was necessary on the return trip to avoid being run down. As a precaution it would be well for people having to cross that particular point of thrifty railroad traffic to look carefully before they attempt to cross in the face of such carelessness.

First Excursion to the Shore.

The Crescent Avenue church Sunday school will go to Asbury Park on Thursday, July 7, being the first excursion from this city to the shore this season. The school will be accompanied by Grace Episcopal, Seventh-Day Baptist, Holy Cross, Church of the Heavenly Rest, Bethel chapel, St. Stephen's and the First Baptist church Sunday school of New Market. It is planned to take out the biggest excursion of the season. Harry M. Slauson is chairman of the committee, assisted by Henry Brower, secretary of the Crescent Avenue church Sunday school.

PLAN THIS AFTERNOON HALL BIPLANE TRIAL

Owing to the fact that the aeroplane was not quite ready for a trial yesterday the hundred or more people who had gathered to see Clinton Hall make an ascent were disappointed. There are so many little things connected with the construction of an airship of the heavier-than-air type that it is a wonder that any of them are built at all. A complexity of wires, everyone of which must be tested and run through little tubes for protection that one wonders at the patience of the builder.

Mr. Hall's machine has two planes, each thirty feet in length and slightly convex, this latter feature is expected to give greater stability and more resistance, making it possible for a greater density or quantity of supporting air to be brought into use. A departure from the other biplanes in use is found in the steering planes. Instead of two separate vertical planes set ten feet apart there are two close together at the rear shaped like a box without sides or ends and set directly aft of the propeller. The thrust of the air from the propeller gives this box-like arrangement particularly strong control over the movement to left or right of the bi-plane.

A similar arrangement only in a horizontal position gives the aeronaut control over the upward and downward movement of the machine. The exception as to difference is that the forward directive planes are ten feet long and are controlled by the wheel. By a forward thrust of the steering wheel the planes are made to lower, thus forcing the air upward and the machine down while drawing the wheel inward gives the planes an upward slant, causing it to ascend.

The propeller has a diameter of seven feet, the gasolene tank will hold ten gallons, sufficient for a trip of 100 miles and the entire outfit without the aviator weighs 550 pounds.

DRAFT RESOLUTIONS ON RESIGNATION OF W. N. RUNYON.

The William N. Runyon Bible Class Association, of Hope chapel, held a short business session last night. As all the returns from tickets are not in, James Penney, chairman of the finance committee, could not report the exact sum realized from the recent minstrel entertainment. A committee comprising Benjamin Evans, James Penney and J. Frank Lindsley was appointed to draw up resolutions regarding the resignation of City Judge W. N. Runyon as teacher of the class.

Death of Walter Price.

Walter Price, of Westerly, R. I., died on Monday after a brief illness. Mr. Price was postmaster of Westerly and was a veteran of the Civil War. For some years he was in the employ of the Mallory steamship line as purser and afterwards became dock master for the company at Pier 21, East River. He was appointed postmaster in 1900 and held that position until his death. He is survived by his mother and a son and daughter.

Palmer Tract Sold Today.

The deal was closed this morning when possession was taken. The tract will be cut up into building lots at once.

Final Oak Tree Dance.

The last of the series of dances for the benefit of the piano fund of the Oak Tree school will be given tomorrow evening in the school. A New York orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music for dancing.

To Open Watchung Avenue.

Watchung avenue from Coddington avenue to Johnston Drive will be opened tomorrow, when a large gang of men under the direction of Borough Street Commissioner Barratt will be set to work.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Clifton, of Brailentown, Fla., returned to Plainfield yesterday for the summer.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT BOND ISSUE ORDERED

Only thirty contrary votes were polled yesterday in the special sewerage election in the borough. The vote as a whole was light. But 542 votes out of 1,500 votes in the borough took sufficient interest in the proposition to cast a ballot for or against it. The purpose of the election was to authorize the authorities to make a $300,000 bond issue for a sewage disposal plant.

In the morning the voting was very light, but around noon picked up, and gained steadily in the afternoon. When the polls closed numerous voters appeared; but too late to cast ballots. The voting in the three districts follows: First District: 188 in favor, five against; Second District: 105 in favor, 16 against; Third District: 119 in favor, 19 against.

The light voting was ascribed to the fact that the election was held on a regular business day during business hours, and also partially to the fact that no apprehension was anticipated that the measure would be defeated, no matter how light the voting.

THEY WERE GRADUATED FROM "OLD NASSAU"

Among the graduates at Princeton University yesterday, were Percy Addison Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Chapman, of West Seventh street, who received the degree of master of arts on examination and Jesse Herrman, of Stirling, who is a brother of Mrs. Herman J. Bremmer, of Jefferson avenue.

Mr. Chapman is now abroad, having been given permission to go for the purpose of taking up special studies. Mr. Herrman was one of the high honor men at Princeton, winning a number of prizes, including the Baird prize for English, the Baird prize for disputation, the Lynde debate prizes, class of 1876 memorial prize, and in addition he received the highest honors in philosophy.

Miss Jessie Maclay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Maclay, of West Eighth street, was graduated with high honors from Mt. Holyoke College yesterday. She was a former graduate of the Plainfield High School, class president (1906-1907), member of Y. W. C. A., LeGlocose, Choral Club and Mosquito Club.

Miss Edna C. Swain, daughter of Philip Swain, of Craig place, was among the forty-five young women graduated from the Montclair Normal School today. This is the first graduation at the schol. Mr. Swain and family attended the exercises at which Governor Fort made an address. Miss Swain was a graduate of the North Plainfield High School, Class '08.

PERSONAL.

Daniel Webster Applegate, of East Fifth street, will be graduated from the New Jersey Law School at Newark, tonight. Several Plainfield friends will attend the exercises.

Mrs. H. F. Allen and granddaughter, Miss Mildred Berry, of 39 Sycamore avenue, leave tomorrow for Tygnboro, Mass., where they will remain for several weeks. Miss Berry will also visit friends in Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Atwood, of Wellsfleet, Mass., who have been visiting Captain and Mrs. W. C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, left today for Trenton, where they will visit. Later they will go to Vineland.

DEPOSED AS PRESIDENT.

Sussex, June 15.—The trouble which has been brewing in the Sussex Board of Education for some time broke out afresh Monday night, when by a vote of six to three Judge Henry C. Hunt was deposed as president. His supporters in the board were the clerk, J. J. Coones and Owen J. Little. Mr. Hunt voted for his retention in office.

At the meeting of the board on June 6 Mr. Hunt refused to entertain motions put by the majority, declaring them out of order, and it was in retaliation that he was ousted Monday night.

Ernest N. Rozelle, of Bloomingdale, was elected principal of the school at a salary of $1,000.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The rehearsal of the play "Diamond and Hearts," which will be given soon for the benefit of the firemen, was held last night in Washington hall.

Miss Bertha Solt, of Weissport, Pa., formerly of this place, spent yesterday with Miss Irene Miller, of Lehigh avenue.

The local baseball club will hook up with the Saengerbund F. C., of Plainfield, next Sunday.

On Friday night the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Co. will hold its regular monthly meeting.

'Proof Against Failure'

"I'm proof against that word failure. I've seen behind it. The only failure a man ought to fear is failure in cleaving to the purpose he sees to be best."

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Howard, the ten-year-old son of George P. Miller, of Bordentown, was badly bitten on the left leg by a dog Monday.

John Maher, eleven years old, of 177 Pine street, Jersey City, lost his right forefinger Monday night by the explosion of a giant firecracker, which he held in his hand.

The State Water Supply Commission yesterday gave a public hearing at Merchantville on the application of the Merchantville Water Company for permission to use water from Pensauken Creek.

Missing since Saturday last, sixteen-year-old Mary Mead, of 461 Berkeley street, is being sought by the Camden police. The girl had been employed at Collingswood, but she has not been at her place of employment since Friday.

Cutting his hand when a blow aimed at a trolley conductor crashed through a window of the car, William Goodenough, of Merchantville, was Monday sentenced to twenty days in the county jail in Camden Police Court after his injuries had been dressed.

The Crab Island fish factory in Great Bay, near Tuckerton, has been bought by McKeever Brothers, of Brooklyn, and the plant, burned down a few years ago, is being rebuilt. The old factory belonged to Joseph Wharton, of Philadelphia, who died recently.

While Jersey City is building fewer new schools the city architect, John T. Rowland, is not going to get so much salary. From $8,000 a year the Board of Education has cut his stipend down to $3,000. When more plans for new schools are required the salary will go up again.

Mamie McCue, fourteen years old, of 250 Getty avenue, Paterson, was reported missing to the police Monday by her father. It was learned that Mamie, up to a few months ago, lived with her grandmother, Mrs. McShane, of Newark. It is believed she has gone back to her grandmother.

In a vain effort to avoid a collision with a boy on roller skates, Motorcycle Policeman Jeff Kay risked his life in Camden Monday evening by steering his machine into a column of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad Company's elevated bridge at Broadway. Kay was slightly injured, but the boy, John Newman, escaped unhurt and the machine was wrecked.

Applications for renewals of only 175 of the 225 liquor licenses in Atlantic City, were made to the Council Monday night, and officials believe that a number of liquor dealers will go out of business rather than pay the $500 fee which forced several out of business last year. The applications have been referred to the License Committee, which will report to a special meeting next Monday night. All licenses in the city expire on July 1.

Rev. Dr. O. P. Eaches, pastor of the Baptist church, has just completed his fortieth year of service with interesting ceremonies. Dr. Eaches went to Hightstown from Pennsylvania, and has accomplished a great work for his church in this vicinity. He is largely responsible for the establishment of Peddie Institute, now known everywhere as one of the most flourishing of educational institutions.

TO FIGHT HIGHER RATES.

Bernardsville, June 15.—The electric light commissioners of the six districts, including four of Bernards Township and two of Bedminster Township, met last night in James F. Guerin's office and discussed the increased light rate of the Bernards Water Company. They organized to protect their respective districts. The commissioners said they would not stand for the rates asked for by the company. At present it receives from the six districts about $5,000 annually.

Superintendent E. Van Arsdale, of the water company, was present. The commissioners decided to meet the directors of the company next Monday evening.

Peace Justices' Association Wavers.

Phillipsburg, June 15.—The success of the Warren County Association of Justices of the Peace and Constables, which was organized a few weeks ago as a branch of the State association, is in doubt. At no time have all the squires and badge wearers been interested in the association, and those who did head the movement have failed at the last two meetings to create sufficient interests to bring out a quorum. It is stated on authority that another attempt will be made to increase interest before the association work is abandoned. Oliver Van Billiard, of Phillipsburg, has been elected president of the Warren county branch.

The weekly sessions of the Sunday-school of All Souls Unitarian church has been closed until September, the last session being held on Sunday.

Sample Pieces High Grade Underwear at Half Price

The American Hosiery Co. makes nothing but the best undergarments. We have secured their Summer samples of their best grades for this big sale.

Unexcelled for finish and wearing qualities, perfect in shape, these splendid undergarments will appeal to those men who are as particular about their inner dress as their outer dress. Some of these pieces are slightly soiled from being shown by salesmen on the road. Beyond that they are perfect, and one laundering will suffice to make them as good as the best stock on the market—and because they are samples we are going to sell them at just half regular prices.

Sizes in shirts are mostly 38 and 40; in drawers 34 and 36.

Lot 1—$1.00 Grades for 50c—Shirts and Drawers; fine cotton and lisles.

Lot 2—$1.50 Grades for 75c—Shirts and Drawers; cottons, lisles and merino.

54-40 OR Fight

By Emerson Hough

Author of The Mississippi Bubble

(Copyright, 1909, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

The difference in breeding between these two women was to be seen at a glance. The Dona Lucrezia was beautiful in a way, but lacked the thoroughbred quality which comes in the highest types of womanhood. Afflicted by nothing but a somewhat mercenary or personal grief, she showed her lack of gameness in adversity. On the other hand, Helena von Ritz, who had lived tragedy all her life, and was now in the climax of such tragedy, was smiling and debonair as though she had never been anything but wholly content with life! She was robed now in some light filmy green material, caught up here and there on the shoulders and secured with silken knots. Her white neck showed, her arms were partly bare with the short sleeves of the time. She stood, composed and easy, a figure fit for any company or any court, and somewhat shaming our little assembly, which never was a court at all, only a private meeting in the office of a discredited and disowned leader in a republican government. Her costume and her bearing were Helena von Ritz's answer to a woman's fate! A deep color flamed in her cheeks. She stood with head erect and lips smiling brilliantly. Her curtsey was grace itself. Our dingy little office was glorified.

"I interrupt you, gentlemen," she began.

"On the contrary, I am sure, my dear lady," said Dr. Ward, "Senator Calhoun told me he wished you to meet Senora Yturrio."

"Yes," resumed Calhoun, "I was just speaking with this lady over some matters concerned with this little slipper." He smiled as he held it up gingerly between thumb and finger. "Do you recognize it, Madam Baroness?"

"Ah, my little shoe!" she exclaimed. "But see, it has not been well cared for."

"It traveled in my war bag from Oregon to Washington," said I. "Perhaps bullet molds and powder flasks may have damaged it."

"It still would serve as a little post-office, perhaps," laughed the baroness. "But I think its days are done on such errands."

"I will explain something of these errands to the Senora Yturrio," said Calhoun. "I wish you personally to say to that lady, if you will, that Senor Yturrio regarded this little receptacle rather as official than personal post."

For one moment these two women looked at each other, with that on their faces which would be hard to describe. At last the baroness spoke:

"It is not wholly my fault, Senora Yturrio, if your husband gave you cause to think there was more than diplomacy between us. At least, I can say to you that it was the sport of it alone, the intrigue, if you please, which interested me. I trust you will not accuse me beyond this."

A stifled exclamation came from the Dona Lucrezia. I have never seen more sadness nor yet more hatred on a human face than hers displayed. I have said that she was not a thoroughbred. She arose now, proud as ever, it is true, but vicious. She declined Helena von Ritz's outstretched hand, and swept us a curtsey. "Adios!" said she. "I go!"

Mr. Calhoun gravely offered her an arm; and so with a rustle of her silks there passed from our lives one unhappy lady who helped to make our map for us.

The baroness herself turned. "I ought not to remain," she hesitated.

"Madam," said Mr. Calhoun, "we can not spare you yet."

She flashed upon him a keen look. "It is a young country," said she, "but it raises statesmen. You foolish, dear Americans! One could have loved you all."

"Eh, what?" said Dr. Ward, turning to her. "My dear lady, two of us are too old for that; and as for the other—"

He did not know how hard this chance remark might smite, but as usual Helena von Ritz was brave and smiling.

"You are men," she said, "such as we do not have in our courts of Europe. Men and women—that is what this country produces."

"Madam," said Calhoun, "I myself am a very poor sort of man. I am old, and I fail from month to month. I cannot live long, at best. What you see in me is simply a purpose—a purpose to accomplish something for my country—a purpose which my country itself does not desire to see fulfilled. Republics do not reward us. What you say shall be our chief reward. I have asked you here also to accept the thanks of all of us who know the intricacies of the events which have gone forward. Madam, we owe you Texas! 'Twas not yonder lady, but yourself, who first advised of the danger that threatened us. Hers was, after all, a simpler task than yours, because she only matched faiths with Van Zandt, representative of Texas, who had faith in neither men, women nor nations. Had all gone well, we might perhaps have owed you yet more, for Oregon."

"Would you like Oregon?" she asked, looking at him with a full glance of her dark eyes.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW.

What a Heap of Happiness it Would Bring to Plainfield Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that

Backache pains come from sick kidneys,

'Twould save much needless woe.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys,

Plainfield people endorse this:

Mrs. E. Dorflingers, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "About three years ago I was suffering severely from kidney trouble. There were dull, heavy pains in my back and in the top of my head. I also had dizzy spells and I was subject to chills. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and I began their use. They promptly drove away my trouble and I have had no symptom of a return since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

DOG BITE VERDICT FAILS.

Trenton, June 15.—On the ground that there was no evidence of a mischievous propensity on the part of a dog which bit Helen M. Merkle, an infant, the Supreme Court, Monday, set aside a verdict recovered on behalf of the child in the First District Court of Newark against Charles and Emil Schaeffer.

Justice Swayze, who wrote the opinion, said the only question necessary to consider was whether or not there was evidence to justify an inference that the defendants knew that the dog was possessed of mischievous propensities. Such knowledge, he said, was essential to justify a judgment for the plaintiff. The only evidence of this kind was given by one Buchlien, who testified that he had frequently visited the defendants at their home, that they all were accustomed to play with the dog, and the dog was full of play, and would jump around and growl and snap at them playfully.

"If we assume that this evidence is sufficient to show that the defendants knew all that Mr. Buchlien knew," said Justice Swayze, "it amounts only to proof that the dog would snap, not bite, at those who were playing with him, but that he would do it, not viciously, but "just in play,' to use the exact langauge of the witness. This, so far from showing a mischeivous propensity to bite, negatives that inference, for if the dog had been possessed of a mischievous propensity to bite he would have done something more than snap, just in play."

MOTHER-IN-LAW, 90, IN ROW.

Mrs. Hawthorne Has Son-in-Law Arrested and Is Cautioned by Paterson Judge.

Mrs. Margaret Hawthorne, of No. 88 Twenty-first street, Paterson, had her son-in-law, Alexander Pitcohic, up in Quarter Sessions Court in that city Monday in a charge of beating her. Mrs. Hawthorne is nearly ninety years old.

It is said there was a quarrel over money matters. Mrs. Hawthorne said that she was thrown against the panelling of the room. Mr. and Mrs. Pitcohic said nothing like this even happened.

The Court turned all parties over to the probation officer, with the caution to Mrs. Hawthorne not to make any attempts to disturb the peace of her daughter's home.

JERSEY BERRY PROSPECTS.

White the young leaves on the low blue huckleberry bushes were killed by frost, an examination in portions of the New Jersey pine district shows that the bloom and berries are unhurt. At the present time there is a fair prospect for an average yield.

Fearing that other frosts may yet appear, some bog owners still have their cranberries under water, and thus the tender vines have escaped injury.

Apple trees in Burlington county that have escaped the blight are full of fruit, and there is promise of a good crop. Pears will be scarce, but there will be plenty of peaches.

TWO-MAN TOURNEY WON BY KIELY AND STOUT

With a record of thirty-one games won and eleven lost, Kiely and Stout captured the championship of the two-man tourney which came to a close at Campbell's alleys on Monday night. Vail and Meyer landed second place two games behind the leaders, with Burscher and Schaub third, Miller and Ortleb fourth and Matthews and Meyer taking fifth prize.

In the race for average prizes, Johnny Campbell, as usual took first money with a mark of 201.25 for his forty-two games; Schaub gets second with an average of 192.6 and Blatz with 190.13 lands third money.

Burscher and Schaub won the high team score prize with a mark of 443, and Johnny Campbell's 259 is high individual score of the tourney.

The prizes will be awarded to the winners at the alleys tonight.

A two-man bowling match is on the cards for tomorrow night at Campbell's alleys when Matthews and Schaub roll Nash and Campbell best out of nine games. Of course, the local pair are the favorites but an interesting match is looked for.

EIGHT EVENTS SCHEDULED FOR HILL CLIMB CONTEST

Official blanks for the second annual hill-climbing contest to be held on Johnston's Drive, Saturday afternoon, July 9, under the auspices of the Plainfield Automobile Club, have been issued. The contests will be held under the rules and with the sanction of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, the sanction number being 191. The races will begin promptly at 1:30. There will be eight events on the program, the prizes to be in cash or plate, except as otherwise specified.

Arrangements have been made with the authorities for the use of the course for practice three days prior to the date of the race, namely Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 3 p. m. Entries close Monday, July 4, at midnight with William R. Townsend, secretary, 151 North avenue. The list of events:

HONOR VETERAN TEACHER

Purse Presented to Miss N. J. Bullock, 25 Years Franklin School's Principal.

This year is the twenty-fifth that Miss Noel J. Bullock has been principal of the Franklin School, and the Parent-Teacher Association felt that her excellent work called for a celebration of the anniversary. Without her knowledge, they saw a number of the parents and friends of the school and this morning presented her with fifty-five dollars in gold.

The envelope contained a card bearing this inscription: "A token of appreciation of Miss Bullock's twenty-five years of service in the Plainfield public schools from the Parent-Teacher Association, pupils and friends of the Franklin School.

Supt. Maxson was asked to make the presentation speech. So he arranged to have all the children of the building present at the morning exercises in the auditorium. Just as they were coming to a close, Dr. Maxson announced to Miss Bullock that he had invited the kindergarten children to come in and help him in a special exercise.

In presenting the token Dr. Maxson recalled the many difficulties which Miss Bullock had encountered and overcome in her quarter of a century of teaching and her rise from the rank of teacher to her present position. This he attributed to faithful and efficient service pure and simple. Dr. Maxson recalled the earlier days of the work of Miss Bullock and emphasized the fact that perseverance and strict attention to duty had been always one of her characteristics. Something to be emulated by those who would rise in the profession.

Then the wee children marched in and formed in a semi-circle on the stage. At the head of the line were the little Misses Eloise and Jeanette Wright, twin sisters, one bearing a bouquet of sweet peas and the other a dainty, embroidered silk bag containing fifty-five dollars in gold. In a few apt words, Dr. Maxson expressed appreciation and praise for Miss Bullock's administration and her devotion to her pupils, and the children presented her the flowers and money as a special testimonial from the parents and friends. Miss Bullock was much affected by the gift and found it very difficult to give expression to her appreciation of the sympathy and support of the patrons of the school.

The many parents who were present added their personal congratulations after the children had gone to their rooms.

Miss Bullock came here from Morristown in 1885 when Miss Julia Bulkley was Superintendent of the city schools, and has proven to be a very efficient principal. She has seen a wonderful growth in the size and efficiency of the school during her twenty-five years' service. Dr. Maxson estimates that over 5,000 different children have had the benefit of her work in the Franklin School.

FREDERICK W. GODDARD STRICKEN WITH TYPHOID.

Frederick Worth Goddard, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Godard, of East Ninth street, who was married on June 4 to Miss Gladys Torrance Benjamin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Park Benjamin, of 270 West Seventy-third street, New York, is very ill with typhoid fever. He was removed from his home in the Catherine apartment house, at 1 West Sixty-ninth street, New York, on Tuesday, to St. Luke's Hospital, where he is under the care of Dr. Edward G. Janeway.

Mr. Goddard was taken ill with the fever on Monday, when it was decided to remove him to the hospital. He is well known here, being a member of the Plainfield Country Club and in times past prominent in amateur theatricals and other social functions. He is engaged in business in New York as an insurance broker.

Japanese Fete Tonight.

The Japanese fete of the Y. W. C. A. will be held this evening in the parlors of the association. The details for the affair have been completed by the committee in charge and from present indications a very enjoyable time may be assured. Mrs. E. T. Barrows is in charge of the affair. Miss Louise Saunders will recite monologues and a part of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra under Martin A. Korpf will render selections. Mrs. L. R. Howard will be at the piano.

Dunellen's Graduation Tonight.

The closing exercises of the Dunellen Whittier School will be held tonight. The principal number on the program will be the address by Rev. E. R. Brown on "The Attainment of Ideals." Twelve young people will be graduated.

TRIED TO "CLEAN UP" AN OAK TREE STORE

Postmaster George W. Stover, of Oak Tree, had an exciting experience with two strange young men at his general store yesterday afternoon, when they tried to make a general "clean-up" of the place. In the attack which followed, one of the strangers was given a black eye with Mr. Stover's cane and he and his companion were put to route.

The strangers came along with a horse and wagon and appeared to be peddling something. Driving past Mr. Stover's store a short distance they left their rig and returned to the store. One of the men started to pick up different things about the store, indicating that he was going off with them and that he had no intention of paying for the articles. After chasing the men out the store Mr. Stover locked the doors and windows and summoned help. The neighbors soon gathered, but not until the strangers broke nearly every glass window and door in the building, were they chased out of the place. They disapeared toward Plainfield.

TRINITY JR. ENDEAVORERS HOLD CLOSING EXERCISES

The closing exercises of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed church were held yesterday afternoon in the church parlors, when an entertainment was held followed by a cake and fancy sale.

The exercises opened with a march, the children coming in from the primary room into the main room where they ranged themselves in the figure of a cross. While doing this they sang, "We Are Junior Soldiers." Prayer was then offered by Rev. Mr. Broek and recitations were made by the Misses Marion Wooley, Helen Willett, Hazel McCrady, Dorothy Van Winkle, Dorothy Seader, Alva Hansen, George McDonald, Harold Wooley, Albert Baker, Carman Trembath, Cecil McAfee, Howard Allegar, Alfred Willett, Howard Willett, Russell Sears, Maud McAfee, Adele Freeman, Helen Foster, Russell Sears. Piano solos were given by Gladys Humbert, Josephine Snyder and several selections were sung by the Juniors. A short address was also made by the pastor.

The yearly report showed an encouraging increase over that of last year. The enrollment was 80 and the average attendance 58. 65 answered the roll call yesterday. Forty meetings were held and forty-five children received rewards for 75 and above per cent. attendance. Of this number, seven had a perfect attendance. And seven united with the church. The net receipts for the fiscal year were $115.74 and the disbursements were: Foreign missions, $58, and domestic missions $43, while under the head of miscellaneous came $14.74.

A cake sale followed the exercises and about ten dollars was cleared.

The society will recognize in September when an anniversary celebration will be held. It will then be 20 years old, making it the oldest society in Plainfield. The committee in charge of the affair yesterday was composed of: Mrs. R. V. Kinney, chairman; Mrs. L. Rosenstiehl, Lawrence French, Helen Lighthauser, Maud McAfee and they were assisted by the officers of the society.

Charter Member Honored.

John Prugh, of Pearl street, mother of Mrs. R. Y. Kinney, of the borough, was the master of ceremonies at the anniversary exercises of Leighton Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Easton, Tuesday night. Mr. Prugh is eighty-six years old and is the only surviving charter member. He was twenty-four years old when he was initiated into the order, June 11, 1847. At the fiftieth anniversary exercises he received a jewelled pendant which he now wears.

Hope Chapel Festival.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel will hold a strawberry and ice cream festival on the lawn at the home of Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howard, on West Fifth street, tomorrow afternoon and evening. The women have prepared for a good time. If the weather is unfavorable the affair will be held on Wednesday afternoon and evening of next week.

Borough Police Blotter.

John Sheets, a mason of Whitehouse, started to "cut up" on Somerset street yesterday afternoon. He was arrested by Marshal Cullen and when arraigned before Recorder Dolliver this morning received a suspended sentence.

DOG OWNERS ON RACK

Twenty-three Signify Willingness to Buy Licenses When Arraigned.

Nearly fifty dog owners were haled before City Judge Runyon this morning most of whom decided after hearing the charge and an interpretation of the ordinance it would be better to take out licenses for their animals rather than lose trem.

A peculiarly mixed up case of a lost dog which had been licensed and which had been found by Frank Russell, janitor of the Jackson building, occupied some of the court's time and resulted in a disentangling and the return of the dog to its rightful owner. The little animal, a Skye Terrier, belongs to John Kelly, of Watchung avenue. It wandered away from its home and was captured by Fred Keiderling, the dog catcher. After being in the pound for a day the dog made its escape by slipping its collar and was picked up by Russell and imprisoned in the latter's apartments.

Complaint was made to the police of the disappearance of the dog whose license was taken out on May 24 and it was finally traced to Russel's house. When Mr. Kelly made a demand upon Russell for the terrier Russell refused to give it up unless Mr. Kelly paid the sum of a dollar a day for its keep for the ten days of incarceration. This Mr. Kelly refused to do. He consulted two lawyers without result and finally Russell was brought to court on a charge of harboring an unlicensed dog.

Judge Runyon after hearing the story from the three interested persons this morning directed Russell to turn the dog over to its owner without further delay meanwhile telling Russell that it appeared that he was playing the part of Shylock in the matter.

Twenty-three of those brought to court agreed to or had taken out licenses this morning. The crusade will be continued until all the dogs in the city are either licensed or killed. Alexander Kane agreed to take a dog belonging to Robert Whittaker and pay the license for it. This animal was condemned to death, but Aleck saved its life and will take it to the country with him.

GRADUATE CANNOT ATTEND EXERCISES.

After four years of hard and consistent work in which she completed the course of study at the Plainfield High School with honrs, Miss Cora Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Gray, of East Second street, will not be permitted to attend the graduation exercises of her class, although she will be graduated in a formal manner.

The reason for this great disappointment to Miss Gray is that her sister, Miss Katherine Gray, has been taken ill with scarlet fever and is quarantined at home. Other members of the family have been permitted to move elsewhere, but the two sisters have been togther so much, especially since Miss Katherine was take ill, that the family physician as well as the Board of Health decided that no risk should be taken.

Miss Katherine Gray is employed in the freight department offices of the New Jersey Central in Jersey City, and an investigation discloses the fact that she contracted the disease while commuting to and from New York. It was afterward learned that a friend of Miss Gray's, with whom she traveled back and forth, had the disease and was in a peeling condition before she realized what she had. It is feared that others may have contracted the fever in the same way.

Miss Cora Gray had made every preparation for her graduation, securing her graduation dress and arranging other details, but the edict of the physicians will bar her from participating not only in the exercises to which she has looked forward with great pleasure, but also the reception and dance to follow.

Hupmobile a Winner.

The famous Hupmobile is once more a winner. Driven by Elmer D. Cutting, of this city, one of these cars finished the two days' Long Island "Montauk Light or Bust" reliability contest with an absolutely clean score. The course was one of the roughest ever selected for such a contest and covered 400 miles. One of these wonderful little cars will be entered in the New Jersey Auto and Motor Club 15-hour endurance contest Saturday, passing through Front street going east about 11 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. The F. L. C. Martin Auto Co., of Plainfield and Newark, is sole distributors for this car in New Jersey.

HALL'S BIPLANE DAMAGED

It was not the fault of the weather nor yet of the aviator that Clinton Hall's biplane failed to soar yesterday afternoon. He simply met with a mishap which is liable to happen to any inventor in trying out a new device without having had practical experience in its handling. Mr. Hall may rest assured that he is working along the right lines and it will be but a matter of a few days when he will be able to soar to his heart's delight.

Yesterday with a thousand people looking on Mr. Hall made several runs trying out his engine and propeller on the surface and at the last moment when he had lifted the forward planes to rise from the ground the forward wheel struck an obstruction and was smashed taking a part of the frame with it. It will require some days to repair the damage and possibly a week will slip by before another attempt is made to ascend.

There is one fact patent to everybody who saw the surface trials yesterday afternoon and that is the power and silence of the engine. This little six-cylinder motor pushed the aeroplane along with ease at a prodigious rate and with scarcely any noise, compared with the unearthly racket made by the Wright and Curtiss engines. It is possible that Mr. Hall was a trifle nervous, it being a first attempt, but that will soon be overcome as he gets more accustomed to the manoeuvring of his machine and eventually Plainfield will have the honor of giving to the world another flying machine.

Since the Court of Appeals has dissolved the injunction which the Wright Brothers obtained in March against all the successful aviators there is bound to be a great increase in the aviation business everywhere and until the case comes to trial in the fall inventors and others interested in aeroplane construction and flying have a free hand.

NEWCORN PRESIDENT OF CITY BAR ASSOCIATION

Officers were elected and other business was discussed at the annual meeting of the Plainfield Bar Association held in the District court rooms, this morning. In the absence of President Charles A. Reed, the chair was temporarily occupied by Judge William Newcorn.

These officers were chosen: President, Judge William Newcorn; vice-president, Francis J. Blatz; treasurer, Asa F. Randolph; secretary, V. W. Nash, Jr.; trustees, Walter L. Hetfield, S. S. Swackhammer and Clarence L. Murphy.

The bylaws were amended on motion of William M. Stillman, to the effect that all lawyers engaged in the practice of law or those who hereafter engage in the practice of law, become members of the association on application.

It was also decided to hold meetings once a month for the mutual benefit of the association and a committee of three, comprising Harry C. Runyon, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and S. S. Swackhamer to arrange for a dinner to be held early next fall. Prominent members of the State bar will be secured as speakers. The association is also desirous of securing several improvements in the District court and these matters will be discussed more fully at a meeting to be held next Thursday at the District court.

COMPANY K TO GET ACTUAL CAMP EXPERIENCE.

Company K will get some experience between now and the day they go to Gettysburg if present plans are followed out. On Tuesday they will go to Sea Girt for the rifle shooting. A special train will leave Plainfield at 6:57 and will stop at Elizabeth to take on Companies C and I. After spending the day at the butts the whole batallion will board the special for the return trip.

On Friday night, June 25, Company K will hike it out to Greenbrook where they will bivouac for the night, preparatory for the Gettysburg encampment and maneuvres of July 9.

Local Young Women Graduate.

Miss Rose Rothberg and Miss Rose Nash were graduated today from the Trenton Normal School. Both have been doing practice teaching recently and both were graduated from the City High School in the class of 1908.

DIPLOMAS FOR TWENTY

Program for North Plainfield High School Commencement Exercises.

Commencement exercises of the North Plainfield High School will be held Friday night, June 24, in the Plainfield theatre. At that time twenty young people will receive their diplomas and the Yale cup will be awarded.

As previously announced Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton will deliver the address. The rest of the program follows:

Invocation, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson; salutory essay, The Value of the Fine Arts, Miss Mable Townley; valedictory essay, Conservation of Our Resources, Miss Henrietta Englehardt; choruses, (a) The Owl, (b) Fly White Butterflies, High School chorus; address, Rev. Charles A. Eaton, D. D.; presentation of diplomas, by Nelson A. Miller, president of the Board of Education; presentation of the Yale cup, (this cup is similar to the cups presented to the P. H. S. and Leal's School. It is presented to the pupil having the highest mark for a combination of athletics and scholarship. The pupil to whom it is to be presented will be made known later); benediction, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson.

The chorus numbers are under the direction of Prof. Lloyd. They are twenty-five picked voices from the High School grades and have been carefully drilled.

The plans of all of them have not at yet been announced. A number of them are going to attend the Normal Schools either at Trenton or Montclair. Miss Bolton is going to enter Syracuse University and Russell Conroy the University of Pennsylvania to become a dentist. Nearly all of them contemplate going to some higher educational institution.

VESTRY'S RESOLUTIONS FOR RETIRING SOLOIST.

The vestry of the Church of the Holy Cross church at its meeting June 6, passed resolutions, instructing the secretary to convey to Frederick J. Pope the sincere appreciation of the rector, wardens and vestrymen for the faithful and efficient services rendered by him for several years in the choir of the church.

In the letter to Mr. Pope, it is further stated: "We regret your removal from Plainfield compels you to sever your connection with our choir and the parish, but with us remains the pleasant memories of a work truly well done for the services of God and His Church." The letter is signed by Rev. George A. Warner, rector; Dr. J. H. Carman and Charles L. Nichols, wardens; William L. Saunders, Herbert E. Langford, J. A. VanMater and J. B. Betts, vestrymen and J. Wesley Hegeman, secretary of the vestry.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAMS SPEND PLEASANT EVENING.

The reunion of the first and second basketball teams of the Y. W. C. A. was held last evening in the association rooms. An informal social time was enjoyed and games were played. The ever popular "Cobweb" game with tiny souvenir basketballs at the end of the strings, furnished much amusement. Light refreshments were served at the conclusion of the reunion. Those present were: The Misses Margaret Mosher, Reba Kline, Ida Englehardt, Elizabeth and Lona Becker, Edna Snedeker, Ellen Doughty, Gertrude Mair, Anna Daly and Elvira Hoerster. Miss Margaret Mosher, assisted by Miss Reba Kline were in charge of the affair.

Junior Club Receives Uniforms.

The Junior Boys' Club of Hope chapel held a short business session at the chapel, last night, when the baseball team received its uniforms. G. Herbert Condict presented the uniforms to the team on behalf of the club. The players donned their suits and had an informal reception. Rev. L. R. Howard, William Doig, G. Herbert Condict and Charles G. August, the club leader, made short addresses. The uniforms cost $22.50, the money being raised by subscription. Saturday morning at 10:30 the team will play the Clinton Avenue team, on the latter's grounds.

REV. FLOYD APPLETON BECOMES A BENEDICT

Miss Mildred Elsgood Miller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Hendria Miller, of 64 Pennsylvania avenue, Brooklyn, and Rev. Floyd Appleton, formerly curate of Grace church, this city, but now rector of St. Clement's Episcopal church, Brooklyn, were married last night at the above church in the presence of a large and fashionable throng of relatives and friends.

The ceremony was performed by Bishop Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, assisted by Bishop Frederick Burgess. Miss Miller was attended by her sister, Mrs. William Herbert Dole, as matron-of-honor and Miss Olga Van Hoff and Miss Margery Hughan, of Brooklyn, as bridesmaids. Among the ushers was Van Wyck Brooks, of this city. A large reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. The decorations were green and white and blue, the white being introduced because they are the colors of Columbia University, where both the groom and bride were students. Mr. Appleton was assistant here to the late Dean Rodman and he made many friends during his residence in this city.

THIS MORTGAGE VOID THE COURT DECLARES

Spencer Conway's second attempt to realize on his alleged bond and mortgage on the Calvary Baptist church for $900 failed yesterday in the Chancery Court at Newark before Vice Chancellor Howell. His first suit was dismissed on account of lack of prosecution. Counsellor James K. Franks, of Newark, represented him, and Counsellor W. S. Angleman, of this city, looked after the interests of the church and secured the dismissal of the first suit and also of the second suit yesterday on the merits before Vice-Chancellor Howell.

The bond and mortgage were executed by the Board of Trustees of the church at the time Conway was president of the board, and during the troubles in the winter and spring of 1906 over the selection of a pastor. Conway and the trustees wanted the Rev. Mr. Morris as pastor and the church membership wanted the present pastor, the Rev. Mr. Bailey. In the litigation in the Chancery Court as to who should be pastor, Counselor Angleman represented the church membership and won out, the Rev. Mr. Bailey being declared the rightful pastor.

When Conway secured his bond and mortgage he failed to get the church membership to authorize it. Counsellor Angleman claimed that this was fatal to the validity of the papers, and Vice-Chancellor Howell sustained him. The result was that the court held the papers to be void and dismissed the suit.

LOST EXCURSION TICKET, THEN GOT INTOXICATED.

William Bidwell, of Adamsville, forgot where he had put his excursion ticket while on his way to New York yesterday and because he couldn't find it the conductor on one of the Central trains put him off here yesterday morning. Mr. Bidwell took his interrupted journey much to heart and sought consolation in the cup which inebriates. He was found helplessly drunk along towards evening and for safety was locked up at police headquarters.

This morning he was somewhat reserved and altogether ashamed of himself and on his promise to return to the environment of his home town Judge Runyon suspended sentence. Bidwell told the judge that he was on the way to bid goodby to his relatives who were to sail from New York yesterday.

Morey & La Rue Buy Property.

The Morey and La Rue Laundry Company has purchased the building which it occupies on West Fourth street and the property in the rear extending almost to the depot driveway from David Smalley. The new property includes the old city jail building. This will be converted into a checking room for the laundry received from Bound Brook. The latter building has been overhauled and moved to a position adjacent to the old building. The consideration was not named.

"Miss Monkey" Wins Reserve.

Mrs. Ralph Auerbach, of West Front street, was among the prize winners in the dog show held on Saturday. Her entry, "Miss Monkey," a Yorkshire Terrier, won the reserve to A. J. McGookin's "Scamper," and was highly complimented by the judge in that class.

WANT MOY FOR MAYOR

The Progressives Decide to to Name Complete City and County Ticket.

FOWLER IS NOT ENDORSED.

Ackerman's Name Mentioned for Congress—Morris County Regulars Will Name Union County Man.

Delegates from all parts of Union county were present at the Progressive Republicans' conference here last night when it was decided to put a complete ticket in the field both for county offices as well as local. Not only was William P. Martin, of Essex, unanimously endorsed for the Gubernatorial nomination, but it was decided to organize in every district. Charles N. Fowler, who like Martin, was invited to present himself before the progressives for a quizzing as to his platform and principles failed to appear. His chances for endorsement, however, are slight although it was decided to postpone definite action until the next meeting. Chairman Howard Tracy, it is reported, was the chief advocate of Fowler for congress but there was considerable protest according to reliable report, the argument being advanced that he is not a "Progressive" at heart and is simply opposed to Cannon not Cannonism.

G. W. V. Moy, one of the county leaders at whose office the meeting was held, proposed the name of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, after the meeting as the candidate for congress which met with some support. Contrary to rumor, Alexander Gilbert, of this city, was not mentioned at the meeting for the honor but he has some strong support among the progressives. Neither Gilbert nor Ackerman has announced himself a candidate. It is believed that Mr. Ackerman wants to go back to the Senate and his course to that goal is clear for both the regulars and the progressives favor him.

No action was taken definitely as to the city ticket although the names of several were proposed for the mayoralty nomination. Chief among them was that of George W. V. Moy, whose friends are urging him to announce his candidacy. He has given no definite answer, but says he will do what he considers best for the Progressives. Mayor Charles J. Fisk, if named by the regulars, will have a progressive opponent at the primaries, as it was decided that he could not get a New Idea endorsement. Carlton B Pierce, of Cranford, it is reliably reported, will get an endorsement for return to the Assembly.

It was decided last night to make "money in politics" an issue in the local campaign and the progressives will wage a fight against the use of money at the polls for workers, cab hire and the like.

According to trustworthy information, "Uncle Dan" Voorhees will not present the name of a Morris county man for Congress as he announced his purpose two months ago to do, but Morris will present the name of a Union county man for the honor. It is not known who will be selected to make the run against Fowler, but it is not unlikely that it will be Ackerman or Gilbert if either covets the honor.

CONTESTED ACTIONS IN THE DISTRICT COURT.

A suit brought in the District court this morning by the New York Telephone Company against McNaughton and Co. on contract resulted in a verdict for the defendant on a technicality. McNaughton & Co. were represented by Martin B. Stutsman.

The suit in tort instituted by Louise Dufour and Achille Defour, her husband and Achille Dufour individually against F. T. Ostrum was still on at 2 o'clock before Judge William Newcorn.

This suit grew out of an automobile collision which occurred near Morristown about two months ago. A. A. Palmer, of Bernardsville, is counsel for the complainants, while W. A. Codington, of Reed & Codington, represents the defendant. There are two actions in the suit and both are being tried together.

St. Joseph's Societies' Euchre.

The united societies of St. Joseph's church, of North Plainfield, will hold a euchre and dance in Sebrings hall, West Front street, tonight. The music will be furnished by Paroubek's orchestra. The commitee having the affair in charge is composed of Mrs. A. E. Kenny, chairman; Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Cormick McDonald.

GIBRALTAR ILLUMINATED.

World's Highest Electric Sign Erected by The Prudential.

The Prudential Insurance Company of America, with home offices at Newark, has made another big advertising hit by erecting at Hoboken, directly opposite New York city, a great electric sign of the Rock of Gibraltar. The electricians who put up the sign say that it is the highest electric sign in the world. The sign operates automatically and in addition to flashing the Rock, flashes the company's trade-mark, "The Prudential has the Strength of Gibraltar." The sign is on the top of the new terminal building at Hoboken, and the top of the Rock is nearly 200 feet above ground. Six miles of wire were used in connecting the lights. The letters forming the word "Prudential" are ten feet high. It takes enough electricity to light the Rock to equal the pulling power of 100 horses. The sign is built to withstand a wind pressure of 250 tons, and three thousand electric lamps are used. The current would light all the streets of Bayonne.

Below the Rock an automatic electric talking sign changes constantly, and on it appear forty-eight statements regarding The Prudential.

The sign was built for The Prudential from plans drawn by F. J. Koenigsberger, a New York architect. One of the expert draftsmen of the Electric Carriage Call and Specialty Company of New York, which erected the sign, made a close study of the topography of Gibraltar in order to give a correct delineation of the Rock. The sign is placed so that it is visible to persons on the river, and from a large part of New York city. It can also be seen from the Hoboken exit of the Hudson tunnel, Jersey City, Brooklyn, Staten Island and New York Bay.

The Prudential's "Gibraltar" is now one of the most striking objects in New York harbor at night and people visiting the Metropolis will look for it.

An official of the comapny said: "The Prudential could not illuminate the eral rock of Gibraltar, and it has built this electric rock on the shores of New Jersey as a beacon light to those looking for life insurance protection for their families that will not worry them after the issue of policy and that is sold at a cost so interestingly low that it caused The Prudential to make greater strides last year than any other Life Insurance Company in the world."

NORMAL'S FIRST CLASS GRADUATED YESTERDAY.

The members of the first class to be graduated from the New Jersey State Normal School at Montclair received their diplomas yesterday. The graduation exercises were held in the assembly room. Governor Fort was the principal speaker.

Essays were read by Miss Grace E. Lyon and Miss Mary T. Heward. The presentation of the class gift was by Miss Mary L. Hookway and acceptance was by Edward Russ, of Hoboken, chairman of State Board of Education's committee in the school.

Following presentation of the classs by Dr. Charles S. Chapin, principal of the school, James L. Hays, president of the State Board of Education, will confer the diplomas.

Class day exercises were held in the afternoon. Mr. Russ and Dr. Chapin spoke. Miss Estelle P. Ewan gave the class poem and Miss Grace A. Brown and Miss Beatrice C. Smith were the class historians.

SUSTAINS PAINTER'S VERDICT.

Trenton, June 16.—In sustaining a judgment recovered in the Hoboken District Court by Bernard Horn against the Hamburg-American Packet Company, Justice Parker held, in the Supreme Court, that the questions of negligence and contributory negligence raised by the defendant corporation, were questions of fact, and, therefore, within the control of the trial judge.

Horn was a journeyman painter, in the employ of one Badenhausen, who had the general painting contract for all the Hamburg-American steamships. As the steamer Auguste Victoria was at the Hoboken wharf, Horn and another man employed by Badenhausen were painting her side, when some one on the vessel threw a pailful of hot water over the taffrail, scalding Horn. The locality was that of the steam kitchen, or kitchen for steerage passengers. The company claimed there was no proof that the man who threw the water was one of its servants. The Supreme Court held that there was sufficient evidence on this point to justify submitting the case to the jury.

PASTOR OPPOSED TO SENSATIONAL SERMONS.

Ocean Grove, June 16.—Sensational preaching was decried by Rev. Dr. J. I. Boswell, of the Newark Conference of the Methodist church, at the first weekly meeting of the summer season of the New Brunswick district preachers in St. Paul's church, here Monday. "How to Make Sermons Interesting" was the topic of Dr. Boswell's address, and he declared that there is no excuse for dull preaching these days.

In order to make a sermon interesting, the speaker said, careful preparation must be made, and the preacher must enter into the spirit of his discourse and give it with a vim. Bad ventilation of the church, Dr. Boswell said, tends to make an audience inattentive, and the preacher less forcible in his address.

Sermons can be made interesting, Dr. Boswell added, without resorting to sensational subjects, a practice, he said, which should be deprecated by the clergy. As an example of the type of sermons which in no way pertain to God or the church, Dr. Boswell mentioned one delivered by a New York minister on "The Sunbonnet." In the course of that sermon, he said, the preacher declared that, "next to God, the milliner is the greatest creator."

Rev. B. T. String, of Philadelphia, will be the principal speaker at next Monday's meeting of the district preachers. His subject will be "Preaching." It is planned to have these meetings held every Monday in the future.

SCHOOL HEAD, UNDER CRITICISM, RESIGNS.

Passaic, June 16.—Because of recent criticism, Oscar I. Woodley Monday handed to Edwin Flower, president of the Passaic Board of Education, his resignation as city superintendent of schools. The resignation will be accepted.

Mr. Woodley's action is the result of attacks on the school management, growing out of failure on the part of the Passaic Board of Education to comply with the State law of 1907 regulating the teachers' retirement fund. Passaic until threatened recently with losing its State school money has never deducted the two per cent. monthly from teachers' salaries, as the law requires. It has been generally reported throughout the State that Superintendent Woodley was opposed to the retirement fund, althought he has repeatedly denied that he had any personal feeling in the matter.

A principal of School No. 10 was arrested last week and held for the grand jury on a boy's complaint. It is alleged that although the city superintendent knew of the case for several weeks and had demanded the principal's resignation, he had never informed the Board of Education. Mr. Woodley has been head of the Passaic schools since 1904. He came here from Glen Ridge, and was formerly in school work in Michigan. He is the author of a series of textbooks, and is rather widely known among educators as a lecturer and writer on the subject of child study.

BRIDGE COMPANY LOSES AGAIN.

Trenton, June 15.—On the ground that there was no evidence that the valuation of $14,000 placed on the property of the Centre Bridge Company at Stockton, Hunterdon county, was too great, Justice Trenchard in an opinion filed in the Supreme Court yesterday affirms the judgment of the State Board for the Equalization of Taxes, upholding the assessment. The property involved is that portion of the Delaware river bridge at Stockton and its abutments, piers, toll-house and land whereon they stand.

In 1908 the Stockton assessors assessed the property at $14,000. Conceiving this valuation to be excessive the bridge company appealed to the Hunterdon County Tax Board, which affirmed the assessment. Then another appeal was taken to the State Tax Board and the assessment was again affirmed.

GOLF.

The tournament of the Montclair Golf Club, which will be held today, tomorrow and Saturday, will be the first experiment in the metropolitan district of the well known Pinehurst class qualification. The players are divided into four district classes in accordance with their metropolitan handicaps, and no player can drop back into a class below his standard and thus cause confusion among the poorer players.

Added prizes, consisting of two cups, are offered as a supplementary competition under the title of "down and out" cups, for those who do not make their proper divisions. As all day today will be given to the qualification round of eighteen holes, another cup has been put up for this afternoon handicap open only to those who played in the morning.

The underlying idea of the class qualification is to permit the poorer players who ordinarily have no chance in a tournament, to meet players of their own class and thus get good tournament practice. Post entries will be received if accompanied by a certificate from the players' secretary, in accordance with the terms of the competition.

McNulty's Team Here Saturday.

The McNulty Bros.' Baseball Club, of New York, will make its first appearance on Saturday, when it will cross bats with the Plainfield Baseball Club on Crescent Oval. The New York aggregation is one of the strongest of its class and contests between them and the local boys are always close and exciting. Doubtless a large crowd will be out to witness the game. MacLaughlin will pitch for Plainfield, and Walter Nelson will be at the receiving end.

HOUSE OF DETENTION FOR UNION COUNTY

Elizabeth, June 16.—Judge Atwater, in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday, when sentencing three boys, advocated the establishment in Union County of a house of detention for first offenders.

The boys araigned had never been in court before, and while the crime was a serious one, the judge declared that he was reluctant to send them to the county jail, the only institution to which he can commit anyone for a short term.

It is unfortunate, he declared, that there is no place for the commitment of youths, except the county jail.

"While the jail is conducted in an excellent manner by the warden," he said, "conditions there are such that the associations which youths must necessarily have with other and more hardened criminals, is bad. In these associations much evil is learned, no matter how careful the warden is. I feel that it is of great importance to the administration of justice, especially regarding the disposition of youthful offenders, who are led away by temptation, that the county have a house of detention—a place not called a jail—where youths could be committed for a short time, and where they could do a little work."

It is expected that the Board of Freeholders will act on Judge Atwater's suggestion in the near future.

The boys arraigned were James Fahey, Clinton Babcock and Edward Burns, who several weeks ago robbed two stores in the lower section of the city. The judge placed Babcock in the care of the probation officer with the understanding that he is to go to his home in Maine. The other two boys, in whose favor the judge received numerous letters, were placed in the care of the probation office for two years and they are to pay a fine of $1 a month for that time.

POSTMASTER TO QUIT.

L. M. Whittaker, of Westfield, Declines Reappointment.

Westfield, June 16.—Postmaster L. M. Whittaker, whose term expired three weeks ago, yesterday sent a letter to the Westfield Republican Executive Committee declining reappointment because of ill health.

A meeting to select a successor to Mr. Whitaker will be held Friday evening. There are several candidates, among them Fire Chief Frederick C. Decker, Freeholder C. A. Smith, former Assemblyman C. M. Smith and Assistant Postmaster H. A. Dale.

Mr. Whittaker was appointed postmaster in 1896, and has served continuously since.

SETTLES SCHOOL MUDDLE.

Architect Withdraws Bill of $100 for Drawing Plans.

Westfield, June 16.—President Randall H. Stearn, of the Board of Education, has received a letter from Architect Wilson Potter, of New York, in which Mr. Potter withdraws his bill for $100 for supplying plans for the erection of the propsed new school.

This action upon the part of Architect Potter will cause the discontinuance of the certiorari proceedings instituted by Linas Hetfield, to review the proceedings of the board to show by what authority an architect was employed without an appropriation for the drawing of plans for a new school.

N. Y. MEAT PRICES UP, HIGHEST IN GENERATION.

New York, June 16.—Meat products are soaring again. The new figures are said to be the highest in a generation. The wholesale price of dressed beef was advanced from 12 to 12¾ and 13 cents a pound, and retail prices were increased proportionately.

Representatives of the packing-houses attributed the advance to a shortage of meat, and predicted a drop if the receipts become greater.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robbins, of Newark, have returned home after visiting friends in this city.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., June 16, 1910.

THE CONGRESSIONAL FIGHT.

That the Progressive Republicans are not to be deceived by Charles N. Fowler, who has posed as the champion of anti-boss rule since Speaker Joe Cannon deposed him from a coveted chairmanship, was evident last night when that body failed to endorse his candidacy for re-election to Congress. The New Idea men do not appear to be blinded by his tirade against organization leaders, knowing perfectly well that had the "Regulars" advocated his renomination the mud-slinging document he issued would probably never have been penned. That he is a sore-head and that he is at heart more opposed to Cannon personally than to the principle of Cannonism seems to be the general belief.

There is vastly more than the average of excellent timber in this district for such a high honor and it is encouraging to learn that the Progressives have in mind such men as former Mayor Alexander Gilbert and State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman. Either of them would be greatly superior to Mr. Fowler, and the selection of the one or the other, it appears, would put an end to factional discord so far as the Congressional nomination is concerned. And there are many, many other such men upon whom the Regulars and the Progressives could unite and thus insure a Republican representing the Fifth district. A factional fight might prove to be a great disaster for there would be great danger of the bitterness being carried to the ballot box in November and that it would result in the election of a Democrat in a district overwhelmingly Republican.

THE BABY CAMP FUND.

Following its annual custom, The Daily Press will receive and transmit to the proper officers any contributions for the summer baby camp conducted by The City Union of King's Daughters. In years past, a considerable fund has been raised in this way and now as then money is sorely needed for this most worthy charity. Today, we are pleased to acknowledge a contribution of Ten dollars, the gift of the Ladies' Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. In being the first to remember the babes, this society keeps up its record for during the last few years it has always been first to aid.

BENNETT BRITTIN BEGINS HIS NINETY-NINTH YEAR.

Bennett Brittin is ninety-eight years young today and looks it. Mr. Brittin, who has been a resident of Plainfield for a number of years, does not appear to be more than fifty years old, yet he can recall things that happened three-quarters of a century ago and says he doesn't feel a bit older than he did forty years ago.

Mr. Brittin is still able to cross cues with some of the livliest pool players in the city and takes pride in his manipulation of the cue. The Daily Press extends to Mr. Brittin its congratulations and wishes the nonogenarian a continuance of the present good health which he enjoys. Numerous reminders of his natal day were presented to Mr. Brittin by his friends this morning.

Postmaster Whitaker Resigns.

Postmaster L. M. Whitaker, of Westfield, resigned his office, today, on account of ill-health, and Charles N. Codding, chairman of the Westfield Republican Executive Committee, has issued a call for a committee meeting tomorrow night, to consider a successor. Mr. Whitaker has been postmaster at Westfield following the end of Cleveland's last administration, continuously, until last winter, when he was taken ill and went to Florida to recuperate. He returned recently, but his health is not improved to any extent.

Picnic Is Postponed.

Owing to the stormy weather the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel, postponed its annual picnic today until tomorrow, the start to be made at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, provided the weather is favorable. If it should be stormy tomorrow the society will hold its monthly meeting at the chapel at 3 o'clock. The postponement today is a great disappointment to the forty women who had planned to make the trip to J. W. Gavett's summer home.

Lecture by Rev. L. B. Goodrich.

At the Congregational church tonight Rev. L. B. Goodrich, of Taunton, Mass., will lecture on "Fun With the Boys Out of Doors," under the auspices of the Men's Club. It is ladies' night and the members are expected to bring their wives and friends to hear what is declared to be a most interesting talk. The lecture will be illustrated with stereopticon views. The boys of the church and Sunday school are especially invited to attend.

Borough Horticulturist.

A "giant" magnolia tree in front of the residence of James K. Arnold, of Manning avenue, is in full bloom. Some of the blossoms measure over eight inches in length; and a few almost double that in dimensions. This is one of the rare species of this tree in this city and was planted twenty-five years ago by Mr. Arnold. Mayor Fisk as a similar specimen on his property; and so far as is known these are the only one of this kind in the city.

Complain About County Roads.

Automobilists who travel the county roads are complaining about the condition of those thoroughfares. They claim that the roads are worse than in many years. This is no doubt due to the heavy auto traffic which tears up the macadam. The freeholders are constantly studying methods for improving the roads and keeping them in condition.

PERSONAL.

Miss Helen Siebert, formerly of White Plains, N. Y., is now residing in this city with her brother, W. E. Siebert.

Councilman Herbert Buxton, of West Front street, left this morning on a business trip in the west. He will return next week.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Runyon, of Dunellen, has been made brighter by the arrival of a bouncing baby girl. The new arrival came last night.

Edward Skinner, of Elmwood place, who has been laid up with rheumatism for many weeks, is able to get about, although it will be some time before he can return to business.

Mrs. Baker, of Prospect avenue, left today on the Campania for Liverpool, and Mrs. Robert Bailey, of this city, will leave tomorrow on the Furnessia for Glascow. Both secured their tickets through the agency of Mulford Estil, of Park avenue.

Walter Hazeltine, of this city, was one of the ushers at the wedding of Miss Isabelle MacKinnon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. oRbert MacKinnon, of Utica, and Kenneth McKenzie Pringle, of Jamaica, British West Indies. The wedding took place yesterday at the home of the bride's parents in Utica.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Children's Day exercises will be held at Warren chapel Sunday morning at the usual hour for morning worship, with addresses by Rev. J. O. McKelvey and E. E. Parvin.

The regular meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed church will be held Sunday evening at 6:45 o'clock. Miss D. Bosterli will be the leader and the topic will be "'The Yoke of Christ.'"

The Christian and Missionary Alliance will meet tomorrow afternoon in the German Reformed church, Duer street and Craig place, when Rev. Thomas Francis, of Jersey City, will give a Bible reading. At 7:45 o'clock in the evening at the same place he will make an address.

Proctor's Fine Show.

The Samson Trio, three modern Hercules, of magnificent physique, perfect build, and exponents of the art of physical culture, ehad the bill at Proctor's today. The Three Gilden Sisters, charming dancers and singers, are clever artists. The Musical Cliftons present a fine bill and C. M. Kajiyams gives a wonderful exhibition of Japanese art.

No Clues to Burglar.

No clue has yet been found to lead to the discovery of the identity of the burglar who entered six borough homes yesterday morning. The peculiar circumstances in the case lead the police to believe that the burglar was intoxicated at the time of the robberies.

Finance Committee Met.

The Councilmanic finance committee met last night and transacted maters of a routine nature, discussing the various items which are to make up the yearly budget.

Thaddeus DuFlon a Benedict.

Miss Edith Dorothy Albert, daughter of Ernest Albert, the scenic artist, was married to Thaddeus Avery Van Zandt Du Flon, formerly of this city, at the home of the bride in New Rochelle, N. Y. The ceremony was performed on the lawn by Rev. Robert McGregor, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, and was followed by a reception. Mr. DuFlon is a graduate of Standford University and is well known here.

Funeral of Mrs. Quinn.

The funeral services of Mrs. Eleanor Quinn, mother of Mrs. John McNally, of Spooner avenue, were held from St. Mary's church yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. Father Hogan, the curate, was the celebrant. The pall bearers were Harry Roggenkamp, John Geary, John Kelly, John Lynch, John C. Traynor and John Madden. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Watchung Opening Delayed.

Owing to the condition of the ground due to rain, the work of opening up Watchung avenue was not started this morning. Borough Street Commission Barrett has a gang of men in readiness though to commence work as soon as the condition of the ground permits.

An Old-Fashioned Social.

An old-fashioned social and good-fellowship meeting will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tonight, and the admission fee will be a smile, a kind word and a warm handshake. Pastor Maguire says that those who cannot pay the fee had better stay home.

Memorial Service.

A memorial service will be held this evening by the Rescue Mission in the W. C. T. U. hall in memory of Dorothy LeMatty. She was the youngest member of the organization. Simple exercises wil mark the service, including selections by two little girls.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Rev. Dr. George B. Wight, State commissioner of charities, will preach in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Ocean City, Sunday.

His hand mangled in a bread mixer at a Riverside bakery, Emmett Mozart, thirty years old, was admitted to Cooper Hospital, Camden, Tuesday night.

Dr. William Raith, an athletic young dentist of Atlantic City, Monday night thrashed Edward Fisher, a young man whose actions frightened a young woman.

Crescent Temple, Mystic Shriners, of Trenton, made its fourth annual pilgrimage to Camden last night. After a street parade the visitors initiated a large class at the Camden Theatre.

J. Borskis' horse kicked on being shod at Cresci's shop, Vineland, and when tied with ropes kicked until it fell and died. The owner now kicks on paying $135 that he agreed to give for the animal a few days ago and a lawsuit is promised.

Little John Horn, the two-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Horn, of Riverside, wandered out of the yard of his home Tuesday while his mother was engaged in some household duties, fell into a stream of water nearby and was drowned.

A boy suffering with an aching tooth drew the lamp close to his pillow in the Park House, Vineland, Monday night to warm his face, and when he woke up at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning the bed was on fire and the key of the door lost. He screamed and the door was broken down in time to drag him out half suffocated. Patrons of the hotel threw their clothing out the windows and great excitement prevailed. The fire company soon extinguished the flames.

Because the heirs of the late Johanna Mueller could not agree, the Trenton police found Tuesday that a light in the house had been kept going for more than seven days. The heirs refused permission to enter the house to everybody as well as each other, and although the point was raised that the lighting company would get away with the property, they refused to let any one extinguish the lights, because some of them might get possession of the house. The police at last have put out the light, on the ground that the building might be set afire.

CHARGES PLOT TO KEEP CONTRACT FROM HIM.

Trenton, June 16.—Determined to secure the contract for the construction of the Hightstown and Allentown road, on which he claims he was the lowest bidder, Contractor Thomas J. MacGovern, of this city, with John H. Backes, his counsel, called at the State House yesterday and had conference with State Road Commissioner Gilkyson.

Mr. MacGovern accused Commissioner Gilkyson of holding up the awarding of the contract in order to keep him from getting it. Commissioner Gilkyson insisted that he is not holding up the contract and said his only interest was to protect the State in the building of the road.

After the conference MacGovern saw Governor Fort and filed with him a letter demanding an investigation of the State road department in connection with this contract. Mr. Backes asked Commissioner Gilkyson for a hearing on the matter before the commissioner gave a final decision on the work. He requested that in case the Mercer freeholders approve the contract today or later that MacGovern be allowed to lay his case before the State road department before the commissioner acts in the matter.

FISHERMEN FINED FOR FORBIDDEN CATCHES.

Lake Hopatcong, June 16.—Two Pennsylvania fishermen were caught Sunday with undersized fish by the fish and game wardens at this place. They were William Arner, of Bethlehem, and Richard Lily, of Mauch Chunk. As a large fishing excursion was expected to arrive Warden Mahlon Smith, of this place, sent word for more wardens, and Warden William Hobitzell, of Union county; Warden Anson J. Rider, of Ocean county, and Warden J. J. Parks, of Hunterdon county, were sent to assist him.

On inspection of the fishermen's baskets as they came in it was found that Lily and Arner had both undersized pickerel. The fine to each was $20 and $2.50 costs. Lily was able to pay it but Arner did not have it about him.

Arner said he thought nine inches was permitted for fish under the law, and his catch measure that length. Many of the excursionists argued with the wardens but the officials would not let Arner go. Finally a subscription was started and the money raised.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 19, 1910.

These verses are among the most gracious and comforting ever spoken by Christ. The invitation "Come unto Me" was not addressed to all who bore physical or mental burdens that were heavy to bear, but to the sinful burdens of man. Christ was speaking to the Pharisees, who were trying to carry their own burdens of sin, as represented by Christian's burden in the "Pilgrim's Progress." To these He would give rest by taking the burdens of sin from them by His death upon the cross. When Christian reached the cross and looked upon it in faith the bundle representing this burden dropped from his shoulders and he was light hearted and free. So may any one be who will follow his example and allow Christ to take his burden of sins, which He is able to do, because on the cross He paid the penalty of man's sin.

When, however, we have become Christians and have lost the burden of sin there are still burdens to be borne. We still need spiritual rest. We are still often "weary and lone and sad" and still need to come to Christ and find rest in Him. Christ deceives no one. He does not say that burdens will end with becoming Christians, but points out the way of getting relief in them, not by getting away from them. These burdens He likens to a yoke, and the figure taken from the Old Testament refers to the yoke placed upon cattle.

1. He asks us to take His yoke upon us. "Take My yoke upon you." The yoke of Christ is a double yoke. It is on Him and on us, and under such circumstances it is not so burdensome. If we walk steadily with Him the yoke will be easy and He will bear the heavier part of the burden. In carrying the cross with Simon of Cyrene Christ bore the heavier part, that which contained the crossbeam, while Simon simply held up the bottom of the upright beam. Such will be our position if we take Christ's yoke upon us. "The cross is not greater than His grace."

In taking Christ's yoke we become His disciples, for we learn of Him. The principal method of learning is through His example. "Learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly in heart." Meekness and humility are examples of His virtues which we must copy. Christ is the greatest teacher the world ever had, for He taught with perfect knowledge the greatest things of life—the mutual relations between God and man, of those between man and man and especially concerning the future life. Still, His greatest power as a teacher of morals and religion was in the life that He lived. In following His example we are to learn of Him. Moreover, it is in thus becoming like Him that we have the greatest success in winning others to Him. Christlikeness is more winsome than ability to teach theology. Saintliness has more power in making disciples than the power to teach religion from a scientific standpoint. Let men see Christ in your lives and they will soon seek the source of such a life.

Christ's yoke is easy. It is a yoke, and there are burdens with it, but it is easier than any other yoke. We must bear some yoke—the yoke of Christ, "the yoke of the law" or the yoke of Satan. The yoke of Christ may seem hard at first, but it grows easier as we become more accustomed to walking with Christ and at death leaves us forever. "The yoke of the law"—trying by our own righteousness to save ourselves is most galling, becomes more so as we advance in life and at death brings no relief. The yoke of Satan seems easy at the start. How pleasant seemingly to do as we please, to give free reign to our appetites and passions, but later on how burdensome the yoke of Satan becomes! Body and mind become impaired. Religion has no power in our lives. We are yoked indeed. We may try to escape our dreadful condition, but the yoke increases in size and becomes more burdensome, almost beyond endurance, and when death comes we still find no release. Indeed, torture turns to torment. The rich man when he died, according to the parable of Christ, so suffered. "In hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torment." How different from the condition of one who has worn the yoke of Christ in his lifetime! To him "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away." Some yoke you must bear in this world. In the light of the above facts how can you do else than take Christ's yoke upon you?

Christian Endeavor Among Indians.

While Dr. Clark was in Spokane, Wash., on his way home from India he was visited by Peter F. Corbett, a highly educated Nez Perce Indian, who is prominent among the ranchers of northern Idaho and is identified with the state bank of Kamiah.

He told Dr. Clark that more than 500 Indians on the Nez Perce reservation belong to the Christian Endeavor society. In the town of Kamiah there are ninety-five members. A peculiar feature of the situation is that the members almost all are the older people of the tribe. There are six Presbyterian churches on the reservation, and the work is progressing all the time.

(Copyright, 1909, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"More than my life! More than all my fortune!" His voice rang clear and keen as that of youth.

"All of Oregon?" she asked.

"All? We do not own all! Perhaps we do not deserve it. Surely we could not expect it. Why, if we got one-half of what that fellow Polk is claiming, we should do well enough—that is more than we deserve or could expect. With our army already at war on the southwest, England, as we all know, is planning to take advantage of our helplessness in Oregon."

Without further answer, she held out to him a document whose appearance I, at least, recognized.

"I am but a woman," she said, "but it chances that I have been able to do this country, perhaps something of a favor. Your assistant, Mr. Trist, has done me in turn a favor. This much I will ask permission to do for him."

Calhoun's long and trembling fingers were nervously opening the document. He turned to her with eyes blazing with eagerness. "It is Oregon!" He dropped back into his chair.

"Yes," said Helena von Ritz, slowly. "It is Oregon. It is bought and paid for. It is yours!"

So now they all went over that document, signed by none less than Pakenham himself, minister plenipotentiary for Great Britain. That document exists to-day somewhere in our archives, but I do not feel empowered to make known its full text. I would I had never need to set down, as I have, the cost of it. These others never knew that cost, and now they never can know, for long years since both Calhoun and Dr. Ward have been dead and gone. I turned aside as they examined the document which within the next few weeks was to become public property. The red waters which mended it—and which she smilingly explained at Calhoun's demand—were, as I knew, not less than red drops of blood.

In brief, I may say that this paper stated that, in case the United States felt disposed to reopen discussions which Mr. Polk peremptorily had closed, Great Britain might be able to listen to a compromise on the line of the forty-ninth parallel. This compromise had three times been offered her by diplomacy of United States under earlier administrations. Great Britain stated that in view of her deep and abiding love for peace and her deep and abiding admiration for America, she would resign her claim of all of Oregon down to the Columbia; and more, she would accept the forty-ninth parallel; provided she might have free navigation rights upon the Columbia. In fact, this was precisely the memorandum of agreement which eventually established the lines of the treaty as to Oregon between Great Britain and the United States.

Mr. Calhoun is commonly credited with having brought about this treaty, and with having been author of its terms. So he was, but only in the singular way which in these foregoing pages I have related. States have their price. Texas was bought by blood. Oregon—ah, we who own it ought to prize it. None of our country is half so full of romance, none of it is half so clean, as our great and bodeful far northwest, still young in its days of destiny.

"We should in time have had all of Oregon, perhaps," said Mr. Calhoun; "at least, that is the talk of these fierce politicians."

"But for this fresh outbreak on the southwest there would have been a better chance," said Helena von Ritz; "but I think, as matters are to-day, you would be wise to accept this compromise. I have seen your men marching, thousands of them, the grandest sight of this century or any other. They give full base for this compromise. Given another year, and your rifles and your plows would make your claims still better. But this is to-day—"

"Believe me, Mr. Calhoun," I broke in, "your signature must go on this."

"How now? Why so anxious, my son?"

"Because it is right!"

Calhoun turned to Helena von Ritz. "Has this been presented to Mr. Buchanan, our secretary of state?" he asked.

"Certainly not. It has been shown to no one. I have been here in Washington working—well, working in secret to secure this document for you. I do this—well, I will be frank with you—I do this for Mr. Trist. He is my friend. I wish to say to you that he has been—a faithful—"

I saw her face whiten and her lips shut tight. She swayed a little as she stood. Dr. Ward was at her side and assisted her to a couch. For the first time the splendid courage of Helena von Ritz seemed to fail her. She sank back, white, unconscious.

"It's these damned stays, John!" began Dr. Ward fiercely. "She has fainted. Here, put her down, so. We'll bring her around in a minute. Great Jove! I want her to hear us thank her. It's splendid work she has done for us. But why?"

When, presently, under the ministrations of the old physician, Helena von Ritz recovered her consciousness, she arose, fighting desperately to pull herself together and get back her splendid courage.

"Would you retire now, madam?" asked Mr. Calhoun. "I have sent for my daughter."

"No, no. It is nothing!" she said. "Forgive me, it is only an old habit of mine. See, I am quite well!"

Indeed, in a few moments she had regained something of that magnificent energy which was her heritage. As though nothing had happened, she arose and walked swiftly across the room. Her eyes were fixed upon the great map which hung upon the walls—a strange map it would seem to us to-day. Across this she swept a white hand.

"I saw your men cross this," she said, pointing along the course of the great Oregon Trail—whose detailed path was then unknown to our geographers. "I saw them go west along that road of destiny. I told myself that by virtue of their courage they had won this war. Sometime there will come the great war between your people and those who rule them. The people still will win."

LESS DRANK PER CAPITA ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES.

New York, June 16.—The consumption of alcoholic beverages has decreased during the past two years $110,185,600, according to The American Grocer. This publication says that during 1900 the consumption of liquors was: Whisky, $566,913,331; beer, $879,872,542; wines, $107,219,990; total, $1,554,005,863. For 1907 the estimated total retail cost of liquor was $1,664,191,463. According to the bureau of statistics the population increased 2,749,966 in the same period. The per capita use of spirits is the smallest since 1900 and of beer since 1905. Last year's consumption of tea, coffee and cocoa was the largest since 1905.

ALMOST FORGOTTEN HEROINE.

Half-forgotten by a public whose ears rang with her praise two generations ago, and approaching the time of life when rest and reflection are considered appropriate, the keeper of Lime Rock Lighthouse, Ida Lewis, still attends to her important duties as faithfully and capably as at any previous period during her fifty-three years' residence on the rocky island, writes Earl Clauson, in Putnam's Magazine. Daily she pursues a round of labor, which would exhaust many a stronger woman, and there is never an hour throughout the night when she does not consciously awaken, attentive to the red glow which assures her that the light is fulfilling its mission. Most impressive of all, perhaps, in her long tale of service, is the fact that she has spent only a half dozen nights off the rock since she became keeper in 1879.

Up to November, 1867, there were ten rescues to the credit of the slender girl twenty-five years old, whose fame, nevertheless, had not spread beyond her native state. A year and a half later (29 March, 1869) occurred the rescue which directed the attention of the entire country to this remarkable woman. The participants in the affair, besides Miss Lewis were two Fort Adams soldiers and a boatman who was taking them back to barracks across Newport Harbor.

It happened that in the evening of the day in question Miss Lewis, then a woman of twenty-seven, was nursing a severe cold and sat with shoes off toasting her feet in the lighthouse kitchen oven. Across her shoulders for additional warmth a towel had been thrown. Around Lime Rock howled a winter blizzard, which threashed the waters of the harbor into a wicked sea, and sent heavy rollers from the northeast crashing against the island.

Of a sudden there came to Miss Lewis' ears, above the roar of the tempest, a sound with which by this time she had become familiar—the cry of men in distress. Instantly she sprang to her feet and threw open the kitchen door. Her mother besought her to remain at home, but the girl could entertain only the single idea that her path of duty led to the open water. It was a hard struggle, strong though she was, to guide her skiff to the spot from which the cries continued to come; but at last she found the capsized boat and drew the two soldiers, almost exhausted, aboard her craft. The boatman was lost.

Strawberry Baskets.

First make a good sponge cake, here is one recipe: Beat the yolks of three eggs until they are light colored, add one small cupful of sugar and very gradually half a cupful of boiling water. Sift one teaspoonful of baking powder with a cupful of flour and add this by degrees; last of all mix in the stiffly-beaten whites of eggs. Bake in small cups or tins. When cold, cut a piece from the centre of each. Fill this cavity with strawberries. Put whipped cream all round them and cut strips of angelica or lemon peel to form handles.

NAVAJO INDIAN BLANKETS, HOW THEY ARE MADE

Very few there are in this section who really know that it takes the major part of one entire year to weave an Indian blanket. Every part and portion is prepared by hand and more patience and painstaking care and hard labor, too, is put into one of these valuable possessions than in probably any other single piece of work done by the Indian.

First the wool is sheared from the sheep, cleaned, picked and carded. Then it is dyed in the peculiar colorings, the secret of which is never revealed by the Navajos, and finally the work of weaving is commenced. It takes some six or eight weeks of constant work on the part of the woman who does the weaving to get the pattern laid out and started on the loom, and after that the real work commences. The actual work of weaving the blanket. This, as a rule, takes about six or seven months as it is very hard and tedious labor and hardly if ever does one see an Indian woman who can, with all their wonderful endurance, handle the heavy shuttle for more than an hour at a time. It is hard grueling work. Work that would break the spirit as well as the body of the average white woman. The exhibition begins next Monday, June 20, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus carnival.

EXERCISES AT DUNELLEN

Class of Twelve Graduated at Exercises When Prizes are Awarded.

H. S. VALEDICTORIAN HONORED.

Rev. E. R. Brown Makes Address on "The Attainment of Ideals"—Dr. Henry M. Maxson Presents the Certificates.

Miss Meta Pennock, valedictorian of the class of 1910 of the City High School, was honored by the whole town of Dunellen last evening, when a ten gollar gold piece was presented to her at the graduation exercises in the Whittier school of that place. The presentation was made by A. F. Todd, Jr. president of the Board of Education. The gift was a public appreciation of the honor that she has brought to the Dunellen school of which she is an alumna and the amount was gathered from many sources. Miss Pennock is the second young woman from that section to win the Plainfield High School valedictory. Last year Miss Sarah A. Brouwer, of New Market, took the honor; and the peculiar circumstance now evident, is that the valedictory next year will be carried off by another Dunellen young woman, whose standing in scholarship at present is among the first in her class at the Plainfield High School. This is Miss May Day, who was valedictorian at the Dunellen Whittier school when she was graduated three years ago.

The feature of the closing exercises was the address by Rev. E. R. Brown on "The Attainment of Ideals." Rev. Mr. Brown handled his subject well and spoke distinctly and directly to the point. Miss Elizabeth Hawthorne's rendition of Anthony's address from Julius Caesar was roundly applauded. Other numbers on the program were the graduates march, "True Friendship," by Lillian Fisher and Hazel Runyon; the essay, "Thomas Edison," by Schuyler VanderVeer, the violin solo by George Martin; the able recitation, "Horatius at the Bridge," by Allen Frederick; the essay, "Forest Preservation," by Ruth Haver, and the boys' chorus "The Rain Concert," in which W. W. Pierson displayed talent. The class prophecy was given by Miss Ruth Voorhees and the valedictory essay, "We Endeavor To Do Greater Things," was given by Miss Helen Swackhamer. Leo Mullen followed with a violin solo and Miss Marguerite VanZandt gave a piano solo creditably.

The presentation of certificates to the members of the class was made by Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public Schools, and the awarding of prizes was made by A. F. Todd, Jr., president of the Dunellen Board of Education.

In the awarding of prizes, the judges found that the essays submitted for the composition prize offered by Edward Maurer were so nearly equal in merit, that a division of the $5 prize had to be made. As a result, Allen Fredrick was awarded $3, and Miss Elizabeth Hawthorne $2.

The members of the class are:

Florence Gray, Ruth Haver, Elizabeth Hawthorne, Ruth Snyder, Helen Swackhamer, Ruth Voorhees, Allen Frederick, George Martin, John McFadden, Harold Noble, John Rinehart, Schuyler VanderVeer.

The members of the faculty and Board of Education who were present are:

Teachers—G. H. Rentschler, principal; Whittier School—Ritie G. Brokaw, vice principal; Daisy M. Brouard, Fannie Smith, Frances D. Winter, Edna Eckert; Lincoln School—E. May Higgins, vice principal; Adelaide Thompson, Ethel Rogers, May Lindsley; J. Leo Mullen, music supervisor.

A reception and dance will be given at the school to the members of the Board of Education and the teachers tomorrow night.

Howe in Motorcycle Accident.

John Howe, of Somerset street, is lying at his home today as a result of a collision with an automobile on Somerset street near Craig place a few evenings ago while riding his motorcycle. He is still under the care of a physician.

Judge Runyon to Give Cup.

City Judge William N. Runyon of the Yale Club will present the Yale Cup at the North Plainfield High School graduation a week from this evening.

NO DECISION IN DEBATE AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

A decidedly interesting debate took place in the Sunday school room of the First Presbyterian church last evening and so evenly were the points distributed among the disputants that at the finish the judges were unable to give a verdict for either side. The question under consideration was this: "Resolved that Paul was a Greater man than Moses."

Some facts relating to Bible history hitherto undiscovered by the casual reader were disclosed which lent an added interest to the proceedings. All ten debaters showed that they had made careful search of the scriptures for their facts and the points so brought out really put many in the audience on their mettle as to what they know about the Book.

Associated with Miss Martha Kline on the affirmative side of the question were Miss Leah Hammand, Miss Georgia Ricker, A. B. Searing, Jr. and George A. Ballantyne. Against these were arrayed for the negative, Fred Lounsbury Jr., Mrs. Charles E. Herring, Miss Winnie Hammand, C. M. Hummer and Mrs. Fred Lounsbury Jr. The judges were I. B. Hill and J. H. Manning. One other was named for the position of judging the contest, but did not put in an appearance or there might have been a decision.

After the debate refreshments were served by the women of the church.

REV. L. B. GOODRICH TALKS ON "FUN OUT OF DOORS"

Members and friends of the Men's Club of the Congregational church were entertained, amused and instructed by a lecture delivered in the church last night by Rev. Lincoln B. Goodrich, pastor of the Broadway Trinitarian church, of Taunton, Mass. The views shown with the stereoptican were from photographs taken by the minister himself on and in the vicinity of the White Mountains and included the flowers and birds of that region.

The topic of the lecture, "Fun with the Boys Out of Doors," were experiences of the pastor himself with the boys of his church on various trips to the mountains and lakes in Maine and New Hampshire and included climbing, boating, tramping and trailing through the forests. Views of Mount Washington, Crawford Notch and other interesting points were given with details of a surprising nature, some of the scenes being those missed by the casual traveller or tourist and some of the pranks of the boys amusing to a degree.

After the lecture a social hour was enjoyed during which refreshments were served by a committee from the Men's Club.

INTOXICATED WOMAN HAD NOVEL EXCUSE.

Elizabeth Powers, of Westfield, who has been before City Judge Runyon many a time and oft on the same old charge of intoxication, was arraigned again this morning on the same complaint. This time the woman gave as an excuse for her condition a reconciliation between her mother and her husband who had been estranged for more than a year.

The last time Mrs. Powers was before the Judge she declared that because her husband would not kiss her before he started to work she felt so bad that she sought consolation in booze. The Judge imposed a fine of five dollars.

Crusade to Protect Young Girls.

Hugh F. Fox, of Central avenue, was a member of the conference recently held in Newark by charity organization leaders, to ask local clergymen to issue warnings to parents for the purpose of having young girls kept off the streets and away from suburban pleasure resorts late at night. It was decided to begin a crusade by having the newspapers and clergymen give frequent warnings to parents. It was also decided to ask the authorities of suburban places in which the pleasure parks are loacted to have the parks and their surroundings better policed.

Mrs. Jenny Dameo.

Mrs. Jenny Dameo, wife of Stephen Dameo, of 831 St. Mary's avenue, died yesterday afternoon. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at the late home at 8.30 o'clock and requeim mass will be celebrated at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery. Mrs. Dameo was 27 years old.

COUNTRY CLUB TENNIS

Two Championship Tournaments Will Be Started Tomorrow.

OTHER EVENTS SCHEDULED.

Men's Novice Will Be Finished—Much Interest is Being Taken in the Game at the Hillside Courts.

A busy day is planned for Saturday by the tennis committee of the Plainfield Country Club. Two of the club championship tournaments will be started, the women's singles and the men's doubles; and the men's novice event, which was started on June 4, is also scheduled for conclusion.

An innovation is being made this year in holding the women's championship in June instead of September as in previous years. It is believed that this will attract a larger entry coming as it does before people go away for the summer. This event is in charge of Miss Elizabeth Goddard, Miss Elsie Burke, Miss Edna Wildey and Miss Barbara Fleming, composing the women's sub-committee. There has been unusual interest among the women players at the Country Club this year despite the unfavorable weather, and a large entry list and keen competition is expected to result. The present champion, Miss Barbara Fleming, expects to play, and Miss Edna Widley, who has been playing in excellent form at Philadelphia and other places, will also compete. The entries close at 8 o'clock tonight, and the drawing will be made at the clubhouse.

The other championship event, the men's doubles, is also expected to attract a good entry. There being no contests in the East Jersey League this year, the club events will be the features of the 1910 season.

In the men's novice event the semi-finals and final rounds are to be played Those left in the competition are C. H. Earle and S. W. Merrihew, upper half, and Arthur Lovell and Charles E. Lipscomb, lower half. The winners will meet in the final round, which will be the best three out of five sets.

Play in all three events will begin at 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

A SMILE, A KIND WORD AND WARM HAND CLASP.

One of the most enjoyable sociables ever held in the history of the Park Avenue Baptist church was that which took place there last night. The price of admission, a smile, a kind word and a warm handshake, was eagerly paid by three hundred or more of the members and friends of the church and a most enjoyable evening ensued.

An orchestra led by George W. V. Moy, furnished some splendid music and solos were sung by Rev. Joseph Booth, of British East Africa, who was a guest of the pastor, Rev. Gabriel Reed Maguire. Pastor Maguire was not to be outdone by his friend who sang in the language of Zambesi and Nyanza, Mr. Maguire rendered a solo in the language of the Bassioti tribe. All three songs were loudly applauded.

Judge William N. Runyon nearly threw the company into hysterics with his humorous songs and Chester Chamberlain, the boy soprano contributed some classical numbers. The Sunday school room, where the sociable was held, was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns. Refreshments were served and a general social time, renewals of old friendships and the making of new followed.

Fined in Police Court.

James Saunders, colored, was fined ten dollars this morning by Judge Runyon for an assault committed last Wednesday night on William Moseby, also colored, at a negro dance hall on Berckman street. Saunders admitted striking Moseby with a length of brass rod, but said it was because Moseby had brought liquor to the dance against his express orders. Judge Runyon failed to see just why Saunders arrogated to himself the right to club a man for disobeying orders which were not included in the city ordinances and imposed the fine.

Elks Going to Rahway.

A large delegation of members from Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., will go to Rahway, Tuesday night, and attend the annual vaudeville show to be given by the Elks of that place. Some of the Plainfield Elks will also take part in the program.

ANOTHER CONTRIBUTOR TO BABY CAMP FUND

Another handsome contribution to the King's Daughters Baby Camp sent to this paper today, Mrs. Remsen Taylor, of Central avenue, who read our appeal yesterday, making the gift. There is no more worthy charity in this section, if anywhere, and it is expected that the generous hearty people of the community will subscribe a fund of a size permitting the managers of the baby camp to afford all the deserving tots the benefits of that institution during the summer months.

These subscriptions are acknowledged by this paper:

MISS EMILY WENANT BECOMES MRS. STEINER

Miss Emily Lawrence Winant, of Clifton, and formerly of Plainfield, and Carl A. Steiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steiner, of Jackson avenue, the borough, were quietly married yesterday afternoon at the Congregational church, before a small gathering of relatives and intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. L. Godrich, pastor of the church.

Miss Winant was attended by Miss Mattie Watermann, of Orange, as bridemaid, while John Peacock, Class '10, Princeton University, was the best man. After a brief wedding tour the couple will reside in the Netherwood section of the city, where the groom has furnished a home.

The groom is a graduate of the North Plainfield High School and both he and his wife have a large circle of friends and acquaintances in the city and borough.

PLAINFIELD'S ELKS TO HAVE A BIG TIME

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., is preparing to make next Wednesday night a red letter date in the history of the order locally as on that occasion it will entertain the members of Dover lodge, who will come to this city by automobile, 100 strong. The Plainfielders were treated royally when they visited the Morris county town last September, and they are determined to outdo themselves in expressing appreciation.

The Dover Elks will erach this city about 8:30 and will be escorted to Saengerbund hall where the festivities are to be held. The minstrel first part of the show given by the Plainfield lodge last month will be reproduced and is to be followed by a vaudeville bill. The contributors to the bill will include Harry Blimm, Jack Todd, William Smith, Marcus Hoyt, John Cose, Eddie Bennett and Tom Muir. Orchestral music is to be a feature all evening and a big supper will conclude the affair. The visitors plan to begin the trip home shortly after midnight.

The committee in charge of the plans comprises John H. Cose, Henry Vosseler, S. P. T. Wilbur and Fred H. Firstbrook.

Housewives' Club Meets.

The Housewives' Club which was organized about a year ago and now has a membership of twenty women, held a pink tea Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Eugene Coles, 618 West Fourth street. There was a large attendance and the members and their guests enjoyed a musical program and refreshments. The club has the support and encouragement of a number of white people in the city. Recently the members contributed $30 toward the work for the relief and prevention of tuberculosis in this city. The club will hold a regular meeting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Coles.

Hupmobile a Winner.

The famous Hupmobile is once more a winner. Driven by Elmer D. Cutting, of this city, one of these cars finished the two days' Long Island "Montauk Light or Bust" reliability contest with an absolutely clean score. One of these wonderful little cars will be entered in the New Jersey Auto and Motor Club 15-hour endurance contest Saturday, passing through Front street going east about 11 a. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Miss Adelia French, of West Fourth street, is spending some time in Boston visiting relatives.

St. Joseph's Societies' Euchre.

At Sebring's hall last night sixty couples gathered at the tables to play euchre and enjoy an evening of rare pleasure. More than four hundred people attended the euchre and dance and a handsome sum was realized for the building fund of St. Joseph's church in North Plainfield. The affair was given under the auspices of the united societies of the church. The committee having the affair in charge was composed of Mrs. A. E. Kenney, Mrs. Cormick McDonough, Mrs. James Bailey and Mrs. W. F. Hamilton.

Civic Body Meets Tonight.

The regular meeting of the North Plainfield association will be held tonight in the Borough Council chambers. It is expected that C. W. McCutchen will speak on the subject of parks.

MRS. EDMUND PACK DIES OF APOPLEXY

Mrs. Edmund W. Pack died at 7 o'clock this morning at her home, 217 Park avenue, of apoplexy following an illness of two weeks. While it was known that her condition was critical the family had hopes that she ould recover. Mrs. Pack was taken ill a week ago last Sunday while she and her husband were planning to go to Rahway for the day and she steadily grew worse, despite the best of medical attention and the care of a trained nurse.

Mrs. Pack was formerly Miss Mary E. Denman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Denman. She was a native of Newark, where she lived during the early part of her life. She was married to Mr. Pack at Rahway on October 8, 1873, and immediately removed to this city, where she lived to the time of her death. Mrs. Pack was a faithful member of the First Baptist church and for twenty-two years was a worker in Warren chapel, being president of the sewing school there. For many years she was a buyer for the Plainfield Relief Association and rendered valuable service in the relief of the worthy poor.

Mrs. Pack was a cousin to Lenore F. Loree, the well-known railroad magnate, and his brother, William Loree, who is general manager for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, with offices at Pittsburg. Her husband survives. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF GYULA DE FESTETICS

Impressive funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Arthur de Festetics, the twelve-year-old son of Gyulia de Festetics, at the late home 62 Westervelt avenue, where a large number of friends and neighbors, including many boys and girls, some playmates of the little fellow. There was also a large number of floral tributes, including a pillow, which rested at the head of the casket, bearing the inscription, "Our Boy."

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, and his words were full of symparty and consolation for the grief-stricken father. He also drew a strong and impressive lesson from the death of King David's son, telling the story of that Bible incident effectively and quoting King David's words about the death of his son, "He cannot come to me, but I can go to him." Dr. Anderson expressed the hope that in little Arthur's death others might be lead to become Christians. He referred to the devotion of father and son and spoke words of comfort to the broken-hearted father; also referring to the breaking of the ties among the children of the neighborhood.

During the service, Mrs. Thomas MacDonald sang sweetly, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and "Nearer, My God to Thee," accompanied on the piano by Miss Hessie Johanson, of New York. The remains were placed in the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery and those who acted as pall bearers were the folowing: Wilson Johanson, of New York, Donald Ketcham, Raymond Cutter, William and Harry Hand, Charles Small, all playmates of Arthur.

After consuming the time of the court yesterday up to 5 o'clock the contestants in the suit of Louise and Achille Dufour against F. T. Ostrom will have to resume their testimony on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock before Judge William Newcorn in the district court.

According to the testimony of the complainants in the case in the hearing yesterday an automobile driven by the defendant collided with the surrey of the complainants and the resulting damages equalled $500. Several witnesses are yet to be heard for the defense and rebuttal testimony heard. It is not expected that the case will be concluded on Monday.

THE WEATHER.

Partly cloudy tonight and Saturday; warmer Saturday; light to moderate variable winds becoming west. Maximum, 74; minimum, 61.

—Neuman Bros. will have an unusually fine display of vegetables of all kinds for tomorrow's trade, and an early selection is desirable. These vegetables are the best obtainable in the market.

LEAL'S SCHOOL PROGRAM

RUTGERS PRESIDENT TALKS.

Dr. Austen Scott Gives the Graduates Some Good Advice—The Prizes Are Awarded.

Nine young men having completed the prescribed course of study were graduated from John Leal's School this morning when the closing exercises for the term were held. The school rooms were filled with parents and friends of the graduates, as well as other boys of the school and the program was an interesting one, including an excellent address by Dr. Austin Scott, former president of Rutgers College.

Of the nine graduates all but one will go to college. The exception is Garthwaite Carman, who will enter business. The other graduates and the college of their choice follow:

Morris K. Brandegee, Thomas W. Foote, Lyman C. Hibbard, Yale; Frank E. Driscoll, Lehigh; Clifford A. Hall, Stevens; Thomas H. Leggett, Jr., Columbia; John H. Jewett, Jr., and James O. Murray, Princeton.

The Yale cup offered by the Plainfield Yale Club for the most excellent attainment in studies and athletics, was won this year by Clarence R. Lawrence, Class '11. Allan Heely stood high in his studies, winning several honors. Mr. Leal announced the names of the honor boys as follows:

Arithmetic, Allan Heely; algebra, Clarence R. Lawrence; geometry, Clifford A. Hall, Clarence R. Lawrence and Morris K. Brandegee; Latin, Allan Heely; home, Morris Brandegee; trigonometry, Thomas H. Leggett, Jr.; United States History, Allan Heely; English V, Thomas H. Leggett; English IV, Clarence R. Lawrence; English III, Roger Stewart and William Jewett; English I, Allan Heely; German I, John Jewett and Clarence R. Lawrence; German II, Thomas W. Foote; French I, Norman Finch. In the junior department, for general excellence, Richard Moldenke and Chauncey Stewart won the honors in the upper group and Conrad Johnson and Fred Wilson in the lower group.

Using a horse, figuratively speaking, to represent life, Dr. Scott gave the boys some excellent advice. He described the right and wrong way to ride a horse as typfying the method that the boys should follow to be successful. He said that it was necessary that one should ride with head and heart high and feet and hands low, in which way one could control a horse. If they did not the horse would control the rider. So it is in life, one must have his head and heart high and his hands and feet must be low to have a firm grip on life.

The speaker said that there is a graceful way to ride a horse and a graceful way to go through life. One must begracious whether it is in entertaining a caller in one's office or in meeting people generally. He then asked the boys how they planned to go through life. Whether they intended to have their heads and hearts high with a noble purpose or the reverse and be a slave to business or profession.

After describing the active side of life, Dr. Scott referred to the passive side. He said that labor had now got down to an eight-hour day, and the question to be solved is what is what is to be done with the other sixteen hours, aside from the time necessary for sleep.

Dr. Scott said that so many people devote their time chiefly and solely to their business and when their hours of rest or recreation come they scarcely know how to spend it. He contended that the mind should be trained to do something worth while outside of business, and he considered this quite as important as the training and preparation for one's life work for the time would come when the active side would cease and then one must be in a position to spend the passive side profitably.

The audience thoroughly enjoyed Dr. Scott's talk and he held the close attention of everyone during the half-hour he spoke.

Trolley Traffic Held Up.

Trolley traffic was held up for a time on the Somerset street line this morning, when a loaded stone wagon broke down near the terminus of the road. The accident was due to a nut dropping off a wheel allowing the wheel to come off, and dumping part of the load on the trolley tracks.

WESTFIELD.

Luther M. Whitaker, whose term as postmaster of Westfield will soon expire, has written the chairman of the local Republican organization, Charles N. Codding, that he is not a candidate for reappointment. His reason for not seeking reappointment is ill health. He has held the office of postmaster for fifteen years. Among those mentioned for the place are Freeholder Charles A. Smith, Fire Chief Frederick C. Decker and Assistant Postmaster Augustus K. Gale. The Republican executive committee will meet tonight to select Mr. Whitaker's successor.

The street railway tracks are being lowered on Prospect street, between Brightwood avenue and Newton place, to conform with the new grade of the road. The slight hill now being taken down was responsible for a severe accident on the trolley several years ago. A new motorman not acquainted with the sudden drop in the grade let his car jump the curve at Newton place.

NORTHSIDE NATIONAL BANK AT ELIZABETH.

Elizabeth is soon to have another financial institution, to be known as the Northside National Bank.

It will be located in the new Isham building, which is almost finished and which stands at North Broad street and Westfield avenue, directly opposite Elizabeth's Postoffice building now in course of construction, and also across the street from the handsome home of Elizabeth Lodge of Elks.

The Isham or bank building, as it will be known, is four stories high, 90x60 feet and is of light brown pressed brick.

The projectors of the new bank are H. Heywad Isham and William K. Claire, a wealthy banker of Manhattan, and both residents of Elizabeth. Mr. Isham was one of the founders of the Citizens' Bank of Elizabeth and for several years its vice-president. This bank has been absorbed by the Union County Trust Comapny.

Mr. Isham, who is a large real estate owner, and deeply interested in financial enterprises, says that he expected the Northside Bank would be ready to begin business in about two months, or as soon as his new building was ready for occupancy.

When the Northside Bank is opened Elizabeth then will have six financial institutions of that kind.

Mr. and Mrs. John Swan, of Watchung avenue, are registered at Hadden Hall, Atlantic City.

Miss Hallie Van Deventer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Van Deventer, of Myrtle avenue, has gone to the mountains of Virginia, where she is engaged in missionary work, aiding Miss Agnes Smith, a deaconess of the Episcopal church.

McNULTY BROS.' TEAM TO CLASH WITH PLAINFIELD.

McNulty Bros.' team of New York, will clash with the Plainfield Baseball Club on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon and one of the best contests of the season is anticipated. The New Yorkers defeated Plainfield in four games last season, but the locals have forgotten that and intend to regain lost honors. Every member of the Plainfield team is in the pink of condition for the contest and Morris is due for a good walloping tomorrow. The club has arranged for extra trolley cars on the Arlington avenue line to carry the crowds to the game. This will be the line-up of the teams:

WOMAN CHARGES A GROCER WITH ASSAULT

Borough Recorder Charles N. Dolliver reserved decision until next Tuesday morning after hearing the evidence in the suit of Mrs. Elizabeth Dorn against Gustave Laver, a grocer for attempted assault when he was collecting a bill about two weeks ago.

Mrs. Dorn asserted that Laver finding that she would not pay the bill when he came to collect it in the morning, and the trouble followed.

William DeMeza, who represented Laver called Borough Chief of Police Weiss and Marshal Lemuel Pope to the witness stand to show that Laver's reputation was good in the borough. Francis J. Blatz, who represented Mrs. Dorn, explained that the reason no outcry was made by Mrs. Dorn when the alleged assault took place was because no one was within hearing distance to render help at the time. Mr. DeMeza then alleged that Mrs. Dorn was pursuing a system of petty blackmail in an endeavor to get even with her former grocer, for whom she had once worked, and with whom the trouble occurred.

TOMMY TIMBO OUTING, ATLANTIC CITY, SUNDAY.

If it happens to be a case of grouch or if it is merely a feeling that the weather man has a grudge against you, or if you are in earnest in your belief that Atlantic City has no charms for the weary then go and take it out of Tommy Timbo and his club on the day of the excursion to the only real seaside resort in the State.

Tommy said last night that there is no cure for the blues equal to a trip to the seashore in congenial company, and he knows. Didn't he have the misfortune to lose a small parcel of coin a few weeks ago And didn't he "forget it" in anticipating the fun he is going to get out of the trip the club for whose name he is sponsor will have? By all means, yes, to both questions. And there you are!

The Timbo Social Club is famous for its outings and there will be no exception to this one. Everything that a man or a body of men can do for the comfort and entertainment of guests has been prepared by the club and those who don't take the opportunity of a day's pleasure with the club will miss one of the treats of the summer. Get aboard!

A MUSICAL SERVICE AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The choir of the First Baptist church, under the direction of Howard Case, choirmaster, will give a special musical service Sunday night, assisted by Miss Florence Wohlfert, violinist. Mendelssohn's work, the Thirteenth Psalm for contralto and chorus, will be rendered, and Miss Ruth Harris, soprano soloist, will sing "With Verdure Clad," from "The Creation." Miss Hazel Hattfield, contralto soloist, will take the principal part in the Mendelssohn composition, which will afford an excellent opportunity to hear her fine voice.

There will be numerous other selections with solo parts for William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor. The program will be an especially attractive one throughout and the choir has been rehearsing the various numbers during the past few weeks.

Reception to Bridal Couple.

A reception and dinner were given last evening by Mrs. Annie Robinson, of East Third street, in honor of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Pattie V. Hinton to Joseph Garner. The wedding took place on March 2 and was performed by the Rev. F. D. Tildon. A large number of the young people's friends were present who expressed their best wishes for the bride and groom. The couple received a number of handsome presents. They will continue to reside in Plainfield, where the groom is employed.

Missionary Talks.

Under the auspices of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, a missionary tea was held at the church, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. J. C. Pierson, president of the society, was in charge of the program. Miss Jennie V. Hughes, a returned missionary form Kiu Kiang, China, gave a thrilling talk of her work. Mrs. Charles Gilbert sang a solo and the Misses Mildred Barnes and Gertrude Gray played a piano duet.

Peace in the Doyle Home.

"He's a mighty good man when he's sober, but a fiend when he's drunk," Mrs. Joseph Doyle told Justice of the Peace Snape in a suit for non-support this morning. The justice agreed with her and effected a settlement in the Doyle home so that harmony will reign heerafter. Doyle promised to let his employer, Joseph F. Burke, pay his weekly salary to his wife hereafter. This satisfied all and the court accordingly dismissed the case.

Raising Old Glory.

An excellent picture of the scene at the raising of the flag at the Mt. St. Mary College exercises will be found on page seven today. The photograph was taken by P. Frank Stone, of East Front street.

S. S. McCUTCHEN GIVES DIPLOMAS TO TEACHERS.

S. St. John McCutchen, of the borough, presented diplomas to the graduates of the State Normal School at Trenton last evening. Mr. McCutchen is a member of the State Board of Education, and took the place of President James Hays, who went to Wellesley to witness the graduation of his daughter.

There were four Plainfield young women among the graduates. They are the Misses Edna Dorothy Doughty, Edith Viola Ganun, Rose Mary Nash and Rose Edith Rothberg. The latter two were graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1908. Miss Doughty specialized in nature study and English, and Miss Rothberg in history. A large number of Plainfielders attended the exercises. The address by Principal Charles Chapin at the reception to the class on "How to Be Happy Though a Teacher," was especially good.

RAILROAD WRECK FREES CIRCUS ANIMALS

Ebensburg, Pa., June 17.—The Frank A. Robbins circus train of fifteen cars was wrecked one mile from here early yesterday on the Cambria and Cresson branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Two lions, an elephant, one leopard, one hyena, one jaguar and an ibex are reported to be at large as a result of the derailment. Ten circus employes were injured. The more seriously injured were removed to hospitals in Altoona. At the scene of the wreck a low bridge spans a deep gully.

As the circus train passed over the bridge three of the wagons which contained the animals struck low-hanging girders and were overturned. The cars carrying the wagon cages were derailed and thrown over the embankment leading to the bridge.

In the darkness of the early morning the confusion following the derailment of the menagerie cars was terrifying. The howls of the wild animals, which fled in every direction, was mingled with the cries of the injured men, pinned under the wreckage. At the time of the accident the train was making better than twenty miles an hour on a down grade. The engineer stated that he threw on his emergency brakes when he felt the first shock of the cars against the bridge girders. His act probably saved many lives.

The entire country for miles around is in a state of terror. Many of the farmers and their families refuse to leave their homes and take up the search for the liberated menagerie beasts. Circus employes are beating the woods, hauling temporary cages with them, in an effort to corral the animals.

PERSONAL.

Harvey VanPelt, of this city, has been visiting his father at Millstone.

Roy Vanderbeek, son of Andrew Vanderbeek, of Verdon street, the borough, is quite ill with scarlet fever.

Dr. and Mrs. Carl A. Gesswein, of The Bristol, will leave on Monday for a visit to their former home at Hamilton, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Holmes, of West Sixth street, are spending the summer at The White Tree Inn, Pittsfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Berry, of Sycamore avenue, will leave tomorrow for Lake Wanawaug, Conn., where they will remain for several weeks.

Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, of 29 Myrtle avenue, will leave tomorrow with a party of friends from Orange for Europe, where she will spend the summer.

T. S. Armstrong, the druggist, returns today from Cape May, where he has been attending the annual meeting of the State Pharmaceutical Association, which has been in session for three days.

REV. JOHNSON, D. D., LL. D., M. A. CONFERS CORRES. SCHOOL D. D.

The members of the Calvary Baptist church are celebrating the fourth anniversary of the pastor, Rev. G. W. Bailey, beginning Tuesday night. On the opening night, Rev. E. W. Roberts, of the Shiloh Baptist church, and his choir had charge of the service. Wednesday night, Rev. M. W. Vaughn, of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, with his Baptist Young People's Union and choir, were in charge.

The service last night was conducted by Rev. J. W. Mitchell and he introduced Rev. W. Bishop Johnson, D. D. LL. D., M. A., of Washington, who after an address conferred the degree of doctor of divinity upon Pastor Bailey. This degree was furnished by a correspondence school at Washington, D. C. Rev. J. T. Diggs, of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, with its chorister, W. M. Johnson, furnished the music for the occasion. The annual report presented showed that the receipts for the year from all sources amounted to $2,600.

YOUNG BOROUGHITE FOUND DEAD IN BED

John E. Stewart, the 27-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stewart, of 33 Park place, was found dead in bed when his mother went to call him at 9 o'clock this morning. Last night he sat up with his parents and appeared to be in perfect health, joking and laughing with them. He retired a little after 10 o'clock but at 2 o'clock this morning, woke up his mother to say, "Good night."—and good bye." He had made it a practice to wake up his parents to say "good night" to them, so she thought nothing of it this morning.

Mr. Stewart usually arose at 6 o'clock but this morning was not up at that time. His mother decided that he was probably taking an extra long rest so did not waken him. When he did not get up at 9 o'clock she decided to go into the room, anticipating that he was sick. She found him lying there with eyes open, but with the peculiar blackish hue characteristic of death.

In alarm she called Dr. Buchanan. Owing to the circumstances of the death, it will be necessary for the county coroner to view the body before it can be buried. Dr. Curry said later that death was caused by heart failure.

Stewart formerly worked at the Pond Machine Works. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon.

GEN. COLLINS ISSUES 2ND REGIMENT ORDERS

Complying with the order of Division Commander General P. Farmer Wanser, the order of Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins commanding his brigade to participate in the army manoeuvres at Gettysburg has been sent to the adjutant general and the quartermaster general.

This order is especially interesting to the Second regiment of this city, for it is the official order for their going with the government troops. General Collins calls attention to what officers must observe, as follows:

"In compliance with General Orders No. 5, Headquarters Division, June 6, 1910, the organizations of this brigade will participate in a joint camp of instruction for the regular army and organized militia, at Gettysburg, Pa.

"1. Headquarters Second Brigade, Battery B Field Artillery, Second and Third Infantry, July 9 to 17, inclusive. Second Troop, Cavalry, July 23 to 30, inclusive.

"2. Commanding officers are charged with the movement of their organizations to camp of instruction, and will proceed thereto from their respective stations so as to arrive not later than July 10 and 24, respectively, and arrange for subsistance en route.

"3. Attention is directed to Circular No. 4, A. G. O., June 1, 1910, also paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 6 and 7, General Orders, No. 5, Headquarters Division, June 6, 1910, and Memorandum, Army War College, Washington, D. C., May 24, 1910.

"By Command of Brigade General Collins:

"HARRY P. MOORHEAD,
"Adjutant General."

Woman Editor In Distress.

Paterson, June 17.—The troubles of Mrs. Emma Lindenstruth, the only woman editor of this State and the first woman to become a citizen of the State of New Jersey, are coming thick and fast. Last week the constables put her out of her print shop at Passaic and Sheriff Rancier has now given notice that the establishment will be sold next Monday morning at 10 o'clock to satisfy claims held by her landlord, Louis White. Mrs. Lindenstruth has appealed to Governor Fort for assistance.

Westfield High's Class Day.

Westfield, June 17.—The graduating class of the High School held its class day exercises Wednesday evening. So great was the crush that the police and firemen were called upon to turn several hundred persons from the hall. Above the platform was the class motto, "Per Aspera Ad Astra." The High School orchestra furnished the music. Two skits were presented.

Music in City Market.

Music by an orchestra will be one of the features at the City Market tomorrow night. During the past few weeks this feature has been enjoyed by late shoppers and the selections for tomorrow night are not below the standard set by the market people.

Mrs. Digs—Mrs. Close is the meanest woman in the street!

Mrs. Wigs—What has she been doing?

Mrs. Digs—Why, she wouldn't have her leaves swept away. She says they can be shoveled up with the first snow.—Exchange.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire will conduct the meeting at the Plainfield Rescue Mission in the W. C. T. U. rooms at 8 o'clock tonight. The Misses Burnet will sing.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner will have charge of the prayer meeting at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, this evening, and will also preach there tomorrow morning in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw, who is visiting the associations of the denominations in the west.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, of Truell Inn, recently returned from Pasadena, Cal. They were there for five months and were charmed with the winter climate. They resided for sometime at Fanwood. Mr. Jones is the son of John L. Jones for many years editor of the Flemington Democrat.

IN THE REAR APARTMENT

Only in New York are such acquaintances possible. We are very near neighbors. Our two apartment houses approach each other as closely as the law permits, and our windows are exactly on a line. We had been enjoying the privacy of having a vacant flat before our windows for months, when our seclusion was suddenly broken in upon. The windows so near our own were thrown open one day. Our neighbors had arrived.

We decided at once that they were bride and bridegroom and that the old colored servant had been in her family for a generation. They were very quiet neighbors, not in the least obtrusive or noisy, and without ever speaking to them, after the New York fashion, we came to regard them with quite a neighborly spirit. The daily routine of the bride's apartment soon became very familiar. We knew the hours of their meals, their plans for calls and callers. If the bridegroom were late in coming home or the couple went away for a day we knew it, and their doings supplied much of our small gossip.

One summer's night when the windows were thrown open on the air shaft we were attracted by a sudden commotion. An elderly gentleman, obviously a doctor, hurried in and we saw a group gathered anxiously about the bed. What is left to flat dwellers of the spirit of neighborliness was aroused. The little bride was very ill. The lights burned in her room throughout the night; nor did the doctor leave till daybreak. Out of pure sympathy we slept little ourselves that night. Then followed a long illness, which we watched with anxious attention. When the doctor's visits changed from three visits a day to a single call it was a source of rejoicing for us all. And one bright morning, weeks after, the little bride appeared in her chair before the window. Silently we all rejoiced in her improvement. She looked very pretty and very frail in her gayly colored dressing gown, with its profusion of pink ribbons. And each day the great bouquet of flowers before her was renewed.

A week passed and then one day we missed the little bride from the window. She had gone back to bed and again the doctor came regularly at at first, daily, but soon, to our consternation, twice each day. Later, however, the calls became fewer and once again the little bride took up her place by the window. But it was a greatly changed little figure, which went straight to our hearts. The gay dressing gown was gone, as were the pink ribbons, and the face looked drawn and pale. Then the effort proved beyond her strength and we saw her no more.

But one night our attention was attracted to the window again and we watched fearfully with anxious hearts. Two doctors and a nurse hastily summoned were beside the bed. The bridegroom sat at the foot, his head buried in his hands, without moving. The doctors and the nurse were obviously working with desperate haste. One, two, three hours passed and then the lights were turned down and the curtain, which had been forgotten, was drawn. We knew all, and throughout that night the loss seemed to be our own. The next morning we saw the undertakers enter the room with their hideous tools.

And the pathetic little family has not yet gone out of our life. The husband and the old colored maid still live in the apartment. At first we marveled that he should stay on alone among so many memories, but we have decided that these memories are all that he has left. He sits by the windows alone in the early evening with the room darkened. We feel that we know him well and that he is bound to us by innumerable bonds of sympathy. But we have never so much as learned his name.

The Lady of the Telephone.

She is more than five feet tall, she is neat, she is quick, she is never deaf nor dumb, she is invisible when most effective—she is the girl who must be consulted before you can get the telephone you want, says the Baltimore Sun. The government experts find that she can answer 225 calls a minute without shedding a hairpin, but do not mention that she can give you the same wrong number three times in five minutes and cause attacks of apoplexy and indignation at both ends of the wire. She must be either very patient or very indifferent, this operator in the conversation exchange, for she deals with many men of many tempers and many women of many tongues. And if she can manage this successfully and emerge from a day of conflict with unruffled temper and smiling face, she must be a wonder.

New Remedy.

Customer—I wish I had as good a head of hair as you have. I have tried everything to remedy my baldness, but with no good results.

Watchmaker—Have you ever tried rubbing your head with steel?

Customer—Certainly not. That's ridiculous.

Watchmaker—Why ridiculous? Isn't it a fact that steel makes the hair spring?

Bled eight feet from the ground, a rubber-yielding tree of 15 inches diameter gives three pints of liquid.

The Soulless Corporation.

A burglar broke into the Clinton & Springfield station at Harrisonville. He found a rubber stamp and an ink pad, which he refused to take away, but he left a note to the agent. The note read: "W'at the 'ell's the country cummin' to when a big ralerode corporashun don't leve enough in its drawers to buy a pore man a meles vittles."—Kansas City Star.

Rabbits in Australia.

Some one has calculated that the rabbits in Australia must reach the number of 1,000,000,000,000. But of course there is no means of taking a census; the calculation is largely guesswork, its foundation being a rough numbering of the rabbits to be found in an acre of country and multiplying that by the number of rabbit infested acres.

Out of Man's Reach.

The old may have their years stretched out beyond the fourscore, but they must die sooner or later; no such necessary limit affects the births, and it is conceivable that there may come a year when there are no births. Immortality is the only effective answer to a cessation of reproduction, and, alas! the King of Terrors still reigns.

Immense Leather Belt.

The largest leather belt ever made was completed recently by a New York manufacturer for a Louisiana lumber company. It was 243 feet long, six feet wide and three-ply thick. The hides of 540 steers were utilized in the manufacture of the belt. As its delivery was a matter of urgency, the great roll of leather was shipped by express, and the bill for this service was $243.67.

Importance of Table Manners.

Emerson declared: "I could better eat with one who did not respect the truth or the laws than with a slovenly and unpresentable person Moral qualities rule the world, but at short distances, the senses are despotic." There is nothing more offensive to truly polite and cultured people than careless vulgar table manners.

Education Never Stops.

Get all the education you can but never remove yourself from the idea that after you know a lot you still have more to learn. When you graduate from college you are just beginning to understand many themes and subjects that are most important.

Use for Old Clocks.

When a small clock is beyond repair do not throw it away, but keep it for sick room use. Set the hands each time medicine is given to the hour when the next dose is to be given.

Childhood's Protest.

"There's one thing I don't understand," said little Harry, "and that's why good tasting things like mince pies make me ill, while bad tasting things like medicine make me well. It ought to be the other way about."

The End Not Feared.

Lucretia Maria Davidson, the poet, testified in the last bit of evidence she gave on earth, "Death, which once looked so dreadful to me, is now divested of all its terrors."

Anticipating.

"This is what others are wearing, madame." "But I don't want to wear what others are wearing. Show me the style after next."—Kansas City Journal.

Australian Plague Checked.

The rabbit in Australia is now kept in check. The animal is still a nuisance—a most expensive nuisance, but he no longer actually threatens the life of the pastoral industry.

Seattle Can Be Made Seaport.

Government engineers have reported that Seattle can be made a seaport by cutting a canal to Puget sound by way of the Salmon bay, at a cost of about $3,500,000.

Nothing Hard About It.

"People tell me that it's hard to promise anything," says the Philosopher of Folly. "And heaven knows it's the easiest thing I do."

Let Your Light Shine.

Backward English Village.

A new house has just been completed at Shefford, England, and it is said to be the first one built there in fifty years.

Capacity Not Tested.

A New York man who ate 60 buckwheat cakes and two pounds of sausage said he would have done better if he had been hungry.

Tribute to Patience.

Patience is the strongest of strong drinks, for it kills the giant Despair. —Douglas Jerrold.

Misused Gall.

"The gall a man has," says the Philosopher of Folly, "only embitters other people's lives."

Paradoxical.

HOW ANIMALS LEARN.

Learning is the great problem in human psychology and any facts we can gather about the way the animal learn will be helpful to us says a writer in Harper's Magazine. We can find such fact only by resorting to experiment. We choose some problem for the animal to solve, he must raise a latch, pull a string, slide out a bar, or thraed a maze, before the goal is reached—i. e., before food can be obtained. The animal, like the human being in this respect, will work at a problem only so long as it compels his interest. We must keep his interest by providing a stimulus. This stimulus may be food, escape from confinement, punishment for wrong action, etc. So long as we keep the stimulus constant the animal will work steadily at the task from day to day.

By such experiments we have established the fact that when animals learn to open doors, run mazes, etc. by their own unaided efforts, they achieve the first success in nearly all cases by some happy accident. If a rat is hungry and is confined in a large cage with a small box containing food which it can get access to only by raising a latch, it begins its task by the display of a repertoire of instinctive acts, common to every member of the rat race. It runs around and over the box, gnawing the wires, pushing into every mesh of the wire with its nose, clawing, etc. This random instinctive exercise of energy results early in the knowledge of the fact that the door of the box is the only movable portion. The rat's activity becomes centered here. Since the latch is attached to the small door, the chance has rapid'y become better that some movement of the rat, such as butting or clawing, may raise the latch from the socket.

In a period of time, which may vary from two minutes to twenty, or even longer this happy accident will occur. The door will then fall open, and the rat get the food. Will the animal on the second trial run immediately to the latch and raise it? I have hundreds of records, not only upon the rat, but upon other animals as well, which show that such is not the case. The individual animal may take longer on the second trial than upon the first, but the average of the second trial of a number of animals will be shorter than the average of the first. On successive trials the time of success gets shorter and shorter, until finally the animal will open the latch as soon as confronted with the box. This is the type of hundreds of similar experiments which has been made upon animals ranging in developement from the monkey to the mouse.

Most of the numerous acts of the trained animals on the vaudeville stage are acquired in this laborious way (as the trainer well knows, would he but confess it). Such a mode of learning is the rule, and any higher method (so called "reasoning") is an exception so rare that it is doubtful if it exists.

PAY OF WOMEN TEACHERS.

The pay of women school teachers is unjust, declares Grace C. Strachan, president of the Interborough Association of School Teachers, city of New York, who has an article on the subject in The Delineator.

Suppose a boy and a girl—they may even be twins—have attended the same schools, have been taught by the same teachers, passed the same examinations, and finally have been appointed to teach classes identical in grade and sex of pupils.

Suppose both succeed to the satisfaction of their superior officers, and appear for their reward. Is it not the same for both? Oh, no! The one who was the boy, receives for his first year simply because of his sex a salary $300 higher than that of the one born a girl.

How long would a woman have to teach a class of boys in order to receive the salary a man teaching the same class would reecive the first year? Seven years! And not even then would she receive it, unless she had passed the examination by both principal and district superintendent for renewal of license at the end of the first year, again at the end of the second year, and for permanent license at the end of the third year.

Her record being satisfactory, she would receive an increase of $40 each year, until the end of the seventh year. Her salary would then be $840, and would remain such unless she were rated "fit and meritorious" by both principal and superintendents. The man's salary the first year was $900.

Thus, you see, a woman teacher must teach seven years and pass satisfactorily through four examinations before she receives a salary equal to that of a man teaching the identical class would receive the first year. But what would the man teacher be receiving in his seventn year? This is indeed interesting Instead of an increase of $40 each year he has been receiving one of $105, so that his salary has amounted to $1,530. The percentage of increase in the case of the man is so much larger than in the case of the woman that the original discrepancy of fifty percent. grows from year to year until, after twelve years of service, he receives $2,160, and she for the same work and the same sacrifice of years earns $1,080, or just one-half of what he receives.

Not a Surprise.

Suitor—I hope my proposal for your daughter's hand has not taken you by surprise, sir.

Prospective Father-in-Law—Well, to tell you the truth, it has. You've been so thundering long-winded over it that I thought it wasn't coming off at all.

A Matter of Habit.

"But why do you put your friend's things in the dining-room?"

"Oh, he is so used to restaurants that he won't enjoy his dinner unless he can watch his hat and coat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Fight Irritability.

We must take life as we find it, better it if we can, but certainly there is no sense in throwing our heads against the stone wall of absurd tempers and unnecessary peevishness. There are many exercises for quieting the nerves, but every one requires that you first gain control of yourself. And the girl who has acquired the irritability habit cannot overcome it until she recognizes this fact.—Exchange.

T'other End To.

"It's jest as much us poor folks' place to treat the rich right as 't is t'other way. Don't it help as much toward good feelin' between man and man for me to go a little out'n my way to give the boss a pleasant good mornin' as it does for the boss always to have to make the first break? The boss' got money; but that's no sign he don't need what money can't buy—and that's good-will."—Pa Flickinger's Folks.

Woman's Danger Batteries.

A hypnotic eye, vulgarly known as the goo-goo, has long been considered one of the most valuable possessions of a woman. In the wise economy of nature it was given her instead of the swelling biceps of the opposite sex. From time immemorial it was considered perfectly ethical for her to exercise this power to the fullest extent, and to it society owes most of its pleasure and probably its very existence.

The Smiths.

As to Smith, a correspondent points out that while there are now about 350,000 members of the great family in England alone, in Old Testament times, according to the first book of Samuel, "there was no Smith throughout the land of Israel." This verse the late Bishop Wilberforce spotted as the hardest one in the Bible to quote without smiling. — London Chronicle.

Expert Diagnosis.

southern slave who diagnosed a boy's Hopkinson Smith tells the story of illness in her master's home. "It's a case of too much watermelon," she said. Thereupon she was informed with great dignity that there could be no such thing as "too much watermelon." "Well," she retorted, "then there ain't enough boy."

Small Work of Art.

A woven basket, so small that it is necessary to use a magnifying glass to appreciate the skill of the workmanship, is claimed to be the smallest in the world. It is a trifle over one-eighth of an inch in diameter, hardly large enough to hold a drop of water, and every stick is perfect.

The Need of Friends.

Every human being is born to companionship. Our first need is a breath of air, the next is a friend. Never till we are done with the air can we spare the friend. I think not even then.—C. G. Ames.

Church Bell Kills Sexton.

M. Dumet, sexton of the church at Bayet, was killed by the bell falling from the tower. He had gone to ring it to announce religious service, when it snapped off and dropped, killing him on the spot.

Making a Life.

Don't Tell a Man a Secret.

Tell a man a secret and he tells it to his wife, and when she in turn repeats it he has a great deal to say about a woman not being able to keep a secret.—Atchison Globe.

Unreasonable.

The woman who wants to wear the trousers is unreasonable. She expects, after gaining her point, to keep right on using stockings.

Troublesome.

There is nothing but trouble ahead of the woman who marries a man she can't love and the man who loves a woman he can't marry.

HER NEW SUIT

"The only time I really wish I were a man," said the girl who likes to talk, "is when I have to order my new spring suit! All a man has to do is drop in at his tailor's, run through a few samples, say 'I'll take that,' and saunter out.

"It's different with a girl. Way back in the winter she begins to worry about that suit. The color bothers. She decides on blue and everybody shrieks in horror. 'Blue! Why, you had a blue suit last year!'

"Her brother begins to tell of the handsome suit he saw on a girl downtown made of black and white checks. He says she looked perfectly stunning, and you should have seen her eyes.

"Then her sister vetoes the check because one gets so tired of anything pronounced. A gray would be good.

"Then your best friend comes in with a sample of lavender homespun and you long for lavender, though you know down in the bottom of your heart that it isn't practical, and you'd have to buy a million lavender accessories to go with it, and anyhow, if you did get it your chum would be madder than a hatter.

"When you really go to the tailor's you are in a very low frame of mind and the world looks dark. The tailor is very glad, indeed, to see you, and as for samples—ah! when once you see his sample books you will lose yourself in wonder and amazement, because, really, there never were such samples as he has this spring! You begin to cheer up while he opens the books. There are several hundred samples and surely among all of them—

"But hold! Isn't there anything but gray and blue samples in the world? Have they forgotten how to make any other color? He assures you positively that nothing will be worn this spring but gray and blue. Instantly you decide that you wouldn't have a suit of either if it were given you, and at the same moment you know what you want. You want a light tan and you say so.

"Artfully the tailor shows you more gray and blue till you rise in wrath and shriek for tan. Then he admits that maybe you are benighted enough to desire tan, and reluctantly gets out some. For some mysterious reason a tailor always balks at whatever color you choose. He invariably wants you to have something else.

"After you've decided on an English worsted you remember that Alice had a worsted and it wore shiny. That cuts out worsted. The homespuns look heavy and the basket weaves look pully. By this time you have a tearing headache and go home with your handbag full of samples and your heart full of bitterness.

"On the way you meet Genevieve, and when you tell her where you have been she says, 'My dear! Whatever you do, don't go to that tailor! Why, he simply ruined my sister-in-law's suit! And tan will get so soiled!'

"Your family likewise elevates its eyebrows in pity when you murmur that tan is your choice. Each member infers that of course if you have taken leave of your senses it is sad but can't be helped, and each will conceal your affliction from the world as long as possible. As for a basket weave—horrors! Don't you know it will sag and pull and look horrid before you've had it a week? Mercy on us!

"When you retire for the night you cry yourself to sleep and wish you could wear a potato sack and let it go at that. You don't care if you never have a suit.

"The next day when you wearily say maybe you'd better get gray, because it doesn't matter how you look anyhow if everybody else is satisfied, your mother asks reproachfully if you've forgotten the expensive tan panama hat she bought you on your earnest solicitation last year? Don't you intend to wear it again this season, and how, pray tell, can you wear it with a gray suit? Have you no consideration at all for your family?

"Well, you finally order a tan suit, feeling terribly reckless as you do so. There is some trouble over the fact that your idea of a longish coat conflicts with the current mode. The tailor nearly has apoplexy because he says every coat this spring is short and jaunty, and the fact that jauntiness does not appeal to you as an ideal state makes no impression on him.

"After a battle you win the length of coat you want, but you also win the tailor's sniffing disapproval. After several thousand fittings and fights over pockets or no pockets, lapped seams or plain seams, cloth buttons or bone buttons, long skirt or short skirt, your suit is finished and sent home, but you are too sick of the sight of it to open the box, and when you attire yourself in it you somehow do not have that gay and blithsome cheeriness which should attend a brand-new outfit.

"Still, you look pretty well. A little bird is beginning to sing somewhere down in your heart as you start out, and you observe that the sky is actually blue—when around the corner you run into a girl who always has hated you.

"Oh,' she says. 'How well your season-before-last suit looks, all pressed and brushed up! You'd never know it wasn't—what? You don't mean to say it is new? Why, how stupid of me, but I never dreamed of such a thing!'

"That's what a girl goes through when she gets a new suit!"

SCENE AT THE FLAG RAISING AT MOUNT SAINT MARY COLLEGE.

As little Miss Marie Tobin assisted by two veterans of the Civil War raised Old Glory the audience, composed of representatives of the Catholic church and of the civil and military authorities together with the interested spectators arose to their feet. In the picture are plainly seen reading from left to right: State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, Brigadier General D. F. Collins, of the second regiment of the National Guard; His Excellency, J. Franklin Fort, Governor of New Jersey; the Rt. Rev. Dr. John McFaul, bishop of Trenton; Dr. John Brewster, professor of mathematics and economics at Mt. St. Mary's College; John Green, vice-president of the Board of Education of the city of New York. In the rear of the platform may be seen Company K, Second Regiment, which acted as escort to the Brigadier General. To the left in the foreground saluting the flag are the members of Winfield Scott Post No. 73, G. A. R.

DRAWN WORK.

If something new be your aim in the matter of the ornamentation of a blouse, drawn work is suggested by some of the most successful makers as an effective relief from the perennial insertion or embroidery.

The coarse meshes so much in use this season offer stability and an unusual coolness, to which characteristics is added the easy "drawing" quality.

When marquisette or voile is drawn and worked with coarse linen thread in some of the simpler drawn work patterns, the decorative value is wonderfully increased. Squares, lines and pointed plastrons are attainable, and when the whole blouse is built over a contrasting color to bring it into harmony with the skirt, the result is decidedly successful.

SOFT PETTICOATS.

Petticoats of the softest, suppleat satin underlie many of the new costume skirts, but they are so perfectly put together that their presence is not suspected. They are fitted about the hips as carefully as the gown itself, and so finished at the top that no waist band is necessary. In fact, it would be out of the question to have either a band or a yoke on them, as the smooth-fitting skirt would inevitably betray their presence.

So far has the craze for "invisible" petticoats extended that in some quarters it is proposed to introduce so light-weight a material as crepe de chine and prevent it from clinging to or rather winding about the knees and ankles by using a deep facing of soft satin as a finish for the bottom.

Mealie Cakes.

"Mealie cakes," a sort of "flapjack" much used in Scotland, are made as follows: Rub one half-ounce to one ounce of butter or clarified dripping into a one-half pound of medium oatmeal and a pinch of salt, and work it all to a smooth, stiff paste with boiling water; now turn this out onto a board lightly dusted with oatmeal, and knead it out into a round one inch thick; rub it lightly over with more oatmeal and toast it on the griddle or in front of the fire, turning it repeatedly till nicely browned on both sides, and serve. This requires a certain amount of knack, as the cake is apt to break if overshortened.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Board of Education of Ocean City has elected J. Elmer Sandt, of Nazareth, Pa., principal of the High School.

A motor freight line to compete with the railroads between Perth Amboy and Newark is being advocated by the Perth Amboy Board of Trade.

It is probable that Howard Jessup, a lad of Barnesboro, will lose the sight of an eye as the result of a jab by a penknife in the hand of a companion while at play.

Evan, the eight-year-old son of Howard Prickett, of Millville, fell from a high roof while decorating for "Flag Day." When he struck a board fence, four of his teeth were knocked out and he was seriously injured.

Henry Taft, the recently appointed inspector of weights and measures in Perth Amboy, announced yesterday that he had found eighty-five per cent. of the scales in use in Perth Amboy out of balance on the first inspection.

The Business Men's Association of Salem at a special meeting Tuesday evening registered a protest against the proposed removal of the soldiers from Fort Mott, the coast artillery fortification, about five miles from Salem.

While returning from school Wednesday afternoon Shirley Smith, six years old, daughter of R. O. Smith, of 1 Schuyler court, and Irene Dean, five years old, of Hartley place, Bayonne, were run down by a peddler's wagon and seriously injured.

The campaign for ridding Burlington of homeless dogs has been started in earnest, the Council having passed the ordinance advocated by Mayor Farner. It requires the licensing of all dogs at $1 each, and provides for the destruction of tramp curs.

Governor Fort has signed the commission of Rev. Dr. John Handley as chaplain of the Second Regiment, National Guard, to succeed Rev. Dr. Otis A. Glazebrook, resigned. Dr. Handley is superintendent of the New Brunswick district of the M. E. church.

William K. Peak, of Beverly, is stricken with a strange illness which is baffling the skill of the physicians, and his death has been hourly expected for a week. He is totally blind, deaf, dumb and paralyzed and is starving to death because he is unable to take any nourishment.

A marine park is to be created by Atlantic City which will embrace all the land and water front westerly of the Inlet pavilion at a cost of $300,000. The ordinance which provides for it, and which is supported by the residents in the First Ward has passed first reading. It is intended that the park shall be improved as a playground for children.

His skull found to have been fractured in two places, Joseph Haines, fifty-one years old, of Merchantville, who was found unconscious in a barn at Ritter's hotel Tuesday night, is at death's door in the Homeopathic Hospital, Camden. The authorities are convinced that Haines was struck by a trolley car and that the crew was not aware of the accident.

People near the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad station at Newfield Wednesday afternoon shuddered and turned their heads away as they beheld two-year-old Evelyn Birch running toward the tracks in peril of death on the electric third rail or from an approaching train. Miss Amy Robinson pulled the little one from the track just as the train dashed by.

Struck by a mile-a-minute Reading express while driving a lumber wagon across the tracks at Pleasantville Wednesday night, William Prescott, aged fifty-three, was tossed thirty feet in the air and dropped yards away in the dooryard of Dr. Judson. Prescott was taken to Atlantic City in a special car, but died shortly after midnight in the City Hospital. Nearly every bone in his body was broken and he was internally injured.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Jones, of Newark, have returned home after a visit with friends here.

Edward Garretson and family, of Millstone, visited Plainfield friends on Wednesday. They made the trip in an automobile.

Mrs. John Emmons and granddaughter, Janet Findley, of Jersey City, have been visiting relatives here for a few days.

Effingham Pinto, of this city, formerly of "The Climax," has returned to his home here. He has not decided up his plans for the future.

Joseph P. Tate, executor of the will of Mrs. Minnie E. Edgerton, together with his family, has taken possession of the Edgerton home on East Front street, where they will reside.

Amos Gray and his son, Herbert Gray, of East Second street, are stopping for the present with Mrs. Garret Eick on East Third street, owing to the illness of Mr. Gray's daughter, Miss Katherine Gray, who has scarlet fever.

GOLF.

Despite the fact that there are many golfers who seem to understand the ancient game, there are a number in every club who are not familiar with the etiquette of golf, which is quite as important as the very game itself. This will apply to members of both the Plainfield Country Club and the Park Golf Club. For the benefit of such the etiquette of golf, taken from the "rules of golf," are herewith published:

1. No one should stand close to or directly behind the ball, move or talk, when a player is making a stroke.

On the putting-green no one should stand beyond the hole in the line of a player's stroke.

2. The player who has the honor should be allowed to play before his opponent tees his ball.

3. No player should play from the tee until the party in front have played their second strokes and are out of range, nor play up to the putting-green till the party in front have holed out and moved away.

4. Players who have holed out should not try their puts over again when other players are following them.

5. Players looking for a lost ball should allow other matches coming up to pass them; they should signal to the players following them to pass, and having given such signal, they should not continue their play until these players have passed and are out of reach.

6. Turf cut or displaced by a player should at once be replaced and pressed down with the foot.

7. A player should carefully fill up all holes made by himself in a bunker.

8. Players should see that their caddies do not injure the holes by standing close to them when the ground is soft.

9. A player who has incurred a penalty stroke should intimate the fact to his opponent as soon as possible.

HANGED HIMSELF FROM A RAFTER IN ATTIC.

Elizabeth, June 17.—Suspended by the neck with a clothesline from a rafter in the attic at his residence, 359 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabethport, the dead body of James Walsh was discovered by his wife and brother shortly after midnight Wednesday night. They notified Policeman McCracken, who summoned a physician, but life was extinct.

The suicide was thirty-nine years old and a resident of Elizabethport many years. No cause is assigned for his act except despondency. His relatives had noticed he was acting strangely of late, but had no idea he contemplated taking his life. County Physician Westcott was notified and directed the body to be removed to J. A. Meahin's morgue, pending investigation.

CHILDREN ANXIOUS TO ACT AS INDIANS

Sidewalk traffic was practically suspended for about thirty minutes in front of Columbus Hall, on West Front street yesterday afternoon by several hundred children gathered there in response to an advertisement appearing in the Plainfield papers calling for youngsters to participate in the Watchung carnival to be held at Grant avenue beginning next Monday and continuing all week.

One hundred children were called for and several times that number responded. When Max Rosen, the advance agent, appeared, he found the streets as well as every step from the lower hall to the top floor so jammed with this young humanity that it was with difficulty that he reached the commodious hall, the children fighting their way to follow. It was explained to them that they would become little Indians for one week, appear upon the same stage with real Indians, wear Indian costumes and in every way become part and parcel of the great Indian celebration. The children promised to act like little women and men and set a good example for their elders by their general conduct and deportment. Judged by the many queries they thoroughly understood and appreciated the responsibilities placed upon them. All are required to produce a letter written by a parent or guardian granting consent to his or her participation. This feature of the Indian carnival is an assured success.

MATTHEWS AND SCHAUB DEFEATED NASH-CAMPBELL

Matthews and Schaub defeated Nash and Campbell in a two-man match at the local alleys last night. Matthews had high score with 248.

The two teams will hook up in another series tomorrow night. The scores:

Nash	128	148	171	178
Campbell	169	179	202	188
	297	327	373	366
Schaub	294	156	150	217
Matthews	183	147	203	169
	387	303	353	336
Campbell	175	201	178	195
	364	365	368	345
Schaub	160	205	191	180

BASEBALL.

The Dunellen F. C. will play the crack baseball team of the C. R. R. of N. J. on the Madison avenue grounds, Dunelen, Saturday. Pender who held Somerville scoreless for 12 innings and whose pitching defeated the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. will be in the box for the Centrals. Manager Adams, of the Dunellens, said, "while we defeated the Centrals handily the first part of the season, it will be no walk-over for Dunellen Saturday with Pender in the box. If we win at all, it will be by the smallest of margins. I look for the best game of the season Saturday."

The South Plainfield Baseball Club will play the Gesang and Turn Verein Club at South Plainfield on Sunday. The battery for the home team will be Franklin and Mullin and Luthman and Hanson will be in the points for the Plainfield team. South Plainfield has July 4 open and would like to hear from the West End A. C. Address P. A. McDonough, South Plainfield.

Railroad Man Near Death.

Elizabeth, June 17.—Suffering from ruptured blood vessels in his legs, James W. Sutherland, of 1088 Magnolia avenue, here, was taken to the Elizabeth General Hospital yesterday, where he lies in a critical condition. He is forty-four years old and an employe of the Jersey Central. His aged mother died here five months ago, and his only brother died in Newark a month ago. He is a son of the late John Sutherland, who for many years was chief timekeeper at the Singer Sewing Machine Works, Elizabethport.

—Now is the time for canning strawberries and Neuman Bros. is the place to get choice fruit. They will have 1,000 quarts of fine Jersey berries on sale tomorrow morning.

HERE AND THERE.

Senator Kean is keeping quiet in the campaign for the succession to his office, says the Newark Sunday Call in its "Men and Affairs" comment, but no one doubts that he will have a big support when the election comes in the Legislature of 1911. He has thousands of supporters throughout the State, and they command votes, as well as personal influence. Whatever Jerseymen may feel, Senator Kean would be greatly missed in Washington. He has been secretary of the Republican caucus, and chairman of the Committee on Contingent Expenses of the Senate. Both these places command great influence, for his advice is sought on all committee appointments, he has knowledge of the rules of precedence and he has control of the expenditures of the Senate. Every Senator has occasion to consult him at times, and often it is upon personal matters which count for more than political issues. The Senator, too, will help many of the orators to prepare their arguments, and assist them while delivering their speeches, although he himself seldom talks. He is also the safest man in the chair, when the Vice-President or his alternate is absent. As a social light in Washington, he also shines. This is matter of very large importance in a city where half the business of the Nation is settled over coffee and cigars. Senator Kean is unmarried, but his mother and sisters have long had one of the most dignified of Washington residences, and their dinners and receptions have been long noted as among the most elegant and distinguished in Washington social life. It was once said of Senator Kean that he was the only man in social leadership who did not have to employ a "social secretary."

FORMER MAYOR'S DIVORCE SUIT AIRED IN COURT.

New Brunswick, June 17.—Stafford L. Rappleyea, former Mayor of Milltown, and his pretty wife, who was formerly Miss Ada Armstrong, daughter of Robert Armstrong, of South River, testified before Vice-Chancellor Walker, of Trenton, here Wednesday in Mr. Rappleyea's suit for divorce on the grounds of desertion.

Mr. Rappleyea claims that his wife left him in October, 1905, after she had returned from a sanatorium, where she had been a patient for several months following the birth of her child. He claimed that he had made many overtures, but that she had refused to return unless he would leave his home, build her a $7,000 home and let her handle all of his money.

Mrs. Rappleyea declared that her husband had been unkind to her after her return from the sanatorium, that his mother, who owned the house in which she lived, had ordered out, that she heard reports about her husband, that she had not refused to live wit him, had a kind heart for him yet and would be willing to live with him if he would provide a home.

Many witnesses were called on both sides, some of whom testified that Rappleyea had told them that he had intended getting a divorce. That was while his wife was in the sanatorium. The taking of testimony was concluded Wednesday and the vice-chancellor will hear arguments at Trenton on June 28.

RHUBARB FOR WINTER USE.

Those who have surplus rhubarb ought to put it up in some form for winter use. To make it into jam wash some of the young stalks and cut up without peeling. To each pound allow three-fourths of a pound of sugar. Bring slowly to a boil. The heating brings out the juice so that no water need be used. Boil and stir constantly three-quarters of an hour. Put in tumblers or jars and when cold cover with melted paraffin. To make jelly use the old, tough stalks late in the season. Cut up, without peeling, together with three sour apples. Cook together in very little water until tender. When cold strain, bring to the boiling point, then add an equal amount of sugar and boil briskly until it jellies. Pour into glasses and when cold cover with paraffin.

Strawberry Saracin.

Butter some slices of thin toast generously and line with it the bottom and sides of a china dish which can be set in the oven. The pieces of toast, made of stale bread and cut quite thin, should be well dried in toasting; they should be trimmed to fit into the dish neatly. Fill the remaining space with stemmed strawberries, packed closely. Sift plenty of sugar over and among the berries and set in a moderate oven for one-half hour, or until the fruit has melted a good deal and settled. It will be found that they melt away so much that the dish must not only be packed but heaped, or it will not look well when done. Serve very cold with thick cream. This is delicious.

The Limit of Conceit.

"Is he conceited?"

"Conceited? I should say he is. He even imagines that he cut some figure at his own wedding."—Detroit Free Press.

GLIDDEN TOURISTS OFF ON FIRST LAP

Cincinnati, O., June 17.—Contestants in the 1910 national reliability tour of the American Automobile Association for the Glidden and Chicago trophies, got away from Cincinnati Wednesday on the first leg of the 2,500-mile journey through Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois.

The schedule to be followed on the long trip will be substantially as follows, although conditions of road and weather may necessitate changes:

June 16—Louisville to Nashville.
June 17—Nashville to Sheffield.
June 18—Sheffield to Memphis.
June 19—Sunday in Memphis.
June 20—Memphis to Little Rock.
June 21—Little Rock to Texarkana.
June 22—Texarkana to Dallas.
June 23—Dallas to Lawton.
June 24—Lawton to Oklahoma City.
June 25—Oklahoma to Wichita.
June 26—Sunday in Wichita.
June 27—Wichita to Kansas City.
June 28—Kansas City to Omaha.
June 29—Omaha to Des Moines.
June 30—Des Moines to Davenport.
July 1—Davenport to Chicago.

There are to be two trophy awards this year—the Glidden trophy and the Chicago trophy. Only stock cars previously registered as to all of their mechanical details with the contest board were allowed to compete for either trophy. All the cars competing for the Glidden trophy are stock touring cars, while runabouts and miniature tonneaus will compete for the trophy offered by the Chicago Motor Club. In both classes the winners will be those cars finishing teh tour with the least number of penalty points. Penalizations will be imposed in accordance with a fixed penalty schedule, which is incorporated in the 1910 contest board rules. Under this schedule cars are penalized from 1 to 500 points according to the seriousness of the mechanical troubles developed.

HOLY NAME SOCIETIES TO SUPPRESS PROFANITY.

A campaign to suppress blasphemy was inaugurated Sunday at a meeting of the United Holy Name Socities at Elizabeth when placards containing the following were distributed among the members to be placed in the shops and factories:

"Ten to One!—Balance these reasons. Every respectable man should swear just as often and as hard as he can.

1—"Because it is such an elegant way of expressing one's thoughts.

2—"Because it is such a conclusive proof of good taste and breeding.

3—"Because it is such a sure way of making one's self agreeable to his friends.

4—"Because it is a positive evidence of acquaintance with good literature.

5—"Because it furnishes such a good example for training boys.

8—"Because it is such a good way of increasing one's self respect.

9—"Because it is such a help to manhood and virtue in many ways.

10—"Because it is such an infallible way of improving one's chances in the hereafter. But, on the other hand, it is written:

"'Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain.'"

The placards are being distributed throughout this section of the State by the Diocesan Federation of Holy Name Societies and it is expected that some good results will be obtained. It was said by one of the members at the meeting yesterday that the placard was the thing that would bring men to the realization of the fact that there was nothing to be gained by cursing.

MISS TRENCHARD A BRIDE.

Westfield, June 17.—Miss Nadine Evelyn Trenchard, daughter of Mrs. William H. Trenchard, of Broad street, became the bride of Frederick H. Gray, of Cranford, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

The weding took place at the home of the bride's mother and was attended by relatives and friends from Orange, Newark, New York, Somerville, Milburn, Cranford and Westfield. The nuptials were performed by the Rev. Dr. W. I. Stearns, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Maude Treat, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor and William N. Gray, Jr., a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Ida E. Smith, of New York. The bride wore a handsome gown of white crepe de chene over white silk and carried a bouquet of bride roses. Her only ornament was a sunburst of diamonds and pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. After the wedding a reception was held. The young couple left at a late hour for Niagara Falls, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will reside in Cranford.

Preliminary Negotiations

Bobby pushed open the dentist's door and entered the waiting room.

"It's me," he said as the dentist came out of the office. "I came to ask you to look at a tooth."

"I have some free time this morning," said the dentist. "A patient has just telephoned that he cannot come."

"Guess he got cold feet," said Bobby. "I came awful near not coming, but it's raining and there's no skating. I wish it wouldn't rain Saturdays."

"It is hard luck," agreed the dentist. "Have you had toothache?"

"Oh, a little," acknowledged Bobby. "But it doesn't hurt hardly any now. I thought you'd be too busy this morning to do anything and I'd just ask you to look at the tooth."

"Fortunately, I've nothing to do," said the dentist. "If you wish, I'll look at it now."

"I don't know," Bobby said, hesitatingly. "I'm not sure I feel like having anything done. I've been feeling bad for an awful long time."

"I'm sorry to hear that," said the dentist, sympathetically. "Sometimes a bad tooth makes a person feel sick all over, until it's attended to."

"It isn't that," said Bobby, hastily. "It's just that I've felt tired. It hasn't anything to do with teeth."

"It won't hurt to look at your tooth," suggested the dentist. "Climb up in the chair and let's see."

"Why do they make these chairs so awful bumpy?" Bobby asked. "It would be great if a feller could go to sleep while his teeth were being filled. I know a feller—his name's Billy—and he had a tooth pulled with gas. He says it's great. Only thing was he said he wished he could stay awake and see it pulled. He made me promise to let him go with me first time I ever have a tooth pulled. He wants to see it. I bet he thinks I'll holler."

"No, you wouldn't, of course. Now, just open your mouth a little wider."

"I wasn't ready yet. I was just getting ready. Now, here goes."

"You surely need that tooth filled," said the dentist. "I'm sorry you don't feel equal to it to-day, because I'd like to do it now before it aches more."

"Yes, I'm sorry, too," said Bobby. "I don't often feel bad, but when I do I certainly feel awful bad. It takes me all of a sudden. What do you keep in that funny-shaped box?"

"Some things for false teeth," the dentist said, quickly. "You'd be surprised to see how many people have them. A little hole comes that they think doesn't matter, and all of a sudden the tooth's gone. False teeth are very expensive."

"Wouldn't a feller look funny with elephant's tusks?" Bobby exclaimed, changing the subject abruptly. "I seen—saw a woman once who had teeth like a squirrel's. Honest, her teeth were awful funny. Mamie Kelly wrote a composition on squirrels and it was so good they sent it to the exhibition somewhere. Do you know Mamie Kelly?"

"No, I haven't that pleasure."

"She said she'd never been to a dentist, but I thought maybe that was a whopper," Bobby sighed disappointedly. "Well, when she does come I'll tell her to come to you."

"Thank you."

"That's all right. I'll be glad to help you along. I think everybody ought to help everybody else. I send a lot of candy customers to the school store. They give lots of candy beans for a cent there."

"Those same candy customers get to be customers of mine after a while," laughed the dentist. "If it weren't for candy I might have to go out of business."

"Honest?"

"Sure as shooting. That's where this hole of yours comes from, probably."

"Oh, I guess not," declared Bobby. "I wear holes in everything anyhow. My stockings are the limit and I've got a hole in my shoe this minute that you could put your finger in. We're going downtown this afternoon to get me some new shoes, so I guess I'd better go home and rest."

"I'll give you a card to a man downtown, so you can have that baby tooth of yours pulled," said the dentist, calmly. "It's getting very loose and is making trouble."

"Has that tooth got to be pulled?" asked Bobby, aghast. "The one with the hole in it?"

"That one will come next," replied the dentist. "This baby tooth, of course, would come out if you wiggled it yourself from time to time. That is, if you felt able to do it. This other is different, though if you stop eating candy and sugar you may not have to have it pulled for some time."

Bobby regarded the false teeth box for some seconds.

"Well," he said, explosively at last, "I suppose I'd better let you fill that tooth now."

How Col. Bill Called for the Nays.

When Blaine was running for president, Col. Bill Hackney was one of his most ardent champions. During the national convention in Chicago the Kansas delegation held a caucus to decide on which candidate it should support. Hackney was a member of the delegation, and presided over it. A motion was made for a rising vote for those in favor of the motion. After all voting in the affirmative had been counted he made this call for the negative: "Now all the d——d scoundrels stand up!"—Kansas City Journal.

Degenerated Through Time.

Though "Snooks" as a name is hardly beautiful, its origin is respectable enough. Kindly people picked up a little foundling boy at Sevenoaks and started him in life after baptizing him "William Sevenoaks." He became lord mayor of London in the reign of Henry V., was knighted and died in 1432. He left benefactions to his native place that were doubtless misused, as was his name, which degenerated to Snooks.

Breeding Skunks in Maine.

Breeding skunks is rather a new industry in this state, but, nevertheless, it is a paying one with George Crooker of North Bath, and he has a colony of 20 polecats. The fur is used largely in the manufacture of coats and fur pieces, and Mr. Crooker is busy catching the animals for his yard. He has fenced in a 50-foot ledge with a high wire, and the little animals seem perfectly content with their new home.—Kennebec Journal.

Russia's "Mutton King."

There is only one man in the world who owns 35,000 sheep-dogs, and he is a Russian. Some people call him the "Russian mutton king." He is the largest owner of sheep anywhere. They whiten the Siberian plans for hundreds of square miles, and the whole of the flocks which he owns total up to 1,750,000 sheep. Gustav Jovanovitch is his name.

True Courage.

The bravery founded on hope of recompense, fear of punishment, experience of success, on rage, or on ignorance of danger, is but common bravery, and does not deserve the name. True bravery proposes a just end; measures the dangers, and meets the result with calmness and unyielding decision.

Good Reason.

"I suppose you all drank a toast to your host?" "No, we cut that out." "Why, I am sure it was on the program, the last toast." "That was the trouble. It was the last toast, and so we cut it out." "But why?" "Well, you see, it was to have been drunk standing."—Houston Post.

Extract a Cork.

Take a piece of string that will stand some strain, fold it to form a loop, insert it into the bottle, shake the cork into the loop and pull. Out pops the cork! Should the bottle contain anything, empty it, remove the cork and refill.

Sense of Honor.

The sense of honor is of so fine and delicate a nature that it is only to be met with in minds which are naturally noble, or in such as have been cultivated by great examples or a refined education.—Addison.

It Is Good to Know

That if you make a deep impression around the root of a rubber plant and pour in an ounce (two tablespoonfuls) of castor oil once a month you will be surprised at the vigorous growth of the plant.

Chinaman's Dire Oath.

At a recent inquest a Chinaman took the oath by blowing out the flame of a candle and saying he believed that if he lied his soul would be similarly extinguished.

A Modern Woman.

A Massachusetts woman can talk 54 languages. And it was a Puritan poet who decided that one tongue was enough for a woman.—Cleveland Leader.

A Missouri Purist.

An Atchison woman says she heard a Missouri school-teacher say to a pupil: "Don't say 'tain't.' There ain't no such word."—Kansas City Star.

Poverty's Handicap.

Measurements made in London schools prove that the children of the well-to-do are better grown for their age than the children of the poor.

Fatal Lack of Sense.

Few greater misfortunes could befall a man than to be dead to the beauty of his surroundings.—Thomas Davidson.

Indebted to the Ocean.

In proportion to its population, more people earn their living by seafaring in Norway than in any other country. Britain comes next.

High Speed Telegraphy.

In a recent test of a new German high speed telegraph apparatus 2,800 distinctly recorded words were transmitted 430 miles in five minutes.

Knowing Girls.

Some fellows think they know almost as much about girls as the inventor of ice cream soda did.—New York Times.

But Why Sleep?

He's a mean man who will snore in church and keep others awake.—Exchange.

Brainy.

Some fellows act as though they were afraid to sneeze for fear of blowing their brains out.

Bees Must Be Busy.

She spread out her two hands top and bottom of the map. "All, all, ought to be yours—from the Isthmus to the ice, for the sake of the people of the world. The people—but in time they will have their own!"

We listened to her silently, crediting her enthusiasm to her sex, her race; but what she said has remained in one mind at least from that day to this. Well might part of her speech remain in the minds to-day of people and rulers alike. Are we worth the price paid for the country we gained? And when we shall be worth that price, what numerals shall mark our territorial lines?

"May I carry this document to Mr. Pakenham?" asked John Calhoun, at last, touching the paper on the table.

"Please, no. Do not. Only be sure that this proposition of compromise will meet with his acceptance."

"I do not quite understand why you do not go to Mr. Buchanan, our secretary of state."

"Because I pay my debts," she said simply. "I told you that Mr. Trist and I were comrades. I conceived it might be some credit for him in his work to have been the means of doing this much."

"He shall have that credit, madam, be sure of that," said John Calhoun. He held out to her his long, thin, bloodless hand.

"Madam," he said, "I have been mistaken in many things. My life will be written down as failure. I have been misjudged. But at least it shall not be said of me that I failed to reverence a woman such as you. All that I thought of you, that first night I met you, was more than true. And did I not tell you you would one day, one way, find your reward?"

He did not know what he said; but I knew, and I spoke with him in the silence of my own heart, knowing that his speech would be the same were his knowledge even with mine.

"To-morrow," went on Calhoun, "to-morrow evening there is to be what we call a ball of our diplomacy at the White House. Our administration, knowing that war is soon to be announced in the country, seeks to make a little festival here at the capital. We whistle to keep up our courage. We listen to music to make us forget our consciences. To-morrow night we dance. All Washington will be there. Baroness von Ritz, a card will come to you."

She swept him a curtsey, and gave him a smile.

"Now, as for me," he continued, "I am an old man, and long ago danced my last dance in public. To-morrow night all of us will be at the White House—Mr. Trist will be there, and Dr. Ward, and a certain lady, a Miss Elisabeth Churchill, madam, whom I shall be glad to have you meet. You must not fail us, dear lady, because I am going to ask of you one favor."

He bowed with a courtesy which might have come from generations of an old aristocracy. "If you please, madam, I ask you to honor me with your hand for my first dance in years—my last dance in all my life."

Impulsively she held out both her hands, bowing her head as she did so to hide her face. Two old gray men, one younger man, took her hands and kissed them.

Now our flag floats on the Columbia and on the Rio Grande. I am older now, but when I think of that scene, I wish that flag might float yet freer; and though the price were war itself, that it might float over a cleaner and a nobler people, over cleaner and nobler rulers, more sensible of the splendor of that heritage of principle which should be ours.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The Palo Alto Ball.

A beautiful woman pleases the eye, a good woman pleases the heart; one is a jewel, the other a treasure.—Napoleon I.

On the evening of that following day in May, the sun hung red and round over a distant unknown land along the Rio Grande. In that country, no iron trails as yet had come. The magic of the wire, so recently applied to the service of man, was as yet there unknown. Word traveled slowly by horses and mules and carts. There came small news from that far-off country, half tropic, covered with palms and crooked dwarfed growth of mesquite and chaparral. The long-horned cattle lived in these dense thickets, the spotted jaguar, the wolf, the ocelot, the javelina, many smaller creatures not known in our northern lands. In the loam along the stream the deer left their tracks, mingled with those of the wild turkeys and of countless water fowl. It was a far-off, unknown, unvalued land. Our flag, long past the Sabine, had halted at the Nueces. Now it was to advance across this wild region to the Rio Grande. Thus did smug James Polk keep his promises!

Among these tangled mesquite thickets ran sometimes long bayous, made from the overflow of the greater rivers—resacas, as the natives call them. Tall palms sometimes grow along the bayous, for the country is half tropic. Again, on the dryer ridges, there might be taller detached trees, heavier forests—palo alto, the natives call them. In some such place as this, where the trees were tall, there was fired the first gun of our war in the southwest. There were strange noises heard here in the wilderness, followed by lesser noises, and by human groans. Some faces that night were upturned to the moon—the same moon which swam so gloriously over Washington. Taylor camped closer to the Rio Grande. The fight was next to begin by the lagoon called the Resaca de la Palma. But that night at the capital that same moon told us nothing of all this. We did not hear the guns. It was far from Palo Alto to our ports of Galveston or New Orleans. Our cockaded army made its own history in its own unreported way.

We at the White House ball that night also made history in our own unrecorded way. As our army was adding to our confines on the southwest, so there were other, though secret, forces which added to our territory in the far northwest. As to this and as to the means by which it came about, I have already been somewhat plain.

It was a goodly company that assembled for the grand ball, the first one in the second season of Mr. Polk's somewhat confused and discordant administration. Social matters had started off dour enough. Mrs. Polk was herself of strict religious practice, and I imagine it had taken somewhat of finesse to get her consent to these festivities. It was called sometimes the diplomat's ball. At least there was diplomacy back of it. It was mere accident which set this celebration upon the very evening of the battle of Palo Alto, May 8, 1846.

By ten o'clock there were many in the great room which had been made ready for the dancing, and rather a brave company it might have been called. We had at least the splendor of the foreign diplomats' uniforms for our background, and to this we added the bravest of our attire, each one in his own individual fashion, I fear. Thus my friend Jack Dandridge was wholly resplendent in a new waistcoat of his own devising, and an evening coat which almost swept the floor as he executed the evolutions of his western style of dancing. Other gentlemen were, perhaps, more grave and staid. We had with us at least one man, old in government service, who dared the silk stockings and knee breeches of an earlier generation. Yet another wore the white powdered queue, which might have been more suited for his grandfather. The younger men of the day wore their hair long, in fashion quite different, yet this did not detract from the distinction of some of the faces which one might have seen among them—some of them to sleep all too soon upturned to the moon in another and yet more bitter war, aftermath of this with Mexico. The tall stock was still in evidence at that time, and the ruffled shirts gave something of a formal and old-fashioned touch to the assembly. Such as they were, in their somewhat varied but not uninteresting attire, the best of Washington were present. Invitation was wholly by card. Some said that Mrs. Polk wrote these invitations in her own hand, though this we may be permitted to doubt.

Corporation Notice.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council, of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, the sixth day of June, 1910, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, to wit:

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide for the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield.

Whereas, There has been constructed in said city a system of sewarege, and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as is set forth in the several ordinances of said city relating thereto, and particularly the ordinances respectively entitled, "An Ordinance to Provide for the Construction of an Addition to the System of Sewerage already constructed in the City of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1897, and "An Ordinance to provide for the Improvement of Sewage Disposal Works, Beds and Appurtenances, of the City of Plainfield," approved April 4, 1901, to which several ordinances reference is hereby made for greater certainty; and,

Whereas, In the opinion of the Common Council the public good requires that a further addition, as herein described, to the system of sewerage already constructed, should be now constructed in and for said city under the provisions of the acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided, and the Common Council has so determined and does hereby so determine; therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that a further addition to the system of sewerage already constructed as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said city, under the provisions of the acts of the Legislature above referred to, including the necessary force mains, air mains, operating vaults, buildings, wells, motors, compressors, receivers and pumps, lifts or ejectors, with all the appurtenances required to complete the same, of the character, description, dimensions and material shown on plans adopted by the Common Council and filed in the office of the City Clerk May 2, 1910, which said plans are entitled "Sewerage System, City of Plainfield, N. J., Extensions and Pumping Stations, 1910." Sheets 1 and 2, and according to such further plans as the said Common Council may hereafter direct, in and through the following described streets, avenues, property, lands and rights-of-way described, mentioned and referred to in this ordinance, to wit:

Hobert Avenue, from West Seventh Street to West Eighth Street;

West Fourth and West Fifth Streets, from Prescott Place to Monroe Avenue;

West Seventh Street, from a point 575 feet east of Monroe Avenue to a point 1,100 feet west thereof;

Sherman Avenue, from Plainfield Avenue to Monroe Avenue;

Randolph Road, from Plainfield Avenue to a point 280 feet west of Central Avenue;

Rose Street;

Radcliff Place.

Sec. 2. That house connections shall be constructed from the above named sewers to the curb lines as shown on the above-mentioned plans, also on East Front Street from Berckman Street to Leland Avenue and on Central Street, as shown on plan now on file in the City Clerk's office, entitled "Sewerage System, City of Plainfield, N. J., Extensions, 1910," dated April 15, 1910, was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by said Common Council at a regular meeting thereof to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in said City of Plainfield, on Tuesday, the fifth day of July, 1910, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening of that day, and at such meeting ample opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of or opposed to the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with reference to the same in writing, or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to cause said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made, and such persons or corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice, or to the Common Council at its first meeting held after the expiration of the said ten days, and said Common Council at such meeting, to be held on the fifth day of July, 1910, as above stated, or afterward, may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance, notwithstanding any objection.

By order of the Common Council.
J. T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.
Dated Plainfield, N. J., June 6, 1910.

City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., June 6, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

A General Ordinance to provide for the payment of pensions to qualified retired members of the police force of the City of Plainfield.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Whenever the Common Council shall ascertain and determine, and by resolution adjudge and declare, that any member of the police force of said city who at the time of the adoption of such resolution shall have honorably served upon the police force of said city for twenty years continuously and reached the age of not less than sixty years is, in the judgment of the Common Council, entitled to be retired upon a pension, said Cimmon Council may thereupon, upon the written request of said member of the police force of said city, and upon receiving and accepting his resignation, adopt a further resolution that such member thereupon be forthwith constituted a retired member of said police force.

Sec. 2. That forthwith after receiving and accepting such resignation and after the adoption of both of said resolutions provided for in Section 1 of this ordinance, and not otherwise, such retired member of the police force of said city, constituted as such and designated as such in said resolution, shall be entitled to receive and shall be paid a yearly pension of five hundred dollars, payable in monthly installments, during the term of his natural life.

Sec. 3. This ordinance shall take effect ten days after the date of one publication thereof in each of the official newspapers printed in said city.

Rhubarb Shortcake.

A pieplant shortcake is an inexpensive, palatable dessert at this time of the year. Make a nice biscuit crust. Roll in two thin cakes, butter one and lay the other upon it, bake until done; separate and fill with two cups of stewed and well sweetened pieplant and one cup of raisins chopped and stewed. Whipped and sweetened cream spread on top is an improvement.

As a rule, the knife should be held firmly, but applied lightly, so that too much juice will not be squeezed out of the meat. By using the point of the knife lightly as a wedge and the fork as a lever, even a big fowl may be easily jointed, providing the carver is aware of how the joint is exactly situated and held together.

OWNING A MOTOR BOAT.

The owning of a little motor boat is a simple matter if the enthusiast knows exactly what kind he wants, for a craft capable of carrying three or four persons at the rate of seven or eight miles an hour can be obtained for from $100 up, according to Outing. The very variety of styles, sizes and prices, however, from which he may select may furnish the prospective buyer with a greater problem than would at first appear, for only he who has had the experience will realize to what an extent the manufacture of hulls, engines and completed motor boats has grown during the past five years.

Let the embryo yachtsman visit a popular sumer resort located on a large body of wate rnear his home city. On a pleasant day the surface of the water will seem fairly alive with large and small motor-propelled craft of all types—possibly no two alike. He may see two wings of white far up the stream, and before many minutes he will discern the graceful lines of a rapidly moving boat approaching him, its sharp bow cleaving the water and throwing it out in clouds of spray and foam on either side.

He recognizes at the wheel of the racer Smith, a man having an office near his, whose income he knows is, to say the least, modest.

He begins to wonder—how is it that Smith and others can all own boats which seem so far beyond their incomes? Wonder is followed by inquiry, and he discovers that a motor boat is not necessarily the expensive affair that he had been led to believe it was, and he eralizes that half a dozen substantial self-propelled boats can be bought for the price of one automobile.

The cheapest and simplest form of motor boat is the converted skiff. A substantial rowboat of the St. Lawrence model may be bought for from 2$0 to $40, and for the expenditure of another $40 or 5$0 a one or two horsepower motor may be obtained and installed—thus making a craft which should be able to carry three or four persons at a pace much faster than that of rowing and with much less exertion—unless the motor should prove to be balky.

Akin to the motor skiff, and yet of lighter weight and consequently of greater speed for the same power, is the ordinary canoe, strengthened and braced for the installation of the engine. Motor canoes are made by some mannufacturers with the engine already installed; these are found exceedingly useful in sections where portaging may be necessary, for the entire outfit will weigh less than 150 pounds.

A "ready-made" motor boat with the engine installed and ready to run can be bought for less than $100. While it is subject to the troubles to which the average motor craft is heir, the entire outfit is remarkably simple little affair, and when owned and operated by a man who exercises common sense it should furnish little cause for annoyance.

FOR THE CONVALESCENT.

Perhaps what convalescence demands—and is most frequently grudged—is leisure. Severe sickness leaves languor and weariness behind, and satisfactory mending does not sensibly diminish either the acuteness or duration of these sensations. Therefore, because there is much time to dispose of, a good nurse will be wise to protract all that is pleasant. She need not be hurried, as if wanted elsewhere. The patient likes her thoroughly at command, brisk to do bidding, but in harmony with the kind of lazy well-being which it is the perfection of convalescent nursing to insure.

From the earliest days of getting well the morning toilet provides excellent opportunity for happy dawdling. Everybody who has gone through an elementary nursing course has learned the principle of washing by degrees, so that no part runs risk of chill. But while adhering to sound instruction in the main, now, if ever, is the justification for all little toilet luxuries, vanities and extravagances. The drops of aromatic essence for final sponging, sweet-scented soaps and powders, dainty dentifrice—the appreciation for all of which, please note, depends not in the least upon age or sex. The patient who does not care a pin how he or she looks is often on the brink of one of those fits of depression common to convalescence which occasionally end in tragedy. An interest in becoming dressing gowns, ribbons, hairdressing or shaving is the best signs, and the nurse should be a judicious flatterer while wary that the right light falls on the patient's mirror.

Homemade Raisin Bread.

One pint of water, one pint sweet milk, two ounces of sugar, one ounce salt, two ounces of lard, two and a half ounces compressed yeast, two pounds seeded raisins, four pounds flour. Have the milk and water warm. Dissolve yeast in water. Mix dough thoroughly. Let dough raise well, then punch down and let raise again. Mold into round loaves, and when raised bake in hot oven of about 450 degrees. When potato yeast is used, use one pint of yeast and one pint of milk and water.

A Puzzle.

A noted clergyman was in his study writing when his 5-year-old daughter walked in and asked:

"What are you writing, papa?"

I am writing a sermon, daughtre."

"How do you know what to write, papa?"

"God tells me what to write, daughter."

After watching her father a few minutes the little girl said:

"Papa, if God tells you what to write why do you scratch some of it out?"—Exchange.

SELF-CENTERED WOMEN.

The reason that the American woman unflaggingly keeps up her amusements independent of man lies in her energy and her restlessness, asserts Mrs. Wilson Woodrow in The Delineator. In the first place, she realizes quite clearly that her husband will not participate in the various pursuits which take up her daytime hours.

What is she to do? She is extremely systematic and executive; her household affairs are quickly administered. How, then, is she to occupy her time? She cannot possibly spend a morning in the flower garden snipping dead blossoms from their stems and finding excitement in turning innumerable leaves in the quest for a possible clug, after the manner of her English sisters.

Neither can she put in her time manufacturing wonderful blouses and dainty neckwear and lingerie from carefully preserved and exquisitely mended bits of lace as does the French woman. Nor can she occupy herself brewing, baking, knitting and darning in imitation of the German hausfrau.

The climate, or perhaps her own temperament, drives her to a display of ceaseless activity; and, as she is intensely practical, she wishes to see some tangible and definite result. She is enormously occupied with the machinery of life, and she wants the wheels to whiz as fast as possible. I have seen a woman having her hair waved and her hands manicured at the same time, while her secretary read aloud the cream of various literary journals for her employer's edification.

In consequence, she lacks greatly, in a certain wistful charm of hesitation, a delicate and courteous deference. She is too assured. She stands out with no softening and mysterious shadows. Just as she will wear her clothes better when she forgets that she wears them better than any woman in the world, so she will be infinitely more delightful when her beloved "culture" becomes some integral part of her soul and not a banner to flaunt on her outer walls.

She is, this American woman, the most self-centered creature on the face of the earth and she would not know how not to be assertive. It is a matter of religion with her never to get off the pedestal, and the well trained American man dutifully hangs thereon the votive wreath and burns incense before her. She never doubts that her proper place is the pedestal and she takes it for granted that you are interested solely in herself.

FANCIES IN HATS.

Hats big of brim and hats small of brim, hats tall of crown and others with very little crown—these are the extremes of millinery this season. It is difficult to say which shape is definitely the stylish one; indeed, it is a time when personal tastes can be given free play. Certainly the woman with an unbecoming hat cannot blame the styles, for it is apparent that she has erred in the matter of selection.

Of the many spring shapes none is in more marked favor than the toque. Toques are seen in wide variety. While the toques are more or less similar in general lines, the angle and height of the upturned brim makes a vast difference in the effect of the whole. The method of trimming these smart hats varies greatly. The maline or net crown is almost wholly of flowers, roses being a favorite. The huge bow of some filmy material, placed in the back, gives airiness as well as height to these fascinating articles.

While flowers are in demand for summer millinery, this year has seen lace more widely used than in many seasons. The fashion of veiling flowers or feathers with the filmy materials is holding well. Lace is used frequently for covering the entire straw hat, or for facing the under brim.

Leghorns are in excellent taste, whether trimmed with feathers, flowers, filmy fabrics or a combination of them all. It is possible by obtaining the proper tilt or roll to the brim to have a hat becoming to almost any face. Few hats, however, are more difficult to adjust, and the wearer cannot be too particular in this matter.

Flowers of all kinds are used, and the combination of kinds and colors on a single hat is often surprising, reminding one occasionally of an old-fashioned garden. Because such latitude is allowed in this respect, special attention must be paid to the matter of trimming a hat, for a single flower, out of harmony with the others, transforms what might be an artistic creation to something very different. One thing is noticeable in the matter of trimming, and that is the larger the hat the smaller is the flower chosen for a trimming. One sees the tiniest rosebuds bedecking a large leghorn. On the other hand, roses of gigantic size are used on the small turban or toque.

MARSH ON THE BRIBER

Distinguished Barrister's Address at State Bar Association Meeting.

HIS ADVICE IS VERY TIMELY.

Proceedings at Annual Session at Atlantic City of Much Interest to the General Public.

Approving the canons of professional ethics adopted by the American Bar Association for the government and instruction of young lawyers of the country, members of the New Jersey Bar Association, at the first day's session of their annual convention at the Hotel Chelsea, Atlantic City, yesterday, went on record as favoring the use of the bar to prevent political considerations being made the greatest factor in the appointment of judges; of making legal fees in exact proportion to the services rendered and not from the ability of the client to pay; as favoring court supervision of the contingent fees and a score of other professional ethics included in the code prepared by the national body.

Recommendations that those in charge of the legal instruction and examination of the lawyers of New Jersey insist in teaching the proper methods to be used in preparing laws as well as in enforcing the statutes was also made.

Edward Keasby, of Newark, State Senator Osborne, of Essex, and Halsey M. Barrett, of Newark, were the principal men who spoke for the code, the important details of which follow:

A lawyer should not communicate or argue privately with a judge as to the merits of a pending case. If appointed counsel for an indigent prisoner he should not be excused for trivial reasons; if undertaking the defence of a prisoner accused of crime he should not allow his personal opinions as to the guilt of the accused prevent his using every effort to give his best services to the client; the public prosecutor is not to convict, but to see that justice is done; a lawyer should not represent conflicting interests on two sides of a case; in fixing his fees the lawyer should never forget that the profession is a branch of the administration of justice and not a mere money getting trade; he should not allow chance judicial disfavor or public unpopularity to weigh against giving his full devotion to his client; counsel should use his efforts to prevent any impropriety on the part of his client; a lawyer should always treat witnesses, even on the side opposed to him, with fairness and consideration.

In another section the code condemns stirring up litigation by lawyers with the object of obtaining fees, and deplores newspaper discussions by lawyers of cases in which they are interested. The new oath, drastically severe, was adopted.

Chancellor Mahlon Pitney was one of the chief guests and speakers at the annual banquet at the Chelsea Hotel last night, at which were nearly all the Supreme Court judges of the State and the majority of the vice chancellors.

"Legal Ethics via Act of the Legislature" was the toast printed in the menu car responded to by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, of this city. One portion of Mr. Marsh's address, which attracted favorable comment, was as follows:

"But gentlemen, there is a service to the public within the power of our members to render, to which I would like to invite your earnest attention. It is suggested by the approaching struggle for election to high office in the state and nation and recent notorious occurrences in other states.

"The greatest danger that menaces our republican form of government, as I think, is the danger of corruption of the ballot at the polls and in the halls of legislation. It is not a new danger; but it is a growing danger, for men are as covetous as ever, while their power to corrupt has been enormously increased by the concentration of wealth and the consequent opportunities afforded by its use. To paraphrase a famous declaration: In proportion as the structure of government gives force to the voice of the ballot, it is essential that the ballot be pure.

"Judicial purity has long been an accomplished fact both in England and with us; but in both countries, all efforts to stamp out bribery at the polls and in legislative bodies great and small, have signally failed. Men who in private life are of exemplary character, in politics tolerate if they do not defend or champion flagrant violations of the law.

DUNELLEN BASEBALL CLUB.

With almost an unbroken chain of victories, the Dunellen baseball club will oppose the Jersey Central Railroad nine this afternoon at Dunellen. With the exception of a defeat by a Newark team on Decoration Day, the Dunellenites have a clean card; and probably the hardest contest that they have had was with the local Y. M. C. A. team the latter part of May when a 1 to 1 tie resulted in a six inning game which was stopped by rain.

In the picture above may be seen from left to right: A. B. Coriell, assistant manager; Giddes, ss; Clark, rf; Charles Adams, assistant manager; B. Dodwell, c; W. Giles, 2b; R. Bogardus, manager. Second row, sitting, from left to right: Ramsberger, 3b; Nonemacher, lf; Montross, p; R. Garrettson, cf; W. Piddington, 1b.

The faces of Jimmy Montross, who has been in fast company; of "Shake" Clark, the P. H. S. boy, and Ramsberger, who are from Plainfield, give additional interest locally to the Dunellen aggregation. The team is in a flourishing condition, due largely to the able management of Robert Bogardus and has been together several years. As a result it has a large following in Dunellen and New Market and in this city.

PLAYGROUNDS' ADVOCATE

Charles W. McCutchen Gives a Stirring Talk Before Civic Body.

HE PRAISES ADMINISTRATION.

Says That Plainfield Government Is Extravagant—Mayor Smalley Also Makes a Good, Sound Speech.

"North Plainfield is getting more value for the money expended in its administration than the city of Plainfield," said Charles W. McCutchen, of the borough, at the meeting of the North Plainfield Association in the Borough Council rooms last night "Plainfield is extravagant. They have a good city administration, but we are keeping pace with them at much less cost. Hence I want to compliment the Mayor and the officials on the competent management of our borough." Mr. McCutchen sat down amid hearty applause. The Council rooms were crowded with boroughites and in fact Plainfielders who came to hear him speak on playgrounds.

In taking up the subject of playgrounds Mr. McCutchen said in part: "All municipalities are now getting playgrounds—Plainfield should not be behind them. The city and the borough have not availed themselves of the opportunity of getting playgrounds as it should have done. Now the most available places for them have been taken due to several causes; principally that now these places are built up and also to the prohibitive price now put on them.

"In Europe," he said, "it is customary to have them; here we are just beginning to get them. It has been only within the past twenty years that they have been recognized as a necessity, and within the last three years they have come to a point, due to the numerous conferences and congresses. The chief need of playgrounds is, undoubtedly, in large cities. In Chicago, for instance, there are 70,000 people to the square mile. There they have spent ten million dollars for playgrounds and breathing spaces. This has been a good investment from an economic standpoint, for the offenders in juvenile courts have been reduced 25 per cent.

"Roosevelt said: 'A playground should be provided just as much as a school, and it is the place of the government to provide them.' Newton Smalley, we know, will not always be Mayor, but we have reasonable assurance that the position will fall into competent hands after he relinquishes office. Hence we can easily rest assured that work started now will be carried out in the future. Immediate steps should be taken to get playgrounds for North Plainfield. It would raise the quality of citizenship and attract the right kind of citizens to the borough.

Mayor Smalley then rose to speak. "It does the borough officials good to have residents attend their meetings," he said. "It permits of an interchange of ideas. If the Associa-

MISS SAUNDERS SCORES AT THE JAPANESE FETE

One of the most successful and enjoyable social affairs of the year took place at the Y. W. C. A. Thursday evening when the Japanese fete was held. About 200 people were present. The house and the large porch in the rear were attractively decorated with Japanese lanterns and flowers; and fifteen young women, garbed in Japanese kimonos, received and served ice cream.

A part of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra furnished the music. Mrs. L. R. Howard was at the piano, Martin Korff, violinist, and Herbert Smith, 'cellist. Miss Louise Saunders captivated the audience with her original monologues. Twice the room was filled with people anxious to hear her; and on both occasions she was roundly applauded. Miss Louise Andrews gave several vocal selections which were well received.

The committee which arranged the affair was composed of Mrs. E. T. Barrows, chairman; Mrs. Frederick Andrews, and the Misses May Tennant, Florence Prior and Augusta Kreitling. The complete success of the affair was due in a large measure to them. The members of the association took this opportunity to show their friends of the opposite sex the good times that are enjoyed at the Y. W. C. A.

The proceeds of the affair will be put into the Silver Bay fund, and it is hoped that ten girls may be helped to spend ten days at Silver Bay by means of this.

IT WAS DRINK THAT CAUSED FALL FROM GRACE.

With his pockets filled with beer and whisky glasses and as he raised a disturbance in front of Cleveley's restaurant at 11:30 last night David L. Gips, a cutter in a local shirt waist factory, walked into the arms of Chief of Police Kiely, who considerately and in order to save the man from further trouble escorted him to headquarters. Gips told Judge Runyon this morning that he had been to see some friends off to the old country and had imbibed rather freely, something he said he had never been guilty of before in his life.

Incidentally Mr. Gips had a suit of clothes spattered with a plate of beans thrown, he said by Clarence Angleman, whom he accused of being partially responsible for his arrest. It was not Angleman's fault at all according to two disinterested witnesses as Mr. Gips was too far gone in his cups to even realize what was transpiring, at least so he acknowledged this morning. He didn't even remember where he had accumulated the supply of empty beer and whisky glasses.

Judge Runyon imposed a fine of ten dollars which was immediately paid.

He Came, He Saw, He Conquered.

After a fifteen months' triumphal tour of Europe, Theodore Roosevelt arrived in New York this morning. The Government seismographs report no specially notable disturbances.

WALTER L. HETFIELD GETS CLIENTS CLEARED

After a long drawn out series of hearings in which two complaints made by John Waldron against Michael Crowley and Robert Wallace have been heard by City Judge William N. Runyon, the court dismissed both this morning giving it as its opinion that there was no ground for the issuance of the complaints.

Waldron in his complaints against the two men alleged that they broke and entered and threatened to kill him besides assaulting him and blackening his eye. Both men, who were defended by Walter L. Hetfield, were put on the stand this morning and told their version of the scrap. Wallace declared that Waldron was drunk on the night of May 21, when the assault was alleged to have been committed and he was corroborated by Crowley.

A sister of Wallace gave testimony of the occurrence which showed that she was unbiased in the matter and which was favorable to neither one of the combatants.

Judge Runyon's finding was based upon his personal knowledge of acts of the complaint subsequent to the alleged assault and the testimony of the two accussed men. Their stories were straightforward.

CONTRACTED FEVER ON RAILROAD TRAIN

Bertram Leggett, son of Mrs. C. P. Leggett, of Madison avenue, is quarantined at his home on Madison avenue with scarlet fever, having been taken ill with the disease early in the week Miss Margaret Leggett, who is the salutatorian of the '10 Class of the Plainfield High School, together with her aunt, Mrs. Jennie Chickering, are temporarily stopping at the home of H. R. Hubbard on West Ninth street. As Miss Leggett and her brother had not been closely associated recently and particularly during the period he was taken ill, the Board of Health decided to allow her to graduate with her class.

A somewhat similar case is that of Miss Cora Gray, of East Second street, whose sister, Miss Katheryn Gray, is ill with the fever, the difference being that the sisters roomed together. Miss Cora Gray is quarantined wiht her sister and mother and she has been obliged to forego the pleasure of attending the class graduating exercises next Thursday night. Mr. Leggett does not know where he contracted the disease, but it is the belief that it was while cummuting to and from New York. Miss Gray is also said to have contracted the disease while on a train.

HAYMAKERS CONVENTION PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Wetumpka Lodge, No. 229½, Haymakers, met in Eagle Hall last night and concluded arrangements for the convention to be held in this city on August 6. It is expected that more than a thousand delegates from all parts of the State will be present on that occasion and in view of the presence of the gathering preparations have been made to excell anything in the way of entertainment ever before held by the organization in this city.

Last night the members of the order enjoyed a feast of "vension and corn," the latter being the first of the season and besides had the privilege of listening to some charming music. A. W. Musko, "the big Indian," did a few stunts with musical instruments which would have puzzled a vaudeville artist to duplicate. Then Jack Horner, with his trick bicycle riding further mystified the company. But above and beyond all these things Willard, "the hot air artist," put the ball over the four corners of the plate so that none of the haymakers, nor any of their friends who happened along could tell whether it was "spring time or harvest."

Anyhow, when Henry Windham marched up with a bale of straw under his right arm he managed to get through the barn door without even scratching the staple on the outside door. He was admitted without a murmur. F. S. Neal, who presided, took this opportunity to say something about the order and when D. Dorman finished his comic songs there was nothing left to do but laught and be happy. And besides, there was a whole lot of comfort in knowing that afterwards the hot air presaged a comfortable preparation for the inner man.

CLINTON HALL IN HIS BIPLANE.

Undaunted by the mishap which occurred on Wednesday afternoon, Clinton Hall has persevered in his attempt to travel in the air and has begun repairs to his aeroplane and will within a few days attempt to regulate the steering apparatus which apparently prevented his flight on that day.

Since the first attempt when only surface going was attempted. Mr. Hall has devoted his time to repairing the damage done to his flyer. The front wheel which collapsed in a collision with the side of the road is being replaced with a new one and the broken frame supports to the forward planes are being rebuilt.

It is quite likely that another tryout of the machine will be given at the end of next week. It has been asserted by students of the sport who have seen Mr. Hall's biplane that he is working according to the correct principles and undoubtedly has the question of flying solved in so far as it relates to present day accomplishments.

SCOTCH PLAINS PLANS CELEBRATION FOR 4TH

Scotch Plains is going to celebrate the Fourth of July in the old-fashioned way and they want the whole county to know it. At a meeting of the various committes last night the program outlined below was adopted. Naturally, it requires money to do the things the committees have planned and it would be appreciated if those who expect to enjoy the various sports and other parts of the entertainment planned would come over with a contribution of money.

At 7 o'clock in the morning of the Fourth it is planned to raise the flag with appropriate ceremonies at the corner of Park and North avenues. At half-past seven there will be a two-mile run, followed by sprint races for boys; the first 100 yards for boys over 16 years, another for boys under 16 and not above 12, and a race for boys under 12 years old.

At ten minutes after nine the presentation of the flag to the Board of Education by Twilight Council, No. 7, Jr. O. U. A. M., will occur on the school lawn. Following this ceremony trap shooting in which six events are scheduled will be contested. Athletic sports including the running broad jump, running high jump, hop, step and jump, sack race, pole climb and pig race will take place.

The baseball game between the married men and single men will begin at half past one after which the bicycle races will be started. In these events a ten-mile handicap will be a feature, followed by a one-mile open race and a two-mile race open only to boys of Scotch Plains and Fanwood. The prizes will be exhibited in the store of J. E. Clark from the evening of June 27.

Between 8 and 10:30 in the evening there will be a display of fireworks with a band concert, followed by a dance at Excelsior hall.

The entries for the athletic events will be received by Charles Fox and close on June 30. Entries for the trap shooting contest will be received on the grounds on the day of the shoot. Entries for the bicycle races will be received up to the day of the races. Admission will be free to all the events on the program and for that reason liberal contributions are urged by the committee.

Who Will Help a Needy Woman?

The Charity Organization wishes to assist a woman not strong enough to do outside work, but who is trying to support herself and four children by taking boarders. If she could furnish an empty room in her house, either with a double bed or two single ones, the weekly income of the family would be greatly increased. At present there is a weekly deficit of $2. Contributions of bedroom furniture will be called for. Telephone 103.

HIGH SCHOOL PROGRAM

Arrangements for Commencement Exercises are Announced.

TO AWARD THE VARIOUS PRIZES

Dr. Talcott Williams, Editor of the Philadelphia Press, to Deliver the Address to the Graduates.

All arrangements for the City High School commencement exercises, which will be held Thursday night in the Plainfield theatre, have been completed. The graduates will be ranged as usual on the platform in the front with the members of the Board of Education to the left of them. The orchestra will be seated in the front of the church in the gallery, and will play the opening number as the graduates walk in in single file.

The invocation will be offered by Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Herring and it will be followed by the salutatory address by Miss Margaret Leggett. The address of the evening will be given by Talcott Williams, L. H. D., editor of the Philadelphia Press, of Philadelphia. After this William S. Tyler, vice president of the board, will then make the presentation of prizes. These will be: For English composition (G. H. Babcock prize), offered by Mrs. G. H. Babcock; for English composition on current municipal topic, offered by The Daily Press; for English composition offered by the W. C. T. U.; for mathemtics (the late Dr. C. H. Stillman prize), offered by William M. Stillman; for modern language, offered by E. R. Ackerman; for Latin, offered by Alexander Gilbert; for commercial stiudies, offered by E. R. Ackerman; for United States history (the late Dr. J. B. Probasco prize), offered by Mrs. J. B. Probasco.

Miss Meta Pennock will then give the valedictory address while the graduates are standing. The presentation of diplomas by Leander N. Lovell will conclude the program.

After the graduation exercises a reception will be given to the graduating class by the classes of 1908 and 1909. This will be held in the high school auditorium and is now being arranged by a special committee composed of William Lambert, chairman; Miss Eva Kelly, Donald Mortimer, Miss Ethel Skillman, Richard Harrigan and Guion H. Fountain.

The class day exercises will be held Tuesday night in the high school auditorium, and will be unique in original features. All the details for the affair have been completed. The class numbers about fifty.

A YOUNG HIGHWAYMAN

HID THE MONEY IN LOUNGE.

Took a Free Feed From His Victim, and Then Stole the Mute's Money—Hearing Monday Morning.

Believing that he would not be detected in robbing an inoffensive, undersized and physically weak man Joseph Hubbard, a seventeen-year-old boy, selected the dark recesses of the freight house on East Third street last midnight to take a roll of bills amounting to thirty dollars from Walter Lewis, a gardner in the employ of the Central Railroad who had an hour before invited him to enjoy a supper at Van Ness' restaurant on North avenue. The boy was remanded until 9 o'clock Monday morning when he will be given a hearing. Part of the stolen money was recovered.

According to the story told by Lewis, he received his pay yesterday and as usual, while on his way home to Dunellen he stopped off in this city to get something to eat. On North avenue he met Hubbard and another boy named John Konesky. There was still another youth whose name he does not know. Lewis took all three boys to Van Ness' restaurant and treated them to a supper and while paying his bill displayed a roll of bills which evidently excited the cupidity of Hubbard. The latter accompanied Lewis to a lonely spot near the freight house on East Third street, where he succeeded in separating Lewis from his roll and then Hubbard beat it away from that vicinity. The method employed is still rather hazy as it is difficult to make Lewis, who is a mute, explain in detail.

Enough was learned, however, to satisfy the police that highway robbery had been committed when Lewis made his complaint at police headquarters and Roundsman Higgins was put on the case. He soon rounded up Konesky and while the latter proved conclusively that he had nothing to do with the robbery Hubbard finally confessed taking the money and iscolsed its hiding place. Roundsman Higgins and Captain Frederickson wetn to the boy's home and learned that his mother had found the money before their arrival, but unfortunately for Lewis but twenty-three of the thirty dollars were thus recovered. A further search will be made of the permises today.

In his confession to Chief Kiely Hubbard said he had hidden the roll of bills in an old lounge in the parlor of his home and indicated in just which spot the money could be found. Lewis was overjoyed at recovering so much of his money, and has hopes of getting the rest. He is nearly deaf and is practically mute and furthermore is physically unable to make any strong resistance in a scrap.

REV. MR. HERRING'S "PALESTINE" LECTURE.

Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, lectured at Dunellen last night on "Palestine." This was the first of a series of three lectures that he has prepared on the recent trip that he took to the Holy Land. The lectrue was held in the Dunellen Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society, and was fairly well attended.

By the aid of stereopticon views Dr. Herring took his audience from Jaffa to Jerusalem and thence to Bethlehem, illustrating his talk with many personal anecdotes of his trip. The second of the series of lectures will be given in the Dunellen church early in the fall. Among those who attended the lecture was the Rev. Mr. Martine, formerly pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church.

Camp Fire and Spread.

The Men's Bible Class of the First Baptist church will hold its camp fire and spread Thursday afternoon and evening on Johnston's Drive, near Fred Martin's bungalow. The members and guests will meet at 4:30 o'clock and the spread will be at 7 o'clock. Further particulars can be learned about the affair at the session of the class tomorrow morning at 9:30.

—I will be glad to see all my friends at my new garage, No. 320 Park avenue, next week. Kent Bender.

James C. Pope and his nephew have been enjoying a trip to Bermuda.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Freeholder George Reeves fell under the feet of a balky horse at Millville and was severely bruised.

All the girls of the graduating class of the Glassboro High School will teach school in Glassboro County next year.

Cadet Bird S. DuBois is home in Woodbury for the first time since entering the West Point Military Academy in 1908.

While at work along the Central Railroad Thursday, Morris Demmart was struck by a large piece of coal, which inflicted a scalp wound.

Creditors of Albert Steiner, a bankrupt general merchant at Salem, are in receipt of a dividend of twenty per cent. and have assurance of at least thirty per cent. more.

Showing how the farmers in just one section of Salem county are fighting the potato bug, one firm announces that it alone has sold to date more than 30,000 pounds of paris green.

The bridge at Hurfville, recently whitewashed, has been stained a dirt color that won't come off. The coat was laid by the hundred automobiles on the Cape May run last Saturday.

Circulars giving the names of all the signers for tavern license applications in Salem county have been distributed under the direction of Miss Emily Kirby, president of the County W. C. T. U.

A district meeting of the Patriotic Order Sons of America will be held in Salem today, when all the State officers will be present. District President George Kirk will have charge of the exercises.

Maurice Gabriel, the six-year-old son of Abraham Gabriel, of near Millville, fell under a wagon Wednesday, when a horse became unmanageable, and, the wheels passing over him, fractured two ribs and otherwise injured him.

Burlington will join in the national welcome to former President Roosevelt. City flags will be flown and Mayor Farner has asked citizens to dispay flags at their homes as a tribute to "America's greatest citizen."

As it is understood that Charles P. Kirkbride of Medford, who was appointed steward of the Burlington County Almshouse to succeed the late George Harbart, last April, is dissatisfied with the job and wants to quit, Daniel W. Bishop, a local preacher of Florence, is being boomed for the position by influential Republicans.

In Judge Horner's court, at Mt. Holly, Thursday, Abner C. Mitchell, a Trenton liquor dealer, was fined $100 for the illegal sale of liquor at Roebling, Burlington county. Mitchell recenty pleaded guilty. The fact that he saved the county the expense of a trial and at once quit business with Burlington county patrons, after his arrest, saved him at least $100.

Miss Sarah N. Doughty, of Absecon, was Thursday awarded two Atlantic City warrants, one for $79,000 and another for $50 000. The money was in payment for the title to 5,100 acres of woodlands and farms, which will be withdrawn from settlement and constitute part of the watershed which the resort is securing.

PARSONS, NOT ORDAINED, CAN'T TIE CUPID'S KNOT.

Paterson, June 18.—According to an interpretation of the marriage license law by the attorney-general made in response to a request from Registrar of Vital Statistics Charles S. Gall, of this city, a clergyman in order to have the right to perform a ceremony must be both "stated" and "ordained."

The ruling follows an inquiry made by Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, formerly of Plainfield, but now pastor of the Market Street Methodist Episcopal church. Mr. Snodgrass said that he would be absent from the city several weeks this summer and that during that time an assistant would perform his duties. This minister, the clergyman said, has not been ordained, but is called a "stated" minister, and Mr. Snodgrass wished to know whether his substitute would have the right to perform marriages.

The attorney-general's opinion reads in part:

"The language as used in the statute is conjunctive and its ordinary meaning is that he must be both 'stated' and 'ordained.' To change the conjunctive to the disjunctive is an interpretation broadening the law and one which this department cannot take without some other reason than that of convenience or expediency. It may well be that it would render the performance of the marriage ceremony more readily obtained if the word 'and' were read to mean 'or,' but this does not appeal to me as a sufficient reason for an interpretation by this department changing the plain reading of the statute."

Those who are to take part in the old-fashioned singing school at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Friday night, June 24, held a rehearsal Thursday night.

DEAD WOMAN'S ESTATE INVENTORIED $56,071.38.

Jersey City, June 18.—The inventory of the personal estate of Elise Lerche, of Hoboken, was filed with Surrogate Egan Thursday. The estate is valued at $56,071.38, consisting of household furniture $363,98, and money deposited in the following banks: Dry Dock Savings Bank, $2,464.51; Columbia Trust Company, $30,510.24; East River Savings Institution, $2,653.02; Excelsior Savings Bank, $2,288.88; Union Square Savings Bank, $2,805.30; Hoboken Trust Company, $3,343.44; Irving Savings Institution, $2,653.02; New York Savings Bank, $2,601; Seamen's Bank, $2,653.02, and Broadway Savings Institution, $2,653.02.

Mrs. Lerche died on May 14 last and on application of her sister, Mrs. Clara Ess, of Manhattan, Judge Robert Carey appointed Counsellor James A. Gordon, of Jersey City, administrator.

In her application Mrs. Ess allegee that while she was away from the home of her sister, certain persons unknown to her induced her sister to make a will disposing of her estate to a number of societies and persons in no way related. Three caveats against admitting the will to probate have been filed, and the contest over the estate will be tried before Judge John A. Blair in the Hudson Orphans' Court during the next term.

In Buying a Piano How Long Do You Plan It Will Last?

A good piano used as a piano should be, will last a lifetime.

Noticing our advertisements in the papers, people write us about our instruments.

Hallet & Davis Piano Co.:

My piano was bought in 1889. I have used it for 6 to 8 hours a day, practicing and teaching, also for orchestra rehearsals. It is difficult to make people believe it is so old.

Sincerely,
ARABELLA B. TAYLOR,
Boston, Mass.

Is This Piano Then Expensive?

Hallet & Davis pianos are not "cheap," yet the price is very moderate, and within the means of the average music lover. Our selling plan enables one to own a Hallet & Davis and pay for it on easy terms. It is the most satisfactory piano in all ways, quality, durability and price.

SOME INFORMATION ABOUT THE DOGS

Perhaps one of the best known dog fanciers in this part of the State, if not the country, in discussing the second annual bench show of the Plainfield Kennel Club, on Saturday, brought out some interesting points about the show. Among other things he said:

In view of the recent dog show it is well to enlighten the dog loving public upon some vital points. There is no man on earth who knows the relative values of the different points in all the breeds of dogs. Were he an encyclopedia upon dogology he would be found wanting. Every breed has its special features and upon these typical features depend the judgment of the dog. For instance the whole constitutes 100 per cent. The St. Bernard and bulldog almost have 50 per cent. for head and ears, the rest divided up for proportions, coat, etc. The Dalmation has about one-third for color and markings, while head, eyes and ears have only fifteen per cent.

The Airedale's head and coat are equally divided for fifty per cent., the balance going for symetry, including size, color, eyes, ears, bone, feet, etc. The collie has twenty-five per cent. for head and twenty-five per cent. for coat, while color is immaterial. The small dogs like the Maltese and Pomeranian the coat, color and tail count about half and so it goes always bearing in mind the point upon which particular stress is laid in each breed.

"There is more glory attached to the winning of a third of fourth ribbon when the competition is keen than walking off with a cartload of cups and an armful of blue ribbons where no competition existed and where the breed is scarce.

"A year ago began a report of dog shows which the 'snobbish' were quick to try and fasten upon the unsuspecting public and particularly the guileless news-gatherer, namely, reporting the winners of the class called 'winners' and no others. For instance, a year ago both our local newspapers headed their reports 'The Blue Ribbon Winners' and never gave a blue ribbon winner except those embodied in the class called 'winners.' This class constitutes the winners of other classes and with it goes the points of the show according to the number of dogs entered.

"Dogs that have a walk over in their classes go into this class and carry off the points. Owners of scarce breeds often keep out their best dogs and thus make so-called champions of inferior dogs, wherein were there any competition these same dogs would never be heard from."

ARMED MINER SOUGHT TAFT.

Washington, June 17.—Armed with a thirty-eight-caliber revolver, James Stricklin, a miner from Cumberland, Md., gained entrance to the executive offices at the White House yesterday, and almost succeeded in passing the doorkeeper who guards the private offices of President Taft.

Stricklin is a man of prepossessing appearance and well dressed. He walked briskly into the executive offices, announced he had an appointment with the President, and by his manner succeeded in avoiding suspicion until he was at the threshold of the President's office.

The doorkeeper noticed a slight expression of excitement in the man's eyes, and thought as he approached the door that he seemed to be under high tension. Just as he was about to turn the knob the doorkeeper changed his mind and called Detective-Sergeant Dalrymple.

Dalrymple questioned the man and soon decided that he was not in his right mind. He searched Stricklin and took the revolver and $100 in cash from him. Stricklin was taken to a police station and detained pending an investigation. He said he was forty-eight years old and that President Taft had been advertising for him in West Virginia papers, asserting that he went to the White House in answer to the advertisements.

Secret agents are investigating a rumor that Stricklin made an attempt to reach President Roosevelt about two years ago.

New Pastor Will Preach.

Rev. John Estlund, formerly a professor at Upsala College, and who was ordained to the ministry at Rock Island, Ill., last Sunday, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Swedish Lutheran church which meets at the German Lutheran church, Grove street and Mercer avenue, the borough, and will preach his first sermon there tomorrow night, as pastor.

Stenciling in Vogue.

Stenciling is used this season more than ever, not only in the matter of house furnishings, but in different parts of the costume. Scarfs with stenciled designs are used for street hats, while jabots of net and lace are often given a bit of color by means of a charming design in stencil. On gowns, too, the bordered effect is frequently brought about by an original stenciled design.

Four of Boss Lynch's laborers in the National League vineyard were disciplined Thursday for misbehavior on the ball field, that is kicking at the umpire, and each was suspended for three days. The quartet which will lay off for the remainder of the week are Larry Doyle of the Giants, Fred Clarke of the Pirates and Dooin and Knabe of the Phillies.

In the sixteen inning game between the Phillies and Reds last Wednesday Bescher and Paskert of the Reds were a busy pair of outfield pickets. Between them they had fifteen putouts.

The Cardinals don't like left handers in the box against them, judging from recent results. Rucker shut them out one day and Mattern did the same the next.

Stack, the pitcher whom the Phillies got from the Cubs, has twirled two good games since the transfer. He held the Cubs to three hits and beat them and held the Pirates to seven hits and beat them.

The squeeze won a fifteen inning game for the home team in New Castle, Pa., the other day. "The squeeze is a good play against a blind pitcher," remarked a National League twirler not long ago when he saw a squeeze fail to go through. The trouble was, though, that the batter didn't get the sign.

Dowd, the Holy Cross pitcher, has been signed by the Pittsburg club and is expected to report today.

Archer does most of his catching crouching on his toes and with his legs doubled up, rising to a normal position when the inning is over. He doesn't seem to feel the position uncomfortable, which is a great physical mystery.

Groom, of the Washingtons, has written a piece telling why pitchers can't hit. Barger evidently hadn't read it when he stung the pellet for four safeties and beat the Cubs in a fourteen inning game.

GOLF.

Superintendent John Hilton, of the Plainfield Country Club, was among the spectators at the open golf tournament in Philadelphia yesterday. Mr. Hilton is a good golfer himself and thoroughly understands the game. He has made the country club course several times in 80.

The work of installing the underdrain system at the Plainfield Country Club is completed and the improvement is proving a great benefit to the course, especially as there has been so much rainy weather this season.

There will be the weekly dinner-dance at the Plainfield Country Club tonight.

Continuation of play for the Spring championship will be the feature at the Park Golf Club today, as well as the weekly competition for the President's, club and Summer cups.

The attention of golfers is called to the "etiquette of golf," from the rules of golf, published in The Daily Press of yesterday. A strict observance of them will help to make the game more enjoyable.

CONVICTIONS FAIL AS CHARGE WAS ERRONOUS.

Trenton, June 18.—In a memorandum filed by Chief Justice Gummere yesterday, the Supreme Court set aside the conviction of Cucito Demarnico and another for grand larceny. The conviction was had in the Bergen County Quarter Sessions. It was set aside on the ground that the trial court had erroneously charged the jury as to the weight to be given evidence that the two defendants had in their possession stolen goods.

The trial judge charged that when goods, shown to have been stolen, are retained by a party in his hands, the burden may rest upon him to explain how he came into their possession. Mere possession of stolen property, the trial court held, is not conclusive evidence of guilt, but the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to explain how this possession was obtained.

Chief Justice Gummere said the correct rule, as laid down in such cases, is that when a theft has been shown and the question is whether a defendant committed it, his possession of stolen goods not too long after the theft, is a circumstance for the jury to consider and weigh with other evidence. The chief justice reiterated the rule that the burden of proof to show beyond a reasonable doubt the guilt of an accused person, rests with the State. To charge otherwise he said was a harmful error to the defendants.

ROAD PACT SET ASIDE.

Trenton, June 18.—In an opinion filed Thursday by Justice Garrison in the Supreme Court a contract for the permanent improvement of the shore road from Absecon to Somers Point, awarded by the Atlantic County Board of Freeholders to Bryant Reilly, is set aside because the contract was not in accordance with the law of 1905, under which it was awarded.

The case came up to the Supreme Court Certiorari reviewing the proceedings by which the contract was awarded. The Freeholders, the opinion points out, contracted with a trolley company using the highway with respect to which it had subsisting and unperformed duties, and by reason of this contract the freeholders obligated themselves to take over and improve the highway if the trolley company would pay a certain proportion of the expenses.

The court holds that the freeholders had no authority under the law to thus bargain, and as public trustees they should not have entered into it. In other respects the court holds the freeholders did not act in conformity with the law.

They call it "fighting the devil with fire." One party is just as bad as the other. Indeed, let a political party take high ground on this question, and it will at once be said, Oh! that is merely for political effect. But, gentlemen, there is a body of educational men against whom such a flippant sneer would be idle. A body of men from whose ranks come our judges, most of our governors, and the dominant minds in legislature, congress and cabinet—the bar of the United States.

"Why is it that we have excluded the bribe-giver and the bribe-taker from the halls of justice, but have failed to bar them from the polls and the halls of legislation? In my opinion it has been due in largest measure to the integrity, the character and influence of the bench and bar—men whose very professional habits of sinking self and jealously guarding the interests of others have made personal integrity a sort of second nature. The courts are their homes, and they have guarded their honor as a man guards the honor of his household.

"Let this association of lawyers announce, let its members announce, that we voluntarily take upon ourselves the duty of fighting this peril to our institutions; that upon evidence being laid before us tending to prove bribery or attempted bribery at the polls or in any legislative body, we will without fee or reward, or, as the grand jurors' oath well puts it, 'without fear, favor or affection, reward, gain or the hope thereof,' give our best energies and abilities to secure the conviction and punishment of the guilty parties, no matter how high or how low, and bribery in New Jersey will have received a deadly blow.

"If we have the opportunity, we owe the duty to ourselves, our state, our country."

The following officers were elected: President, Howard Carrol, of Camden; first vice president, William M. Johnson, of Hackensack; second vice president, William J. Lewis, of Paterson; third vice president, Halsey M. Barrett, of Newark; secretary, William J. Kraft, of Camden; treasurer, Lewis Starr, of Camden; directors, Walter H. Bacon, of Bridgeton; Norman Grey, of Camden; Peter Vredenburgh, of Freehold; Edwin E. Marshall, of Trenton; Edwin S. Atwater, of Elizabeth; John B. Vreeland, of Morristown; Thomas A. Davis, of Orange; William Brinkerhoff, of Jersey City, and Eugene Emley, of Paterson.

tion adheres to its constitution it can further other much needed improvements to the borough in addition to playgrounds. I am especially gratified at this meeting."

He then cited several locations for the parks, including a site located where Watchung avenue is being opened and through which a small brook flows. The others cited were A strip along the brook running through J. Y. Wilson's property; The Plainfield Park Associates strip on Greenbrook and a strip along Brook avenue.

"If these places aren't taken up pretty soon," said the Mayor, "they will be taken for sites of homely little houses. These undesirable little shanties will be occupied by undesirable citizens. It would pay the borough to buy up certain of these properties, even at a loss on taxes, because we could thus keep out these undesirable citizens.

Secretary Benjamin Phelps then read an extract from a report of Superintendent H. C. Krebs showing the difficulties of the borough boys in getting baseball and football fields, and suggesting the need of some such provision before long.

L. B. Woolston then took up the question of swimming pools. He said that several years ago there was a swimming pool of a public nature; but that city boys used it as much as borough boys. This showed a lack of co-operation between the city and the borough. In future he suggested that a better ssytem of supervision for such things be devised.

The meeting was largely attended, and the reports all showed progress. The Association accepted an invitation of the Plainfield Board of Trade to attend a meeting Thursday night in the Board of Trade rooms to hear speakers from out of town talk on municipal affairs. Mr. McCutchen in commenting on the meeting said it should be highly beneficial because they were non-partison, non-political and placed the interests of the borough above that of the individual.

HOW BOYS SAVED TOWN.

In his reminiscences of Sherman's march, in Harper's Magazine, W. W. Lord, Jr., tells how a group of small boys saved a town from the pillage and burning:

"The ubiquitous, irrepressible and inquisitive small boy saved Winnsborough from a supplementary pillage and conflamagration. Actuated by the desire to loot the residences in the headquarters neighborhood, six desperate fellows hid in the courthouse tower, determined to remain behind the army long enough to burn and plunder to their hearts' content and yet have time to join the rear guard before night set in. But heaven willed other-wise. A band of village boys, wandering amid the ruins, by chance, discovered the marauders peering like vultures from their lofty perch within the belfry and hastened with the information to my father. Fortunately three of the Union officers, quartered at the rectory by General Slocum, had been detailed with a squad of men to bring up the rear as whippers-in of stragglers.

"These officers had rounded up their waifs and strays and were bidding farewell to my parents before hastening after the army, when the terror-stricken boys arrived hot-footed and gasped out their story. Our friends of the enemy and recent guests thus found themselves upon the horns of a most embarrassing dilemma— a desire to arrest these thievish stragglers and a natural dread of capture by the light horse Confederate cavalry, which hung constantly upon the outskirts of the invading army for the purpose of cutting off stragglers or of engaging any small detachments sent out on special duty.

"In the end duty triumphed over fear. My father gave them a letter which promised for themselves, their prisoners and men safe conduct until they reached the Union lines, and they proceeded to the courthouse with their squad of men. There they dislodged from the belfry the crestfallen robbers and incendiaries, with evidence of guilt upon them in oil-soaked tow. Then they all set forth to overtake the army."

Marking Linen in Ink.

"Do I mark my linen with a pencil?" said a young woman, as she proceeded to write her name on the goods with a well sharpened lead pencil. "I do and I don't. Let me explain. I have found, from sad experience that the ink often spreads on linen, leaving an unsightly mark. Some one came to my rescue and told me if I first wrote the name in pencil and then traced it out in ink, I would have no further trouble on the score of the ink spreading. I followed the advice and was so delighted with the result that I have continued to practise ever since."

PTOMAINE FATAL TO GRIGG'S LAW PARTNER.

New York, June 18.—Ptomaine poisoning caused the death yesterday of S. C. Strawder Batt, of the law firm of Griggs, Baldwin & Baldwin, of which former United States Attorney-General Wheeler Griggs is head. He was in Washington Thursday and returned here last night. On the train he ate some clams and canned soup, and was so ill when he reached this city that he was hurried to a hotel and doctors called. They said something he had eaten had poisoned him, and despite everything they could do he grew steadily worse.

Bratt was graduated from Princeton in 1901.

Some New Shades.

Among the many new shades are several brown colorings bearing the unusual names of Babylon, Carthage and Mexican. After cities and countries many new reds are named—witness Pompeiian, Morocco, Corfu and Corinth. Baltique is the name of a green that verges on the violet, while Veronique is a stylish lavender with little life to it. Azov is a very light grayish green, while a green a little deeper than the well-known Nile shade is called Volga.

Brisbane Buys Land.

Jersey City, June 18.—A second considerable purchase of Jersey City real estate by Arthur Brisbane, editor of a New York newspaper, has caused local real estate men to blink twice in the vicinity of Sip and Summit avenues, where the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company proposes to erect a station. Mr. Brisbane reecntly purchased two lots at Tonnele and Pavonia avenues. His latest purchase is of five lots in the same section of the city.

A Delicious Orange Icing.

A quickly made organe icing is one that requires no egg and no cooking. Take the confectioner's sugar and into it grate a little of the outer rind of the peange; then moisten it with the juice of the organe till it is the right consistency to spread nicely. The icing will harden just sufficiently at the end of an hour or two to cut without cracking. One great advantage of an icing of this kind is that it will remain soft and creamy for days, thus helping to keep the cake moist.

Oatmeal Blancmange.

Scotch oatmeal flour is the best for making this. Medium oatmeal may also be used, and the result be as satisfactory, only the process takes longer. I here give the two methods: Mix one-quarter pound of Scotch oatmeal flour very smoothly with sufficient cold water to make a paste; pour upon it a quart of boiling milk, add a little salt and sweeten to taste; put all into a saucepan and boil for ten minutes or a quarter of an hour, stirring constantly; remove from the fire and flavor with wine and spice; pour int a wet mold, and turn out when cold. When eaten with cream this is delicious. The other method is to mix one-half pound of medium oatmeal with a little cold water, then pour a quart of boiling milk over this and let it soak overnight, or at least for twelve hours; strain it through a gravy strainer, pressing it hard, then boil in a saucepan for fifteen minutes; add a pinch of salt, and sugar to taste; finish as above. This may be flavored with grated nutmeg, ginger, cinnamon or with white wine or a little brandy, and cream served with it. An egg is simtimes beaten into this, but that is quite optional.

TOKENS RECEIVED BY FAITHFUL WORKERS

Not to be further disappointed by the weather, the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel planned to hold its annual picnic at the chapel yesterday, instead of at the summer home of Joseph W. Gavett at Watchung, and it proved to be one of the best social affairs ever held by the society. It was originally planned to hold the picnic on Thursday, but the weather interferred and this was true yesterday.

Instead, the women to the number of forty gladly accepted Mrs. McKelvey's suggestion and gathered at the chapel, where the day was spent playing games and partaking of the box luncheons prepared for the outdoor affair. After luncheon the women assembled in one of the large rooms where they summoned Mrs. McKelvey and Mrs. J. W. Gavett. Mrs. Benj. Moore then asked both Mrs. Benjamin Moore then asked both women to stand up. As they did so she presented each with a pair of handsome silk porterre curtains the work of the women of the society. The whole affair was a complete surprise and Mrs. McKelvey and Mrs. Gavett were almost speechless for a few minutes.

Mrs. Moore said that the gifts were in appreciation of the love and esteem which the society held for the recipients. Mrs. McKelvey and Mrs. Gavett finally expressed their sincere gratitude for the presents. The members of the society have been working for many months on the curtains, meeting every Thursday at the home of Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz on Allen place. Each pair of curtains contains eighteen pounds of silk, some of it coming from wedding dresses of the women and they represented much hard work. The designs are beautiful.

Mrs. McKelvey has been acting as president for Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman the past year, while Mrs. Gavett has been corresponding secretary for years. Another pleasant surprise yesterday was the reading of a letter from Mrs. Honeyman, written sometime ago in which she joined the women in congratulations. After the surprise, the women resumed playing games until 3 o'clock, when the monthly meeting of the society was held. It was then decided to hold the outdoor picnic on July 7. The day's entertainment closed with the serving of refreshments. The annual strawberry and ice cream festival will be held at the chapel afternoon and evening, June 30.

HE WILL NOT TALK ON HIS CANDIDACY

W. E. Tuttle, Jr., chairman of the Democratic County Committee, who has been prominently mentioned as the logical candidate for Congress on the Democratic ticket and who was recently boomed for the office at a meeting of the Democratic County Committee by "Farmer Orator" James Martine, in a statement made to the Press yesterday, declared it was too early as yet to make a definite statement as to wether he would or would not run.

Upon being asked if he had decided to enter the race he said that he did not care to make any statement. He was not certain, he said and early summer politics were as a rule unsatisfactory and did not show the real sentiment of the people. He added that he did not know just how the Democrats throughout the county stood on the congressional nomination proposition and he thought it best to wait.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Governor Fort's Opportunity.

Governor Fort of New Jersey has had a good deal to say about the delinquencies he perceives in the Legislature of that State. He was quick to take up the charges of gross immorality made against the Assembly because of what some of its members were reported to have done somewhere about the Capitol in the last hours of the session. He suggested the investigation of the charges by a committee not authorized to administer an oath and powerless to compel the attendance of witnesses. He did not adopt the plan of calling the Legislature in extraordinary session to give the Assembly an opportunity to hold an inquest in the ordinary way. Since the adjournment of the Legislature the Governor has said numerous harsh things about that body in his public addresses. He has asserted without qualification that the lawmakers were under the control of business corporations. Naturally such charges uttered by the Governor of the State have more substance and weight than the loose talk of persons not in official life, and their significance is increased by the fact that the Legislature is overwhelmingly of the political party that counts Mr. Fort as one of its chiefest ornaments. Under such circumstances the Governor should welcome the plan put forward by Senator Frelinghuysen, the president of the Senate, for an extraordinary session at which the matters which have so troubled the Executive may be considered. Senator Frelinghuysen promises to use his influence in favor of the passage of legislation intended to meet any needs that exist and also for the appointment of a committee to conduct an examination into the past conduct and motives of the Legislature. To this committee he would have the Governor submit all the facts on which his serious charges are based. It is doubtful whether any Governor would make such allegations without just cause; it is inconceivable that Mr. Fort, with his judicial experience, could do so improper a thing. The Governor has the power and he has the gravest reasons to call a special session. Assured of President Frelinghuysen's support in this important move, what excuse can he have for hesitation?—New York Sun.

SUPREME COURT DISBARS EX-ASSEMBLYMAN BERG.

Trenton, June 18.—Suspension from the practice of law for a period of a year is the punishment meted out by the Supreme Court to former Assemblyman Herman A. Berg, of Hudson county, who was charged with retaining $500 belonging to a client. The facts in the case were not disputed, and before disbarment proceedings instituted by direction of the court had been heard complete restitution had been made.

In a memorandum ordering the suspension of Berg, the court said that all of the facts had been given the consideration to which they were entitled. The case was argued at the February term before Justice Garrison, Justice Swayze and Justice Parker. The period of suspension is to date from February 15, 1910, the opening day of the term, until February, 10, 1911. The proceedings against Mr. Berg were conducted for the court by Frank P. McDermott. Mr. Berg was defended by William D. Edwards.

PEARY BACK FROM EUROPE.

New York, June 18.—"Traveling in Europe as I had to travel is harder in some respects than Arctic exploration," said Commander Robert E. Peary yesterday, as he landed with his family from the steamer Maurentania from a trip to Great Britain and the continent, where honors were showered upon him an all sides in recognition of his Polar achievement.

"My trip gave me very little idea of what Europe is like," said Commander Peary. "The hurry of it all was extremely tiring. It was one constant round of lecturing, hurrying to trains, attending receptions, lecturing again, and again hurrying on, until what, with the constant travel and enforced change of diet, I came to the conclusion that journeying in the Arctic was little more tiring and in some respects less unpleasant."

Mr. Peary, however, evidently was wel pleased with the reception that had been accorded him. He said that his plans for the near future included a stop in New York city for two days, following which he will go to Bowdoin College, his alma mater, to be the recipient of honors and to deliver an address. Then it will be home to Eagle Island, Me., for a rest of two months.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN NET.

Elizabeth, June 18.—An interesting incident occurred Thursday afternoon in the Union County Court during the examination of applicants for naturalization certificates. Among those who presented themselves was Joseph Bassoman, an Elizabethport saloonkeeper. He swore that he was an alien, and said he wanted to be-

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eye; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swoolen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps, unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K1239 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering powers.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home

YOUR DULL Headaches

Probably come from overstrained eye sight. Nine-tenths of the headaches are the direct result of eye trouble. Bring those troubles to us and let us prescribe for you.

AN ORDINANCE

to authorize the issuing of municipal bonds for the purpose of obtaining money from the sale thereof for the permanent improvement of streets and highways of the City of Plainfield, pursuant to Chapter 200 of the Laws of 1898, during the year 1910.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That for the purpose of obtaining money from the sale thereof for the permanent improvement of the streets and highways of said City during the calendar year 1910 with permanent and durable material of a kind to be determined in each instance by the Common Council before the work is commenced, to an amount not exceeding fifteen dollars per capita for each of the inhabitants of said City according to the last official census, but not for more than the amount limited by law, the Common Council of said City do hereby, pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of said State entitled "An Act to authorize the improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvement upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, authorize the issuing of thirty coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, and amounting in all to Thirty Thousand Dollars ($30,000), which bonds shall be dated July 1st, 1910, and shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5 per cent.) per annum, payable semi-annually, and be payable three years from the date thereof, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them, at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof, on giving personal notice to said holders of said bonds or thirty (30) days notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and bear the corporate seal of the City and be attested by the City Clerk, and may severally or collectively when ordered by resolution of the Common Council be sold for an amount not less than par value; and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds and the principal of such bonds as may mature during that year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall when collected be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Sec. 2. That before any improvement shall be authorized pursuant to the Act of the Legislature referred to in Section 1, it shall be necessary to enact an ordinance designating the street or streets or parts thereof to be improved, together with the kind of pavement proposed to improve them, and all work shall be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder and only after bids therefor have been solicited and received, the Common Council to have the right to reject any and all of such bids.

Sec. 3. That streets or parts of streets to be improved with durable macadam pavement shall be so improved in accordance with the following specifications, that is to say, durable macadam pavement with bituminous binder, shall be laid to a depth running from six (6) inches in the center to four (4) inches at the side, as shown on plan entitled "Plan showing standard cross-sections of streets of the City of Plainfield, N. J., filed in the office of the City Clerk April 30th, 1910," said macadam pavement to be in every respect equal to the macadam with bituminous binder on Union Street between Arlington Avenue and Stelle Avenue in said City. The ordinance specially designating said streets or parts of streets shall also designate in each instance the width to which said macadam shall be laid.

Sec. 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 7, 1910, approved by the Mayor, June 7, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

to Provide Separate Sewers or Drains to Carry Off the Surface Water in a Portion of Richmond Street.

Whereas, the city finds it necessary, and the Common Council hereby so determines, to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Richmond Street hereinafter specified, and the water flowing into Cedar Brook through said portion of said street, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine that the public good requires the construction of the sewers or drains hereinafter specified:

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in said portion of Richmond Street and the water flowing into Cedar Brook as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said city of Plainfield in Richmond Street from North Avenue to East Second Street, with six inlets at East Third Street and six at East Second Street, as shown for said portion of Richmond Street on a map on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled "Map for Separate Sewers or Drains to carry off the Surface Water in a Portion of Richmond Street, City of Plainfield, N. J., March, 1910," (to which map reference is hereby made and the same made a part hereof) said separate sewers or drains to be constructed on said portion of Richmond Street between the above mentioned points, as shown on said map, with the necessary manholes and appurtenances to complete the same, and to be of the dimensions and materials and to be laid along such lines and at such grades and in such manner as indicated and specified on said map.

Sec. 2. That the costs and expenses to be incurred under this ordinance shall be paid with money to be raised by taxation (by general tax for street improvements) pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, as other moneys are raised in said city.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 6, 1910, approved by the Mayor, June 7, 1910.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

Do Not Endanger Life When a Plainfield Citizen Shows You the Cure.

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certan cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabtes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Plainfield testimony:

Mrs. M. Newman, 532 W. Fifth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "A constant pain in my limbs was the principal symptom of my kidney trouble. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and soon after I began taking them, the pains in my limbs disappeared. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

come a citizen. Then Special Examiner Frank Maloney, of Philadelphia, flashed a communication from City Clerk Kenah, to the effect that Bassoman had sworn before the city clerk, in order to obtain his license and comply with one of the requirements of the "bishop's law," that he was an American citizen.

The saloon keeper was dismayed, but had to admit the statement was ture.

Judge Atwater then said this proved that Bassoman was not of good moral character, which is one of the requirements of a citizenship, and his application was promptly rejected. Worse yet for him, the Elizabeth Excise Board, at its next meeting, will revoke his license, on the ground of perjury.

TALKED OF FOR THE COURT OF COMMERCE.

Washington, June 18.—Following are those most prominently mentioned here yesterday as likely to be appointed members of the new Commerce Court created in the railroad bill:

Martin A. Knapp, of New York; Wade H. Ellis, of Ohio; James C. Harlan, of Illinois; William Peters Hepburn, of Iowa; C. A. Severance, of Minnesota, and Frank B. Kellogg, of Minnesota. The court will consist of five members.

Members of the court will receive $7,000, the same salary as circuit judges. But, in addition, it is provided that they shall receive $1,500 on account of increased expenses of living in this city, and they will also receive $10 per day as expenses when traveling.

SAFETY FOR TRAVELERS.

Atlantic City, June 18.—Delegates to the annual convention of the Master Car Builders' Association, in convention here, voted Thursday to refrain from going on record respecting new devices for the protection of the patrons of American railways until the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is to meet in Washington next October to study the subject, has made a report.

In secret session heads of the association declared the body could not enter into a fight with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the results of several years of study by practical railroad men will accordingly be placed at the disposal of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

President F. H. Clark, of the Car Builders' Association, in his annual address, declared the application of safety appliances recently approved by Congressional legislation would entail an expense amounting to millions of dollars on the railways.

Admitting that the question of safety brake safeguards has not kept pace with the dangers due to the use of heavier cars and faster locomotives, the convention directed a special committee to urge remedial action at once upon the railways and the safety brake manufacturers.

The annual ball of the Car Builders' Association was held on the Million Dollar Pier Thursday night.

$100,000 FOR BETTER ROADS.

Woodbury, June 18.—Taxpaying farmers from the lower end of Gloucester county appeared before the Board of Freeholders Thursday in the interests of better roads, and were successful in getting the county to increase its bond issue by $100,000 in order to build them. These taxpayers said they were willing to bear this extra burden. They had been patient for years, and helped other sections, and now they wanted something for their money.

When the vote was taken it was found that there was a majority of one in favor of the Woodbury and Clarksboro road only. Freeholder Usinger quickly said he did not intend to give up the fight. He then made a motion that the Auburn road be built. This was carried, 10 to 3, and the farmers went home satisfied.

COLLEGE TEMPERANCE FUND.

Camden, June 18.—Announcement was made here Thursday that Samuel B. Goff, of this city, had given $5,000 to Dickinson College in Carlisle to establish the Goff Foundation for the promotion of the cause of temperance. By the terms of the gift annual prizes are to be awarded for the best essays on temperance.

This is said to be the first foundation of this character in any American college.

Mr. Goff has also presented his library on temperance subjects to Dickinson.

It was also announced that Charles P. Schoen, of the Pressed Steel Car Company, had given $10,000 for ten scholarships of $1,000 each, to be awarded to young men and women of Philadelphia and its vicinity.

The One Thing Necessary.

(Copyright, 1909, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

Whatever might have been said as to the democratic appearance of our gentlemen in Washington, our women were always our great reliance, and these at least never failed to meet the approval of the most sneering of our foreign visitors. Thus we had present that night, as I remember, two young girls both later to become famous in Washington society; tall and slender young Terese Chalfant, later to become Mrs. Pugh of Ohio, and to receive at the hands of Denmark's minister, who knelt before her at a later public ball, that jeweled clasp which his wife had bade him present to the most beautiful woman he found in America. Here also was, Miss Harriet Williams of Georgetown, later to become the second wife of that Baron Bodisco of Russia who had represented his government with us since the year 1838—a tall, robust, blonde lady she later grew to be. Brown's hotel, home of many of our statesmen and their ladies, turned out a full complement. Mr. Clay was there, smiling, though I fear none too happy. Mr. Edward Everett, as it chanced, was with us at that time. We had Sam Houston of Texas, who would not, until he appeared upon the floor, relinquish the striped blanket which distinguished him—though a splendid figure of a man he appeared when he paced forth in evening dress, a part of which was a waistcoat embroidered in such fancy as might have delighted the eye of his erstwhile Indian wife had she been there to see it. Here and there, scattered about the floor, there might have been seen many of the public figures of America at that time, men from north and south and east and west, and from many other nations beside our own.

Under Mrs. Polk's social administration, we did not waltz, but our ball began with a stately march, really a grand procession, in its way distinctly interesting, in scarlet and gold and blue and silks, and all the flowered circumstance of brocades and laces of our ladies. And after our march we had our own polite Virginia reel, merry as any dance, yet stately too.

I was late in arriving that night, for it must be remembered that this was but my second day in town, and I had had small chance to take my chief's advice, and to make myself presentable for an occasion such as this. I was fresh from my tailor, and very new-made when I entered the room. I came just in time to see what I was glad to see; that is to say, the keeping of John Calhoun's promise to Helena von Ritz.

It was not to be denied that there had been talk regarding this lady, and that Calhoun knew it, though not from me. Much of it was idle talk, based largely upon her mysterious life. Beyond that, a woman beautiful as she has many enemies among her sex. There were dark glances for her that night, I do not deny, before Mr. Calhoun changed them. For, however John Calhoun was rated by his enemies, the worst of these knew well his austerely spotless private life, and his scrupulous concern for decorum.

Beautiful she surely was. Her ball gown was of light golden stuff, and there was a coral wreath upon her hair, and her dancing slippers were of coral hue. There was no more striking figure upon the floor than she. Jewels blazed at her throat and caught here and there the filmy folds of her gown. She was radiant, beautiful, apparently happy. She came mysteriously enough; but I knew that Mr. Calhoun's carriage had been sent for her. I learned also that he had waited for her arrival.

As I first saw Helena von Ritz, there stood by her side Dr. Samuel Ward, his square and stocky figure not undignified in his dancing dress, the stiff gray mane of his hair waggling after its custom as he spoke emphatically over something with her. A gruff man, Dr. Ward, but under his gray mane there was a clear brain, and in his broad breast there beat a large and kindly heart.

Even as I began to edge my way toward these two, I saw Mr. Calhoun himself approach, tall, gray and thin. He was very pale that night; and I knew well enough what effort it cost him to attend any of these functions. Yet he bowed with the grace of a younger man and offered the baroness an arm. Then, methinks, all Washington gasped a bit. Not all Washington knew what had gone forward between these two. Not all Washington knew what that couple meant as they marched in the grand procession that night—what they meant for America. Of all those who saw, I alone understood.

So they danced; he with the dignity of his years, she with the grace which was the perfection of dancing, the perfection of courtesy and of dignity also, as though she knew and valued to the full what was offered to her now by John Calhoun. Grave, sweet and sad Helena von Ritz seemed to me that night. She was wholly unconscious of those who looked and whispered. Her face was pale and rapt as that of some devotee.

Mr. Polk himself stood apart, and plainy enough saw this little matter go forward. When Mr. Calhoun approached with the Baroness von Ritz upon his arm, Mr. Polk was too much politician to hesitate or to inquire. He knew that it was safe to follow where John Calhoun led! These two conversed for a few moments. Thus, I fancy, Helena von Ritz had her first and last acquaintance with one of our politicians to whom fate gave far more than his deserts. It was the fortune of Mr. Polk to gain for this country Texas, California and Oregon—not one of them by desert of his own! My heart has often been bitter when I have recalled that little scene. Politics so unscrupulous can not always have a John Calhoun, a Helena von Ritz, to correct, guard and guide.

After this the card of Helena von Ritz might well enough indeed been full had she cared further to dance. She excused herself gracefully, saying that after the honor which had been done her she could not ask more. Still, Washington buzzed; somewhat of Europe as well. That might have been called the triumph of Helena von Ritz. She felt it not. But I could see that she gloried in some other thing.

I approached her as soon as possible. "I am about to go," she said. "Say good-bye to me now, here. We shall not meet again. Say good-by to me now, quickly! My father and I are going to leave. The treaty for Oregon is prepared. Now I am done. Yes. Tell me good-by."

"I will not say it," said I. "I can not."

She smiled at me. Others might see her lips, her smile. I saw what was in her eyes. "We must not be selfish," said she. "Come, I must go."

"Do not go," I insisted. "Wait."

She caught my meaning. "Surely," she said, "I will stay a little longer for that one thing. Yes, I wish to see her again, Miss Elizabeth Churchill. I hated her. I wish that I might love her now, do you know? Would—would she let me—if she knew?"

"They say that love is not possible between women," said I. "For my own part, I wish with you."

She interrupted with a light tap of her fan upon my arm. "Look, is not that she?"

I turned. A little circle of people were bowing before Mr. Polk, who held a sort of levee at one side of the hall. I saw the tall young girl who at the moment swept a graceful curtsey to the president. My heart sprang to my mouth. Yes, it was Elizabeth! Ah, yes, there flamed up on the altar of my heart the one fire, lit long ago for her. So we came now to meet silently, with small show, in such way as to thrill none but our two selves. She, too, had served, and that largely. And my constant altar fire had done its part also, strangely, in all this long coil of large events. Love—ah, true love wins and rules. It makes our maps. It makes our world.

Among all these distinguished men, these beautiful women, she had her own tribute of admiration. I felt rather than saw that she was in some pale filmy green, some crepe of China, with skirts and sleeves looped up with pearls. In her hair were green leaves, simple and sweet and cool. To me she seemed graver, sweeter, than when I last had seen her. I say, my heart came up into my throat. All I could think was that I wanted to take her into my arms. All I did was to stand and stare.

My companion was more expert in social maneuvers. She waited until the crowd had somewhat thinned about the young lady and her escort. I saw now with certain qualms that this latter was none other than my whilom friend Jack Dandridge. For a wonder, he was most unduly sober, and he made, as I have said, no bad figure in his finery. He was very merry and just a trifle loud of speech, but, being very intimate in Mr. Polk's household, he was warmly welcomed by that gentleman and by all around him.

"She is beautiful!" I heard the lady at my arm whisper.

"Is she beautiful to you?" I asked.

"Very beautiful!" I heard her catch her breath. "She is good. I wish I could love her. I wish, I wish—"

I saw her hands beat together as they did when she was agitated. I turned then to look at her, and what I saw left me silent. "Come," said I at last, "let us go to her." We edged across the floor.

When Elizabeth saw me she straightened, a pallor came across her face. It was not her way to betray much of her emotions. If her head was a trifle more erect, if indeed she paled, she too lacked not in quiet self-possession. She waited, with wide straight eyes fixed upon me. I found myself unable to make much intelligent speech. I turned to see Helena von Ritz gazing with wistful eyes at Elizabeth, and I saw the eyes of Elizabeth make some answer. So they spoke some language which I suppose men never will understand—the language of one woman to another.

I have known few happier moments in my life than that. Perhaps, after all, I caught something of the speech between their eyes. Perhaps not all cheap and cynical maxims are true, at least when applied to noble women.

Elizabeth regained her wonted color and more.

"I was very wrong in many ways," I heard her whisper. For almost the first time I saw her perturbed. Helena von Ritz stepped close to her. Amid the crash of the reeds and brasses, amid all the broken conversation which swept around us, I knew what she said. Low down in the flounces of the wide emroidered silks, I saw their two hands meet silently, and cling. This made me happy.

Of course it was Jack Dandridge who broke in between us. "Ah!" said he, "you jealous beggar, could you not leave me to be happy for one minute? Have you come back, a mere heathen, and proceeded to monopolize all our ladies. I have been making the most of my time, you see. I have proposed half a dozen times more to Miss Elizabeth, have I not?"

"Has she given you any answer?" I asked him, smiling.

"The same answer!"

"Jack," said I. "I ought to call you out."

"Don't," said he. "I don't want to be called out. I am getting found out. That's worse. Well—Miss Elizabeth, may I be the first to congratulate?"

"I am glad," said I, with just a slight trace of severity, "that you have managed again to get into the good graces of Elmhurst. When I last saw you, I was not sure that either of us would ever be invited there again."

"Been there every Sunday regularly since you went away," said Jack. "I am not one of the family in one way, and in another way I am. Honestly, I have tried my best to cut you out. Not that you have not played your game well enough, but there never was a game played so well that some other fellow could not win by coppering it. So I coppered everything you did—played it for just the reverse. No go—lost even that way. And I thought you were the most perennial fool of your age and generation."

"She Is Beautiful!" I Heard the Lady At My Arm Whisper.

I checked as gently as I could a joviality which I thought unsuited to the time. "Mr. Dandridge," said I to him, "you know the Baroness von Ritz?"

Frelinghuysen As Host.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, president is the New Jersey Senate, is entertaining the political writers of New York and New Jersey newspapers today at his home at Raritan. Following an automobile jaunt a luncheon was enjoyed. Mayor Fisk of this city, attended the affair.

Woman Hurt, Horse Shot.

Miss Elizabeth Nash, of Watchung, daughter of Rev. C. E. Nash, is suffering from severe bruises and scratches today as a result of a runaway accident in which she figured yesterday afternoon. She had just driven the children of the family in the carriage to school, and in turning around after the children had alighted, the horse took fright and started to run away. The animal was highly spirited and she lost control of the reins. The horse ran down the road on which the school is located, finally colliding with a tree, wrecking the wagon and breaking its leg. The horse had to be shot.

Besler Honored.

As William G. Besler, vice president and general manager of the Central Railroad, of this city, left New York harbor today on board the steamship "New York," bound for Europe, where he will spend his vacation vessels of all sorts in the harbor gave a long continued salute to him. The Central Railroad tug, "Plymouth," with Mr. Huntington and other railroad officials on board, escorted the New York as far as the Ambrose Light Ship. Mr. Besler will attend the international convention of railroad managers in Berne, Switzerland.

Mr. Colby Sails.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Colby and their two children, of Llwellyn Park, West Orange, will enjoy a summer automobile tour of Europe. Mr. Colby's car has been shipped and the family will be passengers on board the Kronprinzessen Cecile of the North German Loyd line on Tuesday. Mr. Colby expects to return during the primary contest in Essex county and after that will rejoin his family abroad. Mrs. Colby is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Hyde, of East Front street.

PANHANDLER BRACED THE MAYOR OF THE CITY.

Because he was shy enough money to carry him to Philadelphia yesterday William Evans daintily approached Mayor Charles J. Fisk with a plea for assistance. Unfortunately for Evans a patrolman was close by and without any suggestion from the Mayor he led the panhandler to headquarters where he sojourned until arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning.

Evans told the court that he had been a dry goods salesman in a store in the Quaker City and owing to dullness in the business due to the trolley strike he was compelled to seek employment elsewhere in his chosen occupation. He went to New York, where he failed in his hunt for a job and made his way as far as Plainfield, where for lack of funds he became stranded. On his promise to leave town immediately Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

James Alpaugh.

James Alpaugh, aged about sixty-two years, a resident of this city for nearly thirty years, died yesterday afternoon at Muhlenberg Hospital of a complication of diseases. He is survived by two brothers, Peter Alpaugh, of Hampton Junction, and Elijah Alpaugh, of Clinton. The remains were taken today to the home of the brother at Hampton Junction and the funeral will be held Monday afternoon at Allentown.

Auto Endurance Run.

Thirty or forty automobiles entered in the fifteen-hour endurance contest, under the auspices of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, passed through Plainfield this morning. They will go through the city again this evening about 6 o'clock. Elmer D. Cutting, driving a Hupmobile for the F. L. C. Martin Auto Co., is entered in the contest.

Murray Patrol's First Trip.

A party of boys under the leadership of C. William Bingeman, Boys' Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., left yesterday afternoon for their first scouting trip. They reached Orange last night an spent the night there camping in the big Orange gymnasim. This is the first trip of the "Murray Patrol."

Mrs. Mary Whittaker-Beeching.

Mrs. Mary Whittaker-Beeching, formerly of this city, died last night at her home at Freeport, L. I., aged 78 years. Mrs. Beeching leaves no relatives. The funeral service will be held at the home of John Praed, 311 Grant avenue, this city, and notice of the hour will be given later.

Bacculaureate Sermon at Watchung.

A bacculaureate sermon by the Rev. R. S. Campbell, of Plainfield, will be preached in Wilson Memorial chapel Sunday evening for the graduates of the Watchung Public School. The commencement exercises of the class will be held Thursday evening in the Wilson chapel.

William Day Surprised.

William Day, receiving teller at the First National Bank, was given a surprise party at his home on Grove street, Thursday night. A large number of friends gathered and the evening was spent in a social way, during which refreshments were served.

MANY LAWYERS IN THE LEGISLATURE

New Jersey is one of the two States of the East in which the lawyers out-number the farmers as legislators, the other being Connecticut. In an examination of twenty States, including New Jersey, the occupations having the largest representation in the Legislatures were as follows:

Farmers—Washington, North Dakota, Montana, Wisconsin, Maine, Utah, Florida, Vermont, Nebraska, New Hampshire and Rhode Island—11.

Lawyers—New Jersey, Colorado, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota and Ohio—6.

Manufacturers—Pennsylvania—1.

Merchants—Connecticut—1.

In Minnesota it is a tie between the lawyers and the farmers, each having 45. In Connecticut the margin is small, there being 26 merchants, 25 lawyers and 24 manufacturers. There is almost the same condition in the Pennsylvania Legislature, where there are 23 manufacturers, 20 merchants, and 20 lawyers. Even in this manufacturing State, 14 farmers have gone to the Legislature, and all kinds of trades are represented from musicians to firemen.

The farmers are the leading rivals for legislative honors, comparing as follows:

Beginning with the four New England States, Maine has 37 farmers to 28 lawyers; Connecticut, 83 farmers to 25 lawyers; Vermont, 152 farmers to 18 lawyers; New Hampshire, 86 farmers to 26 lawyers, and Rhode Island, 23 farmers to 9 lawyers.

New Jersey Has Six.

New Jersey has only six farmers, as against 26 lawyers. Pennsylvania—in whose Legislature the manufacturers are in the lead and the merchants tie the lawyers for second place—has 14 farmers to 20 lawyers.

Florida has 53 farmers to 35 lawyers, in a Legislature of only 99 members. There are 2 cattlemen (ranchers), 5 newspaper men, and 4 school teachers. In this State, however, the farmers are, almost without exception, country merchants as well. In Florida the country merchant almost invariably owns and works a farm. The cattlemen are not always farmers. Their vast herds range the woods.

Going west, we find that Ohio has 15 farmers to 44 lawyers, Indiana 24 farmers to 52 lawyers, and Illinois 33 farmers to 66 lawyers. On the other side of the Mississippi things begin to brighten up a little for the farmers. In Missouri there are 46 farmers to 55 lawyers, in Minnesota the two occupations number 45 legislators each, and in Wisconsin the farmers lead, having 39 representatives, as against 36 for the lawyers.

In the Western States.

In the Western States the situation is reversed and becomes closely similar to that existing in New England. Nebraska has 49 farmers and 13 lawyers; Utah, 28 farmers and 9 lawyers; Montana, 30 farmers and 24 lawyers; North Dakota, 55 farmers and 19 lawyers; Washington, 22 farmers and 20 lawyers. Colorado is the only exception, having 10 farmers and 23 lawyers.

However, this statement about Colorado, if unqualified, may be misleading. It must not be taken to imply that Colorado is given over to the thralldom of lawyers. On the contrary, considering the small size of her Legislature—100 members—Colorado has about as widely diversified a lawmaking body as any in the Union, twenty-eight different occupations being represented at Denver. If to her ten farmers are added her nine stockmen and her one irrigationist it will be seen that agriculture and its allies crowd the bar pretty closely.

One of Colorado's legislators is put down under the head of "housewife." They have woman suffrage in Colorado. Others of the Denver lawmakers are a blacksmith, a bricklayer, a barber, a telegraph operator, a grocer, a conductor, a teacher, an ice dealer, a carpenter, three printers, two railroad engineers, two druggists, and thirteen mining men.

The British classification of "newspaper owners and journalists"—apparently a fine distinction—is not duplicated on this side, but "newspaper men," as we prefer to call them here, have no reason to complain of their lot. There are thirty-eight of them in the House of Commons.

One "Editor" at Trenton.

In New Jersey there are no "journalists," but there is one "reporter," one "editor," and one "publisher" at Trenton. In Maine there is one legislator classified as a "news writer"—presumably a reporter. Colorado has two "editors." Minnesota has one "publisher." North Dakota has three "editors." Montana has three "newspaper men." Wisconsin has five "editors." Washintgon has four "printers and publishers." Indiana has six "editors." Illinois has one "publisher." Utah has one "newspaper man," and Florida five. Ohio has five "editors and publishers." Vermont has two "editors." Nebraska six, and New Hampshire two. Rhode Island has three "newspaper men." Pennsylvania has three "publishers." Connecticut alone has neither editor, publisher, reporter, newswriter, or newspaper man.

Some unexpected occupations are to be found in the classifications from these twenty States, and they show that there is no royal road to a State Capitol. For instance, New Jersey's Legislature includes a mariner, an insurance broker, thre electricians, a pharmacist, an agent, a railroad conductor, a railroad foreman, an undertaker, a retired capitalist, and the before-mentioned reporter.

STATE TREASURER WILL BE THEIR HOST

CLEVELAND MONUMENT FUND.

Committee Has $50,000 and $50,000 More is Promised.

Former Senator Henry D. Winton, Secretary of the commission to the erection of a monument in Princeton to the memory of the late President Grover Cleveland, announced yesterday that more than $50,000 of the $100,000 needed has been subscribed. The commission expects to be able to say by the close of the month where in Princeton it is to be reared.

The selection of the site has been dependent in a measure upon the location of the post-graduate building for which the Proctor $500,000 endowment provides, and the commission has been balked in picking the locality by the discussion to which the Proctor offer gave rise.

According to Mr. Winton, some of the larger contributors are willing to double their subscriptions if necessary, and that the whole of the required $100,000 is thus apparently assured.

The commission has not planned the monument except to reach an informal understanding that a heroic figure of the late President, in bronze, or brass, or stone, shall not be part of it.

MORE COMMUTER PROTESTS.

New Jersey Prepares Complaint and Manhattan Lawyers Appeal to Inter-State Commission.

Trenton, June 18.—At the request of Gov. Fort, Attorney-General Wilson yesterday prepared a complaint against the railroads for arbitrarily increasing their rates. The complaint is to be presented to the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

Mr. Wilson said the complaint would be pushed vigorously, and would be independent of the investigation now being conducted by the New Jersey State Railroad Commission.

Announcement was made Thursday afternoon at the office of Hugh M. Howson, attorney, at 32 William street, New York, that a petition and complaint would be sent at night to be filed in Washington yesterday with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the increase of commuter transportation rates by the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, with a request that this body investigate and order the railroad to continue to charge the rates, fares, and charges now in force.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON

Delivered to Class of 1910 of Plainfield High School by Rev. Geo. A. Warner.

IN CHURCH OF THE HOLY CROSS

Precepts to Govern the Future Life Laid Down in Unmistakable Language—The Spiritual Must Govern.

The members of the Class of 1910 of the City High School listened to a bacculaureate sermon by Rev. George A. Warner yesterday morning at the Holy Cross church. The clergyman spoke on "The Development of the Individual." His discourse follows:

How natural and equable a development for a life! We look about us and see one-sided and abnormal people. One person possessing an uncanny intelligence developed to the highest degree, but earned at the expense of physical well being, or so absorbed in the intellectual that he is at once the admiration and laugaing stock of those who meet him. Unfortunately again there is the type of a one-sided brutal beefy muscular physical development, the muscular powers in perfect accord, the faculty of co-ordination on the physical side exteremely beautiful to witness, but with it how often the low intelligence and the lack of anything like seeking the favor of God.

Then we find again the man who is seeking the favor of God, seeking it sometimes as mistakenly as the one-sided student, or the passionate athlete. A man who is so religious that he ceases to be human. A man who has never learned the distinction of being serious without being solemn. Then there is the type of development where we see the truckler, the one who is consumed with the desire to meet with the approval of all his fellow men, his purposes all bent to that end so that he will compromise principle and sacrifice independence to curry favor and be popular.

I know of no greater danger to the young man than an abnormal desire to be popular—it means the sacrifice of healthy independence and slavery to the opinion of others. The only way to be popular is to think nothing of it, because true popularity is one of the rare gifts which comes by indirect means rather than direct.

If then we are concious that there is such a thing as abnormal development and its examples are numerous enough to give us a healthy sense of fear lest we should miss being sane and normal, we may rightly turn to Him who was the pattern of youth and should be today our inspiration and guide—the Saviour Jesus Christ.

The symmetrical development of His life not one-sided, but briefly put, four-sided, equable and beautiful in its even proportions. Wisdom, or intelligence, stature, favor with God and favor with man. How desirable they all are!

Here is the perfect ideal of youth and its development. The training of the mental powers, the ever-growing intelligence, the body expanding, growing in alertness and quickness of response to the behests of the intelligence, all dominated by a consciousness of God's goodness, His care for His children, the sense of security and confidence in the favor of a God who has said that the angels of His little ones do always behold the face of the Father in Heaven and following upon this harmonious development of the intelligence the body, the love and fear of God this further essential, the consideration for others which inevitably brings the regard, good will and favor of our fellow men.

How natural it all is. No one of us likes to be considered dull or unintelligent. A constant spur to our work has been not alone the goal of our ambition to know something and prove ourselves the equal of others, but with it has been the goad of shame, the fear of ridicule lest we should grow up with a humilating sense of how little wisdom we have and so be marked out as inferior to our fellows. Likewise the desire is keen in us to present before the world a body with the evidence of healthy growth, we have had a pardonable variety in our personal appearance and taken care of our bodies observing the laws of hygiene lest by carelessness we should present physicial defects which would make us conspicuous and call attention to our shortcomings, boys and girls will confess if presed that it is not the pure joy of atheletics, neither the glory of victory but the keen desire to keep up with others in physicial vigor that has led them on.

The approval the favor of God

THEODORE KURZHALS JR., DIES AFTER LONG ILLESS

Theodore Arnold Kurzhals, Jr., who was a barber on West Second street for many years, died Saturday night at his home on Lincoln place. He was in his fortieth year and had been ill for about eighteen months with a complication of diseases. Since last February he has been unable to work, and gave up his barber shop shortly after that.

Mr. Kurzshals was born in this city and has always lived here. For many years he was in business with his father as a barber on West Second street and about five years ago purchased the business from him. He was a member of five local fraternal organizations. These are: Rebecca Council, Daughters of Liberty; Benevolent Council, Jr. O. U. A. M.; I. O. O. F. No. 44; P. O. S. of A., and the Knights of the Golden Eagle.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kurzhals, Sr., of West Sixth street; a brother, Albert, who is now critically ill at Muhlenberg Hospital; a sister, Mrs. Arthur Adams, of this city; a brother, Hugo, of Jacksonville, Florida, and one daughter, Elsie, who is ten years old. His wife, Mrs. Louise Kurzhals, also survives him.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and the interment will be made in the Plainfield avenue cemetery.

MISS ANNA L. WALSH I. W. CROWELL'S BRIDE

Miss Anna Lillian Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Walsh, of 226 East Second street, and Isaiah William Crowell, of Winthrop, Mass., were married Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. C. C. Sylvester, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, of Somerville, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a princess lace robe, over white satin and wore a veil of tulle caught up with bridal roses. She carried a bouquet of white roses and wore a circle of pearls. She was attended by Miss Antoinette VanDuyne, of Newark, and Miss Frances L. Wellwood, of New York city. The bride entered the parlor where the ceremony was performed, escorted by her brother, William M. Walsh, Jr., two chains of daisies forming an aisle. George N. Walsh, brother of the bride, played the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn Wedding marches.

The home was elaborately decorated with Mountain laurel, sent from Connecticut; roses, daisies, ferns, ivy and carnations. Following the ceremony a reception was held and the couple received the congratulations of the guests, among whom were several from Everett, Winthrop, West Yarmouth, Mass.; New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Somerville, Cranford and this city.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a circle of pearls. The couple after making an extended tour through Canada will spend the summer at their cottage in West Yarmouth, Mass., and in the fall will go to Winthrop, Mass., a suburb of Boston, where the groom is in business. The bride has a large circle of friends here. She has been holding a responsible position in the First National Bank at Somerville.

Travell to Speak.

Superintendent I. W. Travell of the Morristown public schools, will make an address to the graduating class there, Friday morning. Mr. Travell had planned to come to the city High School commencement exercises Thursday night, but owing to his inability to get back in time had to give up this plan.

Both Names Alike.

James Saunders, of 524 West Fourth street, does not want his friends to confuse him with the James Saunders, of West Second street, who is spending the next two months at a guest of the county in jail at Elizabeth.

Girls Didn't Walk.

A party of Y. W. C. A. girls who gathered at the association rooms early Saturday afternoon, to walk to Feltville, did not start owing to the rain. This is the second time that the trip has been postponed.

Miss Doane the Author.

Miss Alice Doane, daughter of Benjamin Doane, of East Seventh street, is the writer of the class ode in the graduating class of the Plainfield High School.

OLMSTEAD WAS HURT IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

A. S. Olmstead, of Westervelt avenue, is laid up at his home with severe injuries, and Leon W. DuFour and Leigh S. Bach, of Bound Brook, are at the Long Branch hospital suffering from contused wounds and cuts, the result of an automobile accident on Friday night just outside of Freehold. The trio together with a friend from Boston and two other men, were en route in two automobiles for Barnegat, where they expected to do some fishing.

Mr. Olmstead, Mr. DuFour and Mr. Bach were riding in Mr. Bach's new car, which he was driving. The party got off the right road and in making a detour ran into a ditch. The car did not completely upset, but the trio were thrown out, all receiving injuries. The party in the other car picked up the injured and hastened with them to the hospital at Long Branch. Mr. DuFour and Mr. Bach are still there, while Mr. Olmstead returned to Freehold that night, and then came home on Saturday, where he is now under the care of a physician. It was necessary to take five stitches in his nose and several stitches in his chin. He also suffered contused wounds about the body. He will be detained at home at least two weeks.

The friend from Boston, as well as the other two members of the party escaped without injuries. The car was taken to Bound Brook yesterday. It was not damaged to any extent.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE IS ATTACKED BY PASTOR

"Because Christian Science and spiritualism have certain devotees does not make them right," said Rev. John Y. Broek in his sermon last night in Trinity Reformed church, "and when you put them to the test of the Bible, upon which all Christian doctrine is founded you will find both to be radically wrong if you are fair minded."

"I oppose Christian Science because it denies some of the fundamental truths of the Bible. It denies the reality of matter, the personality of God, the personality of Jesus Christ, the very plan of salvation; the reality of sin and the reality of prayer."

Pastor Broek read for his text 1 John, 4—1 to 3, and in order to fully impress its import repeated the words. He said that Christian Science is a misnomer, as their doctrine was neither Christian nor science. But if its prime object were alleviate the sufferings of mankind it should receive our Godspeed. Mental suggestion is practiced by some of our regular physicians and in cases of nervous diseases is found efficacious. It would be absurd to deny the power of the mind over the body, and I would not object to Christian Science if it were purely a healing system, but religion is dragged into it shattering the whole fabric.

"When it brazenly denies the reality of matter we must stop and think what it means. One of the foremost followers of Mrs. Eddy claimed that the Slocum horror occurred only in the minds of a few people. The God Mrs. Eddy believes in is a god of pantheism. Our God is a personal God. One to whom of prayers ascend and whom we know can hear and answer.

"Are you willing to throw overboard these fundamentals of the Bible? If you are you are then ready to join the Christian Science church which is sure to fall into oblivion. If they do not stand the test of the Bible, they are not of God."

Mr. Broek preached on the subject by request.

The Misses Hooley Bridesmaids.

The Misses Ray and Mabel Hooley daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Hooley, of the borough, were among the bridesmaids at the marriage of Miss Jean Rolston and Clarence Neilson Peacock, which took place Saturday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bertrand Rolston, 19 West Fifty-first street, New York. The affair was a quiet one owing to the recent death of the bride's aunt, Mrs. William H. Rolston.

Parent-Teacher Association to Meet.

The third annual meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Franklin School will be held at the school tonight. H. W. Marshall, who represented the association at the convention of the National Playgrounds' Association at Rochester, N. Y., will make a report. All parents and teachers are urged to attend.

STORM DID DAMAGE HERE

Trees Were Blown Down and Shrubs and Plants Suffered Badly.

CITY ALMOST IN DARKNESS.

In Less Than Two Hours 1.37 Inches of Rain Fell—Electric Light System Partly Put Out of Business.

Saturday afternoon's terrific thunder storm did much damage to trees and shrubbery in several sections in the city. The worst of the wind was felt in the eastern section where trees were blown down and vines torn from their fastenings while lightning cut dead and live limbs of big trees indiscriminately. At least ten trees were blown down in the borough and an equal number suffered the same fate in this city.

The approach of the storm was so sudden that an impression as of darkest midnight was given and in a trice lights were twinkling in all parts of the city. Some of the electric light wires were broken and many fuses blown out, necessitating the use of gas in many homes and offices. Reports from the suburban districts say that entire crops of tomatoes and other vegetables were completely ruined.

A huge elm in front of 319 East Front street was struck by a bolt and a branch six inches in diameter snapped off as though it were a match. The bark was stripped from the tree for a distance of twelve feet. A nearby house, famous for its magnificent Wistaria vine, lost the vine in the tornado which followed. It is possible that this vine can be saved by being raised and fastened, but it will be a difficult job as the trunk is about five inches thick.

For several hours after the violence of the hurricane had subsided electric light and telephone wires were badly crippled and the trolley service halted. The companies, however, soon had things straightened out and apparently no permanent damage was done.

At the corner of Park avenue and Ninth street, East Seventh street and Watchung avenue and Fourth street and Madison avenue trees were blown down, seriously obstructing street traffic. A Spanish plum tree in the front yard of the residence of Charles E. Doane, of Norwood avenue, was uprooted, but it can probably be saved. So far as known nobody was injured during the storm.

The switchboard of the Postal Telegraph Company was put out of business at the beginning of the display of lightning. A flash, sharper than any of its predecessors, struck the cable leading into the office and instantly the board went out with a crash. Mrs. Bain, the regular operator, was not there, but her substitute, a young boy, nearly collapsed.

John Neagle, the weather man, said this morning that in the one hour and forty-five minutes of the rain 1.37 inches fell and that the total fainfall for the month up to and including the storm was 5.19 inches. The normal rainfall for the entire month of June is only 3.75.

A high power wire of the Public Service Corporation grounded on a pole in front of Chief Kiely's residence on East Fifth street, and made quite a blaze. It was extinguished by one of the company's employes.

HE SAVED A BATHER FROM WATERY GRAVE.

Louis Kopp, of Liberty street, an employe of J. C. Storm, who accompanied the Timbo excursion to Atlantic City yesterday, proved himself a hero by boldly plunging into the surf and rescuing Vincent Pyatt, a bather, from drowning. The imperiled man had gone down twice when the Plainfielder caught hold of him and swam to shoal water. Pyatt was revived by a life guard and afterward taken to his home at 114 Arctic avenue, Atlantic City.

Kopp was formerly a member of the New Jersey division of the U. S. Life Saving Corps and has saved men from drowning on three previous occasions. Although but twenty-one years old and of slight build he is an expert swimmer.

T. S. Armstrong, President.

At the meeting of the New Jersey State Pharmaceutical Association held at Cape May, June 14, 15 and 16, Thomas S. Armstrong was elected president unanimously. Several new measures calculated for the benefit of the public as well as the druggist were passed at this session. C. J. Field was elected treasurer for the fifteenth consecutive year.

POLICE COURT BLOTTER ON A MONDAY MORNING

Twenty-three dog owners were haled before Judge Runyon this morning and escaped fines by having licenses taken out for their animals. Some were taken out on Saturday after the summonses had been issued and others this morning. In one or two cases dogs were turned over to the pound keeper and still others shipped away to the places whence they came. The crusade will be kept up until every dog in the city is properly tagged.

For riding his wheel upon the sidewalk near Grant avenue on Saturday, Arthur Martin was reprimanded by Judge Runyon this morning.

Two drunks were arraigned this morning, George Sturges and William Ashton. It being their first offense they were lectured by the court and sentence suspended.

The assault case of Brancatti against Tozzi, which had a preliminary hearing on Friday, was postponed until next Monday morning. There are about fifteen witnesses to be heard in the case. Walter Hetfield represents Brancatti. William G. DeMeza will defend Tozzi.

George Kline, a chauffuer for a local automobile concern, was arrested for speeding a new car on Evergreen avenue, yesterday, by Patrolman McCarthy. Besides the speeding charge there was one of having no license number displayed on the rear of the machine. Kline was discharged, but warned to be more careful in the future.

NARROW ESCAPE ON TIMBO CLUB OUTING

An accident in which fortunately no one was injured marked the return trip of the Timbo Social Club to Atlantic City yesterday. While rounding a curve near Winslow Junction the engine, tender and forward trucks of the special left the rails, but the low speed of the train at that moment prevented a disaster. The accident occurred about forty minutes after the train left the shore and it caused a delay of four hours at the point of the accident. An engine was sent from Red Bank and after some strenuous work on the part of the wrecking crew another start was made. At Red Bank it was found necessary to change engines again causing another delay and it was 5.10 this morning when the special rolled into the North avenue station, or as one man put it "just in time to buy a morning paper."

Fun was the keynote of the excursion from the start and the amusing features were kept up on both sections of the trip. At the shore the excursionists separated in couples and fours and sought diversion in sight seeing and parading along the boardwalk and promptly on the minute of departure the whole crowd was ready to board the train for the homeward ride. It was remarked that it was the longest ride for the money that any of the crowd had ever had.

The train was in charge of Conductor John VanMiddlesworth, Engineer "Bill" Dunavan and Fireman James Harrigan. The train crew, from the conductor down were handsomely treated and will probably remember the Timbo Social Club for many years to come. The oppressive heat did not seem to bother the excursionists.

New Rectory for Bridegroom.

The parishioners of St. Clement's Episcopal church, Brooklyn, of which Rev. Floyd Appleton is the rector, are planning to provide the rector and his bride with a handsome and commodious rectory. When the couple return from their wedding trip they will find the plans for the new building far advanced. Mr. Appleton married one of his Sunday-school teachers, Miss Mildred E. Miller, last Wednesday. The plan for the new rectory originated with Justice E. A. Richards, of the Municipal Court, who is a vestryman of the church. It is believed that the necessary $6,000 will soon be subscribed.

Reception of Piscataway Grads.

The graduates of the public schools of Piscataway township held their annual reception Saturday night at the home of Samuel MacMahon, of New Market. About two hundred were present, including some from East Bound Brook, New Market, South Plainfield and other sections of the township. An informal social time was enjoyed after which light refreshments were served.

HE IS NOT A COUNT, DE FESTETICS SAYS

Gyula de Festetics, of 62 Westervelt avenue, was seen today respecting an article appearing in a New York paper on Saturday morning, of which his private family affairs were the subject. Mr. de Festetics declined to go into the matter with any detail further than to deny every injurious statement that the article contained, and to disavow the title of Count therein conferred upon him and that of countess for his wife. He said he had been a citizen of the United States for forty-four years and that was the only title he had ever assumed, and he was proud to have no other. He appealed through this newspaper to the decent sense of the people of Plainfield, among whom he lived, to form no opinions of him derived from such articles.

In dismissing the subject, Mr. de Festetics said that in the eyes of those who knew the facts he could not be prejudiced, but he maintained that his self-respect and his character as a man of honor forbade him "to resort to newspaper columns as a medium of reply to an intolerable attack" upon him growing out of his family troubles.

Mr. de Festetics has resided here for several years and is held in high esteem by his numerous friends among whom are many of the most prominent men in the city.

MUSICAL SERVICE AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The special musical service given by the choir of the First Baptist church, last night, under the direction of Howard Case, choirmaster, was enjoyed by an unusually large congregation, and by many was considered one of the best yet offered by this choir of well trained voices. The program was an exceptionally good one, affording fine opportunities for the new soprano and contralto, Miss Ruth Harris and Miss Hazel Hattfield, as well as for William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor.

A noteworthy feature was the soprano solo from the "Creation," Haydn, by Miss Harris. Her rendition of that beautiful selection was delightful, showing the wide range and sweetness of her voice. Another pleasing feature was the rendition of "The Thirteenth Pslam," Mendelssohn, by Miss Hattfield, contralto, and chorus. She has a true contralto voice, possessing strength and sweetness, which was heard to the best advantage. The solo parts by Mr. Holmes and Mr. Smith were equally well enjoyed, while the chorus work was up to its usual hign standard. In addition to the solo numbers there were three anthems. During the service Dr. Chambliss gave a short talk taking his text from "The Thirteenth Psalm."

ILLEGAL LIQUOR SELLERS CAUGHT IN BOROUGH RAID.

A carefully planned raid by the borough police yesterday noon resulted in the capture of Mary and Peter Bruno, of 30 Race street, in the act of selling liquor without a license. Just as the raid was made Carmeno Frank was purchasing a schooner of beer. The witnesses who were in the room at the time were Angelo Andriono, Samuel Buseka and Tony Alovy. They were arrested with two others who were later released.

The raid was made by Chief of Police George Weiss, and Marshals Culver, Pope, Keller and Totten, who descended on the premises without previous warning. Eight cases of beer were found by the police.

When the hearing was held before Justice of the Peace Snape this morning, Mrs. Mary Barbaresei furnished $500 bail for Bruno and his wife to await the action of the September grand jury. This is only half the amount of bail required of Frank Linke's driver when arrested for illegally delivering liquor in the borough.

The witnesses will be released in $300 bail if bondsmen can be found. Otherwise they will have to spend the time in jail at the expense of the county. Robert Newton Crane is the counsel for the defense.

Presbytery Meets Here.

The quarterly meeting of the Elizabeth Presbytery will be held tomorrow at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, commencing at 10 o'clock in the morning. Heretofore, the Presbtyery met but twice a year, but at the last session it was decided to meet four times, twice in the spring and twice during the fall and winter.

INJURIES ARE SERIOUS

Armstrong Mulford Pinned Under Automobile Near Perth Amboy.

FRACTIOUS HORSE THE CAUSE.

Animal Jumps at Auto and Kicks Owner in Head—Will Probalby Recover.

Accompanied by three of his friends, Armstrong Mulford, of North avenue, started for Asbury Park yesterday morning in Mr. Mulford's E. M. F. car. At 11 o'clock Mr. Mulford was brought to his home unconscious suffering from wounds received when his car turned over on the road between Metuchen and Perth Amboy. His companions in the ride were H. Morgenstein and William Vandeventer, of New York, and Joseph Angerbauer, of this city. None of his three friends was injured beyond a scratch or two.

From the story of the accident told by Mr. Mulford after regaining consciousness, the car was proceeding at the rate of ten or twelve miles an hour when directly in front of them appeared a fractious colt evidently being broken to sulky. Fearing to collide with the animal Mr. Mulford threw his machine over towards the side of the road and applied the brakes. But thie maneouvre failed to impress the colt any for he made straight for the machine throwing itself at the glass windshield shattering it into a thousand pieces and striking Mr. Mulford on the head with its hoofs.

In endeavoring to avoid this onslaught Mr. Mulford threw his wheel hard over with the result that he went into the ditch alongside the road turning the machine almost completely over. It turned far enough to pin the unfortunate man underneath the steering wheel and forced him to support the entire weight of the car on his chest. The buttons on his vest were so forcibly driven into the flesh that this morning the impressions remained.

The kick from the horse struck Mr. Mulford over the eye rendering him unconscious. Just as the party were picking themselves out of the mud another party of men came along in another car and learning that the injured man was an Elk immediately took charge of the case. They took a statement from the man who owned the horse. This man whose name has not yet been learned here, acknowledged that he was to blame for the accident. The Elks who brought Mr. Mulford to this city failed to identify themselves by giving their names, but it is likely that their timely assistance will not be forgotten by either Mr. Mulford or his wife. Later their names will be discovered.

This morning it was said at the Mulford home that the victim of the accident was progressing nicely and if no complications set in he stands a good chance for recovery. Internal injuries are feared by Dr. Ellis Hedges, the atending physician. Last night Mr. Mulford suffered great pain and had a slight hemmorrahage. The horse was considerably cut about the legs.

NEWARK N.J.

Spirit of the World," was the topic of a strong sermon by the Rev. Geo. Gardner in the First Baptist church yesterday.

There was no session of the C. E. Society of the First Baptist church yesterday owing to the observance of Children's Day in the evening.

"Business Success" formed the subject of an interesting sermon by Rev. E. R. Brown in the Presbyterian church yesterday.

Wm. G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., members are informally discussing special Independence Day celebration.

The ideal weather conditions of yesterday attracted large boating parties from nearby towns to the lake.

Rev. Mr. Martine, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church, is visiting friends in town.

Owing to the rain the baseball game between the locals and the C. R. R. team Saturday, was not played.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The storm Saturday afternoon was the worst one the town has had in many years. Signs and other portable property were blown about the streets, limbs of the shade trees were broken off and a large black walnut tree on the property of Charles Haberly on Front street was blown over. Hail stones, the largest in years, were strewn about like bird's eggs, the electric light circuit was put out of commission for a time, but no one was injured. During the heaviest part of the storm a cow was struck by lightning and killed in the pasture field on the Galbraith farm in Washington valley.

The storm Saturday prevented the game between the local team and Bound Brook, which was to have been played on the latter's diamond. The locals and a crowd of rooters were on hand but the grounds were soon under water and baseball was out of the question. The two teams will meet again in August.

The members of Crescent Commandery, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, together with members from Perseverance and Unity Lodges, of Plainfield, decorated the graves yesterday afternoon of the departed members of the order who are buried in the Baptist cemetery here.

The Bachelors Club holds a shirt waist dance tomorrow night in the hall. These dances which have been held during the winter and spring have become so popular that they are looked forward to with pleasure by the young people, and the warm weather is no bar to the attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith, of Lincoln, were guests over Sunday of Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark, of Front street.

An interesting meeting of the Epworth League was held last night in the Methodist church.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the parlors of the church.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The regular monthly meeting of the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company was held in the fire house on Friday evening. The regular routine business of the company was carried out and plans for the celebration on July 4th discussed. No important business transactions were made.

Children's Day exercises were held last evening in the First Baptist church. An excellent program of songs and recitations was carried out. One of the best features of the program was the solo, "Face to Face," rendered by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Allen.

A play entitled "Diamonds and Hearts," will be presented on next Friday evening, June 24, in Washington Hall. The proceeds will be given to the Fire Company. The cast will consist of entirely local talent and the play should be well worth seeing.

The dance given in the Oak Tree school house for the benefit of the piano fund of the school was a great success. It was well attended by persons from Oak Tree, South Plainfield, Metuchen and Plainfield.

The St. Anthony's Baseball Club, who were scheduled to play here yesterday, failed to show up, thereby disappoining a large crowd of local rooters.

The Union Baseball Club, of New Brunswick, will be seen on the local diamond next Sunday.

Robert Horn, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with his parents here.

Bert Randolph visited out of town friends yesterday.

Salvation Army Tent.

The Salvation Army will establish their tent on Watchung avenue for the summer with an opening service tonight. All are cordially invited to attend. There will be special music and singing.

Miss Elsie Staats, of Newark, has returned home after a visit with Plainfield friends.

EDITORIAL.

"What we mean by preparedness." To be always ready, whatever the season or the stage of the season, with merchandise of a character best suited to meet your immediate requirements, is the definition of the word "preparedness" as we interpret it.

And this is not a simple matter.

Goods must be always new—absolutely down to date—the best that the foreign and domestic markets have to offer. That means that not a single article in the stock of any department can be carried over from one season to another, yet even at the end of the season when preparations for the ensuing period engross most of our attention, stocks of merchandise for your immediate wear—to supply your needs during the transition time, as it were—must remain fully adequate.

This is but one of the many difficulties that we have been obliged to surmount in order that "preparedness" might merit a place among the attributes that characterize this business, devoted to serving your interest.

No Baseball Games.

The local baseball game, between Plainfield and the McNulty Bros.' team, of New York, as well as all other contests in this vicinity, was postponed on account of the storm. The McNulty Bros.' team was at Crescent Oval with the local players, but it was impossible to play on account of the storm.

Finished Among the Leaders.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, of the Plainfield Country Club, finished in the open golf tournament at Philadelphia, Saturday, with a total score of 315 for 72 holes, not quite good enough to get in the money. He was well up among the leaders and played a fine game.

Tennis Events Postponed.

Owing to the severe storm on Saturday all tennis was called off at the Plainfield Country Club, where several important events were scheduled. The play was put off until next Saturday.

AROUND WORLD IN 37 DAYS.

Faster Trains in Russia Shorten the Trip by 24 Hours.

Another hitch has been taken in the tightening girdle of the earth, and the effect is to bring China and Japan one day nearer for he who journeys thither by way of London, Paris, and the Siberian Railroad.

The twenty-four hours have been clipped from the railroad schedule between Moscow and Vladivostock in Russia by doing away with tedious waits at several principal junction points.

Under the new schedule a tourist who leaves London on Monday may reach Yokohama on the second Monday following, or at Shanghai on the second Wednesday, fourteen and sixteen days, respectively.

For the globe trotter wishing to keep right on going west, the new schedule enables him to catch the fast Canadian Pacific steamship leaving Yokohama Tuesdays. Thus in twenty-six days one may journey from London to Vancouver via Vladivostock, and may complete the circling of the globe in thirty-seven days less than half of Phineas Fogg's eighty-day record.

The through train will run only once a week under the new schedule, having been arranged especially to lure tourists to travel by the overland route.

An old-fashioned singing school entertainment will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Friday night, June 24.

WARREN CHAPEL PEOPLE OBSERVE CHILDREN'S DAY.

The children's day exercises held at Warren chapel yesterday morning were considered the best in the history of the school. There were nearly five hundred children and adults present. The chapel was decorated with rambler roses and white daisies. The exercises opened with an organ prelude by Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, the singing of the doxology and the Lord's Prayer in unison. Scripture reading by Rev. J. O. McKelvey and a prayer by Joseph O. Gavett.

A feature was the solo, "The Children's Friend," by Hilda Story. Then followed the baptism of five infants, children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mumford, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leask, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Neher, Mr. and Mrs. George LaMatty, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Thomson.

There was a recitation by five children and one by Josephine Keiderling, after which Mrs. J. O. McKelvey awarded the Junior C. E. Society prizes. Those of the first year who received Bibles were Bertha Martin, Blanche Martin, Hannah Stiglitz, Anna Johnson, and those of the second year, who received gold Junior C. E. pins were Letha Hoagland, Edna Lance, Elston Lance, Elsie Perine, Lillian Smith, Charles and Grace Wakefield. Those on the honorary list, who only missed one or two meetings during the year were Bertha Bodine, Adele Demarest, Elsie Kurzhals, Florence Cornwell.

There was a song by the infant department, recitations by Hannah Stiglitz, Seaman Higgins, Stanley Burner, an anthem by the choir, followed by two five-minute addresses by E. E. Parvin and Rev. J. O. McKelvey. The exercise closed with a hymn, prayer and benediction.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL'S CARNIVAL ON TONIGHT

Watchung Council, K. of C., will open its big carnival tonight at 7 o'clock and will offer an array of midway talent that should please anybody and everybody, so diversified is it in character and presentation. There will be Indians, large and small, old and young; sword fighters from Arabia; magicians from Turkey, musicians from Armenia, an Egyptian priestess, a howling dervish, acrobats, wirewalkers, and all sorts of strange and curious people from a "fat girl" to an African man-eating pygmy war chief. There will be a great array of concessions, a brass band and a big merry-go-round.

The Elizabeth Council of Knights will attend in a body. They will be met at the North Avenue station at 7 o'clock by the local sir knights and escorted to the grounds. The parade will form at the station and will follow the line of march already mentioned in this paper. The local children who will participate in the big Indian tableaux and a brass band will be in line.

No rowdyism will be tolerated. All of the attractions offered are guaranteed to be clean and wholesome and utterly devoid of any objectionable features.

The funeral of John E. Stewart, of Park place, who died suddenly Friday morning, was held yesterday afternoon from the late home. It was private.

which the young instinctively seek is not the outcome of superstition or the craven fear of offending the Deity but it is the natural yearning for and the turning of the child heart to the Father who loves and is capable of entering into every feeling, every aspiration and desire, the longing to be understood, the natural dependence upon God, the obedience to the desire to please him is in turn to merit the favor of man, the regard, the respect; we all crave it and seek it; a word of disrespect, a sneer or a jeer that shows that we have not the favor of our fellow men may turn our day into bitterness and unhappiness, but to merit the approval and the words of praise and sympathy which another can give is the incentive to greater effort and ministers to our joy and peace.

We may say then after the development of the life and character of Jesus that it is characterized by its essential humaness and naturalness.

It is one with the life of others of the human race, there is nothing forced, nothing of infantine wonders of sagacity precocity or such that disturbed a peaceful quiet and industrious existence, nothing so far as we can learn done for show or effect, in no way do we see that curious anatomy, the child prodigy. No, the Son of God, the man Jesus, lived quietly for thirty years of his life in a little obscure out of the way place whose only claim to distinction was its reputation for evil so people said, can anything good come out of Nazareth?

How shall we acquire it? I find first of all that there was nothing forced in the life of Jesus.

What a beautiful lession those thirty years of quiet are to present to a world feverish in its haste and superficial, aye, artificial in its culture. Our day and time is the hot house culture of a superficial knowledge, a few facts gleaned and we attribute that to a clever manipulator of facts as wisdom; and my dear friends the wisdom which belong to life, and character spring out of study, reflection, meditation and the test of living according to the truths we have gleaned and reflected upon. Composure, strength, self-control, they all have their root in the quiet unseen times left to us for thoughtfulness and meditation. Thirty years of preparation, thing of it and then the life at the outset was tested by the sharpest temptations. Youth is the time of impetuosity and one is eager to begin the battle. Do you suppose in the days of Christ that the great outside world was not calling out to him; that there were not evils to be righted and wrongs to be redressed. The wickedness of his own city, the hypocrisy of priestcraft, the hollowness of social life, all cried out to a man who so loved other men that he finally laid down his life for them. But he must be fully prepared and we find him exercising a wise restrain and patiently waiting until he was fit to cope with the evil.

I presume among my hearers today are many full of an eager impetuosity, who can scarce wait to begin the work of life or show the world what a bright light is to burst upon it and set the wrongs right. Not for one moment would I dampen the ardour, the flame of idealism must be kept alive; there is work to be done, wrongs to be redressed miserable social conditions to be set right, but this work, this redressing of human wrongs, this bettering of conditions might better continue to exist a few years longer than that you should only in fancied strength and immature power, only half ready spring into the arena. That means disaster to the cause and destruction to self. Increase in wisdom. Wisdom is not knowledge. Wisdom requires earnestness and love. Give me, said Solomon "a wise and an understanding heart." It is more blessed to give than receive. Prudence never dictated that, wisdom did. Stature—the place athletics hold favor with God and man.

Olin Bryan.

Members of the Board of Trade along the line of the Jersey Central, mayors of the city and borough and representatives of both places will gather for a social time at the Board of Trade rooms Thursday evening, to close the half year of work. Olin Bryan, corporation counsel of Baltimore for four years, will speak on "Government By Commission." Mr. Bryan has served in both branches of the Maryland Legislature and is president of the National Fraternal Lawyers Association. He is general counsel of the Improved Order of Heptasophs and is a relative of William Jennings Bryan.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Bayonne Board of Education has voted to abolish all school annexes June 30.

Millville's two smallpox patients have recovered and the quarantine has been lifted.

The West Jersey camp meeting will open at Malaga on August 10, and continue until August 22.

Arthur Finch, nine years old, of 35 Senate place, Jersey City, may lose the sight of his right eye. A blank cartridge was held by a playmate, John O'Neill, of 33 Senate place, when it exploded, the contents entering Arthur's eyeball.

Maurice Gabriel, the six-year-old son of Abraham Gabriel, of Bridgeton Turnpike, Bridgeton, fell under a wagon Saturday when a horse became unmanageable, and the wheels passing over him, fractured two ribs and otherwise injured him.

Louis Carew, aged twenty-two years, was arrested in Pitman, Saturday, charged with atrocious assault and battery on Mary Morley, a young woman in the employ of a family living on West avenue, Woodbury. He denied the charge.

Two amateur diamond thieves who worked their game in Trenton, but whose ambition to excel finally brought them into the clutches of the police, were disposed of by Judge Gnichtel in Mercer Court Friday. John Hummelbright, of Philadelphia, was sent to the Rahway Reformatory and find $25 and costs, and John Bair, also of Philadelphia, was placed in the charge of the probation officer.

Alleging that he was unjustly arrested and severely beaten without cause, Edward Marshall, of East Camden, instituted suit in the Supreme Court against Albert Fisher, a Salem County constable. Marshall, who asked $5,000 damages, charged that he was knocked down, kicked and punched and then placed in the town lock-up by Fisher when he called on the constable at Pennsgrove seeking information about a boy who had been arrested.

Howard McWilliams Will Teach.

The William N. Runyon Bible class of Hope chapel, was addressed yesterday by Howard McWilliams, of Hillside avenue. Mr. McWilliams will continue to act as teacher of the class for the present. During the latter part of July he will leave for Europe, where he wil join Mrs. McWilliams and children, who left last week for an extended trip abroad.

OAK TREE.

Communion services were held at Marconnier chapel yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale was assisted by Elder H. E. Gayle and Deacon A. K. Willett, of Trinity Reformed church. There were forty-three communicants. During the service Mrs. Rowland Leveridge presided at the piano and Miss Rose DeForest sang a solo.

Judge Runyon's Bible Class.

City Judge William N. Runyon took charge of the men's Bible class at the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday for the first, and he was greeted by twenty-five men, who expressed their pleasure that Mr. Runyon was to be the teacher. There is every indication that the class will continue to grow and eventually become one of the largest in the city.

—Stephen O. Staats, of West Second street, is the latest Plainfielder to become an autoist. He has purchased a Mitchell machine.

ORGANIZED AUTOMOBILE ASSOCIATION AT NEWTON.

In order to perfect an organization of automobilists who desire to obtain better roads and a more universal observance of the municipal statutes and ordinances regulating automobile traffic, several members of the Plainfield Automobile Club motored to Newton on Saturday and met with the members of the Newton Club in the Newton Court House.

Those who went from here were compelled through the condition of the roads after the storm to remain until yesterday morning. Twenty-six members were present and listened to speeches by J. H. Wood, president of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey; J. H. Edwards, vice president, and G. H. Post, a director in the organization.

Harry W. Marshall, H. T. Todd, W. J. Hudson and Marcus Hoyt, of this city, attended the meeting and it is certain that conditions governing automobile traffic in the cities of the State and roads over which the machines must travel will be improved. It is the object of the assocation to have all automobile clubs co-operate in furthering the improvements in roads as well as to encourage the membership in seeing that the rules of the road as well as speed laws are observed.

PLANS FOR BIG FOURTH.

New Providence, June 19.—Independence Day will be celebrated in Berkeley Heights under the auspices of the Board of Education. At a special meeting of that body Friday night a committee was formed to plan for the celebration. The expenses, which will probably be no less than $150, will be raised by subscription. If the necessary money cannot be raised the plans will be dropped. The committee of six, composed of William Jeffery, chairman; Simon P. Debbie, Frank C. Shaffer, Angelo Del Duco, Charles Springsteen and Robert Rogers, will meet at the residence of Township Committeeman Frank C. Shaffer next Wednesday evening to make plans.

There being a question over the salary to be paid to Mr. Lose, principal of the Diamond Hill School, a resolution has been adopted making his pay $720 for the ten months.

A resolution was passed that placed the question of the occupancy of School No. 3 by the Republican Club, in the hands of the Audit and Finance Committee, the president of the board and the board's attorney, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Hetfield, of Plainfield.

Injured Playing Golf.

While playing golf on the links of the Westfield Golf Club yesterday morning, Herbert W. Stover, of West Sixth street, missed the shot with his cleek, striking his ankle with the brass headed club. The stroke broke a couple of ligaments in his foot which will confine him to his home for the next three weeks.

Will Hold a Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Plainfield Graded Union of Sunday-school Teachers will be held on Thursday, June 30, at the home of Mrs. C. Frank French on Washington avenue. All members are urged to attend as there will be business of importance.

Grammar School Exercises.

The commencement exercises of the grammar school will be held in the High School auditorium on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This announcement was made this morning by Superintendent Henry M. Maxson.

THROW AWAY THE MASK, SAYS REV. MR. MAGUIRE

"If the masks of the unregenerate of this congregation were removed, it would look more like the gate to hell than to heaven," declared Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night. The preacher had taken as a subject for his sermon, "Masks," and he handled his topic without gloves. He made the sweeping assertion that nearly everyone is masquerading and that people are too prone to hide behind a mask.

Pastor Maguire based his remarks on the story in the Old Testament of the Bible which tells of the wife of the king of Israel appearing on one occasion wearing a mask. She was upbraided and asked why she appeared in the guise of another.

Elaborating on this story, Mr. Maguire gave a plain, straightforward talk about the evils of masquerading, urging his hearers to appear in their true light and not be wolves in sheep's clothes. The congregation, a large one, necessitating the opening of the Sunday-school rooms, was deeply impressed with Mr. Maguire's words and he held the close attention of all for nearly an hour.

Getting Consolation

"I used to think, before I married Fred," said the agitated young woman, "that I wanted a musician." She shook her head and gazed around the small circle dramatically.

"And now," said the unmarried girl, "I suppose you're so supremely satisfied that you don't notice any lack?"

The circle of young matrons laid down their embroidery and regarded her with scorn.

"Indeed!" they remarked, collectively.

"But—but—" stammered the unmarried girl. "I thought you were all happily wedded?"

"So we are!" they chimed, indignantly.

"Then why—" began the unmarried girl, in perplexity.

The girl who had married Fred waved the others to silence.

"She doesn't understand, that's all," she explained. "Why should she? Let me tell you about some of my domestic troubles.

"If I had actually married a professional musician, such as I dreamed about at matinee recitals at the age of 17," explained the girl who had married Fred, "he'd be a lamenting widower by this time, that's certain—lyrically, of course. At least, I hope he'd lament. If the professional ones are as much more 'temperamental' than the amateurs—well, pity their families, my dear!"

"Has Fred turned musical?" ventured the timid young matron in mauve broadcloth.

"Has he!" echoed Fred's bride. "I should say he has! Pardon me for repeating your question, but I'm rather agitated to-day. Fred thinks he's developing a tenor voice, and nothing damaging that I can say seems to have any weight against the advice of the curious friends he's acquired lately."

"Tenors are always the worst," murmured the unmarried girl, reminiscently.

The girl who had married Fred pounced upon her eagerly. "Have you suffered from it, too?" she cried.

The unmarried girl nodded. "My brother," she explained. "But he's over it now."

"Are Fred's new friends musicians?" asked the timid matron in mauve.

"I think so, judging from their looks," said the girl who had married Fred. "My dear girls, I wish you could have seen the specimen Fred brought home to dinner last night. Perfectly impossible! We happened to have a particularly good dinner, and, of course, I was glad of that, but when I saw him I decided it was quite unnecessary to hurry out and put on my best bouillon cups—that's always my first instinct when I have unexpected company."

The circle nodded.

"Of course," conceded the girl who had married Fred, "Fred has to have somebody to play accompaniments for him, I suppose, and I don't know a sharp from a flat myself. Anyway, he was wild about this creature.

"'Isn't he magnificent?' Fred said to me, after the person had gone—he left an umbrella and a pair of overshoes, by the way, so I expect he'll come again. 'Isn't he a genius?' Fred asked me. 'Did you notice how he subordinated himself?'

"'I did not,' I replied. 'He is as big as a house, and he lounged over the whole room, and he had on a green and purple necktie.'

"'But I was speaking of his accompaniment,' explained Fred. 'His technique is superb. He fairly makes a fellow do his best.'

"Well," breathed the circle, sympathetically, "do you have much of that sort of thing?"

The girl who had married Fred nodded, gloomily. Then she brightened. "Every cloud has a silver lining," she remarked. "I tell Fred that I'm glad to have some balm for my wounded feelings. He applied for active membership in the Beethoven Choral club."

"And they took him?" cried the timid matron in mauve broadcloth.

"Oh, no," said the girl who had married Fred, smiling happily. "They rejected him with considerable emphasis, and he had to console himself by taking out an associate life membership instead. I like the Beethoven Choral club myself to the extent of having four seats for every concert. We'll take you all," she ended, generously. "I'll make up a party of strictly ignorant people—and we'll have supper afterward."

Phosphorescent Photographs.

Phosphorescent photographs have an image consisting of white calcium sulphide, which shines in the dark after being exposed to luminous rays. The process requires care, but a French authority states that there is no real difficulty. Into a moderately warm solution of one ounce of gelatine in ten ounces of water, 50 grains of potassium bichromate and 200 grains of phosphorescent calcium sulphide are stirred. This solution is used to coat a film of plain celluloid, and after drying the plate thus prepared is exposed under a positive for about the time needed for a carbon print. Warm water is the developer.

Wants Information.

Medical Perils.

In Peloochistan, when a physician gives a dose, he is expected to partake of a similar one himself as a guarantee of his good faith. Should the patient die under his hands, the relatives though they rarely exercise it, have the right of putting him to death, unless a special agreement has been made freeing him from all responsibility as to consequences; while, if they should decide upon immolating him, he is fully expected to yield to his fate like a man.

Stick to Your Business.

Stick to your legitimate business. Do not go into outside operations. Few men have brains for more than one thing. To dabble in stocks, put a few thousand dollars in a mine, a few more into a factory and a few more into an invention is enough to ruin any man. Do not be greedy. Be content with fair returns. Make friends. All the money in the world is not worth so much to you as one good stanch friend.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Elected in a Belfry.

The ceremony of electing a mayor in a belfry was performed according to ancient custom in the parish church of Brightlingsea, when Mr. Arthur Lucas was chosen in succession to Rev. Arthur Petwee, vicar of Brightlingsea, and six mariners who had married Brightlingsea women were admitted freemen of the port on payment of 11 pennies into the treasury.—London Standard.

Man's Rare Forethought.

An extraordinary case of suicide has set all the people of Beziers, France, a-talking. The victim was Henri Felaquier, an engraver, who was to have been married in a few days. In a letter left by the suicide he stated that he had taken his own life because he was afraid that, owing to his peevish disposition, he might make his wife unhappy.

Salaries of Army Officers.

The pay of officers in active service in the army is: Lieutenant-general, $11,000 a year; major-general, $8,000; brigadier-general, $6,000; colonel, $4,000; lieutenant-colonel, $3,500; major, $3,000; captain, $2,400; first lieutenant, $2,000, and second lieutenant, $1,700. From colonel down the payment is increased every five years.

Missionaries to China Worry.

It is a matter of grave concern to the missionaries and other permanent residents of China to observe from year to year the increasing cost of living, which, of course, includes every item of household expense. Double and treble the prices are asked that were paid 10 years ago.

Nature's Peculiarities.

Breweries and tanneries and printing ink factories confer exemption from tuberculosis and employes in turpentine factories never have rheumatism. Copper mining excludes the possibility of typhoid among the workers.—Harper's Weekly.

Fooled the Brokers.

Members of the London Stock Exchange were trimmed by a fake selling "imitations" of common almond nuts at two cents each. But the "imitations" turned out to be real nuts, showing that brokers know more about melons than nuts.

54-40 OR Fight

By Emerson Hough

Author of The Mississippi Bubble

(Copyright, 1909, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

"certainly! The particeps criminis of our bungled wedding—of course I know her!"

"I only want to say," I remarked, "that the Baroness von Ritz has that little shell clasp now all for her own, and that I have her slipper again, all for my own. So now, we three—no, four—at last understand one another, do we not? Jack, will you do two things for me?"

"All of them but two."

"When the Baroness von Ritz insists on her intention of leaving us—just at the height of all our happiness—I want you to hand her to her carriage. In the second place, I may need you again—"

"Well, what would any one think of that!" said Jack Dandridge.

I never knew when these two left us in the crowd. I never said good-by to Helena von Ritz. I did not catch that last look of her eye. I remember her as she stood there that night, grave, sweet and sad.

I turned to Elizabeth. There in the crash of the reeds and brasses, the rise and fall of the sweet and bitter conversation all around us, was the comedy and the tragedy of life.

"Elizabeth," I said to her, "are you not ashamed?"

She looked me full in the eye. "No!" she said, and smiled.

I have never seen a smile like Elizabeth's.

EPILOGUE.

'Tis the Star Spangled Banner; O, long may it wave,
O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave!
—Francis Scott Key.

On the night that Miss Elizabeth Churchill gave me her hand and her heart forever—for which I have not yet ceased to thank God—there began the guns of Palo Alto. Later, there came the fields of Monterey, Buena Vista, Cerro Gordo, Contreras, Cherubusco, Molino del Rey—at last the guns sounded at the gate of the old City of Mexico itself. Some of that fighting I myself saw; but much of the time I was employed in that manner of special work which had engaged me for the last few years. It was through Mr. Calhoun's agency that I reached a certain importance in these matters; and so I was chosen as the commissioner to negotiate a peace with Mexico.

This honor later proved to be a dangerous and questionable one. Gen. Scott wanted no interference of this kind, especially since he knew Mr. Calhoun's influence in my choice. He thwarted all my attempts to reach the headquarters of the enemy, and did everything he could to secure a peace of his own, at the mouth of the cannon. I could offer no terms better than Mr. Buchanan, then our secretary of state, had prepared for me, and these were rejected by the Mexican government at last. I was ordered by Mr. Polk to state that we had no better terms to offer; and as for myself, I was told to return to Washington. At that time I could not make my way out through the lines, nor, in truth, did I much care to do so.

A certain event not written in history influenced me to remain for a time at the little village of Gaudalupe Hidalgo. Here, in short, I received word from a lady whom I had formerly known, none less than Senora Yturrio, once a member of the Mexican legation at Washington. True to her record, she had again reached influential position in her country, using methods of her own. She told me now to pay no attention to what had been reported by Mexico. In fact, I was approached again by the Mexican commissioners, introduced by her! What was done then is history. We signed then and there the peace of Gaudalupe Hidalgo, in accordance with the terms originally given me by our secretary of state. So, after all, Calhoun's kindness to a woman in distress was not lost; and so, after all, he unwittingly helped in the ending of the war he never wished begun.

Meantime, I had been recalled to Washington, but did not know the nature of that recall. When at last I arrived there I found myself disgraced and discredited. My actions were repudiated by the administration. I myself was dismissed from the service without pay—sad enough blow for a young man who had been married less than a year.

Mr. Polk's jealousy of John Calhoun was not the only cause of this. Calhoun's prophecy was right. Yet, none the less, after his usual fashion, he was not averse to receiving such credit as he could. He put the responsibility of the treaty upon the senate! It was debated hotly there for some weeks, and at last, much to his surprise and my gratification, it was ratified!

The north, which had opposed this Mexican war—that same war which inter led inevitably to the Civil War now found itself unable to say much against the great additions to our domain which the treaty had secured. We paid fifteen millions, in addition to our territorial indemnity claim, and we got a realm whose wealth could not be computed. So much, it must be owned, did fortune do for that singular favorite, Mr. Polk. And, curiously enough, the smoke had hardly cleared from Palo Alto field before Abraham Lincoln, a young member in the house of congress, was introducing a resolution which asked the marking of "the spot where that outrage was committed." Perhaps it was an outrage. Many still hold it so. But let us reflect what would have been Lincoln's life had matters not gone just as they did.

With the cessions from Mexico came the great domain of California. Now, look how strangely history sometimes works out itself. Had there been any suspicion of the discovery of gold in California, neither Mexico nor our republic ever would have owned it! England surely would have taken it. The very year that my treaty eventually was ratified was that in which gold was discovered in California! But it was too late then for England to interfere; too late then, also, for Mexico to claim it. We got untold millions of treasure there. Most of those millions went to the northern states, into manufactures, into commerce. The north owned that gold; and it was that gold which gave the north the power to crush that uprising which was born of the Mexican war—that same uprising by which England, too late, would gladly have seen this union disrupted, so that she might have yet another chance at these lands she now had lost for ever.

Fate seemed still to be with us, after all, as I have so often had occasion to believe may be a possible thing. That war of conquest which Mr. Calhoun opposed, that same war which grew out of the slavery tenets of his otherwise splendid public life—found its own correction in the civil war. It was the gold of California which put down slavery. Thenceforth slavery has existed legally only north of the Mason and Dixon line!

We have our problems yet. Perhaps some other war may come to settle them. Fortunate for us if there could be another California, another Texas, another Oregon, to help us pay for them!

I, who was intimately connected with many of these less known matters, claim for my master a reputation wholly different from that given to him in any garbled "history" of his life. I lay claim in his name for foresight beyond that of any man of his time. He made mistakes, but he made them bravely, grandly, and consistently. Where his convictions were enlisted, he had no reservations, and he used every means, every available weapon, as I have shown. But he was never self-seeking, never cheap, never insincere. A detester of all machine politicians, he was a statesman worthy to be called the William Pitt of the United States. The consistency of his career was a marvelous thing, because, though he changed in his beliefs, he was first to recognize the changing conditions of our country. He failed, and he is execrated. He won, and he is forgot.

My chief, Mr. Calhoun, did not die until some six years after that first evening when Dr. Ward and I had our talk with him. He was said to have died of a disease of the lungs, yet here again history is curiously mistaken. Mr. Calhoun slept himself away. I sometimes think with a shudder that perhaps this was the revenge which Nemesis took of him for his mistakes. His last days were dreamlike in their passing. His last speech in the senate was read by one of his friends, as Dr. Ward had advised him. Some said afterwards that his illness was that accursed "sleeping sickness" imported from Africa with these same slaves. It were a strange thing had John Calhoun indeed died of his error! At least he slept away. At least, too, he made his atonement. The south, following his doctrines, itself was long accursed of this same sleeping sickness; but in the providence of God it was not lost to us, and is ours for a long and splendid history.

It was through John Calhoun, a grave and somber figure of our history, that we got the vast land of Texas. It was through him also—and not through Clay nor Jackson, nor any of the northern statesmen, who never could see a future for the west—that we got all of our vast northwest realm. Within a few days after the Palo Alto ball, a memorandum of agreement was signed between Minister Pakenham and Mr. Buchanan, our secretary of state. This was done at the instance and by the aid of John Calhoun. It was he—he and Helena von Ritz—who brought about that treaty which, on June 15, of the same year, was signed, and gladly signed, by the minister from Great Britain. The latter had been fully enough impressed (such was the story) by the reports of the columns of our westbound farmers, with rifles leaning at their wagon seats and plows lashed to the tail-gates. Calhoun himself never ceased to regret that we could not delay a year or two years longer. In this he was thwarted by the impetuous war with the republic on the south, although, had that never been fought, we had lost California—lost also the south, and lost the Union!

of the uncertainty of results attending the administration of an estate by individuals was furnished not long ago when a young boy, the beneficiary, was defrauded out of his inheritance by relatives who should have been the very ones to protect him.

Automobile Endurance Run.

In Saturday's endurance run, which was admitted to be one of the toughest runs ever made, two of the three Buick cars entered made perfect scores; and the third one was only penalized for time, which was caused by a blockade of traffic at Broad and Market streets, Newark. Out of the sixteen perfect scores in the "Montauk Light Run" four were Buick cars, and a fifth was the Welch-Detroit, a Buick product. That looks pretty good for Buick cars, doesn't it? A model 10, $1,000 Buick, in this run, made an average of 26 miles on one gallon of gasolene, and 100 miles on one quart of oil, which is pretty good proof that the model 10 Buick is designed and built to run at a lower cost of upkeep, mile for mile, than any other car regardless of price or horsepower. **

THUNDER STORM STOPPED GOLF PLAY SATURDAY

The thunder storm on Saturday put a damper on golf in this vicinity. It has always been the boast of golfers that they can play the game in any kind of weather, but the driving storm chased them to shelter Saturday afternoon and only one card was returned for the Spring Handicap Cups at the Plainfield Country Club. There was a large field out with promise of some mighty fine scores. Many of the players got soaked thoroughly before reaching shelter. The storm did no damage at the country club besides tearing away a portion of the awning at the clubhouse.

Early in the day there was the play for the June trophy, Classes A and B. In the first class, C. C. Burke defeated R. G. Morse, 5 up, while Arthur Murphy defeated H. R. Stockson, 3 up and 1 to play. In Class B, George S. Clay won his match by default and Hugh F. Fox and A. W. Kleinecke were all even at the finish which will necessitate a playoff this week.

At the Park Golf Club a large number of players had just started out when the storm broke over the course. They hastily beat a retreat to the clubhouse but did not reach there before getting a good drenching. The players after changing their clothing spent the afternoon at the clubhouse in a social way and refreshments were served.

NASH-CAMPBELL TEAM WINS ANOTHER VICTORY

In their return match with Matthews and Schaub at the local alleys on Saturday night, Nash and Campbell defeated their opponents, winning five out of seven games.

Campbell averaged 207.3 for the seven games and Matthews 195.1.

The scores:

Nash	178	198	147	194
Campbell	198	210	226	169
	376	408	373	363
Nash	201	169	157
Campbell	227	214	208

Schaub	179	214	170
Matthews	218	192	188
	397	406	358

In an individual match Campbell disposed of Matthews with the following scores:

Campbell	194	238	216

MISS L. M. RANDOLPH WEDS H. M. WINTERS.

Miss Louise May Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner F. Randolph, of 327 Clinton avenue, and Harry Winters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Winters, of South Plainfield, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, pastor of Marconnier chapel, officiated. The couple was attended by Miss Sadie Randolph, sister of the bride, and Howard B. Elliott, a relative of the groom.

The couple left Plainfield immediately after the ceremony for Yorktown Heights, N. Y., where the groom has purchased a large farm, and where they will reside in the future. Formerly Mr. Winters was engaged in farming at South Plainfield.

Not in Plainfield Theatre.

The city High School commencement exercises will be held in the First Baptist church Thursday night, and not in the Plainfield theatre as was stated in one line of an article on the commencement Saturday. The borough High School exercises will be held in the Plainfield theatre, Friday night.

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., assistant prosecutor, returned today from Atlantic City, where with Prosecutor C. Addison Swift, he attended the annual meeting of the State Bar Association.

FOUR HUNDRED AT OPEN AIR MEETING

Nearly four hundred people, both men and women gathered in the grove to the left of the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon, when David Hughes, a Welsh Evangelist, gave a twenty-minute talk on the "Heroes of Plainfield."

The talk was a part of the first Y. M. C. A. outdoor meetings of the year and if this meeting may be taken as a prophecy of what may be expected in the future, the series this year bids fair to be a greater success than any similar series ever conducted by the association.

The grove is a natural amphitheatre and the audience ranged themselves on the incline on the grass. In the hollow directly in front the speaker, the secretary of the association, and the four musicians sat on an improvised platform.

Mr. Hughes was especially dramatic in the presentation of his subject. His text was, "The Saints of Caesar's Household Salute You." "If," he said, "it was possible for men to be Christians in the time of ancient Rome, it is possible for men to be Christians now." Then he cited striking incidents of ancient history, such as fifty Christians mantaining their courage and fortitude while about to be devoured in a den of lions. All this he showed illustrated the depth of the feeling for Christianity that held sway over the early Christians.

Music was furnished by E. Guest, A. H. Osmun, and E. D. Young, cornetists, and Charles L. Lewis, vocal soloist. Hymns were sung by all present.

It is planned to have F. H. Jacobs, who was associated with Dwight L. Moodey, speak next Sunday at the second open air meeting.

After luncheon they drove through Duke's Park and later visited the Senator's dairy farm.

After the storm they autoed to White House and return. Among those present were James Kearney, Edward J. Burke, Francis B. Lee, Charles A. Ransom, executive clerk to the Governor; Mayor Charles Fisk, of Plainfield; Upton S. Jeffries, John L. O'Toole, and Charles Bateman, of Somerville.

YOUNG HUBBARD HELD FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Joseph Hubbard, the seventeen-year-old youth who it is alleged robbed Walter Lewis, a gardener in the employ of the Central Railroad on Friday night, was held to await the action of the October grand jury, by City Judge Runyon this morning. The amount of the bond was fixed at $300.

At the hearing this morning Hubbard told a story of certain practices of Lewis which caused Judge Runyon to call in another boy for corroboration, but in spite of the story he was not convinced that Lewis had done anything wrong or that he had attempted to inveigle the boys into sin.

PRESBYTERY IN SESSION

Ninetieth Stated Meeting of Elizabeth District Held Here Today.

MUCH BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

Rev. James H. Northrop, of Perth Amboy, Serves As Moderator—Some Papers Read and Reports Received.

The ninetieth stated meeting of the Presbytery of Elizabeth was held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church today. The session began shortly after 10 o'clock with a devotional service led by Rev. James H. Northrup, of Perth Amboy, as moderator. No members were dismissed and the one new member received was Rev. L. Y. Graham, of Philadelphia North Presbytery, who will be installed in the First Presbyterian church, of Rahway, on Friday night.

Most of the morning session was taken up in the hearing of reports of the special committees. Rev. William Hoppaugh, of Springfield, read a paper on "The Religious Instruction of Children." In his report on the debt of the First Presbyterian church, of Elizabeth, Rev. E. D. Smith said that the fund had been increased. The Rev. James Northrup reported that Rev. L. B. Crane had been installed at Perth Amboy. Two reports of standing committees were read. One "On Church Extension and Synodical Home Missions," was made by Rev. J. T. Kerr, of the Third Presbyterian church, of Elizabeth and one on "Temperance" was given by Rev. James G. Mason, of Metuchen. The latter suggested several plans of getting young Sunday-school children to sign the pledge as a means of fighting the liquor evil. He also included the sin of profanity and the smoking habit in his talk.

It was reported that two members had received the degree of doctor of divinity during the year. Rev. J. T. Reeve, of Basking Ridge, got his degree from Lenox College, Iowa, and Rev. J. T. Kerr got his degree from Worcester University, of Ohio. At 12:30 o'clock the meeting adjourned for an hour before resuming the afternoon session. Luncheon was served in the chapel of the church by the women of the church.

Resuming their session this afternoon, Rev. Mr. Ferguson gave a report on "Sabbath Observance," and Rev. Mr. Stuchell read a report on "Evangelistic Work." Rev. Mr. Whitaker spoke on "The Presbyterian Brotherhood," and the report of the Commissioners to the General Assembly was given by Rev. Mr. Howard, Rev. Mr. Tildon, Rev. Mr. Coles and Rev. Mr. Bouton.

Several proposed amendments to the standing rules were then made and the remainder of the session was taken up in the transaction of business of a routine nature.

HE GOT WHAT HE WANTED BUT WILL HAVE TO BE GOOD.

"Judge, youah honoh, I pleads guilty, but if yo' please I'd like to make an explanashun," said Sheridan Jones to Judge William N. Runyon in the city court this morning. "W'en was I here last, sir?"

"On August 12, 1909," replied the judge.

"Well, judge I sure has been doin' well since den an' I got a good job now an' I don't want to go down de road, so ef you will let me report Saturday nights here at de station house I sure will be good."

Judge Runyon ssemed to believe that the colored man was in earnest and imposed a fine of ten dollars which Mr. Jones will have to pay in installments of two dollars a week, reporting every Saturday night at police headquarters and leaving two dollars to liquidate his indebtedness to the city. It looks like a good probationary measure and will insure the payment of the fine. If Jones defaults, he will likely get a trip down the road. Jones was accussed of being helplessly drunk on South Second street last night.

Overlack in Trouble.

Borough Recorder Dolliver gave Matthew Overlack, a furniture dealer of Duer street, a suspended sentence for being drunk and disorderly at his home. The arrest was made last night at his home by Marshal Charles Ke er. Mrs. Overlack appeared in court to testify against her husband.

Joseph Hubbard Released.

Joseph Hubbard, the youth charged with robbing Walter Lewis of a sum of money on last Friday night, was released this morning bail in the sum of $300 having been furnished by Charles H. Dutcher.

CANNON ACCUSES FOWLER; BURIED FINANCIAL BILL

During the session of the National House at Washington Saturday, Speaker Cannon surrendered the gavel to Representative Mann, and, in an address from the floor, defended the present rules as fair and mercilessly scored his critics.

The Speaker talked nearly half an hour. He singled out Representative Fowler, of New Jersey, now an insurgent, and the Speaker's inveterate foe on the floor, as an object of criticism.

The Speaker told the House that the most flagrant exhibition of the burying of a bill in committee was done by the former chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency (Mr. Fowler) when the Vreeland Financial bill was put to sleep, and that it was only through the action of a Republican caucus, which demanded its report to the House, that it was ever dragged forth from hiding.

The venerable Speaker was greeted with cheers from his Republican colleagues when he had concluded. Representative Cooper, of Wisconsin, one of the leading insurgents, attempted to reply, but Mr. Towney objected and no one had an opportunity to answer the Speaker's arguments.

JOHNSTON'S DRIVE FOR HILL CLIMBING CONTEST

Steps were taken last night at a conference of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society, with the Township Committee, Freeholders, representatives of the Plainfield Auto Club and Mayor N. B. Smalley, held at Maul's Hotel, to improve Johnston's Drive and made it an ideal hill-climbing course not only for the event on July 9, but for future contests and for the general advancement of the sport.

A committee was appointed by the Township Committee, comprising H. A. Todd, representing the Plainfield Auto Club; C. E. Neier, of the Improvement Society; Freeholder William Demler and Town Committeemen Archibold and T. H. A. Leurssen to undertake the work of improving the hill road.

The mater was thoroughly discussed at the meeting and it was decided to introduce a system whereby it will be possible to telephone at interval points along the Drive during the days for the trials and on the day for the hill-climbing contest, to warn any who may be driving over that road.

PLAINFIELD TO HAVE SAFE AND SANE 4TH

The Common Council, at its adjourned session, last night, adopted on third reading the much-discussed fireworks ordinance, but the vote was not unanimous. Councilmen Montgomery, C. C. Randolph and Tolles voting against a "safe and sane Fourth."

When Mr. Holt moved for the adoption of the ordinance on third reading, Mr. Montgomery stated that he would vote against the ordinance, because he did not believe that the people of Plainfield want it; and that it was not a well considered measure, and that the action was too hasty. He said that he had heard many opinions adverse to the adoption of the ordinance as it does not prohibit the sale of fireworks. The member said that in Massachusetts the character of the fireworks allowed is defined in an ordinance and this, he said, seems to be lacking in the local measure.

In reply to Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Mygatt said that there was a delegation before the Common Council recently, and every one favored and urged the proposed ordinance. He felt sure it met with popular approval.

Mr. Montgomery said that in his opinion the loosely wrapped firecrackers are as dangerous as any other kind, but Mr. Clay replied that a prominent dealer in New York informed him that the large loosely wrapped cracker is not dangerous, and in addition Mr. Clay said that one of the local dealers informed the Council that every care would be exercised in the sale of fireworks on the Fourth, again meeting Mr. Montgomery's criticism. The ordinance was then adopted, Councilmen Taylor, Mygatt, Clay, Wilson, Gloak and Holt voting in favor and Councilmen Montgomery, C. C. Randolph and Tolles against.

ORDER SPECIAL ELECTION

Voters to Decide Whether Balloting Machines Shall Be Abolished.

TUESDAY, JULY 26, THE DATE.

The Common Councilmen Vote Unanimously To Give People Right Conferred by the Act of 1908.

The Common Council at its adjourned meeting last night, granted the request of the petitioners for a special election for the abolition of the voting machines in the first districts of each of the four wards, and Tuesday, July 26, was the date fixed for such election. This action was taken following the presentation of a second petition from each district of the four wards, signed by at least twenty-five per cent of the voters in those districts.

A few weeks ago the original petition was presented, but at that time the Common Council decide to take no action and allow the petitioners to mandamus the city if they so desired. Later an argument was made before the city fathers by G. W. V. Moy, counsel for the petitioners, and the original petition was withdrawn with the understanding that another one would be presented last night. This was done and a delegation of local Democrats, including LeRoy J. Ellis, Patrick Reville, J. O. Stevens, as well as G. W. V. Moy, representing the Progressive Republicans, was present.

Mr. Holt, of the laws and ordinance committe, presented a resolution, granting the request of the petitioners and fixing July 26 as the date for the election. The election will be held in all respects the same as any other election, except that only the voters in the first districts of the four wards, where the voting machines are located, will take part in the election. All the members voted in favor of Mr. Holt's resolution.

tion. It is largely due to the persevering efforts og Mr. Moy that the election was ordered.

OFFERED CURTISS FLIGHT TO MERCHANTS FOR $2,000.

Because there was not a quorum at the meeting of the Merchants' Association last night only an informal talk was had by the three members who did show up. These were F. A. Duttenhofer, Herbert Schuldenfrei and M. C. VanArsdale.

A communication from the retail butchers was read in which the latter organization asked that the half-holiday be changed from Thursday to Friday. While it was impossible owing to lack of a quorum to give an official answer to this proposition it seemed to be the opinion of the members present that the change would not be advisable because Thursday is the acknowledged excursion day and on that day of the week there is little actual business during the summer months.

An alleged representative of Glenn Curtiss, the aviator, made a proposition for an appropriation of $2,000 for flights in this city and being turned down immediately blew right out again. Apparently flying around the housetops for the excitement of the thing does not appeal to the merchants.

All-Day Summer Festival.

An all-day summer festival will be held at the Church of the Heavenly Rest on Saturday, under the auspices of the Men's Association, assisted by the Women's Guild and Young People's Association. There will be a baseball game between teams of the Men's Association at 3 o'clock; an entertainment in the parish house at 8 o'clock, furnished by New York talent, followed by dancing and orchestral music. There will also be a lawn fete, at which ice cream, strawberries, cake, candy, fancy articles, etc. will be sold. There will be other attractions.

Off For Camp Comfort.

Rev. and Mrs. George A. Warner and daughter, Miss Mary Clotilde Warner, left today for "Camp Comfort," Hedges Lake, at Cambridge, N. Y., where they will prepare the camp for the reception of the Holy Cross choir boys on Saturday. It is expected that forty-two boys will comprise the party to leave for camp.

Another Operator at Postal.

An assistant to Mrs. Bain, operator in the office of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company has been engaged. M. Levin, of New York, is the man. This increase in the office force of the Postal has been found necessary because of the increased traffic.

ANOTHER CONTRIBUTION FOR BABY CAMP FUND

Another contribution for the Baby Camp, conducted by The City Union of King's Daughters, came today, A. R. Sheppard, of Chicago, donating $5 towards the worthy cause. Mr. Sheppard sets the example for other Plainfielders who are at present residing elsewhere and for those particularly who are enjoying a season of rest and recuperation. Consider for a moment what $5 or $10 means when applied to The Daily Press Baby Camp Fund! Poor, suffering little ones, who otherwise would be kept in a hot, stuffy, and maybe unsanitary, flat or small house in a thickly populated section such days and nights as these, by your bounty will have the blessing of cool air, nourishing food, sanitary surroundings and the guardianship of a devoted nurse. All this the tots receive at the camp on the slope of Watchung mountain. As in years past, this paper, asks your aid in helping to defray the expenses of this splendid cause. It is under the auspices of The King's Daughters who make the lives of the tots healthy and happy during the terribly hot days. Yes, you will subscribe! Send your contribution, then, to The Daily Press, even though you can spare but ten cents. This paper will promptly acknowledge your gift and transmit it to the officers of the association.

UZAL B. CRANE HAD AN UNPLEASANT EXPERIENCE

U. B. Crane and a couple of Italian workmen had some unusual experiences yesterday afternoon when they attempted to clean out a stable and barn recently purchased by Mr. Crane on East Second street. In order to prepare the barn for a possible customer Mr. Crane began operations by cleaning out the loft where several barrels of waste paper and other debris had been stored.

Slipping his hand into a barrel full of papers Mr. Crane withdrew it hastily and called one of the laborers to remove the contents. But the Italian gave one long howl and jumped for the road and it has been impossible to trace him since. His companion was next called upon to remove the papers from the barrel and he in turn shrieked and made a hasty exit.

By this time Mr. Crane became curious and looking into the barrel could not discover the cause of the flight of his two men. Thursting his hand down deep into the papers he made a lunge for a bundle, but right there he stopped. Something warm and slimy met his outstretched hand which he hastily withdrew. Then was revealed the cause of the flight of the men. Coiled nicely, waiting a chance for a spring at the next intruder was a five-foot blacksnake.

Some of the stuff still remains in the barrels in the barn.

Will Hold a Smoker.

Protective Conclave, Improved Order Heptasophs, will hold a smoker in its rooms in Coward's Hall, tonight. Prof. Sandford, a well known monologuist, of New York, with Harry Davis at the piano will entertain. There will be plenty of cigars and an abundance of good things to eat. The meeting is held chiefly for the purpose of affording an opportunity for the old members to become better acquainted with the new ones who have been received recently.

James Paid His Fine.

James Saunders, of West Second street, who was found guilty in police court on Friday of being drunk and disorderly, has paid his fine of ten dollars, and he does not have to go to jail. James says in a communication to this paper "as a hod carrier I am on my job early as ever."

Treat In Store For Children.

There is a treat in store for the children of the Children's Home next Saturday. The Plainfield Automobile Club will take the little ones for an automobile ride after which a "pink and white" will be served by Mrs. Meredith Dryden under the trees in Hyde Field on Franklin avenue.

"SAIDA" CARNIVAL QUEEN

Called a Princess, But is More Than That as a Danseuse.

AUSPICIOUS OPENING NIGHT.

Knights of Columbus Fete Popular and Prosperous—To Continue All the Week.

Fifteen hundred or two thousand people made the enclosure at the Knights of Columbus carnival on West Front street hum last night, indicating that a successful week is ahead of the organization and that a tidy sum will be realized toward the fund for building the new clubhouse. Visiting knights who came to assist in the opening of the carnival were Somerset Council, of Somerville and Bailey Council, of Elizabeth. These together with the children who took part in the Indian tableaux marched into the grounds at 8:30 formally opening the carnival.

Around the grounds may be found ice cream parlors, "ring the cane," ring the goose and even ring the perfume bottle, to say nothing of Dodging Sambo, who occasionally fails to dodge quickly enough. Then there is a congress of 'living freaks," a real Indian encampment with old bucks and young, Chief Bull Bear, and his Arapahoe family; some Ogdala Sioux, among whom a wedding will take place today; a gypsy fortune teller, circus and other attractions calculated to lure the dimes from the crowd.

But of all the attractions there is none quite up to that to be found in the "Teatro International." Here Princess Saida, "the only real Egyptian dancer," held an enormous audience spellbound last night. This young woman illustrates with the motions of her lithe body and limbs the four emotions of the prayer to Mohammed as practiced by the Egyptians for centuries. A charming figure among the many exploited dancers of recent years, Princess Saida is unique. Her attitudes are absolutely without suggestiveness and wonderfully graceful.

Preceding Princess Saida other dances, including the Turkish, are given to music of the weirdest kind extracted from a fiddle held on the knee of Ali Pasha. The performance last night was given for a dime, but the balance of the week the management will ask the regular price.

In the circus a good performance is given considering the cost and, in fact, so far as could be observed last night there are no objectionable features attached to the show.

Owing to delays on the road the huge merry-go-round did not arrive until late last night. It will be placed in position today. Major Gordon told the reporters last night that this carousel is the largest in the United States and will surely attract the children.

Members of Watchung Council are acting as ticket takers and by their work encouraging the public to patronize the carnival. The whole scheme is in charge of a committee of which T. J. Shirley is chairman. Mr. Shirley is being assisted by A. A. Cannon, J. J. Varley, John J. Kenney, T. J. Meaney and Charles L. Kling. There will be afternoon and evening performances throughout the week, weather permitting.

OSTROM NOT LIABLE FOR THAT ACCIDENT.

Judge William Newcorn sitting at an extra session of the District court yesterday afternoon rendered a verdict for F. T. Ostrum in the suit brought by Louise and Achille Dufour for alleged liability for damages in colliding with the carriage of the latter on the Morristown road about a month ago. Mr. and Mrs. Dufour asked for damages alleging that Mr. Ostrum's automobile was to blame for injuries sustained by members of his family as well as to the horse.

Mr. Ostrum was defended by William A. Coddington, of Reed and Codington, while the interests of the complainants were cared for by Arthur A. Palmer, of Bernardsville. Judge Newcorn decided that both complainant and defendant were guilty of negligence and that the plaintiff could not recover damages under the law.

North Plainfielder Arrested.

Phillip Weinberger, son of Mrs. Bertha Weinberger, of North Plainfield, was arrested by the local police by request of Mrs. Weinberger and turned over to the borough authorities, last night. Mrs. Weinberger, it is alleged by the police, claimed that her son had threatened to kill her unless she handed over a sum of money sufficient for his pressing needs.

THIRTEEN ORDINANCES FOR WORK ON STREETS

Ordinances covering the permanent improvement of thirteen streets were offered by Councilman Gloak, chairman of the street committee, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night. Each measure had to be introduced and adopted separately, and this work required nearly three-quarters of an hour. The ordinances were adopted on first and second readings, ordered engrosed and advertised and in each case Monday night, July 11, was fixed as the time for a public hearing, when it is proposed to pass them on final reading.

The streets to be improved are as follows:

Thornton avenue, West Fourth street, Johnston avenue, Jackson avenue, Essex street, Putnam avenue, Netherwood avenue, Leland avenue, Stebbins place, South Second street, Central avenue, Prescott place and Randolph road.

For the purpose of doing this work the Council will issue $30,000 worth of bonds and the usual procedure will be followed, that is, the city will pay its share, one-third, for the work and the benefitted property owners two-thirds, to be assessed by commissioners appointed by the courts.

ARE YOU A MOOSE? SOME OTHERS ARE

Invitations are being extended to the men of this city to join the "Loyal Order of Moose" and from present indications the charter membership will be large. According to the literature sent out by the organizers of the craft Mayor Charles J. Fisk is chairman of the committee authorized to form the new lodge. Associated with the Mayor are Factory Inspector Andrew McCardell, Hugh A. Todd, Henry Windham, George J. Luhr and George J. Tobin.

The objects of the organization are fraternal to the last degree and include sick and accident benefits, but they are not intended for the class who would join an organization for what they can get out of it. Dr. A. H. Dunlon, of Somerset street, and Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, of Park avenue, are named as the medical examiners of the proposed lodge in this city.

It is announced that the twenty-second annual convention of the order will be held at Baltimore, Md., during the week ending August 22, 1910.

SALVATION ARMY'S SUMMER CAMPAIGN

Sunday, June 25, will mark the opening of the Salvation Army summer campaign in this city. A large tent will be erected on Watchung avenue at the corner of Fourth street and there during the summer months services will be held. Last summer the meetings conducted in the tent attracted large congregations as they were of a bright and interesting nature. On Sunday afternoon, June 26, a great opening service will be held. Rev Gabriel Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will preside. Major Frank Lyon, of New York city, will be present and the officers in charge of the work in this city, Captain and Mrs. Hewitt; Adjutant and Mrs. Jackson will also be there. Chester Chamberlain, the boy soprano, will sing. On Sunday evening, Major Frank Lyon will conduct the service and an interesting and profitable time is expected. Special instrumental music will be rendered by Martin A. Korff and other well known musicians and there will be singing by a choir led by Adjutant Mrs. Jackson.

During the summer the best speakers from the Salvation Army headquarters in New York city will speak in the tent and many of the local speakers who attracted large audiences last summer will speak again this year. The instrumental music will be in charge of Martin A. Korff and the vocal music in charge of Adjutant Mrs. Jackson. Services will be conducted every evening at 8 o'clock with the exception of Monday and Friday.

Assault Complaint Dismissed.

The complaint against Gustav Laver, of Duer street, for assault on Mrs. Elizabeth Dorn, was dismissed by Recorder Dolliver this morning, but he was found guilty of disorderly conduct and was fined ten dollars. William G. DeMeza, counsel for the defendant, will have the case reopened.

FOR PUBLIC DANCE HALL

Playground Commissioners' President Makes a Good Suggestion.

TO PROTECT YOUNG WOMEN.

He Also Gives a Rattling Good Talk On Playgrounds at Parent-Teacher Association Meeting.

"There are between three and four hundred working girls in Plainfield who have no place to go nights," said Harry W. Marshall in an address before the Franklin School Parent-Teacher Association in the assembly hall of the Franklin School last night. "Few people realize the position of these girls. Often the home conditions are not at all attractive; and we find many of them seeking pleasure in a dance hall on Front street, where there is no protection for them. It is up to Plainfield to take care of these girls. As a city it is our duty to protect them."

Mr. Marshall then cited examples of how this problem is met in cities of Plainfield's size, and suggested that some place should be provided where these girls could go to dances two nights in a week which could also be used for sacred concerts on Sundays.

In striking this new note for ethical social duty for Plainfielders Mr. Marshall unwittingly voiced the expression of Felix Adler, of the Adler School of Ethical Culture, and Chas. A. Beard, professor of politics in Columbia University, who in recent addresses there said that this was one most vital need of small cities, that was almost wholly overlooked by reformers. Mrs. S. H. Voorhees, president of the Franklin School Parent-Teacher Association, agreed with Mr. Marshall, and though an informal discussion followed after the meeting, nothing definitely was done. It is believed, however, that Mr. Marshall's suggestion will be actively taken up.

The principal part of Mr. Marshall's address was concerned with the question of playgrounds. In a brief way he described the recent Rochester convention to which he was the association's special delegate. "Plainfield," he said in conclusion, "must wake up to the condition that it must give the street boy a chance to play ball—now he is chased away if he gives vent to his passion for the game in the street or vacant lots. Those who go to New York in the morning and remain away all day and then return in the evening haven't any clear idea of real conditions in the city; but those who are here all day know the condition of things. Go up on West Third street some afternoon, and tell me that New York is any worse."

"In the playgrounds that we have now, we are going to have women for supervisors. A man can't interest girls; but a woman can interest girls—and what is more—can make a boy do a whole lot of things that he never thought he could do. The idea of the commission form of government of playgrounds is to keep out the influence of politics. And the aim of playgrounds is in a large manner the improvement of the manners of our boys and girls. We have started playgrounds in this city under almost exactly the same circumstances that East Orange started them; the idea though originated with the Parent-Teacher Association, even though others did carv it out, and thus take away the credit.

The association re-elected Mrs. S. H. Voorhees president for the third time, and the others elected were: First vice-president, Miss Noel J. Bullock; second vice-president, Mrs. George W. V. Moy; treasurer, Mrs. W. H. P. Veysey; secretary, Mrs. Warren B. Travell. In taking up the subjects for discussion for next year, "ventilation" was suggested and met with hearty support. It was also voted to have Principal Lindsev Best, of the City High School, prepare a paper showing how to deal with the individual apart from the mass. An invitation was exteneded to the Stillman School Association to join in with the Franklin School Association, because of the juxtaposition of the work of the two.

The report of Mrs. S. H. Voorhees, the president, was of particular interest inasmuch as it showed some of the things accomplished by the association. Mrs. Voorhees first acknowledged the obligation for the origin of the association to the Mothers' Club. "The two principal objects of the association," she said, "are: First, a more intimate relation between the teachers and parents of the school; a co-operation resulting in higher standing in scholarships and deportment of the pupils; second, a personal and intimate knowl-

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The public library movement is gaining more support in all local circles; and the originators of the idea are much pleased with the trend of public opinion in this direction.

Miss Meta Pennock will take part in the class day exercises at the Plainfield High School tonight.

William Wyckoff is recovering his recent ill health in the upper part of New York State.

eRv. J. O. McKelvey, of Plainfield, will preach next Sunday at the Presbyterian church.

Out of town friends have been visiting Constable and Mrs. Pierce.

Out of town friends are visiting Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Brown.

Mrs. B. Siriski has been entertaining Raritan friends recently.

Mrs. D. B. Kenyon is convalescent from her recent illness.

The Board of Trade will meet tonight.

WESTFIELD.

The storm of Saturday afternoon did considerable damage to trees in and about Westfield, and also put the electric light and telephone system in trouble. Employes of the electric light company were busy until after midnight before they got the lines in order. Wheat and rye on the farms about were blown flat and will be badly damaged, if not in many instances a complete loss.

An ordinance regulating the collection and disposal of garbage has been passed by the Board of Health. It requires that garbage must be transported in closed wagons, and only those licensed by the board can collect it.

The next meeting of the Board of Education will be held July 5. President of the board, R. H. Stern, has moved to Long Island for the summer.

A meeting of the Council was held last evening. Road and sewer work was the main business before the board.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Italian band; which was organized during the winter, is fast rounding into shape for public appearance. Prof. Frank De Troia, of Newark, the leader, had the members out Sunday afternoon to practice marching while playing and the members made a most creditable showing.

The Fanwod borough oil cart is out sprinkling the streets with oil The Borough Council decided during the winter to do away with the watering wagon and depend entirely on oil to lay the dust during the summer months.

C. L. Bussey and family, of New York, are occupying the J. H. Thompson house in the borough for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson are in Europe.

John R. Haskard and family, of Plainfield, have been visiting Mr. Haskard's mother, Mrs. John Haskard, of Grand street.

Mrs. William Dean, of Summit, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Charles M. Mooney, of Valley road.

Miss Helen Hoar, of the borough, has been entertaining out of town friends over Sunday.

Joseph Corrona has returned from a week's outing, enjoying the breezes at Asbury Park.

The Bachelors' Club and its friends will enjoy a shirt waist dance in the hall tonight.

SOMERVILLE.

James Q. Ten Eyck and Selah Schoonmaker, the commitee from Board of Trade, are meeting with much succes in soliciting funds to take up $15,000 worth of first mortgage bonds on the Somerville Manufacturing Company plant, in order to get the Cott-a-Lapp Company of New Haven, Conn., to locate in Somerville. Robert C. Jeffcott, the manager of the concern, spent last week here.

WE ARE NOW TRIMMING HATS FREE OF CHARGE.

It's good news to the woman who needs a new Summer Bonnet, and knows she can select her materials here and have the trimming done free of charge. We do this to keep our workroom busy during the dull period. Women know that we carry the biggest stock either in season or between seasons for their choosing. For instance, we just received a good stock of small and medium Black Hair and Chip shapes, also White Chip Hats. Most millinery houses have little to show you now, but you can find your choosing easy here, and save money on the shapes and flowers. We don't buy up jobs of undesirable styles, its our aim to have what you WANT in the millinery line and sell it at a lower price than any other house hereabouts. Come to Tepper's for your midsummer hat.

EDITORIAL.

"What we mean by preparedness." To be always ready, whatever the season or the stage of the season, with merchandise of a character best suited to meet your immediate requirements, is the definition of the word "preparedness" as we interpret it.

And this is not a simple matter.

Goods must be always new—absolutely down to date—the best that the foreign and domestic markets have to offer. That means that not a single article in the stock of any department can be carried over from one season to another, yet even at the end of the season when preparations for the ensuing period engross most of our attention, stocks of merchandise for your immediate wear—to supply your needs during the transition time, as it were—must remain fully adequate.

This is but one of the many difficulties that we have been obliged to surmount in order that "preparedness" might merit a place among the attributes that characterize this business, devoted to serving your interest.

ONE of the LARGEST retail stores in New York City—in fact, anywhere in this country—regularly employs a large corps of chiropodists to care for the feet of its salesmen.

We know that a whole lot of benefit and comfort is thus assured, but we believe nine-tenths of all foot trouble could be prevented by the adoption of our method of shoe-fitting.

VOTING MACHINES TO GO IN PATERSON.

Patesron, June 21.—The Board of Aldermen last night deferred consideration of the proposition to call a special election to decide whether the Board of Education shall be elected by the people instead of appointed by the Mayor, as is now the custom.

It was decided to hold special elections in nineteen districts of the city on July 26 to get the sentiment regarding the ousting of voting machines.

One district in the First, five in the Second, one in the Third, two in the Fourth, two in the Sixth, one in the Seventh, one in the Eighth, four in the Ninth, two in the Tenth. There are still eleven districts were petitions are being circulated, and the board adjourned until next Monday when those petitions will be ready.

BAYONNE MACHINES TO GO.

Little Doubt as to Special Election Today.

Bayonne, June 21.—After a long wait citizens of this city will have an opportunity today to express their sentiment at the polls as to whether voting machines will be retained or abolished. The special election has aroused considerable interest owing to the prolonged opposition of the Common Council in allowing the matter to come to a vote. As in other municipalities in the State there has been a strong sentiment against the continuance of the machines here and the general impression prevails that the result of the election will be to abolish the machines.

edge of the physical characteristics of the school grounds, buildings and accessories, thereby enabling us to intelligently suggest and urge improvements and betterments if needed, which when obtained should add to the physical well being and comfort of both teachers and scholars."

Mrs. Voorhees then discussed the difficulties met in interesting large numbers of parents in the school work and showed the encouraging work done by the association in this direction.

She then reviewed the work of the year in various departments, especially in the field of playgrounds "The Association," she said in part, disclaims the intention either directly or indirectly, to criticize the Board of Education, our superintendent, principals or teachers. That which we are seeking is simply co-operation."

THE FORUM.

A Suggestion.

Editor, The Daily Press:

We residents of Plainfield pride ourselves, and perhaps justly, on our handsome, orderly and well governed city; but yet are there not many ways in which we fall short of such perfection as necessarily imperfect institution may attain to all this hot summer day the orderly and quiet neighborhood in which I live has been disturbed by the beating of the carpets and rugs of a zealous housekeeper. Cleanliness is certainly desirable, but can it not be attained without so forcibly and distressingly calling attention to the method of its accomplishment?

Again there is the accumulation of the winters dust and dirt cast cheerfully forth to be carried by the willing wind into other people's open windows and doors to again fall on their carpets. Is that Christian conduct, and in accordance with the Golden Rule that everyone is so ready to invoke for his own benefit and protection? And then the passerby can not escape breathing the befouled atmosphere and who knows what infectious germs may not have been started from their lair to go forth once more on a murderous career. Here has the Anti-Tuberculosis League been preaching all winter against spreading in the air the deadly germs which gather in one tenth of all who die, and which forms seven per cent of street sweepings. And one can never be sure that that germ is not lurking in his own carpet or rug.

May we not look hopefully forward to a day when our city fathers will have become educated to the necessity of suppressing dust in our streets; in that halcyon time the street commissioner will not brush a dry street preparatory to putting on tarvia; bakers will not expose their wares to dust and the tender mercies of disease bearing flies; butchers and grocers will not allow their commodities to be subject to the same malign influences; and—but why confinue the list? Then tuberculosis, typhoid and all the motley crew will be no more. That though will be a long wait. Meanwhile will not the Council pass an ordinance prohiting the beating of carpets and rugs out of doors, and thus take a first step on the road to Eutopia In this day of vacuum cleaners, power and hand such an ordinance would impose no hardship, and would win the gratitude of those who desire clean air and unvexed ears.

P. C. C. to Celebrate.

The Plainfield Country Club is planning to hold a big celebration at the club on the afternoon and evening of July 4. A committee has been appointed to take charge of the details and if everything works out all right, there will be a concert at the club from 4 o'clock on by a first-class brass band from out-of-town, followed in the evening with a costly display of fireworks, which it is said will be the best yet witnessed in this city.

To Celebrate 10th Anniversary.

On Thursday next the Boonton Fire Department will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its organization. Among the Plainfielders who will attend the celebration are Chief T. O. Doane, of this city; Chief Philip McCullough, of the North Plainfield Fire Department, and former Chief Howard Woolston.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS DECORATE LOCAL GRAVES.

Representatives from the uniformed rank of the Knights of Pythias from Portchester and Brooklyn, N. Y., met with Crescent Company, of this city, on Sunday and together the knights proceeded to the North Plainfield cemetery and decorated the graves of departed knights. Samuel Robinson, Harry Werner and Alfred E. Causebrook, of the local lodge, were the committee in charge.

On Sunday, June 26, the local uniformed rank will act as escort to the lodges of district twenty to the services to be held in Bound Brook.

Presented Annual Report.

The annual report of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room was presented to the Common Council at its adjourned meeting, last night, according to the custom at this time. It showed receipts in the general fund of $8,501, and a balance of $5,243.62. The receipts in the Babcock fund were $1,544.94, with a balance of $604.73. These were the principal items in the lengthy report, which was ordered filed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Case, of Martine avenue, are parents of a fine little girl, born to them yesterday morning. They now have two boys and one girl.

ROUTINE BUSINESS OF COMMON COUNCIL

Alfonse Colluci, being the lowest responsible bidder, was awarded the contract at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, for the construction of the sanitary sewer in Central street. The contract was awarded in accordance with a resolution by Councilman Gloak and upon his motion the checks of the unsuccessful bidders were returned.

Mr. Gloak also called up on second reading the ordinance providing for the laying and repair of sidewalks, and the one to vacate an unused portion of New street. They were ordered engrossed and advertised and Monday night, July 11, was the time fixed for a public hearing prior to adoption on third reading.

When Mr. Holt called up the amendment to the dog ordinance for a final reading, the Common Council took a half-hour recess on motion of Mr. Montgomery to discuss it. The amendment provides that the owner of a dog shall pay $1 every day his dog is in the pound, instead of a flat rate of $3 for redemption. After the recess the ordinance was taken up and passed, all the members voting in the affirmative.

Mayor C. J. Fisk appointed Ferdinand Bader a special policeman to do regular duty, his term of office to expire January 1, 1911. The appointment was confirmed. The Mayor also, on the recommendation of the police board, advanced Patrolman John Kelly from Class C to Class A. On the motion of C. C. Randolph, chairman of the police committee, to confirm the action, all the members except Mr. Holt voted in the affirmative. The change is effective July 1.

The amended ordinance intended to regulate the licensing of shows, circuses, theatres, moving picture places, concerts, etc., was called up on third reading by Mr. Holt, but on motion of Mr. Clay it was placed on the table for the present. This was done because, as Mr. Clay explained, the phraseology of the ordinance in one particular is not satisfactory, and further consideration was desired. Councilmen Holt and Gloak voted against putting the matter over.

Mr. Holt said that while there is no haste about passing the ordinance, he believed criticism should be made before the time for passing an ordinance on third reading, especially as copies of it were sent to each member weeks before the intended action. Mr. Clay said that it was important that the ordinance should be right in its construction and for that reason he favored further consideration.

MATTRESSES ABLAZE AT JACOB TRUPIN'S HOME.

The apartments of Jacob Trupin, at 541 West Third street, were discovered to be on fire shortly after 6 o'clock last evening and an alarm was rung in from box 43. On their arrival the firemen found a couple of blazing mattresses on the second floor and had little trouble in extinguishing the smouldering fire.

Mrs. Trupin, the wife of the head of the family, in hurrying to get out of the house, fell down the stairs and was considerably shaken up. She was attended by Dr. Marcus Clawson. The damage by fire amounted to less than $50. No cause for the fire was found.

A Great Little Car.

W. J. Morgan, president of the Motor Contest Association, under whose auspices the "Montauk Light or Bust" race was held last week, has written a letter to F. L. C. Martin, of this city, congratulating him for his business instinct and sporting judgment on entering the Hupmobile in the contest. Mr. Morgan states further: "It was with great regret that I learned you could not be with one of the cars as I feel sure if you had seen the perfect score Hupmobile driven by Elmer D. Cutting plunge like a boar in a storm sea over the Montauk bad lands, your already great admiration for the little car would have been increased. It was the most wonderful exhibition that I have ever seen of a car at its best, and surely you and its manufacturers will reap a deserved reward."

W. G. Herrman Gets a Diploma.

The Borough Board of Education at its meeting last night decided to give William G. Herrman a graduating diploma dated June, 1908. While Mr. Herrman did not actually graduate he went to Mt. Hermon School and in September, 1908, passed his entrance examination to Rutgers College. In view of this the board decided that he was entitled to a diploma and granted it accordingly.

Bail Same In Both Cases.

The report of the bail required of Mrs. Barbaresi for her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bruno, who were arrested for selling beer illegally on Sunday last, should have read $500 each instead of $500 for both alleged violaters, the same as was required of Frank Lake and his driver.

Borough Children Picnic.

A party of little children from the borough kindergartens is enjoying the annual picnic today on the Park Golf Club grounds. The children are under the direction of the Misses French, Randolph and Whitney. The two latter are from the Watchung school teaching staff and the former from the Somerset school. The little chaps walked to the grounds this morning; and several lame children among their number were taken along by their friends in small express wagons. A "basket" feast was enjoyed when they got to the grounds.

First-Day School Picnic.

The children of the First-Day School of the Religious Society of Friends could not hold their picnic at Washington Rock, Saturday, on account of the sever storm, and instead the affair was held at the meeting-house on Watchung avenue, where they had gathered. The afternoon was given up to an informal program, all sorts of games being played as one means of diversion. Ice cream and cake were also served. The affair was in charge of Miss Mabel Vail, superintendent.

"Three Months" at Proctors.

"Three Months," a clever sketch is amusing the patrons at Proctor's theatre this week. The couple have been married three months, hubby gets tired of having his wife call him mushy names, but she gets even and causes lots of fun. "The President of the 13 Club" is another headliner, and with two companions is a great fun-maker. The Four Musical Maids, violinist, harpist and two vocalists, are a treat. Rhodes & Adams complete the bill with the motion pictures.

Robbed While Asleep.

Mrs. Louis Skelly slept pretty soundly in the rear of her store on North avenue, last night, in fact so deep were her slumbers that she failed to hear a sneak thief when he crawled through an open window and after rifling the cash register of its contents made good his escape out the front door. Mrs. Skelly does not know the exact amount taken, but she estimates that at least eight dollars are missing. None of the stock was taken.

Marie Elizabeth Coleman.

Marie Elizabeth Coleman, daughter of the late Richard Coleman, who died at West Orange on Saturday, was buried at St. Mary's cemetery, this morning. The funeral service was held from the residence of her grandmother, Coleman House, West Orange, this morning at 8 o'clock, and at St. John's church that place at 8:30 o'clock, where a solemn high mass was celebrated. The family resided in this city many years ago.

Inaugurate Auto Service.

The auto 'bus service has been introduced between the terminus of the Somerset street trolley and Watchung, it being in charge of Edward Canning, of Watchung. During the morning and evening hours the auto meets every trolley car. Arrangements can be made to have the auto meet parties at any hour of the day or evening and take them to Watchung or any point in the Valley by telephoning Maul's Hotel.

Volume on Sabbathism.

"Spiritual Sabbathism," a volume by the late Abram Herbert Lewis, D. D., LL. D., has just come off the presses of the American Sabbath Tract Society, of this city. The book is one of the finest specimens of the printers' and binders' art ever produced in this section of the State. The frontispiece is a portrait of the author and is a splendid reproduction.

Auto Victim Recovering.

Armstrong Mulford, the North avenue real estate man who was seriously injured in an automobile accident on Sunday, was reported this afternoon to be out of danger. His recovery now appears to be assured. He passed a comfortable night and morning.

Candidate for Mayor.

G. W. V. Moy, the Progressive Republican candidate for the Mayoralty, filed his paper last night with assistant city clerk, George B. Wean, and will go before the people for that office at the primaries in September.

Clarence W. Mundy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Mundy, of Orchard place, is at Stamford Springs, Conn., for his health. Last year the young man received a severe shock from an electric light wire at Orchard place and New street, and since that time has suffered from a nervous condition.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating and Prohibiting the Discharge of Fire-Arms and Fireworks.

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the City of Plainfield fire or discharge any cannon, toy cannon, gun, revolver, or toy pistol or other appliance for discharging metal or paper caps such as are used in toy pistols, or fire-arms of any description whether the same be loaded with blank or full charge; provided that this section shall not apply to persons engaged in military exercises or to members of the Police Department while on duty, or to the use of a revolver, pistol or other fire-arm in defense of life or property.

Sec. 2. No person or corporation shall fire or discharge any fire-cracker, torpedo, fireworks of any character, or any other thing containing or composed of powder or other explosive or combustible material, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, upon any street, lane, highway or public place of the City of Plainfield.

Sec. 3. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the City of Plainfield fire or discharge any firecracker, torpedo, or firework, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, except that firecrackers made of soft paper loosely wrapped containing no other explosive but black powder and not over five inches in length and torpedoes not over three-quarters of an inch in diameter and fireworks other than sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, may be set off and discharged upon private property on the Fourth day of July of any year, unless the Fourth day of July falls on Sunday and in such event then on the Fifth day of July, between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and twelve o'clock midnight, but at no other time, provided, however, that at any time the Mayor may upon written application made at least twenty-four hours before the time when said event is to occur, give permission for the display and discharge of fireworks except sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, at a time and place to be specified and under the direction of a person or persons to be named in the written permit issued by the Mayor.

Sec. 4. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections one, two and three of this ordinance shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding Twenty Dollars for each offense.

Sec. 5. That section one of an ordinance entitled "An ordinance concerning fire-arms and other deadly weapons," approved April 9, 1895, as amended and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

approved by the Mayor, June 20, 1910.
CHAS. J. FISK, Mayor.
Attest: J. T. MacMurray, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

To Amend an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Concerning Dogs," approved May 3rd, 1909.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 10 of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance concerning dogs," approved May 3rd, 1909, be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 10. Every dog so seized and impounded, shall be kept, fed and kindly treated by the said poundkeeper for a period of not less than seventy-two hours from the time of impounding, and the owner or person entitled to the custody of any dog so seized and impounded may within said period redeem said dog upon paying to the said poundkeeper the sum of one dollar for each twenty-four (24) hours or part thereof that the said dog is so impounded, one-half of which shall be for the use of the said pound-keeper, and the other half for the use of the city. No dog so seized and impounded shall be redeemed by the owner thereof or released by the poundkeeper unless a proper license and a tag are procured for said dog previous to such release.

approved by the Mayor, June 20, 1910.
CHAS. J. FISK, Mayor.
Attest: J. T. MacMurray, City Clerk.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Bishop Scarborough will confirm a large class in the Episcopal church of St. John-in-the-Wilderness, at Gibbsboro, tomorrow evening.

Salvatore Locicero, seventeen years old, whose home was in New York, was drowned while bathing in Crosswicks Creek at Bordentown Sunday. His body was recovered by John Campbell.

Henry C. Foote, of Woodbury, quietly celebrated the ninetieth anniversary of his birth Sunday. Mr. Foote had seen an exceedingly active life up to a few years ago, when he retired. He has been twice married and had nine children, only one of whom, Mrs. Howard S. Hanthorn, is living, and who recently presented his first grandchild.

With a bullet wound in her chin and her face torn by the leaden missile, Ruth Horton, twenty-three years old, living at the foot of Spruce street Camden, was taken to the Cooper Hospital early Sunday morning. Kate Clark was arrested as her assailant and locked up for a hearing before Recorder Stackhouse. From what the police have learned of the couple, there is a keen jealousy between them.

Thomas Jones, of New York, who was arrested in Atlantic City, accused of a series of hotel robberies, is said by the police to be the boldest hotel thief they have ever taken. Jones pleaded guilty to five charges at a preliminary hearing, and was held in $1,000 bail for court.

The drowned body of Patrick Dunn, of 2 Skillman avenue, Jersey City, was found Saturday afternoon in the Hackensack River. Dunn, who was employed as a night watchman at the Dodge & Bliss box factory and lumber yards, was forty-eight years old.

Because of the claim made by the merchants that traveling shows and circuses cause a falling off of business, the Board of Trade of Perth Amboy has asked the aldermen to increase the license fee for them from $100 to $1,000. Carrousels are also said to be injuring business, and the board has asked their prohibition.

Chief of Police Burke, of Perth Amboy, has received a request from Chicago asking the arrest of Samuel Smilovic. He is charged with sending his two children from Perth Amboy to their destitute mother in Chicago, who is unable to provide for them. Patrolman L. C. Jensen found that Smilovic had gone to Europe.

Having reduced the tramp nuisance on its property at Trenton and vicinity to a minimum, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has inaugurated a campaign against the use of its tracks by pedestrians. Accidents have been of frequent occurrence because of the use of tracks for short-cuts by workmen. The company has issued orders to its police to arrest all persons found walking on the tracks.

Patrolman De Luccia, while patrolling his post at 2:10 o'clock Sunday morning, peered into the windows of a store owned by M. Schwartz, at 47 Market street, Paterson, and detected a crouching form behind one of the counters. Du Luccia entered the store and dragged out Michael Gelio, aged seventeen years, of 62 Market street. Gelio was held as a disorderly person and Sunday morning received a sentence of ninety days in jail.

CORK LEGS FAIL TO WIN HIS SUIT.

New Brunswick, June 21.—Christian Anderson, a Metuchen blacksmith, who two years ago recovered a verdict of $5,800 gainst the Public Service Railway Company, yesterday lost his suit on a retrial, Judge Lloyd in the Circuit Court granting a non-suit.

Anderson claimed on the witness stand that he had been on his way home to Metuchen from Perth Amboy and had been taken ill on a car. He alighted. Later, as he was walking along the road, he stepped out of the way of an automobile and walked upon the trolley tracks, and a car came behind him and struck him.

As a result of the accident Anderson lost both of his legs and spent many weeks in hospitals in New Brunswick and New York. He unstrapped his cork legs while on the witness stand yesterday and passed them over to the jury box to demonstrate to the jury how heavy and inconvenient they are.

When the case was tried before and the $5,800 verdict given the Supreme Court sent the case back on the ground that there had been contributory negligence, and that a non-suit should have been entered. The plaintiff's case yesterday was practically the same as before, and at its conclusion Judge Lloyd said that the Supreme Court decision left him nothing to do but grant a non-suit.

Corporation Notice

PROPOSALS FOR SEWERS.

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, at a regular meeting held Monday, June 6, 1910, notice is hereby given that the Common Council will meet on the fifth day of July, 1910, at 8 o'clock p. m., at the Council Chamber, No. 149, North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at which time and place said Common Council will receive sealed proposals for constructing storm sewer contemplated in the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Richmond Street, approved June 7, 1910, as provided for in the plans and specifications adopted June 6, 1910, by the Common Council, and filed in the office of the City Clerk, No. 151 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals, the Common Council will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding or their agents, provided said parties or agents choose to be then and there present, and also make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Council.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for $200, payable to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield.

The Engineer's approximate estimate of the work to be done, is as follows, the City furnishing the materials:

Laying 375 feet 24-inch vitrified pipe sewer.
Laying 265 feet 30-inch vitrified pipe sewer.
Laying 50 feet 15-inch inlet connections.
Laying 350 feet 12-inch inlet connections.
Laying 2 branches on 24-inch sewer.
Laying 2 branches on 30-inch sewer.
Laying 2 branches on 15-inch sewer.
Laying 50 feet 4-inch cast iron house connections.
Constructing 12 Inlets
Constructing 2 Manholes.

Duplicate plans may be examined, and forms of proposals, specifications, contract and bond, may be obtained at the office of the Engineer, 151 North Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

The right to reject any or all bids is expressly reserved by the Common Council.

Proposals should be endorsed "Proposals for Sewers."

JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
ANDREW J. GAVETT, City Surveyor.
Dated Plainfield, N. J., June 6, 1910.

54-40 OR Fight

By Emerson Hough

Author of The Mississippi Bubble

Illustrations by Magnus G. Kettner

Under one form or other, one name of government or another, the flag of democracy eventually must float over all this continent. Not a part, but all of this country must be ours, must be the people's. It may cost more blood and treasure now. Some time we shall see the wisdom of John Calhoun; but some time, too, I think, we shall see come true that prophecy of a strange and brilliant mentality, which in Calhoun's presence and in mine, said that all of these northern lands and all Mexico as well must one day be ours—which is to say, the people's—for the sake of human opportunity, of human hope and happiness. "Our battles are but partly fought. But at least they are not, then, lost.

For myself, the close of the Mexican war found me somewhat worn by travel and illy equipped in financial matters. I had been discredited, I say, by my own government. My pay was withheld. Elizabeth, by that time my wife, was a girl reared in all the luxury that our country then could offer. Shall I say whether or not I prized her more when gladly she gave up all this and joined me for one more long and final journey out across that great trail which I had seen—the trail of democracy, of America, of the world?

At last we reached Oregon. It holds the grave of one of ours; it is the home of others. We were happy; we asked favor of no man; fear of no one did we feel. Elizabeth has in her time slept on a bed of husks. She has cooked at a sooty fireplace of her own; and at her cabin door I myself have been the guard. We made our way by ourselves and for ourselves, as did those who conquered America for our flag. "The citizen standing in the doorway of his home shall save the Republic," So wrote a later pen.

It was not until long after the discovery of gold in California had set us all to thinking that I was reminded of the strange story of the old German, Von Rittenhofen, of finding some pieces of gold while on one of his hunts for butterflies. I followed out his vague directions as best I might. We found gold enough to make us rich without our land. That claim is staked legally. Half of it awaits an owner who perhaps will never come.

There are those who will accept always the solemn asseverations of politicians, who by word of mouth or pen assert that this or that party made our country, wrote its history. Such as they might smile if told that not even men, much less politicians, have written all our story as a nation; yet any who smile at woman's influence in American history do so in ignorance of the truth. Mr. Webster and Lord Ashburton have credit for determining our boundary on the northeast—England called it Ashburton's capitulation to the Yankee. Did you never hear the other gossip? England laid all that to Ashburton's American wife! Look at that poor, hot-tempered devil, Yrujo, minister from Spain with us, who saw his king's holdings on this continent juggled from hand to hand between us all. His wife was daughter of Gov. McKean of Pennsylvania yonder. If she had no influence with her husband, so much the worse for her. In important times a generation ago M. Genet, of France, as all know, was the husband of the daughter of Gov. Clinton of New York. Did that hurt our chances with France? My Lord Oswald of Great Britain, who negotiated our treaty of peace in 1782—was not his worldly fortune made by virtue of his American wife? All of us should remember that Marbois, Napoleon's minister, who signed the great treaty for him with us, married his wife while he was a mere charge here in Washington; and she, too, was an American. Erskine, of England, when times were strained in 1808, and later—and our friend for the most part—was he not also husband of an American? It was as John Calhoun said—our history, like that of England and France, like that of Rome and Troy, was made in large part by women.

Of that strange woman, Helena, Baroness von Ritz, I have never definitely heard since then. But all of us have heard of that great uplift of central Europe, that ferment of revolution, most noticeable in Germany, in 1848. Out of that revolutionary spirit there came to us thousands and thousands of our best population, the sturdiest and the most liberty-loving citizens this country ever had. They gave us scores of generals in our late war, and gave us at least one cabinet officer. But whence came that spirit of revolution in Europe? Why does it live, grow, increase, even now? Why does it sound now, close to the oldest thrones? Where originated that germ of liberty which did its work so well? I am at least one who believes that I could guess something of its source.

The revolution in Hungary failed for the time. Kossuth came to see us with pleas that we might aid Hungary. But republics forget. We gave no aid to Hungary. I was far away and did not meet Kossuth. I should have been glad to question him. I did not forget Helena von Ritz, nor doubt that she worked out in full that strange destiny for which, indeed, she was born and prepared, to which she devoted herself, made clean by sacrifice. She was not one to leave her work undone. She, I know, passed on her torch of principle.

Elizabeth and I speak often of Helena von Ritz. I remember her still—brilliant, beautiful, fascinating, compelling, pathetic, tragic. If it was asked of her, I know that she still paid it gladly—all that sacrifice through which alone there can be worked out the progress of humanity, under that idea which blindly we attempted to express in our Declaration; that idea which at times we may forget, but which eventually must triumph for the good of all the world. She helped us make our map. Shall not that for which she stood help us hold it?

At least, let me say, I have thought this little story might be set down; and, though some to-day may smile at flags and principles, I should like, if I may be allowed, to close with the words of yet another man of those earlier times: "The old flag of the Union was my protector in infancy and the pride and glory of my riper years; and, by the grace of God, under its shadow I shall die!" N. T.

Hot Weather at Last

But the cool weather the past month has retarded the selling of Summer needs, hence this

Big Sale of Summer Goods at Decidedly Lowered Prices

We made our usual big contracts for hot weather necessities in the home, the quantities being based on previous experience, amounting to many thousands of dollars, in the expectation that by now our vast majority of the goods would be sold, and while business has been very good indeed, it has not quite measured up to our anticipations in the selling of those things most needed when the sun makes everything sizzle. This sale is largely the result of a desire to lessen our stocks in these tardy lines, and those who take part in the sale will profit immensely as prices are cut most decidedly for this week's selling.

MORRISTOWN ASKS FOR EXTRA SESSION.

At a public meeting of Morristown citizens last night resolutions were passed calling upon Governor John Franklin Fort to convene the Legislature to take up the question of the announced raising of the fares on the railroads in the State and to enact laws giving the State Railroad Commission further powers in the matter if it is found that such action is necessary.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Morristown Civic Association and the proposed franchise to the Morris County Traction Company permitting that company to build a trolley line around the Morristown green and down Morris street to the Lackawanna station was discussed as well as the railroad rate question. It was the sense of the meeting that it was necessary to run the trolley around all sides of the park instead of from its present terminus in front of the Municipal building along one side to Morris street and the Lackawanna station.

PLAYGROUNDS OPEN IN ELIZABETH SOON

Definite arrangements have been made to open the playground at Public School No. 1 in Elizabeth on July 1. The playground commissioners have arranged to obtain estimates for the apparatus and as soon as these are received a meeting of the commission will be held and plans made for the formal opening of the playfield.

John E. Schmidlin has been elected director of the playgrounds for the year 1910, and William M. Duncan, Miss Victoria Brown, Miss Cora L. Jones and Miss Myra Marsh have been chosen assistants. At a meeting held at the home of Benjamin Campbell, president of the commission, Robert B. Cissel was chosen treasurer. Richard E. Clement, the treasurer pro tem, reported the following receipts:

Elizabeth Teachers' Club, $30.60; Public School No. 1, $50; Joseph A. O'Brien, treasurer of the executive committee in charge of the public school field day held under the auspices of the Board of Education, $350; J. W. Wagner, dental inspector, $5; total, $435.60. Expended for two copies of "Playground Technique," $5.32; balance, $430.28.

Secretary Richard E. Clement was instructed to send letters of thanks for the money received.

Mr. Schmidlin was directed to secure estimates for all the apparatus and work to be supplied so far as practicable by Elizabeth contractors or dealers.

The commissioners decided to have Mr. Schmidlin visit the playgrounds at Philadelphia and East Orange at the expense of the commission.

It is probable that at the next meeting of the commission arrangements will be made for some sort of formal program to mark the opening of the playground.

PERSONAL.

David Smalley, of East Front street, has returned from Exeter Academy for the summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Allen, of Peapack, spent Saturday and Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Adams, of Grove street.

Miss Constance Pittis, of East Front street, has returned from William Smith College, Geneva, N. Y., for the summer vacation.

William G. Smith, one of the efficient clerks at VanArsdale's shoe store, is spending two weeks at his old home, Brockton, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Myers and Miss Ella L. Martine, of "Cedarbrook Farm," left today for Pemaquoid Point, Maine, where they will spend the summer.

Mrs. Louise Miller, widow of Rev. Robert Miller, formerly a Methodist pastor at Clinton, Iowa, who has been visiting her sisters, Mrs. Abram King and Mrs. Sarah Randolph, of Duer street, the borough, left today for Clinton, where she will remain for an indefinite period.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Howell, of Myrtle avenue, have returned home from Bridgehampton, L. I., where they were called by the death of Mr. Howell's father, Charles A. Howell, one of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Bridgehampton.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION LEGAL.

The Court of Errors and Appeals, at Trenton, in an opinion handed down by Justice Swayze late yesterday afternoon, upholds the law of 1907 under which there was created for the government of the city of Paterson a Board of Public Works, Fire Commission, Finance Commission and a Police Commission.

Before the passage of the act of 1907 Paterson was operating under the old plan of committees from the Board of Aldermen or Common Council. When the new acts were passed and put in operation the acts were attacked by Common Council on the ground that they were unconstitutional. The syllabus of the opinion prepared by Justice Swayze follows:

"1. It is not unconstitutional for the Legislature to provide for a board of public works, composed of four persons, not more than two of whom shall be members of the same political party.

"2. The act creating a board of public works in cities having a population of not less than 100,000 nor more than 200,000 inhabitants is not a private, local or special law affecting the internal affairs of towns or counties within the constitutional prohibition."

The case was argued at the November, 1909, term of the court.

It was the Loyal Band, and not the Willing Workers, of Trinity Reformed church Sunday, that realized $50 from the recent festival. They contributed $50 toward the building and improvement fund and presented the church with a pastor's private communion service to be used in visiting "shut-ins."

HIS "SQUAW" REBELLED.

Walter Atus, a Sioux Indian, living at 7 Barclay street, Trenton, and his white wife are under arrest there as the result of a quarrel and fight that followed the efforts of the noble red man to make his "squaw" abide by the aboriginal custom of doing the family toil, outside labor, as well as housekeeping duties.

Atus got a job yesterday to unload 100 tons of soft coal. He immediately took the back-to-nature trail, and put his wife to work on the car. She worked for a time to the amusement of the passerby who were unaccustomed to seeing a woman at such labor. Then the shovel began to blister her hands, and the soft black dust proved irritating to body and temper alike. Finally the blood of the Caucasian rebelled against the dictates of the Indian. He tried to assert the authority of his forefathers, and the outcome was a hand-to-hand fight in which she smote the noble red man with the shovel.

THINKS LIGHTNING HIT HIM.

Mysterious Blister Appears on Man's Body and He Calls on a Physician.

Charles Washer, of Irish Lake, went to Newton yesterday for medical treatment. He believes he was struck by lightning on Saturday afternoon.

He says he went to close a door as the storm came up and just then there was a vivid flash. He felt no ill ecects at the moment, but later experienced a tickling sensation on the right side. This passed.

Sunday on arising he found a blister about as high as half a lead pencil starting at his right foot and running up the leg and hip and torso, just back of the armpit, where it disappeared.

Friends urged him to see a physician, so he went to Newton. He was assured there was no likelihood of any serious results.

NINETY-NINE GRADUATED

Diplomas Presented at Grammar Schools' Commencement Exercises.

TWO ADDRESSES WERE MADE.

The Superintendents of the City and Borough Schools Spoke to the Graduates This Afternoon.

Ninety-nine graduates of the Stillman Grammar School received diplomas entitling them to entrance into the high school, at the exercises which took place in the City High School auditorium this afternoon.

This opened with invocation by Rev. Chas. L. Goodrich. The chorus, "Jerusalem Above," followed by the graduating class after which the visions of Sir Launfal were given by Andrew Murdock Hetfield and Carter Lyman Goodrich. This was well given, especially the lines on spring and winter. After another chorus, "Santa Lucia," by the graduating class, Harold Woodruff Tomlinson gave Scott's "The Combat." This declamation was followed by the rendition of several two-part songs by a chorus of girls.

The second part of the program opened with a declamation by Frederic Warren Butler, Jr., who gave an extract from Marc Antony's Oration. The overture, "William Tell," was ably rendered by Miss Muriel Collins, of the City High School, and Miss Whitney, of First place.

The address to the graduates was given by Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the borough schools. His talk was direct and elicited much applause. Following an address to the graduates by Dr. Henry M. Maxson, the much coveted diplomas were presented to the graduates by Leander N. Lovell, president of the Board of Education. With the singing of "America" by the audience standing, the exercises came to a close.

Those who were graduated are:

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS DAY

The P.H.S. Seniors Have Lots of Fun "Roasting" One Another.

"MEDALS" ARE DISTRIBUTED.

Horoscopes and Class Will Cause Amusement—A Picture of Ira W. Travell Presented to the School.

The class of 1910 of the City High School had its last good time as undergraduates, when the class day exercises were held in the assembly hall last night. The exercises began at 8 o'clock, but by 7:30 o'clock the assembly hall was crowded to its capacity with friends and relatives of the graduates.

When the curtains were drawn aside at 8 o'clock the graduates were revealed sitting around a large log campfire. The effect was produced by incandescent electric lights and was very realistic. The first number on the program was the song "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," sung by the graduates before the drawing of the curtains. The song "Here's Good Bye" followed. In this each of the present classes in the school was appropriately "knocked."

The class history was told in the form of informal anecdotes. Incidents were taken up and related by different members of the class. All proved unmistakably that 1910 is the greatest class ever to be graduated from the school, judged from the viewpoint of achievements.

The statistics followed. These were compiled from a recent voting contest. The "medals" were presented by Fred Loizeaux, president of the senior class, assisted by Miss Margaret Leggett the vice-president.

J. Osgood Sewall then came forward and bequeathed the effects of the class to various school institutions. His "will" was clever and was given well. Following this came the class prophecy which was quite the most entertaining number on the program. Each member of the class was called to the log fire where Miss Louise Andrews read the palm of their left hands. She saw remarkable fortunes ahead of her classmates—some praise was bestowed, some knocks were given, but all was given and taken in a spirit of fun. The "horoscopes" were prepared by the Misses Louise Andrews and Grace D. Parker. The prophesies were especially witty and Miss Andrew's reading of them was especially good.

Theodore Hamilton then read an original class poem while his classmates munched marshmellows toasted over a heatless log fire and distributed by long pronged sticks.

The song "Farewell Toast" closed the exercises. Just previous to this Osgood Sewall presented to the school on behalf of the class a large framed spla photograph of former Principal I. W. Travell. A hearty round of applause followed the presentation.

The floor was then cleared for dancing which was enjoyed until midnight.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF THEODORE KURZHALS, JR.

The funeral of Theodore Kurzhals, Jr., was held yesterday afternoon from the home on Lincoln place. The service was in charge of Rev. J. O. McKelvey and interment was made in Evergreen cemetery. The pall bearers were Fred Ivamy, E. H. Clevely, Lafayette Rosensteihl, Lindsey Wooley, Joseph Plum and J. Bock.

None of the six fraternal orders of which Mr. Kurzhals was a member attended in uniform, though each was represented at the funeral and each sent large floral pieces. There were many individual floral gifts in addition to these.

Wedded Quietly.

A quiet wedding took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Cave, of East Front street, when their daughter, Margaret W., was married to Townsend H. Fellows, the Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. Only the immediate members of the family were present.

Will Hold a Camp Fire.

The Men's Bible Class of the First Baptist church will hold a camp fire on Johnston's Drive tomorrow afternoon and evening, commencing at 4 o'clock. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock. The class has a membership of sixty and a large representation is expected.

ADDRESSES HEPTASOPHS

Says Fraternal Organizations Should Not Take the Place of the Church.

SO DECLARES OLIN BRYAN.

Baltimore Man Reviews the History of the Order—An Entertainment Follows—Vanderhoef Presides.

"Fraternal orders ought not to take the place of the church," said former State Senator Olin Bryan, of Baltimore, Md., to a gathering of the Improved Order of Heptasophs in Coward's Hall last night. "They ought rather to be a support to it." Mr. Bryan's speech had to do with the achievements of the order during the thirty-one years of its existence. He declared that during the period mentioned over $13,000,000 had been paid to beneficiaries and today was on as sound financial basis as any fraternal order in this country.

Mr. Byran declared that chivalry was the keynote of the order and to stand for the higher development of young men its object. The speaker emphasized the fact that no man was independent of his fellows, nor could a man stand alone. Hence the need for such organizations as the Heptasophs. He did not want to apologize for the change of rates to which some had objected because that move had proved to be the right thing at the right time. It brought about a greater protection and security for all the members.

Mr. Bryan took occasion to compliment the Knights of Columbus for their splendid organization and numerical strength and asked the members of the Heptasoph present to stand loyally by their own society.

During the evening S. V. Sanford, of Brooklyn, entertained the company with monologues and Harry Davis, of North Plainfield, rendered several piano selections. Ice cream and cake provided by the committee was welcome on such a hot night.

J. V. E. Vanderhoef presided and extended an invitation to all present to attend the Board of Trade meeting tomorrow night when Mr. Bryan will address that organization. Mr. Bryan is a forceful and eloquent speaker and those who attend the meeting will enjoy hearing him.

YALE CUP AWARDED TO RUSSELL MILLER

Russell Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley S. Miller, of Union street, was awarded the Yale Cup at the City High School exercises this morning. The presentation was made by Edward A. Stevenson, president of the Yale Club, of this city.

The cup is awarded annually to the student having the highest average standing in scholarship and athletics. The competition for the cup extends through the whole High School course and this year the rivalry for it has been unusually keen.

When the winner was announced the pupils of the school broke forth into a hearty round of applause which continued until after Miller had received it and regained his seat.

The remainder of the assembly session was taken up in closing the business of the Girls' Athletic Association and of the Boys' Athletic Association. Reports were read and these showed both organizations to be in a substantial condition.

With the speech of Dr. Maxson and the brief talk of Principal Best the formal part of the exercises came to a close. Then the pupils sang school songs and gave yells. This practically closes the work of the year for the pupils.

Misuse of Commutation Tickets.

The practice of loaning and hiring Central Railroad commutation and fifty-trip tickets, when discovered last summer, resulted in the issuance by the Court of Chancery, of an injunction restraining this practice. That injunction applies not only to the defendants in the suit instituted by the railroad company, but to all persons in the State of New Jersey engaging in such practice. The Central Railroad has given notice that all persons violating this injunction will be proceeded against according to law. ***

Borough Class Day Tonight.

The borough High School class day exercises will be held tonight. Tickets for the affair have all been given out. A unique class prophecy is promised.

MEMORIAL SERVICES OF JR.O.U.A.M. LODGES

The members of the local councils of the Jr. O. U. A. M. will hold a memorial service at Hillside cemetery, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, and Rev. Ora J. Shoop, of Grace M. E. church, will make addresses. This will be the first memorial service held by this order, but hereafter it will be an annual event, similar to the one conducted by the Knights of Pythias each year.

The service at Hillside cemetery will be held at the grave of Rev. E. E. Roberson, former pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, who was a member of the order, while the graves of other Juniors in the local cemeteries will also be decorated. The Juniors will meet at Junior Hall at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon and go to Hillside in special trolley cars.

MORE MONEY RECEIVED FOR THE BABY CAMP

The fund being raised by this paper for the Baby Camp, conducted by The City Union of King's Daughters, is growing. Today, $3.00 was received from "A Sympathizer." This brings the receipts up to $28.00. As the money is received it is promptly transmitted to the proper officers of the camp.

If you are going away for a vacation, won't you consider for a moment what a few dollars would mean when used in the worthy undertaking. Think of the suffering babes, whose parents are too poor to provide them with the necessary comforts during the heating season! At the camp on the mountain, these little ones are made as happy and as healthy as those of wealthy parentage. If you wish to aid such a charity, send your contribution to this office. It will be acknowledged promptly in these columns and immediately transmitted to the camp authorities.

MISS BLANCHE MERCIER W. F. SKINNER'S BRIDE.

Miss Blanche Mercier, of Scotch Plains, and William F. Skinner, of this city, were married this afternoon at St. Mary's church, Rev. Father Hogan, the assistant pastor, officiating, before a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The bridesmaid was Miss Maude Mercier, youngest sister of the bride and the best man was Robert Skinner, brother of the groom. The bride was gowned in white messaline silk, trimmed with beaded net. She wore a veil caught up with natural marguerites and carried a large bouquet of bride roses.

The bridesmaid was gowned in light blue silk mull and wore a black hat trimmed with pink roses and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Miss Smith played the wedding march. The ushers were Charles Eller and James Fitzgerald.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride to the immediate relatives. Following a short honeymoon, the couple will reside on West Front street.

HENRY BARTLAU DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Henry Bartlau, aged 26 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Bartlau, of 711 Richmond street, died on Monday at Kingston, N. Y., following a long illness. During the past three or four years he had lived at Saranac and Woodstock, N. Y., returning to Plainfield occasionally for a visit. He had only been at Kingston for a few days. Mr. Bartlau was at one time employed in one of the local shops as a draughtsman, but ill-health compelled him to give up his position.

Mr. Bartlau is survived by his parents, one brother, Herbert R. Bartlau, and two sisters, Mrs. Walter Lane and Miss Elizabeth Bartlau, all of this city. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Bartlau was a member for many years, will conduct the funeral services from the late home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The burial will be at Hillside cemetery.

Peter E. Kassler and Miss Lillian Witt, of New York, are visiting Mr. Kassler's sister, Mrs. M. Kassler, of West Front street.

HOT WAVE STRIKES US

Only One Prostration Reported But Many Suffer Because of the Heat.

SOME RELIEF IS PROMISED.

Icemen and Thirst Parlors Kept Busy—Mercury Goes Above the Ninety Degree Mark.

All heat records for the season were broken yesterday, when Plainfielders together with other mortals in this part of the country experienced their first real discomfiture from the sun's torrid rays this year. The soda water fountains in this city also broke all records, thirsty patrons flocking about them like flies about a sugar barrel. There was scarcely any breeze and Old Sol certainly made up for lost time in warming up things.

By way of comparison the records show that the hot spell last June began on the twentieth of the month, with a temperature that varied from 86 to 88 degrees. On the six succeeding days the temperature reached the 90 point and over, June 25 being the hottest day in the month, with a record of 94.

The weather bureau promises slight relief within the next twenty-four hours, but not for long duration. There is said to be a small cool wave coming out of the northwest and will no doubt be a welcome relief. Yesterday's high-water mark for temperature was 94 degrees.

There was only one case of heat prostration reported yesterday. That was Edward Randolph, 65 years old, a boarder at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. VanDyke, 225 East Fifth street. He was overcome by the heat in front of J. Hervey Doane's jewelry store on Park avenue about 7:15 o'clock last night and was taken home unconscious. He was reported this morning as improving.

The icemen have been particularly busy during the past few days, the offices of the various companies being constantly busy receiving telephone calls for frozen water. It was the first real "rush" of the season and the icemen had all they could do to supply orders.

While many newspapers reported yesterday's temperature to be a record-breaker for June, Weather Prophet John Neagle produced figures today to prove that such was not the case. The high temperature commenced on Saturday last with a maximum of 85 degrees, Sunday with 87 degrees, Monday 90 degrees and yesterday it was 94. Today at 1:45 it was 92. The highest temperature recorded in any June from 1888 to 1910 was 100 degrees in June, 1893.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. EDMUND PACK

The funeral service of Mrs. Edmund W. Pack was held from the late home on Park avenue, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Mrs. Pack was a member for many years, officiated. Mrs. Pack was not only a faithful member of the church, but for twenty-two years was superintendent of the sewing school at Warren chapel and was for years buyer for the Plainfield Relief Association.

Mrs. Pack was devoted to her home, as well as her religious duties and had a large circle of friends. Lenore Loree and William Loree, cousins of Mrs. Pack, and who are prominent in the railroad world, were among the mouners at the service. The burial was in the Evergreen cemetery on Plainfield avenue and the bearers were John Rowland, Elias H. Bird, R. W. Barnes, T. S. Armstrong, Frank W. Jones and Charles DeGraw.

Weinberger Sent to Hot Springs.

Philip Weinberger, who was turned over to the borough police by the city police Monday, was sent to Hot Springs, Va., yesterday. He was arrested on the request of his mother, who says that he threatened to kill her in default of a sum of money which he demanded from here.

Supervisors to Be Appointed.

The Playground Commission will meet tonight in the Mayor's office. At this time the supervisors for the two local playgrounds will be engaged. Other matters will also be considered.

EXTEND WATCHUNG AVE.

Thoroughfare Being Opened Up Now as Far as Johnston Drive.

THE MAYOR IS ON THE JOB.

Newton B. Smalley at Work in His Shirt Sleeves This Hot Day for the Improvement in the Borough.

No greater emphasis could be laid upon the fact that North Plainfield intends to develop its resources than a sight of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, in shirt sleeves, perspiring, but determined, aiding with his advice and personality, which means a forward movement, the establishment of a thoroughfare between the North Avenue station and Johnston's drive on Watchung avenue. Splitting old tree stumps with charges of dynamite, clearing up debris left by the charges and keeping the men who are working for Borough Street Commissioner John Barret, so that future generations may reap the benefit seems to be the special desire of the progressive Mayor of the borough.

With an eye single to the actual development of the borough over which he presides, Mayor Smalley is intensely interested in making the improvements which a progressive community demands. To this end he is supervising the work of opening the new street from Coddington avenue to Johnston's drive, and as the Mayor says, "It will open up one of the most picturesque sections of North Plainfield and open the eyes of those who have always looked upon the hills adjacent to Quarries as a lost domain."

This morning when the sun was hottest in the open workmen in the employ of the borough demolished the last of the stumps of ancient trees which impeded the progress of the street makers and this afternoon the street will assume its natural lines. It is confidently expected that within the next two weeks the new street will be open for traffic, if the freeholders get busy and erect a bridge over the brook which runs through the property of the Union Investment Company's holdings.

According to the plans laid out by the Mayor and Common Council during the administration of Mayor Samuel Townsend the work of opening the way to the people of the country districts is to be carried through to the point of making the township look up and notice the travail of the borough. While it may take a few weeks to get the new thoroughfare macadamized it will nevertheless open up one of the most beautiful parts of that section of the township.

The North Plainfield township line crosses diagonally across one corner of the new street, but it is not expected that any obtrusive notice will be taken of this because the improvement will not only improve the status of the borough, but will enhance the valuations of property held by those who desire the improvement but who fear higher taxation, but it will allow of an uninterrupted trip from the railroad station to "Aunt Sally's 'notch.'"

Besides reaching the notch the road will eventually lead to the old Washington hotel, which, by the way, would be in a better physiological position if it faced the other way.

There is absolutely no doubt that the opening up of this approach to the thickly wooded and park-like section of North Plainfield is going to prove the greatest boon to the residents of this part of the mountainside that has ever taken form in Somerset county.

No improvement of recent years has excelled in importance the extension of Watchung avenue from Coddington avenue to the drive. It means the opening up of a section of building lots which will undoubtedly be restricted and a vista of beautiful country in which little paradises can be built for those who want exclusiveness.

Sale of Jackson Avenue Property

The propert yat 271-273 Jackson avenue, this city, belonging to the Catherine Webster estate, was sold yesterday at public auction to Frederick Hoffmeister, of Jackson avenue. The consideration was $2,080. The property is 44x105 feet and there is a double-house thereon with six rooms on each side. Charles H. Hand was the agent in the deal and had charge of the sale, which is considered a good one. Auctioneer P. H. Latourette was the auctioneer.

There will be initiation at the regular meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, Ancient Order United Workmen, tomorrow night.

TO SUSPEND NEW RATES

Possible That Advance in Commutation May Not Go Into Effect July 1.

RAILROAD BILL IS A LAW.

General Superintendent Huntington, of the Jersey Central, Says Report Is All News to Him.

There is a possibility, according to the Newark Evening News, that the advance in commutation rates may not go into effect July 1, as announced by all the railroad companies. President Taft on Saturday signed the new federal railroad measure, which was passed that day, and it went into effect on Monday. Under that law the Interstate Commerce Commission is empowered to suspend such proposed increases until it can fully examine into the subject.

It is not even necessary that a complaint should be made, for the law provides that "whenever there shall be filed with the commission any schedule stating a new individual or joint rate, fare or charge," the commission "shall have, and is hereby given, authority, either upon complaint, or upon its own initiative, without complaint, at once, and, if it so orders, without answer or other formal pleading by the interested carrier or carriers, but upon reasonable notice, to enter upon a hearing concerning the propriety of such rate, fare, change, classification, regulation or practice."

In the case of the commutation rates it is not necessary for the Interstate Commerce Commission to proceed upon its own initiative, for complaints have already been filed. Gov. Fort, too, has ordered Attorney-General Wilson to take a hand in the case, so the complainants will be officially backed by the State government.

There is still about ten days before the new rates are planned to go into effect. That may be considered "reasonable notice" enough to a temporary suspension of the increase, so far as interstate rates are concerned. That may meet the demands of the commuters, but the State commission ought to be given as much power to deal with these intra-State utility corporations as has been delegated to the Interstate Commission in dealing with railroads.

When General Superintendent Huntington was asked today about the report of a possible suspension in the order for increased rates, he said that it was news to him and that was the first that he had heard of it. He did not seem to take any stock in the story, but said that such matters came under the jurisdiction of the passenger department. General Passenger Agent W. C. Hope, to whom Mr. Huntington referred The Daily Press man, was not at his office at the time. His chief clerk declined to talk but said that he would bring the report to his attention.

GOOD ELKS TO PARADE AND HAVE JOLLY TIME.

"The best people on earth," who are officially known as the B. P. O. E., will have a big time tonight with plenty of red fire and martial music. The occasion will be the reception by Plainfield Lodge of delegations of Elks from Dover and Somerville, 150 strong. The Doverites will make the trip by auto, reaching here about 7:45.

The visitors will assemble at Elks' hall on West Second street and will there be escorted to Saengerbund hall, headed by a fife and drum corps. There will be large quantities of pyrotechnics to illuminate the way. It is expected that 300 of the antlered host will be in line.

The program at the hall will include a minstrel and vaudeville program to which the two pickaninny boxers who made such a hit at the Plainfield Elks' show last month will be contributors. Supper will be served in conclusion.

Funeral of Mrs. Bulkley.

The funeral service of Mrs. Caroline A. Bulkley, who died on Sunday, at 683 West Seventh street, was held from the home yesterday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock, and was largely attended. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Whittaker, of Elizabeth, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis, of Park avenue, left today for Cape May, where Dr. Davis will attend the annual session of the New Jersey State Homeopathic Medical Society. They will return home on Friday.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Millville citizens are elated over the appropriation of $55,000 for a public building, recommended in the bill reported in the House.

Having neglected a small scratch on his finger, Charles Jaggers, Millville, suffered with blood poison and two of the fingers were amputated.

For biting Policeman William Miles on the hand John Blownski was committed to the county jail in default of $1,000 bail by Recorder Stackhouse in Camden.

When Samuel B. Cliff, of Clayton, went to his hennery to feed his fowls he found none to feed, thieves having taken his entire flock of thirty fine broilers, ready for market.

Acting under orders from Fire Chief John Stagg, members of the Paterson Fire Department acted as agents of the S. P. C. A. Society in caring for horses throughout the city that had been overcome by the heat.

In Bayonne, Helen and Kate Meyer, seven and nine years old, respectively, were badly burned when a gasoline torch on a cane stand near their home, 98 West Nineteenth street, exploded.

The Jersey City Harbor Board appointed yesterday Fred Rider secretary at a salary of $1,200 a year. Mr. Rider, who is a lawyer, gave up practice because of ill health. He has made harbor and river improvements a study.

Scandal may follow the charge made against George W. Hookey, a prominent business man of Pittsburg, that he assaulted Alderman George W. Carmany, in his hotel, the Fredonia, Atlantic City. A warrant for Hookey's arrest was sworn out last night, but he could not be found, and the police are holding his baggage in anticipation of his return.

Gustav Teyman, forty-seven years old, of 820 South Fifth street, Camden, attempted suicide by inhaling illuminating gas at his fruit store, Fifth and Division streets. The night before he told friends, the police say, that he was tired of living and not to be surprised if he did something desperate. He had been in poor health of late. He was taken to the Cooper Hospital, where the oxygen treatment was administered.

Claiming that she had no recollection of her murderous attack, Kate Clark was Monday committed in default of $500 bail by Recorder Stackhouse, on a charge of shooting Ruth Horton, at the latter's home, at the foot of Spruce street, Camden. Although she had a narrow escape from death, the bullet plowing its way through her chin and cheek, the Horton woman was loath to press the case, saying Kate was a "a nice girl as long as she did not drink."

In Jersey City Andrew J. Corcoran, secretary of the new postoffice committee of the Board of Trade, learned that Congress had appropriated an additional $100,000 for the new postoffice, making the total appropriation $900,000. The city asked $200,000 additional instead of $100,000, and tomorrow a committee of the Board of Trade will go to Washington and try for the other $100,000. The committee also will call on President Taft to get his assurance that he will attend the 250th anniversary of the founding of the city on October 18.

Burlington officials and railroad detectives reached a compromise in the campaign against ride-stealing gangs on Pennsylvania Railroad freight trains passing through that city, as a result of which they will in the future work together to stop the practice. Objecting to the city being made the dumping grounds for hobo gangs run off the trains by railroad detectives, while the taxpayers were made to pay the expense of keeping them in the county jail, Mayor Farner has determined to use an old law and compel the prisoners to work in a ball-and-chain gang on the streets.

Jacob Ticum, a farmer living near Williamstown, had a narrow escape from death Tuesday. Ticum was repairing his barn and had torn out two lower sides and the front when the roof fell, pinning him to the ground. A large bull which was fastened in the other end of the barn became frightened and broke loose. Rushing out, the animal espied Ticum and attacked him in his helpless condition. Not being able to toss him, the bull contented himself with standing or walking on the portions of Ticum's body extending beyond the debris which held him. He was rescued by David Deshler. Ticum had several ribs crushed, sprained back and head bruised.

—Robert Cuzen, of West Front street, has resigned his position with the United States Express Company.

—William M. Nevius, of Elmwood place, is among the latest to join the army of autoists, having purchased a runabout car.

The Intermediate and Junior Endeavor prayer meeting will be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The next regular communion service will be held at the First Baptist church Sunday morning, July 3, when new members will be received.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The warm weather was no bar to the success of the Bachelors' Club shirt waist dance, which was held in the hall last night. The place was well ventilated and the dancers got all the air there was, but no one minded the heat and the dance was one of the best the club has yet held. The committee decorated the hall with daisies. The stage was banked in white and gold. The new floor was in fine condition. Suhr's orchestra as usual dispensed enticing two-steps and waltzes until the 1:15 car. Guests were present from Dunellen, Westfield and Plainfield.

Entry blanks for any of the events to be held on the Fourth of July may be obtained at Clark's candy store or Fuchs' butcher shop. The principal event will be the ten-mile bicycle race. Several wheels will be given as prizes and the entry list will be a big one. The running race will prove an exciting event as the town has a number of boys who can cover two miles in good time. The candidates are out every night getting in condition and an exciting race is assured.

Commencement exercises of the Public School No. 1, will be held tonight in the assembly room. Following the exercises the class of 1910 will entertain its friends at a reception and dance. The graduates are Misses Ethel Miller, Elizabeth Herbst, Catherine Russell, Emily Garda, Ivy Hargraves, Ethelyn Walker, Martha Terry, and Jacob Stevens and Alfred Wineson.

The married men and single men play their annual ball game on the afternoon of the Fourth. The benedicts defeated the single ones last season and Capt. Hand is expecting to duplicate the trick this year.

Mrs. Charles Backer and son, of Plainfield, have been visiting Mrs. Backer's mother, Mrs. Robert Jahn, of Park avenue.

Mrs. George Alberts is seriously ill at her home on Montague avenue, her condition being critical for a week past.

Manager Albert is trying to book a game for Saturday afternoon with the Flemington team, at Flemington.

Roy Smalley, of Prospect avenue, has returned from a visit with friends at Montclair.

SOMERVILLE.

Announcement was made Sunday afternoon in the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Bishop McFaul, that during the absence of Rev. M. V. D. Bogard, who will soon go abroad, Rev. Richard Ryan, of Sandy Hook, will take charge of the parish. The church was crowded on Sunday afternoon, when sixty young people were confirmed. Bishop McFaul was assisted by seven priests.

Rev. M. V. D. Bogard will sail for Holland on July 19, and expects to spend the summer months in his former home in that country.

The monthly meeting of the Try Again Society of the First Reformed church was held last evening in the chapel.

The annual roll call of the Methodist church will be held in the chapel on Thursday evening, June 30.

Mrs. Joseph McCloskey, of Perth Amboy, is visiting Mrs. George Ehni, on Middaugh street.

The Young Women's Mission Society of the First Baptist church will hold its last meeting of the season Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

During the next three months the Sunday school of the First Baptist church will meet at 9:30 o'clock in the morning and the preaching service will begin at 10:45 o'clock.

WE ARE NOW TRIMMING HATS FREE OF CHARGE.

It's good news to the woman who needs a new Summer Bonnet and knows she can select her materials here and have the trimming done free of charge. We do this to keep our workroom busy during the dull period. Women know that we carry the biggest stock either in season or between seasons for their choosing. For instance, we just received a good stock of small and medium Black Hair and Chip shapes, also White Chip Hats. Most millinery houses have little to show you now, but you can find your choosing easy here, and save money on the shapes and flowers. We don't buy up jobs of undesirable styles, its our aim to have what you WANT in the millinery line and sell it at a lower price than any other house hereabouts. Come to Tepper's for your midsummer hat.

EDITORIAL.

"What we mean by preparedness." To be always ready, whatever the season or the stage of the season, with merchandise of a character best suited to meet your immediate requirements, is the definition of the word "preparedness" as we interpret it.

And this is not a simple matter.

Goods must be always new—absolutely down to date—the best that the foreign and domestic markets have to offer. That means that not a single article in the stock of any department can be carried over from one season to another, yet even at the end of the season when preparations for the ensuing period engross most of our attention, stocks of merchandise for your immediate wear—to supply your needs during the transition time, as it were—must remain fully adequate.

This is but one of the many difficulties that we have been obliged to surmount in order that "preparedness" might merit a place among the attributes that characterize this business, devoted to serving your interest.

GOLF.

Belated tournament matches because of Saturday's storm were settled Sunday on the links of the Montclair Golf Club. In the second sixteen, W. V. Swords, of Baltusrol, defeated C. S. Kellogg, of Essex County, by 5 up and 4 to play, while in the beaten eight divisions of that same set Floyd Spencer, of Forest Hill, defeated Captain R. B. Parrott, of New Brunswick, by 1 up. In the beaten eight of the third sixteen F. W. Dyer defeated A. F. Stone by a 4 and 3 margin. Both are Montclair golfers. During the tournament eight matches went to extra holes.

A quartet of golfers who competed in the national open championship at Philadelphia last week made a quick shift to Garden City, and figured in a four-ball match there Sunday afternoon. Fred Herreshoff, the metropolitan champion, had H. H. Barker, the Garden City "pro," for a partner against George Cummings, the Canadian professional, and Karl Keffer, a home bred, from Albany. The match stood all square at the turn, and it was still even up at the finish. Fourteen holes were halved. Barker, with a 75, had the best score. Cummings had 79 and the other two 80.

The golf attractions this week will be the annual invitation tournament of the Apawamis Club, at Rye, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Gardiner White, of Oakland, the interscholastic champion, will be there, and it is quite likely that Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, and Findlay S. Douglas, who belongs to both Apawamis and Nassau, will be found at the first tee.

There will be a thirty-six hole medal round on the first day for the purpose of classifying the players into three sixteens. A cup has also been provided for the beaten eight in the first set. All match rounds will consist of eighteen holes, but the Saturday handicap will be over the double route. The course has thrived under the many rains, with the result that the greens never appeared so attractive as at present.

George S. Clay, who is entered in the play for the June trophy at the Plainfield Country Club, drew a bye last week, because both of the men with whom he was scheduled to play defaulted.

Alec Smith, the genial professional of the Wykagyl Country Club, won the national open golf championship for the second time over the links of the Philadelphia Cricket Club Monday. In the play-off of the triple tie with his brother, McDonald, and J. J. McDermott, the Merchantville home-bred, Alec reeled off a 71. McDermott got second money with 75 and McDonald Smith third with 77.

Alec Smith now holds no fewer than three titles, the other two being the metropolitan open and the championship of the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association, both of which he won last summer. Because of his long and brilliant record and greater experience, Alec was always a favorite to defeat his youthful opponents in the play-off, and his golf was little short of brilliant.

Prior to the start Alec contented himself with a dozen mashie shots for practice, all so accurate that the caddie at the receiving end never had to move out of his tracks, just reaching out a hand to pick up each ball.

The Smiths played in flannel trousers and outing shirts, but McDermott, despite the excessive heat, remained faithful to his khaki coat over white trousers and silk shirt. Aleck Smith won $300, the gold medal and possession of the championship cup. MsDermott won $150 and the Californian $100.

On Friday, at the Wilmington (Del.) Country Club, Aleck Smith and George Sargent, the deposed title holder, will meet Will Anderson and Gil Nichols in a four-ball match.

A week-end members' tournament has been arranged by the Ocean Country Club at Far Rockaway. It will start on Saturday, July 2, and finish on July 4. Conditions call for a qualification round on the morning of July 2.

THE FORUM.

Defends Mr. Fowler's Actions.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Apropos of the article in your issue of today, giving an account of Speaker Cannon's speech on Saturday last in which he is reported to have criticized Mr. Fowler, perhaps some of your readers may be interested in considering the other side of the question.

Mr. Fowler, believing, and I think justly, that the Vreeland bill was a bad bill, did all in his power to prevent it being reported to the House. In doing this he was, it seems to me, wholly within the rights and properties of his office as chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, and had a majority of the committee disagreed with him, they could, undoubtedly, have compelled a report on the bill. When the House finally compelled the bill to be brought before it, it was equally within its rights, and I have never heard that Mr. Fowler or any of his supporters ever questioned or complained of this. The Committee on Banking and Currency does not, however, rest under the responsibility with which it would have been properly chargeable, had it reported the bill favorably.

The point is, however, that what the opponents of Cannonism have been all along contending for is the right of any member to bring before the House with respect to any bill, the question of exercising the very power which was exercised by it with respect to the Vreeland bill. It was exercised in that case because the Speaker favored the passage of the Vreeland bill. If he had been opposed to it, it would, undoubtedly, have remained in committee, as have other bills which he has opposed, notably the Appalachian and White Mountain forest reserve bill. It is only when the shoe pinches him, that the Speaker is moved to criticize a committee for failure to report a bill.

The amendment to the rules just adopted by the House in a prudent effort by the "regular" Republicans to avoid another controversy, and which will enable any member hereafter, under certain circumstances, to make a motion to discharge a committee from the consideration of a bill, deprives the Speaker of one more of the powers which he has so long abused.

The Wayne Cedared Paper Wardrobe

"SOLD EXCLUSIVELY IN THIS CITY BY US."

Are better than a cedar chest. They keep your clothes free from moths, dust and wrinkles. The "Wayne Wardrobe" is made of tough, durable paper, impregnated with the delicate aromatic odor of pure red cedar, an odor that is repugnant to the moth family. Yet that odor does not cling to the clothes, as is the case with tar paper or moth balls. "Wayne Wardrobes" are made in ten sizes and range in price from 50c to $1.50

4 Per Cent. Interest

Plainfield in The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

December 5, 1872.

We learn that Charley Vreeland, a one-armed soldier, who lives near Westfield, has this season, with one arm, shot over a hundred rabbits and about fifty quail. Some of our young nimrods in this section should take a few lessons from Mr. Vreeland in the art of shooting with one hand.

If there is anything in "signs" we should say that we were to have a severe winter, judging from the number of possums that are being captured about this city. Mr. L. Moffett caught a fine one near the freight house on Monday morning last. We have heard of several of these "critters" being caught on the streets and around residences within the past three or four weeks.

Here is marriage by the wholesale out of one family, and with a splendid variety in the participant's season of life. The Rev. Mr. Thorn, now at Millville, has within the past month, it is said, superintended process for the Johnson family as follow, to wit: Jacob Johnson, Esq., father; Miss Lizzie Johnson, daughter; and Miss Lydia Johnson, granddaughter.

The steam roller is doing its work admirably in the work of macadamizing Front street. The roller is also employed on the section of Front street, between Somerset and Grove streets, which was macadamized last winter, a top dressing being laid on the same. We suggest that the roller be used to "dress up" Front street, between Peace and Richmond streets, where that "grading" has been going on for the past three or four weeks. May be it would take the "kinks" out of that "crown point."

December 26, 1872.

A narrow escape from fire occurred at the residence of Mr. Augustus Frazee, on Peace street, last Friday evening, caused by the oil in a lamp taking fire and blazing up nearly to the ceiling. An attempt was made to smother the flames, but without success. Finally Mr. Clark Watts, who happened to be passing the house, saw the light, and rushing in caught up the burning lamp and threw it into the street.

Notice is given in the Somerset County papers that application will be made to the next Legislature for a charter for a Savings Bank in North Plainfield township. Also for a law laying out and opening a street sixty-six feet wide, running from Mountain avenue, in Somerset county to Front street in Union county, through lands of Brower, Conway, Simpson, Hyde, Myers and Platt; also for a law authorizing and empowering the Township Committee of North Plainfield township to widen, regulate, establish grades, grade, macadamize, curb and flag Somerset street.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Local athletes are now training for the field meet which will be a part of the celebration here on July Fourth. One of the features of the meet will be a three-mile bicycle race. The course will be from the fair grounds near the lake to Lehigh avenue thence to Park avenue by way of Woods road down Park avenue to Maple avenue and down Maple avenue to the fair grounds again.

Thomas A. Linnaberry and family, of Plainfield, expect to move this week to the property on Lehigh avenue, owned by Charles Brantingham.

Mass will be celebrated on next Sunday in the church of the Sacred Heart here at 8 instead of 9 o'clock the usual time.

George Bunting, of New Market, visited relatives here yesterday.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Meta Pennock, Theodore Hamilton and Katheryn Moynihan are the graduates from the local Whittier School who took part in the Class Day exercises at the Plainfield High School last night. Hamilton read an original poem.

Report from former Mayor Wyckoff states that he is much improved in health. He is still in the upper part of New York State.

The Board of Trade met last night. Matters on borough publicity and advertising were discussed.

William Deering, of Gloucester, will move into the Silas Nellor house shortly.

William Sanford visited out of town friends Monday.

Albert Giddes is erecting a new house on First street.

COLLEGE WOMAN.

From an attitude of skeptical indifference toward her presence the American business man has come to regard the college woman in business as a real boon in an age that is calling every day more and more insistently for reliability power to reason and initiative in subordinate positions.

It is now not merely the person who can take orders intelligently, who is wanted, but the person who can take orders progressively, who can see the business purpose, who can follow the leader like a good soldier and develop her end of the business like a wise partner.

And not only in routine positions has the college girl proved her ability to tackle live problems, but in the fields of independent enterprises as well she has achieved a success that disposes, once for all, of the old idea that she had no initiative or daring.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Miss Florence Conroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Conroy, of Linden avenue, to Peter J. Mauger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mauger, of Compton avenue, is announced today. The wedding will take place in the near future.

Extra-early Fireworks.

Teachers at the Stillman School this morning had to call the police to stop an incipient Fourth of July celebration instituted by boys in the streets near the school. Sergeant Overbaugh scattered the youngsters and no arrests were made.

"In pursuit of pleasure," said the serious citizen, "you should not neglect to lay something by for a rainy day."

"Of course," replied the light-hearted man, "Nearly every member of our fishing club brings along a pack of cards."—Washington Evening Star.

"I would like mightily to enjoy riches."

"Then why don't you try to marry 'em?"

"As I said, I want to enjoy 'em."

PLANNING A GARDEN

"Just what father will say I have no idea," began Doris, swinging a pink-checked sun-bonnet over the porch railing. "But it was his letter that really started me. So he is partly to blame if he doesn't quite approve. And he does want me to stay outdoors.

"Everybody finds me out here, and I don't pretend to apologize for enveloping aprons and garden tools. I've dragged up enough porch furniture so that I can entertain people and now I don't interrupt things to dress. Out here ginghams do very nicely."

"It is a charming porch," remarked Louise, with a slight shiver, as she carefully rolled off her delicate gloves and lifted her fawn-gray skirts slightly. "But the yard—isn't it a bit dirty, even for ginghams?"

"Now, for goodness' sake, don't be snobbish," pleaded Doris. "It's lovely. And weren't you the very person who advised me to give up the winter term at school and come home, where I could get well making flower gardens? That was the very day father came for me with the news that this house in the suburbs was ours. I came on to find snow everywhere and no possible chance to do anything but plan. Just when things began to get sunny father was called away on this tiresome business trip. Through my conscientious efforts mother's life was made a nightmare until she got father to send a long list of instructions and plans for the garden.

"I started that very day in earnest. Father wrote: 'Have the garden spaded and arranged according to these plans, and when I come Doris can do all the planting under my instructions.' I can see his smile as he wrote that. What will he say to this, I wonder?

"You see, I had already made plans of my own. He had sent for lots of horticulturists' magazines and in one of them I found a glorious plan for a formal garden—just the size of ours. Of course father wasn't specially interested in the flower side of it at all. He is so crazy over sweet corn and summer squashes that he can't think of other things. When he told me how much of the ground could be mine I kept the plan to myself, for there seemed such oceans of time to discuss it. After he went south I talked it over with mother, and she wrote him about some of my plans. That was why he sent his. So we started in, making every now and then a few changes that didn't really matter.

"Mother protested for a time, but she hasn't said a word for a week—not since I started to dig the pool for my irises and goldfish. Yes, that's it. In the center will be a bank of gravel, but there will be a mud bottom for the long roots. And I had pipes laid, so there will be a continual flow of water across the pool. Of course there is the water tax to think of, as mother says, but maybe we can get a special rate, since we want to use so much water. Most things are cheaper at wholesale, you know.

"Along the sunny fence I've planted hollyhocks and cosmos and coreopsis, because they 'make amicable comrades when shoulder to shoulder,' as my book says. Father's corn was to have been there, but it can go somewhere else just as well, and think of the difference in the looks—and on the most prominent side of the yard, too!

"The beds all circle about the iris pool and the paths are to be of grass, with a four-foot border with sweet alyssum, pansies and foliage plants, just like the parks. And there are my poppy beds—'nymphs even in the heart of flowerdom,' my book calls them.

"That pillar? Oh, that is my sundial. Isn't it sweet? I had to have one, for this article says: 'About the sundial clusters all the romance of the ages. It is enveloped in an atmosphere of poetry.'

"Mother and I had our most serious discussion over that bed on the north side of the yard. I have to wait for father before I shall know about my summer house. There I shall serve tea, with rambler roses and clematis and wisteria climbing all about! Father had selected that side for his asparagus beds and they were already started, so I yielded to mother in that. I love asparagus, don't you? And if I must do without the summer house I'll have the vines over the porch, as mother suggested.

"Other vegetables? Well, yes, father wants them, and I am worried to think where he can put them. Why, he even wanted pumpkins and cantaloups. I have left a bed for lettuce and radishes and such pretty things as that. The book advised it. As for the rest, we can buy all the vegetables we want from the truck farmers around. I inquired about that.

"I haven't written father my entire plan. It wi'l be such a nice surprise for him, I think. Besides, it is so complicated that he couldn't have understood it in a letter. I did write about moving the tomato beds away from my hollyhocks and he telegraphed me to let them alone, so that discouraged me.

"I have a suggestion, though. If he can't find room for his corn here, why can't he buy this empty lot next to us? He could have a regular farm there. He is coming home to-night and that is the first thing I want to talk to him about. Don't you think he'd like all that space for vegetables?"

STATE ASSESSORS WILL NOT WITHHOLD DATA.

Trenton, June 22.—In the absence of a quorum the State Board of Assessors was unable yesterday to take any formal steps to comply with the request of the State Railroad Commissioners that they be permitted to examine the records of the office in connection with the increase in railroad rates.

President Theodore Strong and Mr. Halsey, the two members present, talked over the situation between themselves, and concluded that the request was a proper one and should be complied with. They formulated a resolution expressing the willingness of the assessors to give the railroad commission the desired access to their books under conditions to be agreed upon as provided in the resolution.

It is not the idea of either Mr. Strong or Mr. Halsey that these conditions should be restrictive in character, but merely that they should provide for an examination of the records in such manner as not to interfere with the work of the assessor's office, but at the same time to suit the convenience of the commission. The attitude of President Strong and Mr. Halsey removes all doubt as to the ultimate action of the assessors. It is expected that Dr. Bogardus and Charles E. Hendrickson will return in time for next Tuesday's meeting, when the resolution will be formally taken up. Should they return sooner a special meeting may be called.

The position taken by Mr. Strong and Mr. Halsey was that the request of the railroad commission, coming from a co-ordinate State department and asking for information to be used solely in an inquiry being conducted by that department, should be honored.

Some of the records asked for are not records of the assessors and therefore cannot be supplied by them.

SETS ASIDE JUDGMENT IN A SUIT FOR LIBEL.

Trenton, June 22.—The exclusion of mitigating evidence was assigned by the Court of Errors and Appeals as a reason for setting aside a judgment for damages in a libel suit obtained by Francis M. Fodor against Armin Fuchs. Fodor, a steamship agent in New Brunswick, is a native of Hungary, and Fuchs is a competitor in the same business.

Reports were circulated by Fuchs that Fodor was a "spurious banker," an "escaped emigrant agent," and that he "speculated on the stock market with the hard-earned money which the Hungarian people entrusted to him." Fuchs failed to sustain the truth of his allegations, and Fodor recovered a verdict, including punitive damages.

At the trial Fuchs offered letters from the Consul-General at Budapest, Hungary, which were in response to letters from him requesting copies of the alleged records of conviction of Fodor. Justice Trenchard, who wrote the opinion, said these letters might well have been regarded as reasonable grounds for an honest belief in the truth of the matter published, because they tended to show that such records in fact existed. The letters also tended to furnish reasonable explanation of Fuchs' failure to make competent proof of the records at the trial. Therefore, the court holds that the exclusion of the letters was erroneous.

ATTACKED CHINAMAN, FAILED TO ROB HIM.

Elizabeth, June 22.—A bold attempt was made Monday night by two men to rob the Chinese laundry of John Lee, on Third street, near Franklin street, at Elizabethport. The proprietor was out and his assistant, John Gong, was alone in the place. The men asked for their laundry, and the Chinaman demanded the ticket. Then one of the strangers struck the laundryman a hard blow between the eyes, knocking him down, and the other fellow ran behind the counter and tried to open the money drawer, but it was locked.

The Chinaman shouted and the thieves fled. The laundryman ran into a back room, and seizing a pistol, pursued them, and fired five times at the fugitives, but failed to hit them. The noise of the shooting drew a big crowd to the scene.

A policeman arrived later, and taking the revolver away from the excited laundryman, ordered him to close up. He was bleeding freely from the blow he received. No clue to the would-be robbers was obtained by the police.

New Newspaper Proprietor.

Washington, N. J., June 22.—After being business manager of the Washington Star, a weekly paper here, for three years, George C. Hughes returned to the scene of the best years of his life yesterday and became proprietor of the Stroudsburg Jeffersonian, published at Stroudsburg, Pa. The paper was purchased last week, and Mr. Hughes severed his connection with the Star Saturday night. His family will remain in Washington for the present. Mr. Hughes moved here from Boston three years ago, and had charge of the business end of the Star. He will make important changes in the old Stroudsburg weekly. He has had considerable experience in newspaper work, having started the Pen Argyl Index, Stroudsburg Times and also worked in the Monroe Democrat and the Democrat-Advertiser, the latter being published in Flemington.

STRAIN TOO GREAT.

Hundreds of Plainfield Readers Find Daily Toil a Burden.

The hustle and wory of business men.

The hard work and stopping of workmen.

The woman's household cares.

Are too great a strain on the kidneys.

Backache, headache, sideache,

Kidney troubles follow.

A Plainfield citizen tells you how to cure them all.

A. C. Lazzi, 44 Elm Place, Plainfield, N. J. says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for five years and from my experience with them, I feel that I cannot give them too much praise. I have to do a great deal of stooping at my work and I think that my kidneys became weakened in this way. I suffered from a dull, grinding pain in my back and also had attacks of rheumatism. Another scource of annoyance was irregular passages of the kidney secretions. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Randolph's drug store and I was soon in good health. Since then hard work has brought on one or two slight attacks of backache but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills have never failed to give me instant relief."

Enameled Jewelry.

Bright blue enamel in round spots is set into the solid metal with a delightful smoothness that implies durability in much of the new silver jewelry. Silver is a revival in the jeweler's art, so old is it that it is new again, as are a great many more little things in the fashion world. Buttons particularly are inlaid with enamel made of platinum or polished silver, they are colored by the little spots of bright enamel pressed into openings made in the smooth surface. Just two or three of them on a garment will give an elegant touch that could not be got by a full dozen of another sort.

Effective Initials.

When marking household linens there are times when the quickest way is the best. An ordinary cat-stitch made very closely across the design of a block or script letter will "fill in" most satisfactorily. This work is done so closely that the stitches lie side by side, and the constantly crossing holds them in place. The edges of this letter are made more interesting by a finish of outlining which is so closely worked as to appear cordlike.

Stewed Kidneys.

Here is a god recipe for stewed kidneys. Boil them, then chop fine and boil again in fresh water until quite tender. Make a white sauce of flour and butter stirred together until quite smooth. Then stir in slowly the milk or cream, and when this boils add the kidneys and remove from the fire and season with salt and pepper. It takes about half and hour for the kidneys to boil until tender.

His Misapprehension.

"Great goshalmighty!" horrifiedly ejaculated honest Farmer Hornbeak, in the midst of his persual of the patent side of the village newspaper. "It's come, just as I knew it would!"

"Why, what's the matter, Ezry?" cried his wife.

"They're sellin' us farmers into slavery! That's what! Here's an item headed, 'Three Rubens Under the Hammer'!"—Puck.

Stains on Broadcloth.

To remove stains from broadcloth take one ounce of pipe clay that has been ground fine and mix it with twelve drops of alcohol, and the same quantity of spiirts of turpentine. Moisten a little of this mixture with more alcohol and rub it on the spots. Let it remain until dry, then rub off with a woolen cloth and spots will disappear.

Something Complicated.

"To succeed as a pianist, you must have a foreign-looking name."

"I would not choose a name belonging to any other country but my own."

"Well, pick out the name of some throat disease."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Merger.

"Brown has just formed another merger."

"That so?"

"Yes—married a girl for her money."

The Old Game.

She's asked him to supper,
This maiden so cute,
Preparing to land him
By feeding the brute.

A Favorite Lost.

"Was your comet party a success?"

"No, the women I wanted to win the prize had miserable luck."—Detroit Free Press.

Skeptical.

"Is he a skeptic?"

"I should say so. He even refuses to believe that Halley's comet has a tail."—Detroit Free Press.

Ready-Made.

"Why do you call his fortune a ready-made one."

"He married a rich widow to get it."—Detroit Free Press.

PAYING THE FIDDLER

At the door of her schoolroom Miss Heath, the teacher, was met by a breathless little girl.

"George did it!" she cried. "He just grabbed it and chased around the room with it and—"

"I did not!" shouted George. "It wasn't me any more'n anybody else. Anyhow, it was broke. And if Jimmie hadn't chased me—"

"Be quiet, George," said the bewildered teacher. "What's broken, Margaret?"

Why the—the—you know, the—"

"It was broke all the time," interrupted George.

"George, leave the room. Now, Margaret, what is it?"

Margaret pointed, unable to speak, to the bracket which contained the statue of the Flying Mercury.

"What's the matter with it?" asked the teacher, whose rapid glance failed to discover anything amiss.

Robert jumped nimbly on the steam pipes and with a swift movement decapitated the statue, holding the head dramatically toward the teacher.

"That's what's the matter," said he. "Them kids needn't say they didn't do it because everybody in the room saw them."

Many heads nodded a vigorous affirmative.

"Well, they needn't blame it all on me, if I did take it down, for Ernie and Jim did just as much," yelled George from the door.

The teacher waved him majestically back. As his tear-stained face was withdrawn from sight he shook a threatening fist at Robert, who still held the head in his hand.

"We won't take up any more time now," said the teacher, "but of course the fiddler must be paid. I suppose in this case that the fiddler will have to be paid by your fathers. I think a boy is pretty mean that has all the fun and leaves the bill for the fiddler to be paid by somebody else. The Mercury must be replaced by Monday. Any boy who had anything whatever to do with breaking this one must be honorable enough to pay his share toward getting another."

"Would you call laughing at them when they were chasing around having anything to do with it?" asked Robert, intense anxiety in his countenance.

"Decide among yourselves at recess," replied the teacher. "Talk it over as gentlemen should."

During recess another teacher said to Miss Heath: "You'd better go and look after your boys or first thing you know you'll have a perfectly good boy charged up to your account. I couldn't decide whether it was a riot, or a carnival, but George, as usual, was 'it.'"

Miss Heath, however, found that the trouble had blown over for the time being. An noon an indignant trio stopped to talk to her.

"They say me and Ernie and Jim are the most to blame because we ran around the room," complained George; "but we wouldn't have run around so long if they hadn't jollied us and then I wouldn't have bumped against the desk and fallen down; and don't you think they ought to help pay the fiddler?"

"And, Miss Heath, don't you think that when it was George that took Merkery down he ought to pay the most?" asked Ernie.

"I have nothing to say," replied Miss Heath. "I told you to decide like gentlemen. Were you three boys most to blame?"

"They say we were," said George.

"What do you think?" insisted Miss Heath.

"Well, I guess we were," said Jim. "I didn't care so much anyway. I've got ten cents and it won't cost more'n 25."

"It cost three dollars," said Miss Heath, impressively.

"Three dollars!" shrieked George. "For an old statoo with no clothes on him and one leg broke off? Why didn't you make the kid that broke—"

"There, there!" said Miss Heath with dignity. "Get a new one cheaper if you can, but that's what I paid for the one you broke."

Later in the day she found this note on her desk:

"Dear Miss Heath: If we get a stature we will break off his leg just like the other. We won't give a good one for a old one; it ain't fair. Respectfully yours, GEORGE."

The teacher wrote in reply:

"My Dear George: There was once a man named Shylock who wanted a pound of flesh from near the heart of a man who owed him some money but who could not pay. The judge told him to take it, but if he cut the smallest piece more than his pound he would be severely punished.

Break the leg off if you wish to do so. Affectionately,

"HELEN HEATH."

"We were only fooling," said George next day. "We couldn't cut it just exactly off. Jim said he bet he could, but me and Ernie said we wouldn't be in it. We're going to earn the money. I bet I won't have any more fiddlers to pay. And, Miss Heath, won't you please read us something about Skylark? He was fierce, wasn't he? Gee! Think of cutting a pound of meat off a man!"

The Contrary Case.

"That man they have just ejected from the hall is the very opposite of a conflagration."

"How?"

"He is full of fire after they put him out."—Baltimore American.

UNKIND TO DICK

As the girl with the jet chain started into the shop door the other girl with the lynx furs had just started out. They saw each other at the same moment.

"Well, of all things!" cried the girl with the jet chain. "Where on earth did you come from, Lavinia Hoops? Just in town shopping, I suppose? Why, I haven't seen you since I went to Prairie Town to be bridesmaid last spring—since Ethel married and went away I haven't even heard from there. That is—anyhow, how well you look!"

"Do I?" asked the young woman with the lynx furs.

"I'm dying to hear all the news!" protested the girl with the jet chain. "I had a lovely time there! Sometimes, though, my conscience does hurt me—"

"Goodness!" cried the girl with the lynx furs. "What for?"

The other one sighed. "Oh, I don't suppose I did anything, really," she said. "Only—well—I've always felt that I spoiled his whole life. Dick Harmon, you know. Of course, I couldn't help his being so crazy about me."

"Oh, was he?"

"Goodness! I should think he was."

When they had edged into a corner away from the crowd the girl with the jet chain added by way of explanation: "I don't suppose people generally noticed it, but when one has had as much experience as I have little things show one which way the wind blows. Not that Dick came right out and said things—but it's easy enough to tell when a man really cares! Especially if he is one of the slow, silent kind like Dick! He really is awfully nice, even if he does live in a small town! How is he?"

"Why, he seemed all right when I last saw him," said the girl with the lynx furs. "I—"

"I'm so glad!" said the girl with the jet chain fervently. "I'm so glad he has had the spirit to rise above it! Of course, when a man feels as deeply as it is his nature to he never really gets over a thing like that—but it's something to conceal from people."

"Why, I never knew that you and Dick got so extremely well acquainted the month you were in Prairie Town!" said the girl with the lynx furs.

"My dear," murmured her friend, "it isn't time, you know, it's just feeling that it's the right one! Why, Dick's eyes haunt me yet! I don't suppose, since you've always known him, you ever noticed how much he expresses with his eyes! You always seemed to take him as a matter of course. However, that's just as well, perhaps. I think a girl makes a mistake to let herself grow especially interested in a man who doesn't notice her. I could see when I first met Dick that he had taken a strong fancy to me. Of course, I had no intention of leading him on. I simply couldn't live in a small town after being used to the distractions of a city. It's so narrowing. I'm really amazed that a man as clever as Dick should stick to Prairie Town!"

"Well," said the girl with the lynx furs, "his father has the biggest law practice in the county and Dick's in his office now as partner. And their big house—"

"Dick a partner!" cried the girl with the jet chain. "Well, of course that's very delightful. I suppose he really will have a decent income now. And Dick is very nice. I sometimes feel that I needn't have ended our acquaintance so abruptly. I might have been kinder to him. I almost worry about it!"

"What did you do?" asked the girl with the lynx furs.

"Of course, when I got back home I wrote to Dick," explained the girl with the jet chain. "I always believe in being polite, and he had taken me to the train."

"He said you asked him to," murmured the girl with the lynx furs.

"The idea!" flushed the girl with the jet chain, flushing. "I don't recollect doing any such thing! Men mix things up so! Well, I wrote him and I never heard from him. So I had to do as I did."

"What was that?"

"Why," said the girl with the jet chain, with dignity, "I ended the correspondence. I didn't write again."

"Oh," said the girl with the lynx furs. "I see! How unkind of you!"

"Yes, I've often felt so," admitted the girl with the jet chain. "Still, it may be he simply hadn't the heart to write me when he knew it was hopeless. I believe I really ought to look him up—poor Dick! And he's a partner with his father now! He really is awfully good looking. I shall write him to-night. I feel that it's my duty. By the way, when did you come and how long—"

The girl with the lynx furs appeared confused. "I was trying to tell you, but you didn't give me a chance," she said. "I'm in town on my wedding trip. Dick and I were married last week."

Alvin Adams, when the express business was in its infancy, had an office and two horses in New York city. One of these horses was a fine, fast animal, and the other an old, broken-down nag. Packages that were to be delivered immediately he sent out behind the fast horse. Of goods that didn't have to be rushed, he would say: "Leave them for the old hoss." In every express office to this day there is an "old hoss" room, where undelivered and unclaimed packages are kept.

YOUNG ITALIAN DROWNED IN PASSAIC YESTERDAY.

Michael Dommini, aged fourteen years, of Stirling, was drowned in the Passaic river at that place, yesterday afternoon while swimming with several boys of his own age. All the boys, except Dommini, had started for home, but he remained to wash his face. The boy stood on the edge of the bridge when his feet slipped and he fell in the deepest part of the river at that point.

The news of the accident spread quickly through the village and in a short time a large number of people were engaged in the search for the body. It had not been found this morning. A net has been stretched across the river about a mile from the accident and it is thought that in this way the body can be recovered. The lad is survived by his parents a brother and sister.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS THE K. OF C. CARNIVAL

The carnival of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, being held at West Front street and Grant avenue, continued merrily on last night with even a larger crowd than on the opening night. There were fully 2,500 people in attendance. Major Gordon has brought together one of the best aggregations of shows to be found in an affair of this kind and the best part of it all is that they are not only amusing, but instructive to young and old.

Last night the circus and the "Teatro International," were among the big drawing cards. The tents were filled with people at every performance, and all marveled especially at the gracefulness and ease with which Princess Saida danced. She is said to be "the only real Egyptian dancer," and her interpretation of the four emotions of the prayer to Mohammed as practised by the Egyptians for centuries is truly wonderful. The circus is certainly one of the best attractions on the grounds, while the open-air performance by the Indians, assisted by local children in Indian costume is greatly enjoyed and attracts a big crowd.

There are countless other attractions to make a person part with his cash. The merry-go-round was in full swing last night and did a big business, young and old enjoying rides on the big machine. Every show on the grounds is a good one and well worth the price of admission.

Besides the many forms of entertainment, there are numerous refreshment booths, where ice cream, cake, etc., are served, while the familiar waffle man is ready to serve all comers. The committee from the Knights of Columbus is ably assisted by members of the order and all are much pleased with the success thus far attained. Many out-of-town visitors are expected tonight and additional attractions will be provided on other nights this week.

LAWN FESTIVAL HELD AT EAST END CHURCH.

The Ladies' Guild and Christian Endeavor Society of the Netherwood Reformed church, held a successful lawn festival at East Second street and Leland avenue, last night. The grounds were decorated with lamps and Japanese lanterns and the booths and tables were decked with beautiful flowers. Settees and chairs were grouped in romantic nooks and corners and the whole scene was one of thorough social enjoyment and of good hustling business.

The lawn was well filled and the affair was encouraging to those who planned it. The patronage was liberal and the net proceeds will be between $60 and $70. Those in charge of the booths were as follows:

Candy, Mrs. Dickerson and Mrs. Barwise; cake, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Hansen; strawberries and ice cream, Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Rush. A novel feature was a lemonade well, presided over by Miss Smith. Little girls sold flowers and pictures of the new church. The women of the Endeavor Society served ice cream, cake and strawberries. This is the second lawn festival given by the church and both have been great successes.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL METHODS TO BE DISCUSSED AT ASBURY.

The seventeenth annual session of the School of Methods of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association will meet at Asbury Park on July 5, in the High School building, Bond street, between Munroe and Summerfield avenues. The session will close on July 12, one week later.

George E. Hall, of this city, president of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association, is a member of the board of directors of the school of methods, ex-officio. One of the features of the convention will be the study of missionary work.

Every department of Sunday-school work will be covered in this year's convention and the delegates will be assigned to their special sections of interest on arrival at the High School.

Overlaek May Sue For Divorce.

Matthew Overlaek, of Duer street, who was dismissed by Recorder Dolliver yesterday morning on a charge of threatening his wife, asserts that he will begin proceedings against his wife for a divorce. It was at her instigation that he was arrested Monday. He states he was not arrested on a charge of drunkenness as reported.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. William White and family, of Grove street, have gone to Asbury Park, where they have a cottage.

Miss Matilda Coddington, of Grove street, will leave New York on Saturday on the Steamship St. Paul with a party of friends for a two months stay in Europe, touring the British Isles and the Continent.

Mrs. William Wilson, of East Fourth street, will sail on Saturday in the first cabin of the Anchor Liner Columbia for Glasgow, Scotland, on a visit to relatives. Her passage was secured through Estil's steamship agency.

Miss Faubel, the head of the millinery department of the Tepper Bros. store, will be among the passengers on the Steamship Helig Olav, of the Scandanavian Line, sailing on Saturday for Christiansand. Miss Faubel will be away two months. Estil's agency supplied the ticket.

REPORTS CHIEF BUSINESS OF AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session of the ninetieth stated meeting of the Presbytery of Elizabeth was occupied in receiving reports and in the transaction of business of a routine nature. Rev. J. Ferguson, of Elizabeth, gave a report on "Sabbath Observance," Rev. W. T. Stuchell, of Rahway, spoke on "Evangelistic Work," and Rev. W. F. Whitaker, of Elizabeth, read his report on the "Presbyterian Brotherhood."

One of the most important things taken up at the afternoon session was a plan to simplify the procedure in the reading and hearing of the minutes. This will be taken up at the next session.

A LAWN FETE.

Eastern Star Council to Give An Entertainment.

Under the auspices of Lydia Chapter, No. 41, Order Eastern Star, a "unique lawn fete, entertainment, strawberry and ice cream festival," will be held on the lawn of A. E. Force's home, 1014 West Front street, tomorrow night from 7 to 12 o'clock. The lawn will be elaborately decorated for the occasion and the P. S. C. will have charge of the illuminations.

Mrs. Clayton M. Nagle as chairman of the general committee, has arranged a fine program by local and out-of-town talent. There will be piano solos and duets by Mrs. Elizabeth Woodhard, Miss Edna Sebring, Miss Jubilee Rowley, the Misses Ray and Anna Warnock, Miss Estelle Force; vocal solos by Mrs. Robert Giddis, Miss Mab Bruce, of Brooklyn; Elmer Weaver, George T. Smith, William Holmes, Miss Katheryn Edwards and Mrs. Harry Purcell, of Westfield; Harold Leadbeitter; recitations by Mrs. Krennick, of Dunellen. A feature will be an original sketch by Tommy M. Muir, while the Elks Q nartet will give several selections and there will be violin solos by Kenneth Stuart and Miss Minnie Naylor.

The heads of the various committees are as follows: Light and decorations, Mrs. H. W. Marshall; ice cream, Mrs. W. W. Warnock; cake, Mrs. L. Williams; strawberries, Mrs. A. E. Force; program, Mrs. Clayton M. Nagle.

Mr. Kenney's Plans.

Mr. and Mrs. David T. Kenney and daughter, of Truell Inn, will leave on the Adriatic, Saturday, July 2, for a trip through Europe. They expect to spend three months in touring through England, Ireland, France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland and Belgium. They propose to witness the Passion Play at Ommeramgau, and visit the Vatican at Rome. Mr. Kenney was recently knighted by His Holiness, Pius X., and as a chamberlain of the Papal household will be received with honors at the Holy See.

Juniors to Hold Party.

The junior gymnasium class of the Y. W. C. A. will hold a party tomorrow afternoon in the association rooms to close the activities of the year. Every member will have another girl with her as a guest. An informal social time has been planned. The committee in charge of the affair is composed of the Misses Margaret Applegate, Hazel Coddington, Hazel Runyon, Pauline Feinberg and Mary Hunting.

Victim of Appendicitis.

Miss Florence MacDonald, a member of the senior class of nurses at Muhlenberg Hospital, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the institution yesterday afternoon. It was performed by Dr. Endicott, assisted by Dr. Anthony. It was a serious case but Miss MacDonald was reported as doing well today.

LAWN FESTIVAL.

At Hope Chapel Pastor's Home Today and Tonight.

Under the auspices of the ways and means committee and the Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel a strawberry and ice cream festival will be held this afternoon and evening at the home of Rev. L. R. Howard on West Fifth street. The lawn has been handsomely decorated with bunting, flags and Japanese lanterns.

There will be a lemonade well, candy booth, ice cream booth, where delicious ice cream cones may be secured; strawberries, and short-cake, fancy articles, home-made cake and many other articles. The affair is being held this afternoon and will be continued throughout the evening.

Auto Club Run Off.

The Plainfield Auto Club has decided to call off its scheduled run to Princeton tomorrow night, and the date for the outing will be announced within a short time. The reason for postponing the event is that the club will give the children of the Children's Home an outing on Saturday and this is considered of more importance than the run to Princeton. The autoists feel as though they cannot spend too much time away from business and prefer to give the children an outing instead of going by themselves.

Miss Martha Codington to Wed.

Miss Martha Codington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Codington, of Sandford avenue, and Colon H. Dascombe, of Wilton, Me., will be married at 8 o'clock this evening at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which the bride is a member. Last evening a dinner was given for the members of the bridal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Codington.

S. S. A. L. Meet.

The Sunday School Athletic League will hold a meet Saturday afternoon. The events are: Senior—100-yard, 440-yard and mile runs; running broad, running high jumps and the hop, skip and jump; junior—Sack race, 220-yard dash, running broad jump; boys—50 and 75-yard dashes. The details for the affair are now being arranged.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, is now making his home with Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, on East Seventh street.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Temple Baptist church will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Valentine Utzinger, 75 Grandview avenue. Plans for the fall work will be discussed.

The officers of the Temple Baptist church have erected an attractive arch of building blocks at the entrance to the church property on East Second street, bearing the inscription, "Temple Baptist church" A walk leads from Second street through to the church on East Third street, making a convenient cut for those living on that side.

Closing Meeting of Mission Society.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held the last meeting of the season yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. The devotional service was led by the president, Mrs. Reuben Knox, the theme for thought being, "Personal Acquaintance with the Holy Spirit." Plans were made for boxes to be sent in the fall to Oklahoma. Interesting articles were read on Miss Bowles work in Mexico and "the Needs of San Francisco."

Rahway to Play Here.

The Rahway baseball club in the Y. M. C. A. League will oppose the local Y. M. C. A. baseball team Saturday afternoon on Crescent Oval. The Rahway nine defeated the locals last year by the score of 8 to 2. They are fast on bases and are an all around nine. Hence an interesting contest may be expected.

Public Library Notes.

The Public Library has again instituted its summer plan of allowing an extra number of books to be taken out of town by patrons going away for the season. The "summer outing table" is most attractive with booklets suggesting summer trips, auto road booklets, railroad and boat schedules, etc.

ABBE PEROSI

Director of Sistine Choir Chapel Master And Composer to

His Holiness PIUS X

Gives the Highest Praise to the

Hallet & Davis Piano

Abbe Perosi is the great successor of Palestrina as director of the Sistine Choir, which sings only for the Pope. The Abbe is known the world over, and is unquestionably one of the leading musical authorities.

Paris was in a furor recently when the Abbe conducted one of his oratorios at the Trocadero. His coming to America next fall is eagerly awaited by musical people everywhere. He has composed over 20 famous oratorios.

This is the first time the Abbe has ever endorsed a piano, and the following appreciation is absolutely voluntary.

April 22, 1910.
Hotel Vouillemont, Paris.

To Gustin Wright Co., Paris:—

During my visit to your warerooms this morning I had the pleasure of trying the small grand Hallet & Davis of Boston piano and I take great pleasure in adding my testimonial to those of the eminent artists you have already received.

The purity and sweetness of tone, mingled with such a delicacy of touch, make this instrument stand in the front rank of the world's pianos and meets the most difficult artistic requirements.

Sincerely,
M. Lorenzo Perosi,
Director Sistine Choir, Vatican, Rome.

Our book on piano construction should be in the hands of those who expect to buy. Write for it—it's free.

EXERCISES AT RUTGERS

Rev. Dr. Schenck's Son is Awarded a Prize at the Commencement.

YOUNG FERGUSON IS LUCKY.

He Also Receives An Award—Announcement Is Made of Many Gifts To New Jersey's College.

Two Plainfield young men were honored at the commencement exercises at Rutgers College yesterday. Harold William Schenck, son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, of West Front street, received the Sloan Classical Entrance Prize, while John DeLancey Ferguson, also of this city, was awarded first honors in the competition for the Wall Targum Prize; also the John Parker Winner Memorial Prize.

Russell Ford Stryker, of Bound Brook, won the second classical honor, the rhetorical honor, and honors in Greek, in addition to being graduated with the degree of A. B.

Sixty-eight degrees were conferred and a number of changes in the staff and several benefactions were announced at the commencement. Supreme Court Justice Willard P. Voorhees, '71 and Duncan Dunbar Sutphin, of New York, '83, took the oath as trustees. Dr. Walter T. Marvin, assistant professor at Princeton, was appointed professor of Mental Philosophy and Logic, and Dr. Jacob G. Lipman, Associate Professor of Agriculture, was made Professor of Soil Fertility and Bacteriology.

At the annual meeting of the alumni at noon two portraits were added to the collection in Kirkpatrick chapel. Dr. Edward G. Janeway of New York, '60, presented on behalf of Miss Helen H. Janeway, a portrait of her father, Henry L. Janeway, "44, who was a Trustee from 1862 till his death last year. The Rev. Dr. Pockman, '75, also handed over to the college on behalf of Mrs. Drury a portrait of her husband, the Rev. Dr. John B. Drury, '57, who was a Trustee from 1887 till his death last year.

It was announced that the college is the residuary legatee under the will of V. M. W. Suydam, and probably will receive $15,000. It has also received under the will of Prof. E. A. Bowser his books and copyrights of an estimated value of $25,000. Among other gifts announced were $2,000 from Mrs. Robert F. Ballantine, of Newark, for improvements to the gymnasium, $1,000 from Mrs. Morris K. Jessup toward the endowment fund, and $500 from Anthony Dey, of New York, '50, toward the same object. A large collection of German books for the library has been received from Mrs. Franz M. Schneeweiss.

BORO HIGH CLASS DAY

Senior's Entertainment at Debele's Hall Attended by Big Crowd.

PICTURES FOR THE SCHOOL.

Russell Conroy, the Class President, Makes Address of Welcome—A Skit Proved To Be Real Funny.

Class Day exercises of the North Plainfield High School attracted friends and relatives to Debele's hall, where they were held, in such numbers last night that even standing room was at a premium. The exercises were unique in character and included a one-act skit, "A Perplexing Situation."

The exercises formerly opened by the address of welcome of Russell Conroy, president of the class. This was followed by the skit. The plot was very funny and the parts of the young women were especially well taken. Middleton, a miserly individual, offers $75 to several young women if they can remain silent for twenty-four hours. They agree to do so. Suitors come to propose, relatives and neighbors call, but all get no answers from the young women. This unique situation gave opportunity for many amusing incidents. The young women win out though and get their money.

The cast consisted of Douglas Domler, Henrietta Englehardt, Edmond LaPorte, Dorothy Randall, Ruth Weinberger, Annetta Steiner, Mabel Townley, Edythe Schenck, Preston Dunning, Edna Dilts, Pierson Bailey, Leon Zeglio, Russell Conroy.

The regular class day features came in the second part of the program. The history was given by Miss Stella Kline and the class poem by Miss Edythe R. Schenck. The class prophecy was then given in the disguise of an informal conservation by the Misses Helen George and Louise Layton.

Russell Conroy, president of the class, then presented two framed pictures of the chief American authors to the school. They were received by Principal Benjamin Phelps on behalf of the school. He expressed a wish that the authors in the pictures be more evtensively read by all who were present.

The class statistics compiled in a recent voting contest were then given by Miss Henrietta Winn. As she read them off, her classmates who were grouped around the platform in a semi-circle, rose as their names were called out. Paper medals were awarded.

The class song "The Green and Gold," written by Miss Anetta Steiner, was then sung by the class. This was followed by the class yell under

MISS MILLER THE BRIDE OF ARTHUR G. STEVENSON

Miss Cora Davis Miller, daughter of Mrs. Frederick K. Miller, of Front street, Scotch Plains, and Arthur Glover Stevens, son of Arthur Stevens, of Boston, Mass., were married last night at the home of the bride's mother. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, this city, performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The wedding march was played by Charles Suhr's Imperia' Orchestra. The ceremony was performed under an arch of flowers and ferns. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. George L. Dunn, as matron-of-honor. She was given in marriage by her uncle, Henry Broadwell, of Newark. Miss Ruth Dunn, neice of the bride, and Miss Gladys Brokaw, of Plainfield, were bridesmaids. The best man was H. Montague Stevens, of East Orange, brother of the groom. The usher was Albert Giddis, of this city.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white silk, trimmed with satin and pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The matron of honor's gown was of pink silk mull. She carried pink carnations. The flower girls were dressed in pink and carried flowers.

A reception followed the ceremony when the couple received the congratulations of their friends. Supper was then served by DeMolli & Co., caterers, of Plainfield. Later in the evening the bride and groom left on an extended trip to Washington and Boston.

The home was lavishly decorated with roses and ferns, the arrangement in the parlor and dining-room being very effective. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond and pearl sunburst, and the bride's gift to the groom was a diamond stick pin. The best man and usher received cuff buttons set with diamonds from the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens are popular in a large circle of friends and they received many handsome wedding gifts, comprising cut glass, silverware, furniture, etc. There were guests present from East Orange, Newark, Rahway, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Princeton, Virginia and Scotch Plains. Upon the return of the bride and groom they will reside at Scotch Plains.

Miller to Be a Dentist.

D. Russell Miller, who won the Yale Cup at the city High School this year will enter the Dental School of the University of Pennsylvania in the fall. The city High School certificate enabled him to enter without taking any examinations.

MISS CODINGTON WEDS

Daughter of Former Judge the Bride of Colon H. Dascombe.

REV. DR. ANDERSON OFFICIATES

Miss Ethel DeLong the Bridesmaid and Dr. C. E. G. Shannon the Best Man—Couple to Reside in Maine.

Miss Martha Codington, only daughter of former Judge and Mrs. William R. Codington, of Sandford avenue, and Colon H. Dascombe, of Wilton, Maine, were married at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of the relatives and a limited number of friends. The invitation list was restricted owing to the fact that it was a home wedding. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which the bride is a member.

The bride handsomely gowned in lingerie mull, carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by Miss Ethel DeLong, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Riverside Drive, New York. Her gown was of light green mull and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was Dr. Charles E. G. Shannon, of Philadelphia, who was a classmate of the groom, Class '03, Bowdoin College.

The home was elaborately decorated for the affair with a choice arrangement of roses, greens and other flowers of the season. The color scheme, pink and white, in the parlors was particulary effective while in the dining room it was also pleasing. The wedding march was played by Westervelt's Orchestra, of Newark. It also furnished music for the reception which followed. During the reception supper was furnished by Day & Day. The bride was the recipient of a large collection of costly gifts from relatives and friends, with whom she is popular.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Dascombe left on a wedding trip to the White Mountains, after which they will go to Wilton, Maine, where a handsomely furnished home awaits them. The groom is a prosperous merchant at Wilton and has a large circle of friends there. The bride attended the Plainfield High School, but left there before graduation to attend a school for young women at Ossining, N. Y., where she completed the course of study. She is a member of one of the oldest families in New Jersey her ancestors having settled here in the early days.

CHAS. H. HAND WINS OUT

RICE ALLEGED MURDER VICTIM.

Several Thousands of Dollars Saved For the Defendant In Famous Law Suit.

Notwithstanding the advice given him by a number of prominent lawyers in other cities that he could not win, Charles H. Hand has been successful in the suit brought against him over ten years ago by the late William M. Rice, the New York and Texas millionaire, for whose murder Albert T. Patrick, the New York lawyer, is serving a life term, to recover a deficiency on a $40,000 bond given by Mr. Hand to accompany a mortgage on the property now known as the Plainfield Theatre on West Second street which was at the time the mortgage was given owned by Mr. Hand. Mr. Hand secured the services of Counsellor W. S. Angleman in the case, and by following his advice in the matter he is a number of thousands of dollars to the good.

After giving the mortgage, Mr. Hand sold the property, and the new owner not paying the interest, foreclosure proceedings were brought. The property brought about $16,000 on the sale, and the suit brought against Mr. Hand was on the bond for the deficiency. Mr. Hand claimed that he was not liable as he had made an agreement with Judge Bartine, who represented Mr. Rice at the time, not to bid at the sale, and that he had not been made a defendant to the foreclosure proceedings.

A motion was made to strike out this defense as not being a proper one before Chancellor Magie, who was then, as a Justice of the Supreme Court, holding the Circuit Court at Somerville. This motion was denied, but was renewed before former Justice Van Syckel, who was then the Justice of the Supreme Court sitting at Elizabeth, and who also denied it. Counsellor James J. Bergen, now a Justice of the Supreme Court, represented Mr. Rice on both occasions, and Counsellor Angleman successfully defended the position taken by him on behalf of Mr. Hand. The plaintiff then filed a demurrer, but never brought the case on for argument, as Mr. Rice's death and the long contest over his will which followed delayed doing so. Later Pitney, Hardin & Skinner, of Newark, were substituted as the attorneys for the Rice estate.

Along about this time William J. Counihan bought the property for theatre purposes, and the Fidelity Trust Company, of Newark, guaran-

GREAT NIGHT FOR ELKS

"Best People on Earth" Have Rollicking Time at Saengerbund.

PARADE THROUGH STREETS.

And Then the Visitors From Somerville and Dover See What No. 885 Can Do In the Line of Entertainment.

Never was there such a happy bunch of men brought together as when the Dover and Somerville lodges of Elks visited Plainfield lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., last night. After a business meeting in

Joseph Noonan,
Exalted Ruler of Plainfield Lodge of Elks.

the rooms on West Second street the three lodges formed in line and headed by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps marched through West Second street to Park avenue, to East Front, to Watchung avenue, to North avenue, where a rousing cheer of encouragement saluted Armstrong Mulford, then to Park avenue to Front, to Somerset street to Saengerbund hall, where the entertainment of the evening was given.

A program which included the opening chorus and solo work of the minstrel show given in May was then gone through with and the ensemble and individual work lost none of its crispness by repetition. At least three hundred men were present to enjoy the feast of wit and song. Refreshments were served after the final round of a three-round exhibition by "Jack Johnson" and "Sam Langford," two pickaninnies from New Brunswick. A shower of silver greeted the end of this amusing stunt.

A bountiful collation was served immediately after the close of the entertainment to which everyone did justice, putting in the time between toasts with good natured fun. As it was announced, the men were just boys again and lived up to the prerogatives of youth.

Elmer Cutting impersonating a woman had the visiting guests wondering from the time he made his appearance in skirts until his disguise was removed. Tommy Muir in his monologue was received with applause and at the conclusion of his song reecived an ovation. All the songs were good, in fact the whole program was of the best. A quartet composed of Joseph C. Martin, Edwin H. Bennett, Joseph Randall and John H. Cose sang a plantation song which would have done credit to any professional team.

Introduced by Exalted Ruler Joseph Noonan, Judge William N. Runyon made the speech of the evening and at precisely 11 o'clock the judge jumped on a chair and proposed a toast to the order which was drunk standing. Three rousing cheers were given for Plainfield Lodge Lodge No. 885 B. P. O. E.

Following was the program:

Opening chorus, "Just Returned from the Hunt," by company; "Walter's Chorus," introducing end men; medley of popular airs, by company; "You'll Come Back," John V. Todd; "You are the Ideal of My Dreams," John J. Campbell; "Heinz," Charles J. Ward; "Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland," William J. Tallamy; "Alabam," Edwin H. Bennett; "Annie Laurie," Elmer D. Cutting; "Come After Breakfast," Charles G. Davis; "Garden of Roses," Townsend Fellows; "Come Right in," Harry N. Blimm; "When Night Falls O'er the Sea," William G. Smith; "I'm On My Way to Reno," John H. Cose; finale, "Drink a Toast to Yankeeland," Arthur Groff; "Down on the Plantation," introducing some quartette, Joseph C. Martin, Edwin H. Bennett, Joseph Randall, John H. Cose, assisted by "Jack Johnston" and "Sam Langford."

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Flights of a biplane will be one of the Fourth of July attractions at Woodbury.

Frank Rogers, a Moorestown paperhanger, had two ribs broken by falling from a step-ladder while doing some work at Ocean Grove. He is slowly recovering at his home.

July 1 has been set apart as "clearing day" for Trenton by the new civic commission. Dr. Thomas H. Mackenzie has been elected president of the commission and Edward J. Burke, secretary.

The body of William Vreeland, the seven-year-old son of Hartman Vreeland, of Bayonne, was recovered in the Kill van Kull, off Humphreys avenue. The boy was drowned last Wednesday.

Professor R. D. Predmore, of Allenwood, N. J., a graduate of the Mifflinsburg (Pa.) State Normal School, has been elected supervising principal of the Jackson Township (Ocean County) public schools.

Returning home [illegible] a church meeting at Delanco, [illegible] Muller, seventeen years old, w[illegible] up by three tramps, who [illegible] to brain him with clubs and [illegible] him to give up his pocketbook, [illegible]ing $10, and a valuable scarf.

Frank Tygert and John Le[illegible], of Woodbury, have made a novel wager, Leppee is to take the 8:02 train, while Tygert is to embark in Thomas Hutchinson's speedy launch, and the first to arrive at the Market street wharf, Philadelphia, wins.

Another step, and by far the most important, in acquiring the river front by Trenton, was taken Tuesday evening, when Mr. Swartz, chairman of the finance committee, introduced an ordinance providing for a $50,000 bond issue to carry forward the work of purchasing the river front at tide water.

The following contracts between the Mercer County Board of Freeholders and contractors for improvement of county roads have been filed: Princeton-Kingston road, $7,000, Fred Clymer; White Horse road, $18,605, J. F. Shanley; Windsor Hightstown road, $16,097.62, Barrett Construction Company; Pennington- Harbourton, $26,762.64, C. E. Stout; Pennington-Washington Crossing road, $26,322.50, A. E. Stout.

After severely cutting her husband's head with a bottle, Mrs. Walter Burt, of 13 South Eighth street, Camden, hurried to a nearby store and summoned the police by 'phone, fearing that she had fatally injured him. Burt's injury was found not to be of a serious nature, and after having the wound stitched at Cooper Hospital, he declined to order his wife's arrest.

Thomas Stuart, of 19 Oliver street, Paterson, a county road inspector, is a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital, that city, with a compound fracture of both bones of the left leg, below the knee. He had just finished work for the day and was about to jump on one of the teams which had been hauling road crushed stone for a new piece of work on Marshall street when the animal raised one of his hind legs and planted the hoof squarely on Mr. Stuart's left leg below the knee.

Incomprehensible.

"Pop!"

"Yes, my son."

"This paper says rain falls more frequently between 3 a. m. and 8 a. m. than at any other time."

"Yes, my boy."

"But, pop, the Sunday School picnics are not held between those hours."—Yonkers Statesman.

Fiction.

Church—What does your friend do?

Gotham—He's a writer of fiction.

"Inded!"

"Yes; his wife's gone away for a fortnight, and he writes every day and is supposed to tell her what he's been doing in her absence."—Yonkers Statesman.

Cupid and the Collector.

"Why do you always buy an engagement ring on the installment plan?" asked Reginald.

"Because," replied Algernon, "it relieves me of some of the responsibility for getting it back when the engagement is broken."—Washington Evening Star.

Not Useful.

Mrs. Styles—This paper says the total number of useful domestic animals on the globe is believed to be about 1,500,000,000.

Mr. Styles—Don't for one instant think that that pet dog of yours is included in that number.—Yonkers Statesman.

Not All Levity.

"Do drummers really get business by telling funny stories?"

"Depends altogether upon the customer," replied the traveling salesman. "Sometimes I tell funny stories and sometimes I abuse the trusts."—Pittsburg Post.

Veracity.

She never lied about her age,
These words as truth pray hold it,
Yet with this fact you must engage,
She never told it.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

For the second time in succession a local young woman will give the valedictory at the Plainfield High School graduation exercises tonight. Miss Meta R. Pennock will give the honorary address tonight. A number of boroughites will attend the exercises.

Mrs. Walter Dunn entertained the women of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church last evening. An informal social time followed.

Boating continues to be the popular pastime for out of town people who have been visiting the village in large numbers recently.

Bob Fitzsimmons has given out the report that he favors Jack Johnson in the latter's fight with Jeffries July 4.

The local Presbyterians will join with the first Plainfield excursion to Asbury Park July 7.

Miss Edna Burdick is enjoying her vacation from the Montclair Normal School.

Clifford Smith has moved into the Knuter house on North avenue.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Public School closed today for the summer vacation, teachers and scholars bidding good bye to school worries and troubles until the second week in September.

If the streets are to be sprinkled with oil this summer it is about time it was done as the roads are beginning to get very dusty.

Two weddings and commencement exercises made rather a strenuous day yesterday for the 'Plains.

Anthony Dobbins, of Newark, has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Robert Walpole, of Front street.

The next dance of the Bachelors' Club will be held the second Tuesday night in September.

Miss Isabella Hyams, of New York, is visiting Mrs. Susie L. Parse, of Front street.

Suhr's band, of Plainfield, will furnish music for the Fourth of July celebration.

WITH WATER COLORS.

Lampshade decoration is not necessarily reserved for the artist; it may be accomplished by the merest dabbler in water colors.

Given a plain, well-covered shade and some conventional design to fit it (or one that can be made to fit), a pencil and some of the transfer paper that comes will soon convey the design to the shade.

An outline is enough, because an ordinary sense of color and knowledge of flowers will help in the painting process.

Tall iris stalks and blooms, cattails with their leaves or the conventional Tudor rose shaped for each section of the shade will, any one, prove effective in water color and probably bring the shade into harmony with the room.

Willing to Learn.

"Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" quoted the impassioned orator.

Then he paused a moment to let it take effect.

"Well," spoke up a half-inebriated man in the audience, "I'll be the goat. Why should it?"—Chicago Tribune.

Acknowledging the Responsibility.

"I," stated Mr. Swellhead, pompously, "am a self-made man."

"I hope so, dear," answered his wife, in an icicle voice. "It certainly would be unkind to blame it on anyone else."

The Literary Market.

"Well, how's things?"

"Fine," replied the auuthor. The critics pronounced my last novel so worthless that I have six publishers bidding for my next book."—Exchange.

WE ARE NOW TRIMMING HATS FREE OF CHARGE.

It's good news to the woman who needs a new Summer Bonnet and knows she can select her materials here and have the trimming done free of charge. We do this to keep our workroom busy during the dull period. Women know that we carry the biggest stock either in season or between seasons for their choosing. For instance, we just received a good stock of small and medium Black Hair and Chip shapes, also White Chip Hats. Most millinery houses have little to show you now, but you can find your choosing easy here, and save money on the shapes and flowers. We don't buy up jobs of undesirable styles, its our aim to have what you WANT in the millinery line and sell it at a lower price than any other house hereabouts. Come to Tepper's for your midsummer hat.

EDITORIAL.

"What we mean by preparedness." To be always ready, whatever the season or the stage of the season, with merchandise of a character best suited to meet your immediate requirements, is the definition of the word "preparedness" as we interpret it.

And this is not a simple matter.

Goods must be always new—absolutely down to date—the best that the foreign and domestic markets have to offer. That means that not a single article in the stock of any department can be carried over from one season to another, yet even at the end of the season when preparations for the ensuing period engross most of our attention, stocks of merchandise for your immediate wear—to supply your needs during the transition time, as it were—must remain fully adequate.

This is but one of the many difficulties that we have been obliged to surmount in order that "preparedness" might merit a place among the attributes that characterize this business, devoted to serving your interest.

The Red Sox were the only Eastern team to win two games in a series in Detroit.

How have the mighty fallen! With two out the other day Drucke passed two batters and then Wagner came up and struck out. When Honus fanned this comment was heard in the stand: "That was good judgment, passing those two guys."

Pretty good start that Spade, the Cincinnati castoff, made for the Browns. He won his game for them, and for a pitcher to win with the Browns behind him is a feat in itself.

News comes via California that Jim Vaughn is being reserved during the cold weather and that he is absolutely no good unless it is hot. He has won nearly all of his games in cool weather.

The Highlanders lost forty-five points on their Western trip, but gained relatively. They went away in second place forty-six points behind the Athletics, but came back in first place. The Giants lost thirty points in the home Western series. They were twenty-five points behind the Cubs when the series began, and closed the series sixty-eight points behind. The Brooklyns gained ten points during the series and drew twenty-two points nearer to the Cardinals.

If Merkle is patient and gets a bit more power into those swings of his he'll put a home run in the centre field seats some day.

The apt expression "bonehead" originated with ball players, just as has all the other expressive slang of the diamond.

Herr President Fogel was incensed over the suspension of Messrs. Dooin and Knabe and complained to President Lynch. That night Lynch went to his hotel and lost one minute's sleep.

One of the problems of the age is: Why does a man go to a college ball game unless he has to when there is a big league game in town? ?

GOLF.

There was a meeting of the United States Golf Association executive committee at the Philadelphia Cricket Club for the consideration headed putters and the inclusion of the oval shaped aluminum putters, shafted from the centre, in the edict. A suggestion made was to follow the new rule with an "interpretation," as modifying of the rules to suit American conditions is termed to bar all putters "where the face is shorter than the breadth of the head." This would give a clean bill of health to all narrow oval putters whether shafted from the centre or the heel.

Non-members, among them S. Y. Heebner, Fred Herreshoff and James L. Taylor, were invited to give their views. One speaker advocated the addition to the restriction: "This ruling to only apply to American national championships and clubs may make local rules regarding putters." Several believed in indorsing the St. Andrews boycott in its entirety to avoid any charge of disloyalty to the Scotch rules committee. The answer to this was that the revised rules had not been accepted as a whole, but interpreted by the U. S. G. A. on points that seemed prejudicial to the American game or a trifling with privileges deemed wise and desirable by American golfers. For instance general rule 15 prohibits a practice swing, but the U. S. G. A. interpretation is: "A player may take a practice swing or swings after the ball is in play, more than a club's length from the ball." This, it was mentioned, meant a reversal of judgment but not disloyalty.

Others held that rule 5, "The ball must be fairly struck at with the head of the club, not pushed, scraped, nor spooned," was sufficient to golfers on the putting greens. They feared that to permit St. Andrews to fix a standard for putters might lead to rules standardizing the other clubs and balls, that Americans might be ordered to use only clubs of certain weights and shapes and only golf balls that bear the label of the rules committee.

St. Andrews, if unchecked in a parental and mandatory series of rulings based on this mistaken and retrogressive one regarding putters, might go to the extreme of ordering a return to the feather ball and to drivers of the 1860 shapes. Those on this side of the argument said openly that St. Andrews had made a blunder and as a dignified rebuke the U. S. G. A. should take no further notice of the ruling and stand pat on the present rules in the year book. The matter did not come to a vote and action for the present is deferred.

The Wayne Cedared Paper Wardrobe

"SOLD EXCLUSIVELY IN THIS CITY BY US."

Are better than a cedar chest. They keep your clothes free from moths, dust and wrinkles. The "Wayne Wardrobe" is made of tough, durable paper, impregnated with the delicate aromatic odor of pure red cedar, an odor that is repugnant to the moth family. Yet that odor does not cling to the clothes, as is the case with tar paper or moth balls. "Wayne Wardrobes" are made in ten sizes and range in price from 50c to $1.50

WANTED—SUPERVISORS FOR THE PLAYGROUNDS

The applicants for the position of playground supervisor in the two city playgrounds who did not mention a large experience in playground work, were ruthlessly cast out when the commission met last night. From about seventeen applicants but four or five now remain. The merits of these will be carefully investigated and a selection will be made before July 5.

The commission met last night in Mayor Fisk's office when a report of the recent May Day Pageant was read by Mr. Parker. It coincided very closely with the report given out unofficially some time ago.

When seen last night, Principal Best, of the city High School, was very decided in his determination to engage only experienced supervisors for the local playgrounds. "If ever we need experience in such work, it is when we are beginning," he said. Secretary Herbert Parker expressed similar ideas and Harry W. Marshall declared himself in favor of women for the post. "They," he said, "can interest both boys and girls; a man can interest only boys."

The commission will meet again some time next week to hear reports of the committee composed of Mr. Best and Mr. Marshall in reference to the supervisors. Other matters relative to the opening of the playgrounds will also come up.

HERE AND THERE.

Why will a plain ordinary married man persist in claiming to know more than his wife?

The query is prompted by an overheard conversation directly after the Roosevelt-Alexander wedding ceremony.

He—"Wot you got those big mits on for?"

She—"Wait until we get home and I'll show you."

Her white kid gloves were covered with another pair made of cheesecloth and when she got home she took off the flimsey outer glove and displayed a perfectly clean pair of white kids. "There," she exclaimed, "can you see why I wore the mits? Every woman at the church, at least all I could see, had soiled gloves from hanging on to the subway straps. Mine were clean all the time."

"Guess you got me beat," said the husband.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance will meet at the German Reformed church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and in the evening at 7:45 o'clock, Rev. W. W. Newberry, of Brooklyn, will be the speaker.

NINE ARE GRADUATED AT FANWOOD'S SCHOOL

The Class of 1910, Grammar School, Fanwood township, bid farewell to their studies at Public School No. 1, last night, when appropriate exercises were held in the assembly hall of the building. There was a large attendance of parents, friends and children, who enjoyed the program. The room was attractively decorated with ferns and daisies and the class colors, blue and white.

The graduating class, as stated in The Daily Press of yesterday, numbers nine pupils. Following the program, a reception and dance was given by the class to their friends. Dancing continued until midnight. The program:

Piano solo, "Flowers and Ferns," Ivy Hargreaves; recitation, "The Clouds," Martha Ferry; class history, Jacob Stirer; trio, "O Lovely Night," Elizabeth Herbert, Emily Garda, Ivy Hargreaves; original story, "The History of a Slate," Catherine Russell; class prophecy, Ethelwynn Walker; violin solo, "Spring Song," Herbst; address, Rev. Mr. Gabler, rector of All Saints church, Fanwood; piano duet, "The Gypsy Countess,' Ivy Hargreaves and Ethelwynn Walker; reading, "Pickwick's Drive to Manor Farm," Emily Garda; class will, Alfred Widoson; presentation of diplomas, Dr. F. W. Westcott, president of the Board of Education; class song, refreshments and dancing.

"Plainfield Stunt."

A part of the delegation that is to go to Silver Bay met last night in the local Y. W. C. A. rooms to plan the "Plainfield Stunt." This will be given at the Eastern City Conference at Silver Bay which begings July 5. The large red banner with "Plainfield" in gray on it, which was used last year, will be taken to Silver Bay this year by the dozen young women who expect to go as representatives from the local association.

WHITE PLAGUE HOSPITAL FOR THE COUNTY NOT YET

While the freeholders will continue collecting data regarding the maintenance of such an institution so that action can be taken at any time, it was stated authoritatively yesterday afternoon that the county will not build a tuberculosis hospital this year. J. Hervey Doane, chairman of the committee investigating the advisability of building an institution of this character, when questioned about the matter said that he was afraid the freeholders could not float any more bonds this year.

He said that the committee will obtain as much information regarding a tuberculosis hospital as it can and will prepare for the establishment of an institution for consumptives at any time. He said that such an institution as the one proposed and advocated by the residents of the entire county would eventually be erected, but he would not say that it would be built this year.

Within a few days members of the freeholders' committee will visit the institutions at Glen Gardner and the New York City camp with a view to studying them and learning more of the cost of erecting and maintaining such establishments. It is claimed by the freeholders that a hospital for seventy-five or one hundred patients would be very expensive, and for that reason as much data as possible will be obtained so that a report can be made public before any definite action is taken.

One freeholder said that it will cost about $100,000 to build an institution such as the one in mind and that it will cost, as near as the committee investigating the matter can figure, not less than $75,000 a year to run an institution of a kind that will bring satisfaction. The estimated cost is $10 a week for each patient.

COLLISION NEAR POSTOFFICE MAY RESULT SERIOUSLY.

A collision which resulted in the serious injury to two horses and one of the drivers of the two rigs involved, occurred this afternoon at the corner of Madison avenue and West Front street. A horse and carriage owned by Adam Blair and driven by Edward Townley was run into by another horse driven by Patrick Egan and both drivers and horses suffered severe bruises.

A crowd quickly gathered and for a few moments it was difficult to learn the particulars of the accident. Both horses were hurt and the drivers of the vehicles also suffered. It was said that the collision was caused by the reckless driving of two automobiles near the postoffice.

Could Have Saved Life.

Elizabeth, June 23.Susan Booras, the ten-year-old girl whose leg was crushed Sunday evening on the City Recreation Pier, Elizabethport, by being caught between a ferryboat and the piling of the pier, died yesterday in St. Elizabeth Hospital. The child's life could have been saved had her crushed leg been amputated in time. Her father, however, stubbornly refused to permit the operation at first. He consented, however, yesterday morning, but the hospital surgeon said it was too late, as gangrene had set in.

CONTRACTS AWARDED FOR CHURCH EXTENSION

At a special meeting of the consistory of Trinity Reformed church, last night, contracts were awarded for the extensive improvements to be made to the church edifice this summer, including the building of an addition in the rear to provide the needed room for the Sunday-school. The women of the church, through the Ladies' Christian Work Society, will re-carpet the whole church, and when the improvements are completed the edifice will compare with the most attractive in the city.

The changes will also include the straightening and regilding of the weather vane. H. C. VanEmburgh, civil engineer, will begin at once the work of surveying the land for the addition in the rear, and the contracts will be signed this week and the work started soon afterward.

The interior decorations are intended to make a complete change in the color scheme. The supporting overhead beams and girders will be changed to an oak color, while the ceiling and side walls will be of cream shade. This will lighten up the whole interior. The edifice is also to be painted outside. The successful bidders and their figures are as follows:

William C. Smith, mason work, $835; John H. Cose, slating, $90; James C. Hansen, painting exterior and interior, $1,045; A. M. Griffin, plumbing and tinning, $498. There were four bids for the carpenter work received, but the contract was not awarded to the lowest bidder on account of a defect in the bid.

HEAT-BOOZE COMBINATION EXCITES JUDICIAL PITY.

There is at least one man (he lives in Fanwood) who knows when it is best to seek shelter and protection from the sins which beset us in these sultry days. He is George Shea, and yesterday Mr. Shea showed his good sense when he found his way to Police headquarters and in an interview with Chief of Police Kiely, decided that a cooler place than the heated sidewalk would about fit his case.

Mr. Shea felt the nocuous influence of the humidity and heat and, as part of this feeling had been produced by an over indulgence in the products of a certain brewery, he decided that a siesta in the quiet environment of the "cooler" would fit his case and asked the chief to put him to bed.

This morning Judge Runyon commended Mr. Shea's action, inasmuch as it saved the trouble of harnessing the horse and running out the patrol wagon. He advised the sobered delinquent to go and sin no more. He went.

Auto Bumps Sprinkling Car.

Madame Tytus, the West Front street milliner, driving her runabout car, bumped into the P. S. C. sprinkling car at West Front street and Grant avenue, yesterday afternoon, while attempting to turn into Grant avenue. One of the front springs was damaged. While standing by her machine it began to go backward, and two women companions in the car were unable to stop it until it struck the gutter which prevented it from going still further. In afew minutes Madame Tytus was able to proceed. The sprinkling car was not damaged.

GOVERNOR TO SEE GUARD'S MANEUVERS.

Governor Fort will go to Gettysburg July 11 and remain until July 13, when the return to this State will be made. Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., and Military Aide Colonel Austen Colgate will accompany the governor, but the rest of his official staff will not go on the visit.

While at the maneuvers of the regular army, which take place from July 9 to July 18, the governor will be the guest of the commandant of the regular army, but he will have the opportunity to meet and cheer the Jersey troops who go to perform the work of the regular army.

Just how the trip will be made is not known as yet, although it is possible that the party will go in the automobile of Adjutant General Sadler.

A MODERN JACOB

By A. ROET. CROH

Anthony Johnson had worked two years as hired man for Laban Walker.

"Anthony is a good worker and has money in the bank. Why does he not buy a farm of his own?" people asked. Anthony knew why. So, also, did pretty Rachel Walker. It was for her smiles and presence that Anthony continued to toil for Laban Walker.

Rachel knew that Anthony was in love with her a month after he came to work for her father. In her heart she rejoiced in his adoration. But, like many good women, she was something of a croquette, and so when, as they were driving home from church one day, Anthony asked her to marry him, she smiled roguishly and said:

"Father wants me to marry Lafayette Fraser."

Anthony bit his lip and struck the horse such a cut with the whip that the animal jumped forward with a suddenness that threatened to upset the buggy.

Fraser was a widower, but he owned more land than any one else in the county. Rachel had smiled on him when he called, especially when Anthony could see her. Fraser had tried in vain to find out whether Walker's farm was mortgaged, and had decided in the end that Rachel was a good "bargain" even without money.

Anthony drove along in silence after Rachel had given him her answer. Finally, when he could trust his voice, he said:

"Do you think you love him—Rachel?"

"Well, why shouldn't I?" she asked, tossing her pretty head.

Anthony was not skilled in the maneuvers of such situations, and as he was not a woman he did not get by intuition the gift of acting well under such circumstances. So he said no more. His heart was too full for utterance.

They soon reached home, and he helped her out of the buggy. Then without a word he drove to the barn and put away the horse. He changed his clothes mechanically and did the chores, barely knowing what he was doing.

That evening, after Rachel had retired and when her father was dozing over the Farm Journal, Anthony approached him.

"My year's up next week, and then I must leave," he said.

"What—what's that?" exclaimed Walker. "Didn't ye tell me just last week that ye would stay another year?"

"Yes," admitted Anthony, "but circumstances have changed since then."

Nothing Walker could say would change his purpose, and he went off to bed, where he passed a sleepless night. What mattered now the money he had saved during the years of toil? She, for whom he had worked and saved and planned great things for the future was going to be another's. He ought never to have hoped for her, he told himself. He might have known he was a fool to aspire to the hand of such a girl.

Rachel had been a little worried during the night about her treatment of Anthony. "He took me so awfully seriously," she reflected. And then she took a little tintype out of a box and looked at it before she went downstairs to get breakfast.

Her father was there, and he told her of Anthony's determination. She was frightened. She hurried back to her room, so her father would not see the tears that welled up in her eyes. She had never dreamed that this could come from her bit of coquettishness.

That evening when Anthony came in from doing the chores he heard his name called in a low voice. It was Rachel.

"You—you didn't think I meant what I said about Lafayette Fraser, did you, Anthony?" she said, her voice trembling.

Anthony's heart gave a great leap of joy.

"Oh, Rachel, do you—can you mean you care for me?"

Her eyes were cast down and she was picking to pieces a flower. She looked up timidly at him, and in the half darkness he saw her slender form sway. The next moment he held her tight in his arms and her smiling eyes were upturned happily to his.

Society of Breakers.

The Secret Society of Breakers is a new organization in Atchison. If a woman receives a platter or any other breakable article as a gift from a friend and knows that to put it on display, where the donor expected it to be put, its ugliness will make a wilderness of her once pretty home, she drops a note to the Secret Society of Breakers, and this is what follows: A member of the society makes a call on the afflicted woman and while there asks casually to see the woman's china; she is so interested in china, she says. She also says she is clumsy and doesn't like to handle dishes. This clumsiness accounts for it when the platter falls to the floor and breaks. It is said of one woman whose husband got her an ugly lampshade that she let it fall herself and broke it without sending for one of the S. S. of B. This was a mistake, as her husband will always feel aggrieved at her carelessness.—Atchison Globe.

The man who does his best will hold his job longer than the man who could do better, but doesn't.

Growing Cotton in Palestine.

Cotton growing is being resumed in Palestine. An extensive suitable area is available. During our civil war cotton was cultivated there on an extensive scale, of which several old cotton presses still bear witness. It is said that the cotton was of very good quality. Companies are being organized. In Turkey of late years a distinct revival of the cotton industry has become manifest.

Expert Opinion.

A negro hallboy in a big Brooklyn apartment house had been called in by the mistress to assist in unrolling a new rug in the parlor of the flat. When it was finally laid he looked at it a moment admiringly and remarked: "Dat do sut'n'ly look fine, ma'am. But it strikes me dat it ain't ezactly compatible wid de paper."—New York Tribune.

Why They Indorsed It.

"After you have slept in one of our beds for a year," advertised the manufacturers, "you'll never have any other." At which the undertakers' trust sat down and wrote a testimonial for the bed, knowing full well that anybody who stayed in bed for a year would probably have to be measured for a wooden overcoat.

Country School Products.

So long as sweet country lanes are full of boys and girls on their way to the country schools, we need not greatly despair of the republic. The country will still produce Washingtons, Jeffersons, Lincolns, Lees, Jay Goulds, Harrimans, Grants and McKinleys.

What Every Father Thinks.

"Your own baby with the colic," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is so much sweeter than the other fellow's baby that took a prize at the beauty show that you wonder how the other fellow has the nerve to acknowledge his paternity."

Had a Kick Coming.

"Marie Bloggins, the lawful wife of the prisoner, next appeared in the witness-box," wrote the reporter of the bigamy trial. But the comp. left out the "l" in lawful, and Marie Bloggins called up next day and gave the editor a piece of her mind.

The Correct Answer.

Once more the question is being discussed: Should a soldier marry? The answer depends entirely upon how much money she has. A soldier hasn't any and needs much.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Economical Saxon Stoves.

For hundreds of years the people of Saxony have used stoves made of fire brick covered with glazed tiles, which retain and gradually radiate the heat for hours after the fire has gone out.

The Stage's Uplifting Influence.

The son of a New York millionaire has married a show girl and been forced to go to work. Who says that the stage does not have an uplifting influence?

Uncle Ezra Says:

"When I see some women folks goin' 'long the street I wonder how sech little heels kin hol' up so much dignerty."

Probable Answer.

"Why are outsiders always rank?" asks F. P. A. in the New York Mail. For the same reason, perhaps, that bystanders are always innocent.

Rich Mexican State.

The state of Jalisco has long been known as one of the richest in the republic of Mexico in agriculture and mining.

Others Did, Also.

The charge is brought that George Washington ate with his knife. Of course he did. Washington was not in all respects ahead of his time.

Must Give a Guarantee.

Extraordinary traffic on roads in England is only permitted, nominally, after those conducting it have agreed to pay for the injury caused.

Good Worldly Religion.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 26, 1910.

Topic.—Money, men and prayers, the three great missionary needs.—II Cor. viii, 1-9; Matt. ix, 35-38.

The evangelization of the world for Christ is a gigantic undertaking, and as the work successfully increases the demands and needs become increasingly great. From a human standpoint their needs are well divided into three—money, men and prayers.

1. The need of money should at once be perceptible to all. To send multitudes to all parts of the world to "preach the gospel to every creature" requires money, and an immense amount of money. No commercial enterprise in the world has such a tremendous burden upon it, and yet we know that billions of dollars are spent by business concerns. A popular woman's magazine which has spent thousands of dollars in advertising claims to have 1,000,000 subscribers. But what is 1,000,000 in comparison with 16,000,000,000 people? Yet this is the mission of Christianity—to evangelize "every creature." The need of money is a gigantic need, yet many think not. Spirituality is their hobby, but it may sadly be said that those who talk so spiritually about missions have usually left their pocketbooks at home when the collection plate is passed. This is absolute evidence of their cant and hypocrisy. The Christian who emphasizes the great spiritual needs of the world and talks in language that seems to come directly from heaven and deprecates the mere mention of money is a hypocrite pure and simple. Better say not a word, but from a sincere heart give according to one's ability to help dispel the spiritual darkness than follow the course above described. The spiritual part belongs unto God. The presence of the spirit will always be present with every missionary in his work, but before he can work and be blessed he must be sent and supported, and that work God has placed upon us. The Macedonians in gifts to foreigners should put the most of us to shame. They gave (1) without being asked, (2) out of deep poverty, (3) beyond their means; (4) praying that their gifts be received. Are any of us following such a course in giving to missions? If not we should at least be inspired by them to do better than we are doing.

2. Men. All the money in the world will not evangelize the world without men—missionaries. In His day Christ said, "The harvest is great, but the laborers are few." In comparison with the number to be reached today it is still true that the harvest is great and the laborers are few. Yet the church finds as many today as its money will allow. If billions were given instead of millions or thousands the men and women, too, could probably be found. But men cannot walk to China or live on nothing or build churches out of air. To get the best (and only such should be sent) our boards and committees need again increased financial aid.

3. Prayers. Christ declared that for the needy harvest the disciples should pray to God for more laborers for the harvest. True laborers must be called of God. He calls them as a result of prayer. But has the praying for ministers and missionaries increased or decreased? It has undoubtedly decreased. In numbers the students of our theological seminaries have been declining for years. Many reasons have been suggested for this unusual condition. But perhaps, after all, the greatest is the lack of prayer for laborers. The desire of almost every Christian home in the past was for at least one minister in the home. Prayers were offered to this effect. Mothers prayed in secret and openly with their boys upon this subject and early consecrated them to God for the ministry if God would call them. The result was not one son, but often three to six, entered the ministry. Have we quit praying and consecrating our sons to the ministry? If so, let us begin again, and once more our seminaries may equal their increased capacity.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. lxii, 1-7; Mal. iii, 10; Chron. xxix, 14-16; Rom. x, 14, 15; Isa. vi, 8-10; John x, 17, 18; Matt. ix, 9; xxviii, 19, 20; xxvi, 36-44.

Egyptian Fields.

A Christian Endeavor society has recently been organized in the United Presbyterian mission at Alexandria, Egypt. The start was made with a membership of twenty-five, but a good many more attend the meetings who have not yet signed the pledge. The membership represents five or six nationalities from the east and west, drawn together to praise and to pray to the same Lord. Miss Grace Saxes, a well known American Bible teacher, who has been staying in Alexandria for several weeks, has led two of the prayer meetings and has been a blessing to all. Christian Endeavor is far different in this country from what it is in America or England, but our motive and our aim are the same. We have a vast Moslem population on the one hand and on the other a large European population, a great part of which is entirely given up to the things of the world. "Who is sufficient for these things?" Our sufficiency is of God.—V. L. Bigwood of Alexandria, Egypt, in Christian Endeavor World.

The Bible In 418 Languages.

The Bible will soon be printed in every language or dialect known throughout the world. Last year, according to the one hundred and fifth report of the British and Foreign Bible society, the languages in which either the complete Bible or parts of it were issued reached a total of 418.

Effect of Food on Character.

A scientist has recently been investigating the effect of food, particularly vegetables, on the human character. He affirms that a diet of carrots ameliorates harshness of character and reduces nervous irritability; peas create joyousness, while turnips have a depressing influence. Cabbage is good for pulmonary complaints, while lettuce acts as a sedative upon the human frame, owing to the opium contained in its milky juice.

Lucy's Way.

One day as grandma was sewing beside the window the attention of her little five-year-old granddaughter was suddenly attracted by the white hairs in her grandmother's head, and climbing upon a hassock she began to pluck out the white ones. "What on earth are you doing, Lucy?" exclaimed grandma. "Oh," replied Lucy, "I am just picking the basting threads out of your hair, grandma."—Delineator.

A Chime of Bells.

A chime of bells becomes one of the gentlest influences of a town, when its soft notes float out in kindly old tunes. Everybody stops to listen to a chime. Then it is that into one's life a melody comes, carrying gentle thoughts and filling it with kindlier aims. Everybody welcomes the chimes, for they leave in the hearts of all a real benediction.

The Center of the United States.

The center of area of the United States, excluding Alaska and Hawaii and other recent accessions, is in northern Kansas, in approximate latitude 39 degrees 55 minutes. The center of population is about three-fourths of a degree south and more than 13 degrees east of the center of area.

In Indianapolis Homes.

There are many more or less domesticated men, however, who won't care a cent how high the price of brooms goes if it interferes with that sweeping which always seems to be necessary just about the time they settle down to the solace of a Sunday morning pipe. — Indianapolis News.

Saves Second-Hand Lumber.

A Boston firm of building wreckers has brought out a circular saw that will cut through nails and bolts as well as through wood, enabling them to cut into regular sizes of second-hand lumber that otherwise would be valueless.

New Work for Women.

In addition to the 481 vocations that are now open to women in this country, the Animal Rescue league of Boston suggests another—leading pet dogs out for an airing. The widening of woman's sphere seems to be inevitable.

It Isn't Fair.

Have you ever heard a child say when it has been punished that "It isn't fair?" You may think nothing of it at the time, but the child does not forget, and sometimes, even years after, the thought of the injustice may still rankle in his mind.

That Mighty Pen.

The superiority of man to nature is continually illustrated. Nature needs an immense quantity of quills to make a goose with, but a man can make a goose of himself with one.—Christian Register.

Had Valid Excuse.

Saying that he was 98, a man named Lacey, who was summoned at Norwich (England) for picking a flower in a public garden, pleaded absent-mindedness and the case was dismissed.

Estimated.

Knicker—"What is Smith's idea of himself?" Bocker—"He doesn't think anybody else can do a thing he can do, and he doesn't think anybody else can do a thing he can't do."—Puck.

Appropriate.

She—"I have just discovered that the diamonds in the diadem you gave me last year are false." He—"Why, then, they just suit your golden hair."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Ask Her.

"The way to flatter a woman is to tell her she looks 10 years younger than she is." "But how are you to find out how old she is?"—Houston Post.

A Hope.

Every woman lives in hope that the next Christmas is going to be the one when her husband will be rich enough to surprise her with a diamond ring.

Recipe for Happiness.

The art of living easily as to means is to pitch your scale of living one degree lower than your means.—Henry Taylor.

Old Man Cooper's Secret Treasure

"Oh, for a square meal!" Joseph Batchford tightened his belt another hole. The hungry man became conscious that he was being followed, and turned to confront a wizened old man.

"Do you wish to speak to me, sir?"

"You look hungry," said the old man. "Perhaps a steak and potatoes," suggested the old man. "Your voice is like his, and your laugh—"

"All right, Epicurus," said Joe, "I'm certainly agreeable, but whose voice and laugh is like mine? I thought I was too hungry to have a recognizable voice and my laugh must be sadly warped."

The old man said little more, but watched with apparent rapture Joseph's feat of placing within him two big steaks. Then said the old man; "Would you mind telling me something about yourself?"

"Sure," said Joe, "it's easy enough. Sister and I were left orphans years ago. An old lady took charge of Mamie. I went to Australia, cleared up about $25,000; got homesick. The ship was wrecked, and my pile is somewhere on the bottom of the Pacific. I landed broke; can't find any trace of Mamie—and, so there you are."

"You are the person I want," said the old man. "You can make another $25,000 to-night in half an hour. My name is Carleton Crane. I am confidential man for Cornelius Cooper. He is dying. All that keeps him alive is that he doesn't want to die until he has revealed a secret. Five years ago he quarreled with his son Tristan. The latter had married against his father's wishes.

"During the travels of Cornelius Cooper, my employer, he obtained information of a hidden treasure. He found it—a marvelous collection of jewels. I saw them when he returned. Where he has hidden them no one knows but himself. He has forgiven Tristan, but Tristan has disappeared. If the old man dies before Tristan turns up, the secret dies with him. Your voice and laugh are very like Tristan Cooper's."

Joe Batchford looked at the old man, comprehending.

"It is I who should ask forgiveness, father."

The sightless eyes of Cornelius Cooper were turned on Joseph Batchford. "You are not my son, instinct tells me," he said. "This is a scheme of old Crane."

"You're right," said Joe; "the fact is, I'm in hard lines, but if I succeeded in getting that secret treasure of yours I intended to give the old schemer the go-by, look up your son, and I know he would make it right. I'm honest, just in hard luck, that's all."

The old man for some time remained in thought. "Somehow, I believe you," he said. "Your voice has an honest ring; it is much like the voice of Tristan. Far better, at any rate, for you to know the secret than that old ingrate. Look under the mattress; take that envelope; it directs you to where I have hidden the jewels—try and find Tristan—be a good, honest boy——it is always better—and—"

The old man's voice sunk, his head turned over on the pillow, and he had gone to the bourne beyond.

Outside Carleton Crane awaited. "Have you got it?" he asked, feverishly.

"You bet," said Joseph Batchford, "and I'm going to keep it. It's a secret," and he left Carleton Crane standing dumfounded.

The envelope contained these instructions:

"Tendril house, cellar known as Monk's, fourth flagstone to right. Open. Ladder 15 feet. Passage. End of passage iron door, spring lock. Go down 15 feet. Iron chest. Low tide dry, high tide full."

Batchford went at low tide. The hidden gems were his. He advertised for the whereabouts of Tristan Cooper. It was long before he received any tidings, but one day a man announced himself: "I am Tristan Cooper; for long I have been isolated; confined to bed, under the care of my wife, in a remote mining camp. I heard of your advertisement by accident. Why have you sought my whereabouts?"

Batchford told him the story in full. "I promised your father I would do all possible to find you."

"You must share with me, Batchford," said Cooper, "and, another thing: Your name—Batchford—the woman who nursed me back to life, her name was Batchford, Mamie Batchford. Did you ever know of one such?"

"Did I?" shouted Joe. "Why, man, where is she?"

"Right here," responded a voice from the doorway. "Oh, Joe, I thought I had lost you forever."

As the two stood in rapturous embrace, Tristan looked at them, tears in his eyes. "This has certainly been a lucky strike for all of us—but I wish poor dad was here to share in the happiness," he said.

Powerful Explosive.

A new explosive of British invention, which is said to possess possibilities of revolutionizing the blasting work in connection with the construction of the Panama canal, has been tested on the Isthmus of Panama recently, and as a result the canal commission has ordered 20 tons of it for trial.

JUDGE RUNYON TO PRESENT YALE CUP

The commencement exercises of the Borough High School will be held Friday night in the Plainfield theatre, when twenty young people will receive their diplomas.

A feature of the exercises will be the presentation of the Yale Cup by City Judge William N. Runyon. Those who will be graduated are:

Margery G. Hart, Lillian M. Bolton, H. Pierson Bailey, Ruth Weinberger, Edythe R. Schenck, Preston M. Dunning, Henrietta J. Winn, Leon P. Zeglio, William Russell Conroy, Annetta M. Steiner, Helen C. George, Lillian F. Mundy, Dorothy D. Randall, Douglas W. Demler, Edna A. Dilts, Mabel Townley, Edmond J. La Porte, Stella Kline, A. Louise Layton, Henrietta Engelhardt.

The diplomas will be presented by Nelson A. Miller, president of the Board of Education. The speaker of the evening will be Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton.

MISS JENNIE COHEN THE BRIDE OF HARRY TAUB.

Miss Jennie Cohen, of New York city, and Harry Taub, of this city, were married last night at Jefferson Hall, Columbia street, New York. A number of relatives and friends of this city were present at the ceremony and reception which followed. The couple left for a short wedding trip and upon their return will reside on Richmond street.

Mr. and Mrs. Taub were the recipients of many handsome and useful gifts, including a substantial check; also a large silver candelabra, the gift of the Plainfield Y. M. H. A., of which the groom is a charter member.

LARGEST P.H.S. CLASS GETS DIPLOMAS TONIGHT

All arrangements for the city High School commencement exercises which will be held tonight in the First Baptist church have been completed. The graduates will march in from the front of the church in single file to the platform immediately after 8 o'clock.

On the platform which has been extended for the purpose they will be ranged in a semi-circle with the girls dressed in white, in front. In the rear the members of the Board of Education will be seated; while in front one a large table, the prizes and diplomas will be displayed.

The class to be graduated will probably be the largest ever sent out from the school; but it is possible that several in the class may not get their diplomas at the last moment. Examinations have been held for some of these doubtful ones and unless they passed them the diplomas will be withheld. In this case the class of 1908 will still remain the largest class eever sent out from the school.

The ushers at the church will be under the direction of Charles B. Morse and the music will be under the direction of Charles Suar.

Following the exercises a reception will be tendered the graduating class at the High School auditorium by the classes of 1908 and 1909. Arrangements for this affair have been completed and it promises to be of more than usual interest.

Y. W. C. A. Juniors Frolic.

The members of the junior gymnasium class of the Y. W. C. A. gathered in the association rooms this afternoon with their friends for an informal social time. Each girl brought one friend with her; and the occasion was so informal that all joined in the fun just as though all were members. At the conclusion of the exercises light refreshments were served. The committee responsible for the success of the affair was composed of the Misses Margaret Applegate, Hazel Coddington, Hazel Runyon, Pauline Feinberg and Mary Hunting.

—Among the special offerings by Neuman Bros. are sour cherries, just the kind for preserving. Housekeepers should take advantage of this opportunity.

HOPE LAWN FESTIVAL AT PASTOR'S HOME

With ideal weather conditions the lawn festival held yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Rev. L. R. Howard on West Fifth street, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society and the ways and means committee of Hope chapel, was a great success. The affair was held throughout the afternoon and evening and by 10:30 o'clock in the evening the supply of ice cream, strawberries, cake, candy and lemonade was disposed of and at a good profit. The net proceeds will be over $55.

The affair was an informal one, and a pleasing diversion was the playing of all kinds of games on the lawn. The decorations comprised American flags, bunting and Japanese lanterns. Features were three automobiles placed at the disposal of the ways and means committee by the owners, who also drove their cars. They were G. Herbert Condict, George Leighs, F. A. Weber and James Haskard. Rides about the city were given for the minimum fare of ten cents and the receipts helped to swell the fund. The motorists received the thanks of the committee in charge for their voluntary services.

The committees were: Lemonade and fruits, Mrs. Thomas Hendry, Mrs. James Herron, Mrs. Thomas Brown and Mrs. David Gordon; candy, Mrs. Willard H. Cook and Mrs. Charles Hughes; cake, Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse, Mrs. George Leighs and Mrs. Charles Vincent; ice cream, Mrs. Donald McInnes, Mrs. Harry Keen, Mrs. F. A. Weber, Mrs. W. S. Terry and Mrs. Orra E. Eckert.

TO SIT IN JUDGMENT ON MIKE GALLAGHER

At last the worm has turned. He whom all Dunellen has looked upon as the instigator of the troubles of Mayor Sanford is at last in the toils and accused, actually accused of breaking a municipal ordinance. Ye gods! And is it true? The mighty Michael arrested? And haled before the tribunal of justice as dispensed by the doughty mayor?

'Tis true. Michael Gallagher, who has been the thorn in the side of the Mayor and others in the Borough of Dunellen has been forced to take a dose of his own medicine and will have to appear next Monday before His Honor to answer to a charge of opertaing an express wagon without a license. Mr. Gallagher has always prided himself on his strict observance of the law and has just as punctiliously insisted that others should emulate him. Therefore it is inconceivable that he, himself, the man to whom the whole community has looked for examples in municipal virtue should fall beneath the wiles of the tempter who declares that "go ahead and earn your living, honestly if you can, but earn it anyhow."

Next Monday evening Mr. Gallagher will face his accusers and judging from past performances there will be a lively session. Mike is not one to submit to oppression easily and it is quite likely that there will be a performance not down on the program.

Educated Dog at Proctor's.

"Kurnel," said to be the only dog actor in the world, will appear at Proctor's theatre today, and will be assisted by Robertus, in a sketch, "A True Friend." The act shows the remarkable instinct of a dog. Josephine Claremont & Co., will present a sketch, "The Pantaloon Skirt," full of funny and clever situations. Mildred Flora, a comedienne of great ability, is included in the bill and "Robbin," the comedy tramp juggler has some new tricks. Proctor's theatre is the coolest place in town with its electric fans and air flues.

Dinner For Bride and Groom.

A dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William Lenahan was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Dorgan on Spooner avenue, last night. Mr. and Mrs. Lenahan were married in Pennsylvania on Wednesday morning, coming to Plainfield on their honeymoon, en route for Niagara Falls. They toured Plainfield by auto and were much impressed with the City Beautiful. A large number of relatives and friends were present at the dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Dorgan are cousins of the groom.

INSCRIPTIONS ON TABLE BECOMING FAMOUS

The accompanying picture does not represent a festive gathering of Heidelberg students neither does it represent a plain "lobster party" on the "great white way," but it does show up plainly a quartet of the winners in the scholastic game who are bound some day to make their mark an something besides the famous "inscription table" at the Ritz refreshment parlor in the Babcock building.

In Tottenham Court Road in London, England, this table occupied a conspicuous place in the Inn where students from some of John Bull's most famous colleges were wont to congregate. After the youthful high kickers of England finished their scribbling on the famous table America had the privilege of inscribing a few names, most of which were done with a penknife and today this somewhat defaced article of furniture occupies the places of honor at Ritz's and you can see it whenever you feel like making the investigation.

From left to right the picture shows Clifford Vail, Harry Brick, Fred Loizeaux and J. Osgood Sewall. These four young men graduated from the P. H. S. class '10, whose services are to be held tonight in the First Baptist church. The table shown is inscribed with the names of famous men in literature and other arts. Most of the initials were inscribed with a pocketknife.

Very few of the students of the Plainfield High School and North Plainfield High School have missed the opportunity to carve their names or initials upon this historic piece of furniture.

H. L. FINCH PRESIDENT OF WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB

The board of stewards of the Watchung Hunt Club met last night and elected these officers for the coming year: President, Henry L. Finch; vice president, Harry E. Butle; Secretary, Frank W. Thompson; treasurer, Hart S. Farlee; master of the hounds, Rufus C. Finch; board of stewards, Robert A. Fairbairn, Edwin S. Hooley, Henry L. Finch, Arthur L. Otterson, William J. Buttfield, C. E. S. Bellows, Thomas R. VanBoskerck, Hart S. Farlee, C. Wesley Holland, Rufus C. Finch and Harry E. Butler.

President Finch will announce his committees sometime next week. Although he did not want the honor, the stewards insisted upon Mr. Finch taking the presidency for the coming year. He has been active in the club and instrumental in promoting its interests. Many social functions are being planned for the coming season.

SOME JUNE WEATHER STATISTICS COMPILED.

Weather Prophet John Neagle has compiled the statistics of weather for twenty-three June months from 1888 to 1910, showing a remarkable range of temperature during that period. It shows that on June 20, 1893, was recorded the highest temperature, 100 degrees for any month in those years. The official record follows:

June 23, 1888, 99 degrees; 28, 1889, 90 degrees; 30, 1890, 90 degrees; 16, 1891, 97 degrees; 13, 1892, 9 7degrees; 20, 1893, 100 degrees; 23, 1894, 97 degrees; 1, 1895, 99 degrees; 21, 1896, 93 degrees; 30, 1897, 89 degrees; 25, 1898, 94 degrees; 6, 1899, 99 degrees; 27, 1900, 95 degrees; 30, 1901, 97 degrees; 13, 1902, 93 degrees; 3, 1903, 86 degrees; 25-26, 1904, 95 degrees; 18, 1905, 93 degrees; 29, 1906, 93 degrees; 25, 1907, 92 degrees; 21, 1908, 96 degrees; 25, 1909, 96 degrees; 21, 1910, 94 degrees. Average maximum temperature, 94.5 degrees.

Graduated From Pratt.

Wilbur Dunning, of the borough, and Miss Elizabeth Pound, of West Seventh street, were graduated this year from Pratt Institute. Miss Pound completed the difficult course in domestic science and Mr. Dunning did creditable work in analytical chemistry. He will engage in business as an industrial chemist.

Will Give a Pupils' Recital.

The pupils of Joseph McIntyre will give a recital at his home on Wednesday, June 29, when programs of exceptional interest will be presented. The adult pupils will give the program in the morning and the young pupils will appear in the afternoon.

Dog Day In Court.

It was "dog day" in court this morning and several of the owners of unlicensed canines faced Judge Runyon and after the session those who had been summoned promised to make the necessary visit to the city clerk's office and take out the licenses for their dogs. No fines were imposed.

CROWDS STILL GATHER AT K. OF C. CARNIVAL

The carnival being held at Front street and Grant avenue under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, continues with great success, the attendance last night being the largest of the week. All the attractions were liberally patronized and it was a happy crowd that gathered on the grounds to enjoy the affair.

It was announced by the committee today that the carnival tickets sold by the Knights of Columbus for shows and admissions can be used on and after tonight for full value on all Knights of Columbus concessions, which include ice cream, cane rack, pop-corn and candy. Arrangements have been made to add two new shows to the many other attractions tonight and the committee is doing all in its power to give patrons of the affair full return for their money.

ELIZABETH WILL GET ROTARY METER PLANT.

Elizabeth, June 23.—The Rotary Meter Company, whose plant is located at Reading, Pa., and whose office is at 280 Broadway, Manhattan, will remove to this city about August 1. The company has leased from United States Senator Kean the old Metropolitan gas works plant on the Elizabeth River at Elizabethport. The company will manufacture on a large scale rotary station meters that will rate as high as 675,000 cubic feet per hour, and will weigh six tons each. The casings which are used by the rotary meter company are made and machined by the Isbell Porter Company, of Newark, N. J. The new concern will employ twenty skilled workmen. The superintendent of the plant will be Charles P. Mayer, of New Haven, Conn.

A. B. Carlton.

A. B. Carlton, aged about sixty years, for many years comptroller of Elizabeth, died at his home at West Jersey street and DeHart place, that city, this morning at 6 o'clock from a complication of diseases. He had been ill for a long time. He was well-known in this city. He was formerly vice president of the Public Service Corporation and a director of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, of Newark. He is survived by a widow.

Y. M. H. A. Musicale.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association will hold its second musical entertainment and dance at its auditorium on Grove street, Wednesday night, June 29, at 8 o'clock. The first musicale on May 22 was such a great success that the committee decided to hold similar affairs once a month. Local as well as professional talent from New York will furnish music. Judge William Newcorn will preside.

Dinners at Hunt Club.

Social activities is one of the pleasing features of club life at the Watchung Hunt Club, this season. Last night two dinner parties were given there, one by Carl M. Fleischmann for a party of eight, and another by Paul Harrison, of Montclair, for a large party of friends.

CIVIC TOPIC PRIZE WINNER

Howard J. Runyon's Essay on "Municipal vs Private Ownership."

PLAINFIELD'S WATER SUPPLY.

Judges Selected it From Among Many Submitted as the Best Article on a Current Municipal Subject.

To Howard Judson Runyon falls the honor of having written the best essay on a municipal topic in The Daily Press competition, which was open to all members of the senior class of the Plainfield High School. Many excellent articles on subjects of current interest and agitation were submitted and the judges experienced some difficulty in deciding upon the best, but the decision was finally in favor of Mr. Runyon. The subje t of the municipal problem he wrote upon was "Plainfield's Water Supply—Municipal versus Private Ownership." The prize, a ten dollar gold piece, was presented to the winner at the City High School commencement exercises last night. Mr. Runyon's paper follows:

Who of our early settlers in the sixteen hundreds would ever have dreamed of the water problems that confront our great cities today? In the colonial times all one had to do was to take a bucket and go fetch all the clear sparkling water that he wanted. But how different today! The water is run right into our houses, which is all very nice, but on the other hand the water is no longer free. We are made to pay whatever price the company chooses to charge us.

At the present time, when so many economic questions are brought up and discussed, the water question seems to be one of the most vital of all the subjects. Shall the city run the water plant or shall some private concern furnish the public with water? This is the problem that faces Plainfield today; it is a question that cannot be answered entirely by statistics; it must be decided by established facts and good sound business judgment. Many theories of perfect municipal government, great estimates of economy, and the like are brought forward but these are of little use in the real solution of the problem.

To begin with, we must determine what the essentials of a good water system are. From the standpoint of the users they are no doubt good water, good service, and low cost. These three essentials must be kept in mind during the discussion of the question. Plainfield is fortunate in having a large source of good water under the city, so that there is no question but that there is a sufficient amount for its own supply for many years; hence the quality of water would be the same whether supplied by public or private concerns, and we need not bring the question of good water up during the rest of the discussion.

Now let us take up the advantages of private control. It is claimed by advocates of private ownership that a private corporation does not pay its employees as much, and works them on longer hours than does a municipality—this means cheaper production. It is estimated that in this way the municipality pays its men from 35 per cent. to 40 per cent. more for the same amount of work than does the private company.

Statistics show that there are also fewer changes in the personnel of the officials in charge of private works. This is clearly an advantage, for it takes a man a number of years to become thoroughly acquainted with his work and he should become more and more proficient as time goes on because of the experience that he has gained.

The great danger of politics is done away with in a private plant and there are no discriminate cutting of rates for political effect as is sometimes the case under public management.

As far as running the works on the most economical basis is concerned, the private system probably has the advantage for it is only business like to cut down on expense and thus increase the gains.

With private control it is claimed that the cost of water is more fairly divided between the public and private consumers. Under public ownership some cities collect next to nothing in the general tax levy for the support of the water works; while in others, where there is great pressure for low private rates, a large part of the water expenses are met by general taxation.

There is one great argument against municipal control; that is that the city stands too great a risk

EASTERN STAR FESTIVAL

Good Entertainment Provided by Lydia Chapter, a Masonic Auxiliary.

LARGE CROWD IS PRESENT.

Strawberries and Ice Cream and Good Music Are Enjoyed at Affair Held at A. E. Force's Residence.

The strawberry and ice cream lawn festival and entertainment held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force, on West Front street, last night, under the auspices of Lydia Chapter, No. 41, Order Eastern Star, was a great success, serving to bring the new organization here more prominently before the people. During the evening more than four hundred people patronized the affair. Assisting the various committees, Mr. and Mrs. Force proved admirable host and hostess.

The festival was held on the spacious lawn of the Force home, which was elaborately decorated with flags and bunting and brilliantly illuminated with electric lights. Scattered over the lawn were numerous small tables from which refreshments, including ice cream, cake, strawberries and lemonade were served by attractive young women. The affair was also marked by sociability and everyone appeared to have a good time.

Throughout the evening a large number of automobile parties arrived and joined in the festivities; also helping to swell the funds in the treasury. The Masonic fraternity was also largely represented by the husbands and other relatives of the women in charge of the festival.

One of the big features of the evening was the fine entertainment, comprising vocal and instrumental music and recitations. Mrs. Clayton M. Nagle was chairman of this committee and she secured a fine array of talent from this city and out of town. The artists gave their services, which the audience appreciated as shown by hearty applause. The general program follows:

Vocal solos, Miss Catherine Edwards, of Westfield; Miss Mab Bruce, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Robert Giddis, Elmo E. Weaver, Harold Leadbitter, William Holmes, of this city; Mrs. Harry Purcell, of Westfield; George Tyler Smith, of Brooklyn; violin solos, Miss Minnie Naylor, of Bound Brook, accompanied by Miss Nellie Giddis, of Bound Brook; Kenneth Stuart; piano duets, the Misses Ray and Anna Warnock, recitations, Mrs. William Krennick; piano solos, Miss Jubilee Rowley; selections by the Elks Quartet, comprising Elmer D. Cutting, Harry Blimm, Joseph C. Martin and John Todd. Every number on the program was well received and the performers generously responded to encores. Mrs. Elizabeth Woodhard was the accompanist of the evening. The committees:

Ice cream, Mrs. W. W. Warnock, chairman; Mrs. Laura Wilson, Mrs. C. I. Nash, Mrs. W. G. Hutchcroft, Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg; tickets, Mrs. Clayton M. Nagle, chairman; Mrs. Weaver; strawberries, Mrs. A. E. Force, chairman; Miss Ida Dealman, Mrs. W. G. Hutchcroft, Mrs. H. G. Uhler; chairs and tables, Mrs. A. E. Force, chairman; Mrs. Arthur McVoy, Mrs. Frank Rowley, Mrs. H. G. Uhler, Mrs. VanCamp, Mrs. Robert Giddis; orangeade, Arthur Force; lemonade, Gerald Varley; cake, Mrs. L. Williams, chairman; Mrs. Elizabeth Woodhard, Mrs. George Bayer; music and entertainment, Mrs. Clayton M. Nagle. In addition there was a large number of young women who served as waitresses.

Light and decorating, Mrs. H. W. Marshall, chairman; L. E. Weaver, Mrs. W. G. Hutchcroft, Mrs. Edward A. Laing, Mrs. L. B. Woolston, Mrs. John S. Eveland.

Gave a Delightful Tea.

Mrs. Daniel R. Sherwood, of 539 East Second street, gave onof a chain of teas at her home Wednesday afternoon. The color scheme was pink and white. There were sixteen guests. A feature was the presentation of a tiny pink and white bouquet to each guest, fashioned and presented by little Gladys Sherwood, who was daintily attired in pink and white. Mrs. Sherwood made a charming hostess.

REV. DR. C. A. EATON TO ADDRESS N.P.H.S. CLASS

The program of the commencement exercises of the North Plainfield High School which take place tonight in the Plainfield theatre includes the salutatory essay, "The Value of Fine Arts," by Miss Mabel Townley; the valedictory essay, "Conservation of Our Resources," by Miss Henrietta Englehart, and an address by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung. Judge William N. Runyon will present the Yale cup to the winner of this classic and Rev. Dr. Charles A. Anderson will give the invocation and benediction. Nelson A. Miller, president of the borough Board of Education, will present the diplomas to the graduates, whose names follow:

MR. KREBS ADDRESSES WATCHUNG GRADUATES

At Wilson Memorial chapel last night the fifth commencement exercises of the Watchung Grammar School were held before an audience which completely filled the little church. Superintendent of Schools H. C. Krebs, of North Plainfield, made the speech of the evening giving the graduates some wholesome words of advice and encouragement in their future life work.

Rev. C. E. Nash, pastor of the chapel, made the opening prayer and pronounced the benediction. Two daughters of Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, took part in the program and acquitted themselves with credit. Miss Marion Eaton read an essay entitled "The Great Stone Face," and Miss Margaret read the class history. The class prophecy, "Our Future," by Agnes Wilson Mantz, was an interesting feature. Following is the program:

Singing, "The Mill," Grammar School; prayer, Rev. C. E. Nash, Watchung; salutatory address, Gussie Edward Troiano; biography, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Dorothy Harriet Underhill; essay, "The Great Stone Face," Marion Aubrey Eaton; singing, "Cuckoo Song," Primary School; class history, "Annals of a Worthy Class," Margaret Evelyn Eaton; class prophecy, "Our Future," Agnes Wilson Mantz; singing, "A Little Story," Grammar School, valedictory, William John Wiegand, presntation of diplomas, George T. Hughes; singing, "The Railroad Train," Primary School; remarks, County Superintendent H. C. Krebs; singing, "Vacation," Grammar School; benediction, Rev. C. E. Nash.

Knights of Pythias Memorial Service

The Knights of Pythias lodges of Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville, Neshanic and Flemington, comprising the twentieth district of the Grand Domain of New Jersey, will hold their annual memorial service in the Presbtyerian church, Bound Brook, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Among those who will take part in the service will be Miss Hazel Hattfield, contralto, and William Holmes, baritone, of the First Baptist church choir. They will sing in a quartet and will also render solos.

—Neuman Bros. will have an exceptionally fine display of fruits for tomorrow's trade, including strawberries, red and black raspberries, peaches, apricots, cherries, plums, currants and gooseberries.

DIPLOMAS FOR 50 AT P.H.S. COMMENCEMENT

Many Prizes are Also Distributed at the Annual Exercises.

For the second time within two years the Plainfield High School sent forth a record class of fifty young people when the members of the class of 1910 received their much coveted diplomas at the exercises last night. These were held in the First Baptist church which was attractively decorated for the occasion. Behind a wealth of greens and smilax and arranged on each side by tall palms were the seats of the graduates ranged in a semi-circle. To the left of them sat the members of the Board of Education, the principal of the High School and the Superintendent of Schools.

Fred D. Loizeaux.
Class President.

When the large audience of relatives and friends had become fairly seated, the orchestra in the balcony struck up the strains of the opening number. Then, entering by both aisles from the front of the church, the graduates proceeded in single file the girls in front and the boys behind them. When they had taken their places on the platform with the girls in front, all eyes became centered on a table near the left end of the platform upon which were piled prizes and diplomas.

Invocation was given by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring. This was followed by the salutatory address by Miss Margaret Virginia Leggett. She said:

Gentlemen of the Board of Education, Mr. Superintendent, Mr. Best and the members of his faculty,

D. Russell Miller.
Class Treasurer.

Honorable Speaker and Citizens of Plainfield, greetings and salutations from the class of 1910! If you are glad to be here this evening, surely the class of 1910 is doubly glad. "Everything comes to him who will butu work and wait." We have done both, and we have become in our turn the graduating class of the Plainfield High School.

It is a special pleasure to greet the Board of Education. During the four years of our High School course, the board has silently worked beside us, making possible our many advantages. The class of 1910 is the first class to have spent four whole years in the High School building. It was a building well worth waiting for. We have appreciated it and we have appreciated all the good things that you have given us.

Dr. Maxson, you know how much our class loves you. It seems almost useless even to try to express our feelings. Every graduating class has told you of their great admiration, and 1910 shares the unanimous feeling a little more deeply.

And Mr. Best and the members of

The Plainfield High School Alumni Association, desiring to be of greater service, proposed at its last annual meeting to use its best endeavors to provide suitable employment for the graduates of the P. H. S. and that larger number of pupils in the underclasses who leave school before graduation. In this they have been assisted by Principal Best. Many of the splendid body of young people, who graduated last night, have already found a place in which to begin the battle of life.

William C. Hubbard, president of the Plainfield High School Alumni Association, and Lindsey Best, principal, are both much interested in this plan, and cordially invite the alumni and friends of the school to co-operate with them in securing proper places, or positions, in which the graduates or younger people may start. Until the schools open in September this work will be in the hands of W. C. Hubbard, 111 West Fifth street, who says he will be pleased to reecive and answer applications from employers and with whom all desiring positions should register.

RECEPTION FOLLOWS GRADUATING EXERCISES

Quite the most successful reception ever give na graduating class was held last evening when the classes of 1908 and 1909 gave the annual reception to the class of 1910. Immediately after the exercises the graduates gathered in the High School auditorium where the reception was held. This was attractively decorated for the occasion with college banners, flags, oak boughs, palms, potted plants and cut flowers. The decorations were carried out in the auditorium and in the library especially fitted up for the occasion. The colors conspicuous in the lighting were red and white, the colors of the class of 1908. In the bunting the colors of the graduating class predominated.

A novel feature of the reception this year was a cotillion. This was led by Leslie Stewart and Miss Eva Kelly. Favors were given out by Lindsey Best and Miss Katherine Ball, of the faculty. Two "Paul Jones" were also on the program in addition to the ever popular two-step and waltz. The pleasure of dancing was materially enhanced by the condition of the floor which had been specially prepared and to the music. This was furnished by Suhr's Imperial orchestra, and a splendid program of dance music was given. Encores had to be refused repeatedly by the popular orchestra in order to finish the program on schedule time. A feature of the program was an original composition by Charles Suhr. This was given for the last dance and proved to be immensely popular.

Refreshments were served during the intermission between the parts of the program, by Benjamin Evans. The committee that arranged the affair was composed of William Lambert, Donald Mortimer, Guion Fountain, Richard Harrigan and the Misses Eva Kelly and Ethel Skillman. Dancing was enjoyed until 2 o'clock this morning.

Captain Ruser in Plainfield.

Captain Ruser, of the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, which brought Theodore Roosevelt and his party home from abroad, last Saturday, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, of West Eighth street, and as their guest had dinner at the Plainfield Country Club as a part of the day's pleasure, which included an automobile trip about the city and vicinity. Captain Ruser was delighted with Plainfield and his entertainment.

TALCOTT WILLIAMS' TALK

Editor Tells of the Aims and Results of the High School System.

AT P. H. S. COMMENCEMENT.

Distinguished Philadelphian Dwells on the Advantages and Shortcomings of the Public Scheme of Education.

The importance of the public high school; its inferiority in some important aspects to the endowed private institution; and some commendable features of the Plainfield High School formed the basis of the address by Talcott Williams, L. H. D., editor of the Philadelphia Press, to the graduating class of the Plainfield High School last night. Dr. Williams has been an interested follower of the activities of the City High School for some time past. He was a classmate of Dr. Henry M. Maxson at Amherst, and for several years past has been reading the Oracle year books.

"In one generation the public high school system has grown forty fold; the endowed academy has grown hardl yat all. Today the majority of men prepared for college come from high schools; and of the men dropped from the college rolls for inefficiency are most private schools; while from the public high school men there are only one in eight. The public school is the stream which decides the course of the nation. The endowed academy exacts a feeling of tradition, of strong school spirit from its students that the public high school does not. This is the question confronting the public high school. Can it graduate men with a strong feeling and love for the institution? It is this that makes public spirit. Education recognizes a public responsibility imposed on it; and unless a sense of enthusiasm is well established in school it is doubtful if ever it will be. You must feel that atmosphere of your institution. Can the high school do this? The spirit of which I speak," he said, "has been manifested to me many times in the year books of the Plainfield High School which I always read with pleasure.

The three jewels in the crown of the American republic are: Initiative, self education and social service. They are conspicuous American qualities. If there is any one thing that distinguishes Roosevelt, it is initiative.

"Let me congratulate you," he said, interrupting his talk, "on the athletic field that you are to have. In athletics you get a strong sense of team play—a willingness to abide by the decision of the impartial umpire. If the youth doesn't learn to obey the decisions of the umpire the man will not learn to abide by the decisions of the courts. It is a good thing to enter life with a strong sense of team play.

Self education is a distinct American trait. Lincoln is the most conspicuous example of the self educated man; but today we want men who will continue their studies after school and college. And of social service? If you drink the wine of social service you will never have to drink the water of narrowed, self-centered interests.

"The graduates tonight have received impulses towards all three of the virtues I have mentioned. Now they must realize that education is responsibility, not merely privilege."

THEY HAD A FINE TIME AT THEIR CAMP-FIRE.

The first camp-fire and "spread" of the Men's Conference Bible Class, of the First Baptist church, was held near the King's Daughters' baby-camp on Johnston's Drive last night, and it proved to be a jolly affair. The men began to gather at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, each brining something along for the "spread" later on. It was a happy crowd and the affair was marked by an informality that added greatly to the pleasure of everyone.

At 7 o'clock fifty men partook of the many good things provided. There were short speeches by H. W. Herrman and B. J. Phelps, teachers of the class, and John G. MacLaughlin, the class president, while the class quartet and glee club entertained with a program of popular songs. While seated about the camp-fire, the men engaged in story-telling, interspersing the fine music. The committee in charge comprised H. W. Herrman, B. J. Phelps, R. W. Barnes, Charles Conover, Lewis Matlack, J. H. Crane and John G. MacLaughlin.

TRADE BOARD MEETING

Municipal Affairs Discussed by Men of Great Experience.

FREE BATHS & BOOKS NEEDED.

Former Mayor of New Brunswick and An Ex-Senator Present Their Views.

More than a hundred men braved the heat to attend the meeting of the Board of Trade in Coward's hall last night and were well repaid for their trouble. Former Mayor Charles Vienman, of New Brunswick, and former State Senator, Olin Bryan, of Baltimore, spoke on municipal matters and local government. Members from boards of trade in Elizabeth, Westfield and Somerville were present and discussed informally proposed legislation and other pertinent topics. Mayor Sanford, of Dunellen, paid his respects to his critics including Michael Gallagher who appears to be the thorn in the Mayor's side.

It was announced at the close of the meeting that in the fall the first subjects to be taken up by the board will be the review of the local fire department, tax assessments and the City Clerk's office. An investigation of the statue of the present incumbent his emoluments and duties will be started.

Music was furnished for the occasion by Messre. Scholte and Schaffer, of Berkeley Heights, and refreshments were served at ten o'clock.

Former Mayor Viehman's speech was received with acclamations of applause. He recited the conditions existing previous to his term of office and the remedies he applied without consulting the men against whom he made an uphill fight. The result of his exhibition of backbone is the splendid condition of the city of New Brunswick today. Clean streets, better pavement, improved sanitary conditions, everything in fact that goes to make a ctiy beautiful has been accomplished through perseverance and economy practised in all departments of the city.

Referring to wastefullness of money as practised in this country the speaker quoted the figures showing the expense of maintaining the fire departments of Berlin, Germany and that of Chicago. The former, he declared, last year cost $249,000 to maintain while the fire losses amounted to $215,000. Chicago's fire department cost that city during the same period $4,000,000 and fire losses were above $5,000,000.

Mr. Bryan's speech, full of splendid advice on municipal matters opened the eyes of the men to certain things which can be done in cities where men of the calibre of the Board of Trade members are interested in the progress of their city. He advocated a unity of endeavors in all affairs pertaining to the betterment of the city; suggested free baths and free school books in the public schools; play grounds properly equipped and told the members that by a concerted effort all their aims could be accomplished without trouble.

Two new members were elected and a vote of thanks extended to the speakers of the evening. The board will not meet again until the first Thursday in next September.

BOROUGHITES MUST NOT DROWN THEIR BOW-WOWS.

The borough authorities are up in arms against the practice of drowning dogs in the raceway below Farragut avenue to Brook avenue. Several complaints have been lodged with the health authorities and they have taken the matter up. Recently quite a number of canines have been disposed of by drowning in the raceway. Rocks are tied to the dog's neck and the animal is then thrown into the brook. The carcass is not removed and as a result the water becomes infected. The State law covering this offense provides for a fine of from fifty to one hundred dollars, and the borough health authorities promise to proceed against all offenders to the full extent of their power.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

There is a building boom in Dunellen this year. Since January 1 twelve houses have been erected, and if those for which plans have been filed with the Council are carried to completion the number will reach thirty before the end of the year. The postal business has almost doubled in volume within the past two years, and the sale of stamps is nearly twice as much as one year ago. More than twenty families moved to the borough this spring.

Among the prominent local members of the Dunellen Board of Education at the graduation exercises of the Plainfield High School last night were President A. F. Todd, T. W. Day and Isaac J. Stites. The son of a former councilman, T. D. Hamilton was graduated. Kathryn Moynihan and Miss Meta Pennock, from the borough, also received diplomas. The latter gave the valedictory address.

A movement in Plainfield to form a Columbia Club is attracting the attention of various alumni in the borough. Among the prominent alumni here is Councilman Churchill.

The W. C. T. U. will not meet again until July 6.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration are completed with the exception of some of the minor details. The picnic end of the celebration will be held along the shores of Green brook on the Johnston farm. The spot is an ideal one for an outing.

The Hetfield and Weldon Stone Company have purchased a steam road engine which will be used to cart crushed stone between the crusher in the valley and Fanwood railroad station.

The electric light circuit which was put out of commission by the storm Saturday afternoon of last week, has been repaired and the streets are again lighted at night.

Joseph Corrona, who has been taking a two weeks' vacation, has returned to his position with the New York Telephone Co. in their New York office.

Miss Winifred MacGowan, of the corps of teachers of the public school, will spend her summer vacation at her home in Pennsylvania.

The warm weather of the past few days has made the swimming pools along Green brook favorite spots for the boys in town.

Mrs. George McVoy, of Plainfield, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. John H. Coles, of Park avenue.

WESTFIELD.

Owing to the delay of the Board of Education in getting a new schoolhouse started in Clark Township to take the place of the one condemned by the State Board of Education, the Board of Education has been notified by County Superintendent J. J. Savitz, that Clark Township will receive no more State money until a proper school is provided.

George Damon's Sons, of New York, manufacturers of printing machinery, have purchased a factory site at Garwood, where they propose erecting a building for printing press repairing.

Walter Rosell, of Bloomsbury, has been appointed principal of the Garwood School, to take up his duties when the school opens in September.

The date for the annual union Sunday school excursion from Westfield to Ocean Grove has been fixed for July 12.

RARITAN.

Mrs. E. Evans has returned from Chester, Pa., where she spent a week with relatives.

Miss Gladys Kanouse, of Newark, is a guest of her cousin, Miss Olive Myers.

Miss Grace Kelley is bookkeeping in The Chronicle office at Bound Brook.

Staats Quick is entertaining his grandson, Elmer Quick, from Newark.

Miss Virginia Beard is entertaining her sister from Gettysburg, Pa.

George A. Lane spent this week at Ocean Grove.

Arthur V. DeHart is in Asbury Park.

The public schools closed yesterday.

HERE AND THERE.

The story of how a local patrolman purchased a fine breed Scotch collie dog, paid for a registry tag, lost the canine, inserted an advertisement in The Daily Press for its return and recovered the dog only to learn that the collie did not belong to him, is one of the most amusing of the summer season. The patrolman purchased the collie from a friend and immediately afterward invested $2.50 in a license tag.

A few days later the dog ran away and in response to an advertisement inserted in The Daily Press, the collie was returned to him. At the same time, the real owner of the dog saw the advertisement and calling at the address given in the advertisement informed the patrolman that the animal belonged to him. Giving undisputable evidence of the fact the dog was turned over to the rightful owner. The only consolation left for the patrolman is the price of the advertisement, which was returned to him by the owner of the canine.

There will be baptism at the First Baptist church Sunday evening, in charge of the pastor, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss.

CITY HIGH COMMENCEMENT

his faculty! Will it seem wrong to say that we are glad to leave old P. H. S.? Surely not, when one remembers the care which you have taken to prepare us for the future years. We should be glad to leave, to prove our worth and to prove the value of your careful training. To the untiring efforts of Mr. Travell, our principal for three years, we owe a large share of whatever success we may have gained. Mr. Best, you have been a teacher, but better than that, a friend to everyone of us. It has been your first year as principal. Perhaps the class of 1910 sometimes made the waters troubled, but believe us, it was unintentional, and you have our best wishes for many more successful years as principal.

Very gladly do we greet you, citizens of Plainfield. You have helped make us what we are. You have made it possible for us to have the benefit of the best that education has to offer, and it is our fault if we have not taken the proper advantage of our opportunities. We realize that in a few years many of us will become citizens of Plainfield. It will then be only fitting that we should do for others even as you have done for us, and because of what you have done for us, we shall be better able to do for them. We thank you, citizens, for your interest and for your substantial help.

A rollicking medley by the orchestra was an apt precursor of the address of Talcott Williams, L. H. D., editor of the Philadelphia Press. An account of Mr. Williams' speech will be found in another column.

The small table creaking under the weight of prizes and diplomas was then carried to a conspicuous place on the platform and William S. Tyler presented the prizes to the winners. Much enthusiasm was expressed by the audience when the names of the winners were called out, and the audience gave tangible expression of their good will in the hearty runds of applause that broke forth eoch time a young man or a young woman went forward to reecive his or her prize. The prizes and their winners follow:

English Composition: I. The George H. Babcock Prize, given by Mrs. George H. Babcock. First prize, $15 expended in books; poems of Tennyson, Browning and Byron, Alice Mary Doane; second prize, $10 expended in books; Scott's Waverly novels, 10 vols., Dorothy Smith; honorable mention, George Murray.

Victims of Obesity.

Cure Yourself at Home in Comfort.

As a bodily affliction Obesity often seems to be inexplicable, so rapid is the increase of weight and bulk, even in cases where the victims are studiously temperate in eating, etc. There is evidently a predisposition that way, and neglect only tends to confirm it. The remedies tried may have greviously disappointed you.

Here is one that will not do so, and you may get the ingredients at your druggist's and mix them yourself without trouble: Ask for ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ oz. Peppermint Water. Shake together in a good-sized clean bottle. Simply take this mixture after each meal and at bedtime, one teaspoonful to the dose, and give yourself no further trouble; the superfluous fat will subside with wonderful rapidity.

Dieting need not worry you in the least, nor is violent exercising at all desirable. Wasting methods of weight reduction are not natural. Try the pleasant treatment above prescribed for a week or so, and you will be fit, strong and free from all bodily discomfort, besides having regained correct weight and a shapely figure.

II. The Daily Press Prize, for the best essay on a topic relating to municipal affairs. Prize, $10 in gold, Howard Judson Runyon; honorable mention, Dixon Phillips.

III. Prize for best essay on a given topic, offered by the W. C. T. U. Prize, $5 in gold, Margaret Virginia Leggett; honorable mention, Richard Southgate McIntyre.

Mathematics—The Dr. C. H. Stillman Prize, given by Mr. Wm. M. Stillman. First prize, $15 in gold, Elmer Hunting; second prize, $10 in gold, Edith Whitney; honorable mention, Louis Strong, Frank Schwed.

Translation Prizes—For the best translation of assigned passages, a first prize of three dollars, and a second prize of two dollars, to be expended in books chosen by the receiver of the prize.

Senior French — First prize, Shakespeare's Works, Temple Edition, 7 vols. Bourgeois Gentilhomme, Moliere, Elsie Emery Bird; second prize, Tennyson's Poems, Marguerite Garretson Van Zadnt; honorable mention, Barbara Fleming.

Senior German—First prize, Schiller's Works, Ouida Elizabeth Louise Hetfield; second prize, Shakespeare's Works, 4 vols., Marion Annie Praed; honorable mention—Meta Rutter Pennock.

Latin Prizes—Given by Alexander Gilbert:

Vergil—First Prize, Vanity Fair and the Virginians by Thackeray, Elsie Emery Bird; second prize, no award; honorable mention, no award.

Cicero—First Prize, Henry Fifth and Julius Caesar by Shakespeare, Helen Eliza Pearce; second prize, Les Miserables in French and other books in French, Louise Bird; honorable mention—Agnes Scribner.

Caesar—First Prize, Th. Moore's Poems, Nora McDonough; second prize, Browning's Poems, Helen Ryder; honorable mention, Effie Beekman.

Commercial Prizes—Given by Ernest Ackerman. A first prize of three dollars and a second prize of two dollars, to be expended in books.

Bookkeeping—First Prize, Stevnson's Works, 4 vols., John Heron; second prize, Stevenson's Works, 3 vols., Albert Frank Bryniarski; honorable mention, Arthur Henry Zeckendorf.

Typewriting—First prize, Shakespeare's Works, 7 vols. Temple Edition, Ethel Odessa Rogers; second prize, Pancoast's Collection of English Poems, Louisa McCormick; honorable mention, Ethel Madoline Strader.

American History—The Dr. J. B. Probasco Prize, given by Mrs. J. B. Probasco. Prize, $10 in gold, Carter Lyman Goodrich; honorable mention, Harold Woodruff Tomlinson, Henry Morris Zook.

"The Fair Co-Ed" was then rendered by the orchestra after which Miss Meta Pennock gave the valedictory address. At the conclusion of this, she walked a little to the right of the paltform, partially turned towards the members of her class who stood up, and said:

A little hepatica on the barren mountainside struggles up through the gray worn rocks into the air. Hindered in its growth by biting winds and overtowering stones, shielded by the same rough boulders, shaped by the nourishing soil, the faint sun, and March showers, the cramped curls unfold in the brighter April sunshine.

After four long years, surrounded by unconscious influences, our individuality is now developed. We may know the properties of hydrochloric acid, the character of Henry the Fifth, the meaning of a projected line, but these things are only the unrelated details of the picture. Our thoughts, our habits, our moods are now forever ours and will give life its true meaning. The fixative has set the drawing.

For all we may be tonight we thank our friends, our guides. Shall I say we are their shadows? Many things we have willed to do, but after all we are only the reflection of the silent influences about us. The stones, the soil, the rain, the sunshine all have done their work. And somewhere breathes a forest Deity who plans for every one. Against, and with our wills, we have been moulded by the master hand; and we are thankful with all our hearts for the mistakes by which we have learned, for every quirk and turn of our school life, and every self-sacrificing effort.

Yes, class-mates, we have pushed our slender stems through Stygian rocks and breathed ozone under circling suns. Each impression is a blending of combined influences; the thoughts of others have seeped through our ideals and left their traces. By daily friction we have filed down our sharp corners; lived, and lived happly, together. We have known and loved each other well.

"The moving finger writes, and having writ,
May we, through all the coming years that flit,
Not lure it back to cancel half a line,
Nor all our tears wash out a word of it."

And the hepatica?

We are pushing out into the great world. The shining sun and blowing wind will bring the flower face to face with blue skies. May our life be as real and true as our thoughts. We do not grow and bloom for mere existence. May we each strive to form a fair flower, cheer a little lonely child, found a happier home, make one hart the blither for our passing,—so—good-night.

When she had finished, the class took their seats again quietly. This was the final act of a class nature as undergraduates; for the next number of the program made them graduates—the presentation of the prized diplomas by Leander N. Lovell, president of the Board of Education. Taking his position to the right of the platform, Mr. Lovell called out the name of each graduate. As he did so, the graduate rose from his seat amid a round of applause received his diploma, bowed and then returned to his seat. At times the applause was unusually hearty; but all got some recognition from the audience. Those who received diplomas are:

Classical Course—Amy Louise Abel, Bessie Alpaugh, Louise Stockton Andrews, Elsie Emery Bird, Muriel Collins, Alice Mary Doane, Lila Pauline Duy, Barbara Fleming, Ouida Elizabeth Louise Hetfield, Ruth Klein, Margaret Virginia Leggett, Meta Rutter Pennock, Theodore Denton Hamilton, Alan Maxwell Overton, Frank Arthur Putnam.

Scientific Course—William Herschel Bullock, Otis Wadsworth Hovey, John Andrew Kenney, Thomas Emory Ricketts, John Sebring Riffert, Howard Judson Runyon, Lester Neighbor Sutton.

Modern Language Course—Agnes Estelle Moffett, Marion Annie Praed, Miriam Helen Van Horn, Marguerite Garretson Van Zandt, Celestine Colis Waldron, Grace Trowbridge Woolston.

General Course—Edith Lillian Bush, Edna Maud Cole, Grace Denton Parker, Mary Elizabeth Radford, Helen Louise Smith, Mabel Louise Whitford, Horace Barnard Earle, Frederick Daniel Loizeaux, Dudley Russell Miller, Clifford Burton Vail.

Business Course—Arline Maud Brown, Myra Marguerite Dunavan, Cora Jean Gray, Maud Monzelia Greene, Helen McDowell MacCallum, Annie Mauger, Kathryn Romania Moynihan, Ethel Odessa Rogers, Nettie Garrettson Stillman, Beulah Miriam VanWinkle, Harry Brick, Arthur William Johnson.

One of the most interesting of the Class Day features of graduates is the "Will." The following is the heritage given by the class of 1910 of the City High School:

We, the class of 1910, being of sound mind, memory, understanding, and masters of education, do hereby declare this our last will and testament:

First: To the Plainfield High School at large do we give, devise, and bequeath, the honor and pleasure of having fourteen of this great class as Post Graduates, in the High School next year. That is, we leave, in the person of Miss Bird, an example of what senior dignity ought (?) to be; Lila Duy for the amusement (?) of Miss Bass and Miss Ball; our salutatorian to show them how, where, and when (all winter) to wear a sailor hat; Sally Waldron and that giggle to cheer them on thier weary way; and, last but not least, Miss Fleming to join the ranks of the faculty.

Second: We give and devise to the entire Plainfield High School our share of anticipation in those now famous mythological tennis courts and bicycle sheds.

Third: Do we (in pity) leave an entire drawer full of good material for use next year in that worthy institution "The Oracle," and to the Editor-in-chief, we donate a little discretion.

Fourth: We bequeath to all those jolly Friday afternoon "at homes," with their touching melodramatic productions and displays of unknown (yes, quite known) theatrical powers, by Smith, Ramsey, Hardwicke and Conlin to be enjoyed as we have enjoyed them.

Fifth: We give and devise our good example and reputation to be cherished and followed by all those, who in turn, rise to the height of seniors.

Sixth: To the football teams of the coming seasons we bequeath the pleasure of tasting that delicious dirt of the new athletic field, when we, as alumni, meet them there.

Seventh: To the class of 1911, we give, devise, bequeath, donate, and insist upon their taking:

a—The Senior room and the right to try and fill it as we did.

b—The Senior privileges ("nuf ced").

c—The senior lunch tables and front seats in chapel.

d—The honor of being the first class inflicted by that glorious, future-famed public speaking course. (Here's hoping you get some benefit from it.)

e—The joys of argumentation and versification.

f—The fact that it's up to you to try and beat "As You Like It."

g—The joys of composition and rejection of petitions from your fertile pens.

Eighth: Also to the illustrious Junior Class we donate the challenge to spend as glorious a senior year in old P. H. S. as we have spent, and Ninth: Do we pass on to 1911 the privilege of giving their next inferiors the usual Christmas present, and also the right to raise their gaudy standard to the wind at that gay holiday time.

Tenth: To the class of 1913, we devise the duty of taking our places on the grand-stand of Parker Field and cheering our share for the good old Red and Blue.

Eleventh: We give and bequeath to the class of 1914 the grand and glorious colors of Blue and Gold which we trust will be duly reverenced and carried through the next four years as high and free as we have marshalled them.

Twelfth: To the various colleges and institutions of learning we give the good fortune of having enrolled among their number, those of our class who have chosen, in leaving this happy camping ground, to honor those same dominions with their presence. Yale is particularly fortunate (?).

And lastly, we desire that this document shall be hung on a weeping willow tree, twenty-seven inches from the ground, where all, from the shortest senior to the tallest freshman, may conveniently read and absorb its valuable contents.

Furthermore we nominate and appoint our honored, true and loyal friends, Macbeth and Julius Caesar, as executors of this, our last will and testament, to which we have hereunto set our hands and seal this twenty-first day of June, in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

Class of 1910.

Signed,
FRED D. LOIZEAUX, President.
HOWARD J. RUNYON Jr., Sec'y.

Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of us who hereby affix our signatures,
MINERVA,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The ushers were under the direction of Charles B. Morse. They were: Joseph O. Osgood, Jr., Henry Pound, Charles E. Prior, Jr., Walter Knowlton, Leslie Slocum, Stanley Robins and William Lambert.

Miss Minnie Blazier, of Elmwood place, who is visiting friends in Georgia, will not return home until fall.

Harry E. Butler, of Madison avenue, who recently purchased a fine farm property near Fanwood, is erecting a handsome summer home there.

Fred Endress and his children, Katherine and John Endress, will leave next Wednesday for Germany, where they will remain for several weeks.

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, who lectures at Worcester University, tomorrow, will return home in time to occupy his pulpit at the Park Avenue Baptist church on Sunday.

—There are at present two cases of scarlet fever under treatment in the contagious disease ward at Muhlenberg Hospital.

WE ARE NOW TRIMMING HATS FREE OF CHARGE.

It's good news to the woman who needs a new Summer Bonnet and knows she can select her materials here and have the trimming done free of charge. We do this to keep our workroom busy during the dull period. Women know that we carry the biggest stock either in season or between seasons for their choosing. For instance, we just received a good stock of small and medium Black Hair and Chip shapes, also White Chip Hats. Most millinery houses have little to show you now, but you can find your choosing easy here, and save money on the shapes and flowers. We don't buy up jobs of undesirable styles, its our aim to have what you WANT in the millinery line and sell it at a lower price than any other house hereabouts. Come to Tepper's for your midsummer hat.

EDITORIAL.

"What we mean by preparedness." To be always ready, whatever the season or the stage of the season, with merchandise of a character best suited to meet your immediate requirements, is the definition of the word "preparedness" as we interpret it.

And this is not a simple matter.

Goods must be always new—absolutely down to date—the best that the foreign and domestic markets have to offer. That means that not a single article in the stock of any department can be carried over from one season to another, yet even at the end of the season when preparations for the ensuing period engross most of our attention, stocks of merchandise for your immediate wear—to supply your needs during the transition time, as it were—must remain fully adequate.

This is but one of the many difficulties that we have been obliged to surmount in order that "preparedness" might merit a place among the attributes that characterize this business, devoted to serving your interest.

GOLF.

A private golf tournament has been planned for the new national course down on Long Island, where Charles B. Macdonald has been working so hard during the last three years. It will be a three-day affair, starting on Saturday, July 2, and finishing on Monday, July 4. Among those who will play are Walter J. Travis, Findlay S. Douglas, Louis Livingston, John M. Ward, Robert C. Watson, Macdonald and several other amateurs of more or less prominence.

In addition to the usual qualification test followed by match play, foursomes will be introduced. Although only a small proportion of the traps have been placed as yet, the course is far from easy. In fact the amateur record to date is 81, made recently by Macdonald, who is playing better than at any time in his long career as a golfer.

T. V. Bermingham, the best player at the Wykagyl Country Club, has gained additional laurels as the result of a record round made recently over the New Rochelle links. It was accomplished on Sunday in a heavy rain, with the greens soggy and slow. The player in question went out in 36, two strokes better than par, while the homeward journey was accomplished in 39, which included a 7 at the last hole. Even so, his score of 75 broke the old amateur record for the course by a stroke. This was 76, made by Jerome Travers in 1907. The new mark was made as follows:

Out ..5 4 5 5 2 3 4 4 4—36
In ...3 5 5 3 4 4 3 5 7—39—75

ALL DAY FESTIVAL AT HEAVENLY REST

The Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest held its final meeting for the season in the parish house, last night, with Juan A. Babcock, president, in the chair. The treasurer's report was read and showed the association to be in good financial condition. Mr. Babcock announced that he would not accept a re-election at the meeting in the fall, and then outlined the policy that the association should follow.

It was further reported that everything is in readiness for the all-day festival to be held on the church grounds tomorrow. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a baseball game between teams composed of members of the association. Juan A. Babcock will captain one nine and William Ochiltree the other. The lineup will be as follows:

Following the ball game there will be an entertainment in the parish house furnished by Prof. Henderson and others from New York. There will also be a dance, music to be furnished by L. M. Hummer and Arthur Mosher. William Ochiltree will be floor manager. Throughout the afternoon the Women's Guild and Young People's Association will have charge of the booths for the sale of ice cream, candy, etc. The grounds will be elaborately decorated with Chinese and Japanese lanterns and electric lights. Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the church, has general supervision of the festival.

THE WEATHER.

Generally fair tonight and Saturday; light to moderate northerly winds.

Maximum, 93; minimum, 65.

Graduates Climb Hill.

The graduating class of the North Plainfield High School, under the chaperonage of Miss Edna Wilkes, teacher of physics, enjoyed a trip to Wilson's ice pond last evening and on their return took advantage of the opportunity of absorbing a solid feed of the kind which is always appreciated, especially after climbing a mountain. Besides enjoying the feed there were several features of the outing which the twenty-four young people enjoyed.

Treated Graduates to Ice Cream.

According to the annual custom the members of the 1910 graduating class of the Plainfield High School, to the number of fifty-five, were invited to L. W. Randolph's pharmacy yesterday, where they were served with ice cream soda. At the conclusion three cheers were given for Mr. Randolph.

in establishing or in running a plant. This risk is no doubt greater in establishing a plant than in buying over one and running it. However, many people object to the heavy burden placed upon a city by the purchase of a water station. The following is quoted from "Municipal Public Works," by Mr. Whinery:

"Sound business principals undoubtedly dictate that it is not wise or prudent for municipalities to incur debts of this character if public utilities can be supplied otherwise at reasonable cost. Our American cities are usually sufficiently burdened with other debts that cannot be avoided, and whenever private capital can be induced to provide public utilities upon fair and reasonable terms, it would seem wise to avoid the heavy obligations that municipal ownership must involve."

Now to take up the other side of the question—why is it that 90 per cent. of the cities in the United States having a population of over one hundred thousand people have municipal water supply? It must be satisfactory to the public or the public would not stand for it. Of our fifty largest cities in this country, twenty have changed from private to munncipal ownership and twenty-one have always owned their own works.

Even if it does cost a great amount to buy over a water plant cannot the city borrow money at a lower rate than a private corporation? Many cities have taken over properties at great expense and today they have them free and clear. Why cannot Plainfield do the same?

With municipal control there is apt to be less friction between the consumer and the company. The private corporations do not make their accounts public and the marjority of the people as a rule believe that the company is making immense profits. Municipal control usually does away with this feeling, and there is more harmony between the water works and the other city works.

If the city controlled the works, much of the inconvenience and waste caused by tearing up the streets to lay or get at the water pipes could be done away with. The pipes could be laid when the streets are being put in condition.

It is very hard, and often impossible to get a private corporation out of control, once the yhave intrenched themselves behind their franchise. On the other hand a corrupt City Council may be turned out, even if it is with great effort. Plainfield has always been proud of her city government so there should be no fears along this line.

One of the arguments against private control is that with such a plant the stockholders enjoy the profit which under municipal control is enjoyed by the consumer. As the population of a city increases the cost of awter per capita decreases, and the consumer should be benefitted by this—not the stockholder.

Plainfield now pumps water to Westfield and other neighboring towns and we have no power to stop this as long as we are properly supplied. It is a fact that the water under our city is being lowered as much as a foot a year. Why should we give our resources to other cities? Why not make them use their own? When our water supply gives out it is probable that some other city will come along and offer us her supply. Who knows but that at some future time we might be forced to go as far as New York does for her water? If, on the other hand it is wise to sell water outside of Plainfield why should the city not sell the water and reap the profit herself? Surely it is time that this matter was given careful attention and thought.

It is true that we must not proceed in the direction of municipal control of the watre works with too great haste, for many cities have made serious and costly blunders because of imperfect and inadequate knowledge. However if every one of our citizens would make it his business to inform himself on the water question it would be a great benefit to him and also to the city of Plainfield.

CHARLES N. FOWLER IS 'IN OUR MIDST'

Charles Newell Fowler, representative of the Fifth, New Jersey, district, who is a candidate for a renomination for an eighth term, spent the day here quietly campaigning for support. That he is to make an aggressive fight for the nomination and is starting early with that aim, appears to be the general impression.

During his stay here, the congressman was the guest of his campaign manager, City Clerk James T. MacMurray. The Fowlerites appear to be much elated since State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees is reported to have announced that Morris county will not have a candidate. James H. McGraw, it is said, will not enter the race, and the "regulars" it is reported may have to look to Union county for his opponent.

VAGRANT'S QUEER ACTION FRIGHTENED WOMAN.

A hurry call came to borough police headquarters this morning from a resident of Somerset place that a strange man was trying to enter the house. Marshal Keller answered the call and found Joseph Griswold, a Hungarian, trying to get in the front door. He placed him under arrest and the latter is now in the borough jail. The man was offered food by the woman of the house, but refused it. When she tried to get him to move on he persisted in trying to enter the house. First he went to the back door and then to the front door. He will be arraigned before Recorder Dolliver on a drunk and disorderly charge tomorrow morning.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Next Sunday's double header with the Union Field Club and the Fords A. C. will be the last games the local club plays in town this season. After this all games will be played out of town, contests having been scheduled with Newark, New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, Roselle, Port Reading, Rahway and Fords.

Rev. J. J. Allen, pastor, will preach at the Baptist church, Sunday. The morning theme will be "The Helplessness of Man in the Hands of his God," and in the evening, "Unreasonable objections to a Reasonable Thing."

The play of "Diamonds and Hearts" will be presented tonight in Washington hall. The cast will consist of local talent and should make good. The play will be followed by a dance.

The Spicer Manufacturing Company's building here is going up rapidly. The company expects to have its plant here in operation by July 15.

St. Clair Got a S. S.

Elmer St. Clair, of North avenue, was arrested yesterday evening on Somerset place by Marshal Frank Culver for being drunk and disorderly. He was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver this morning and received a suspended sentence. It he is again arrested for the same offense a fine of five dollars will be imposed. This was made clear to St. Clair by the judge, and the former departed with the assertion that he would stick to the straight and narrow path in future.

Talent of Success.

The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, without a thought of fame. If it comes at all, it will come because it is deserved, not because it is sought after. It is very indiscreet and troublesome ambition which cares so much about fame, about what the world says of us, as to be always looking in the faces of others for approval, to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say, to be always shouting to hear the echoes of our own voices.

A Man's House.

What is a man's house but his nest, and why should it not be nest-like both outside and in—coarse, strong, negative in tone externally, and snug and well feathered and modeled by the heart within? Why should it be set on a hill when he can command a nook under the hill or on its side? Why should it look like an observatory, when it is a conservatory and dormitory?—John Burroughs.

Drawback.

The Alpine guide waxed eloquent. "Behold," he cried, "yon beetling crags!" "They beetle for everybody, though!" sneered the rich American, and sullenly spat in token of his discontent. It was not true, however, that he lacked appreciation of the beautiful and the sublime, provided these were costly and exclusive.—Puck.

A Noble Heart.

His Wife (2 a. m.)—Still working, dear? The great author—Yes, I've just finished my four hundred and fiftieth only unpublished poem. You see, I want to leave enough so that the family and all my friends will be able to live comfortably after I die.—Puck.

Utilizing His Creditor.

"Seems to me little Juggins is cutting a wide swath for a man of small means. Has he struck oil recently?" asked Harkaway. "Oh, no," laughed Robinson. "He's a good manager. He makes a little creditor go a long ways."—Harper's Weekly.

Carrying a Cane.

A man who carries a cane always seems important to us. An Atchison man not only carries a cane, but when he stops to talk he hooks it in his outside coat pocket in order that he may swing his arms freely.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Where There's a Will.

He—"So your husband has given up smoking? It requires a pretty strong will to accomplish that." She—"Well, I'd have you understand that I have a strong will."—New Zealand Free Lance.

Men.

When you meet with men of worth, think how you may attain to their level; when you see others of an opposite character, look within, and examine yourself.—Confucius.

And Not Much of Either.

The only trouble about the love letters of the idle rich is that they express as much love as they do intelligence, and as much intelligence as they do love.

One View of Them.

"What a large family our neighbor has." "Why, there are only two children." "I know, but each one weighs over 100 pounds."—Baltimore American.

Iceland's Food Output.

The statement that Iceland will be able to provide for 1,000,000 population, as against 79,000 now there, is interesting enough, but there is no danger of a rush of emigrants.

Help from the Outside.

"Was it hard work for you to quit smoking?" "No, when my wife once made up her mind to it."—Boston Herald.

Point of View.

Muck Rake—What do you consider the most wise and beneficent of our country's laws? Rich M. Factor—The statute of limitations, of course!

Wisdon in This Sentence.

Love the spot where you are, and the friends God has given you, and be sure to expect everything good of them.—John Albee.

Poor Thing.

Patience—"I feel awfully sorry for her." Patrice—"Why?" "She's getting hard of hearing and she does so like to hear herself talk."

Lack of Material.

"My dear young friend, put a watch on your passions." "Can't put a watch on anything. Just pawned mine."—Baltimore American.

Dressed and Roasted.

It is with some women as it is with some birds; after they're dressed they are roasted.

To Soften Water.

Dissolve a small quantity of pipe clay in the water. This will make it as soft as rain water.

Owes All the Wide World.

Wherever there is a humah being there is an opportunity for kindness.—Seneca.

Bow, Wow!

"I never sau-sage a dog. It's the wurst."—Life.

ROSEBUD'S ROMANCE

"Good mawnin', ma'am," said the ebony-hued personage in response to whose knock Mrs. Murray had opened the back door. "I'm the lady what Miz Johnson sent."

"Mrs. Johnson?" queried Mrs. Murray vaguely. "I don't think I know her."

"Oh, yas'm, you do," asserted the ebony-hued one kindly, but firmly. "She's the lady what washes for you. She jest natchally couldn't come this week, because why she's sick abed on her back with the miz'ry in her left year. It's fierce."

Mrs. Murray eyed the substitute laundress rather dubiously. "Well," she said finally, "you may go down to the laundry and sort the clothes and by that time I can give you your breakfast. What is your name?"

The substitute shuffled inside the door and began to remove a hat about the size of a barrel.

"Yas'm my name's Miz White. Miz Isabella Arabella Rosebud White. Yas'm I'm Miz White. My husband's daid, so I'm a widow lady."

"Indeed!" ejaculated Mrs. Murray.

"Yas'm," continued Miz White. "That's a true fac'. He's daid now. It's only been a recent occasion that he died on. Yas'm, only quite a recent occasion."

"Indeed!" said Mrs. Murray again, rather feebly. "I'm sorry to hear it."

"Law," responded Mrs. White cheerfully. "I wuzn't sorry. I wuz powerful glad. It was a shore 'nuff release. I wuz mighty glad to git shet of him. You see, I done been a grass widow for some consid'able time and if ever a pusson was glad to be a real shore 'nuff widow, I wuz it."

"So you were divorced, then?" inquired Mrs. Murray.

"Yas'm, I was divorced some time previously to Mr. White's bein' removed. You see, I wasn't able to git no divorce right immediately preceding after me and Mr. White was separated, on account of me not havin' no money to pay for it, so I just had to wait until a gentleman friend of mine he says he'd he'p me and he got me one real cheap.

"I was mighty glad to be single again. That husband of mine he shore was the limit. He couldn't stand it for me to have no money no more'n nothin'. Ev'y time I come home with maybe a dollar or two dollars or fifty cents or two bits, that'd set him tryin' to get it out of me. He wasn't nothin' but no 'count, anyway. Never did have no raisin'. Such performances like those wasn't reasonable and I jest natchally got sick and tired of it, so I packed up one night and lef' him."

"I think it served him right," said Mrs. Murray, sympathetically.

"Yas'm, I was tired of supportin' an indignant husband, so I just up and quit."

"But what made him indignant if you supported him?" queried Mrs. Murray.

"That was jest whut made him indignant, yas'm," explained Rosebud, kindly. "You see, once I heard a lady talkin' about women that supported indignant husbands and I asked her what she meant. I had raisin', but I never had no education not to speak of, so I didn't mind askin', and she says, that lady she tole me, it was husbands that was too lazy to work and didn't support their families. The minute she spoke the word I knowed that was what I was doin'.

"So when I got home that night I just tole Mr. White he had to get out and do sumpin'. And he done it, yas'm. He was right mad, but he wasn't indignant for quite a spell after that. He got a job janitin' in a office and I never had to give him a cent for two weeks. Then he quit. No'm, he never worked no more after that. He was too delicate, he said, so I jest packed up one night and went away and never went back no more."

She paused at the top of the basement stairs with her hand on the door knob.

"If it's just as convenient to you, I'd like mighty well to git away at four o'clock this afternoon," she said. "You see, I got to git home in time to dress for the weddin'."

"If you want to go to a wedding I think we can manage it," said Mrs. Murray. "Are some of your friends to be married?"

"Yas'm, I reckon so. Me and the gentleman friend what got me the divorce is goin' to git married. We been waitin' until Mr. White was diseased. I was scared to marry nobody else when he was livin'. Seems like I might git mixed up, havin' two husbands."

"I should think you would hesitate about marrying again since your first experience was so unfortunate. Maybe you won't do any better another time," said Mrs. Murray, pessimistically.

A dazzling smile spread over the features of the substitute laundress. "No'm," she said, as she began to clamber down the stairs, "I ain't calculatin' to do what you might call much better. But I couldn't do no worse."

Good Evidence.

"Why do you call him a dashing young man?"

"As he went out of our front gate last night I heard him say: '—— —— the —— —— dog.'"

Not Fit for Publication.

Mrs. Church—What did your husband say when you gave him the fountain pen?

Mrs. Gotham—I'd rather not say. He tried to use it.

THREE $5 BILLS FOR SUITS WORTH TO $30.

If you are going to the seashore or into the country for the summer you ought to make sure of at least one genial companion—one that will never fail to interest and entertain you—one that will never offend you. Such a companion is the autotone, the piano all can play either by hand or automatically.

There are many hours when one is left alone, and there are many occasions when the house is full of company when music is a necessity, and there is no way in which it can be more readily obtained than by having one of these wonderful self-players that a child can operate. No need to coax the good player to go to the piano. You can go to it yourself or your little son or daughter can play it most acceptably. The autotone is the highest type of self-playing piano.

Hardman Autotone, Harrington Autotone, Hensel Autotone.

We are sole agents in this vicinity for these celebrated instruments.

Any autotone sold on easy payments.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

Disturbing the Family Peace

"There was a time when I thought mine a well-regulated household," remarked the tired-eyed mother of four smiling youthfully in spite of the silver in her hair and the lines of care around her mouth. "When a question was at issue each of us conceded a trifle till we got into the habit of moving about as peacefully as the stars in their courses. But last Christmas I was ruthlessly awakened to the fact that my flock has bellicose instincts."

The tired-eyed mother sighed and began to explain.

"Our house is so small, you know, that we're packed in as snugly as peas in a pod. Every Christmas we had been unlucky enough to be deluged with from forty to fifty books, with the result that the house was overflowing. Every flat surface, no matter what its original duty might have been, has been compelled to do service as a book stand. As last Christmas was approaching, we decided in family council not to give books to one another, for if we received just one more it would have to be put on the pantry shelf.

"In spite of our care, however, one book managed to break the blockade. Annette received a popular novel gorgeously bound.

"Though we were all vitally interested in what we received ourselves, each of us managed within the next day or so to take a sly peep between the covers of Annette's book. A few nights after Christmas the trouble came to a head. It was cold and rainy, and the children were all at home to dinner, the first time for weeks.

"Jack, he's the oldest, jumped up from the table before Annie brought in the dessert.

"He made direct for the library, where I heard a rustling of papers on the table, and then the familiar creaking of the old springs on the divan as Jack threw himself in his customary place. Father looked up suspiciously and with an alert air. Then he did a strange thing. He shoved his chair back from the table, and, without stopping to say grace marched into the library. I listened intently.

"'Oh, you have it,' I heard father say, with a little disappointment in his voice.

"It seemed only a minute till Priscilla and Ed., the twins, jumped up from the table together and made a beeline for the library. My heart beat faster. Even the clock semed to be ticking anxiously as I listened. Ed, you know, is at that combustible age when one often is more strenuous than elegant.

"There was a grand march around the library, there was a wild scramble of papers and magazines; then I heard a low, buzzing consultation.

"'Pig!' It was Ed, hissing at the entirely unconscious Jack.

"'Pig!' you there!" repeated Ed.

"'Let go the book!' came sulkily from Jack. 'Quit it, I tell you. Do you want to tear it?'

"'You don't expect to keep it all evening, I hope,' declared imperious Priscilla, with well-feigned surprise. 'surely,' she went on in a queenly fashion, 'the rest of us have some rights. Anyway,' and there was a half sob in her voice, 'Ed and I were just crazy to see whom she married and we—'

"'Let the old pig alone," comforted Ed. Then I heard the leaf of the card table as it snapped into position.

"In the meantime Annette was having a one-sided consultation with me as to how her new white dress was to be made. I was trying to lengthen out our talk, but it has been so many years since I have dared to make even a suggestion to my grown-up daughter that my ruse was a pitiful failure. Annette settled all my objections in a peremptory fashion, and then sailed majestically into the library with an ominous rustle to her skirts. For the first time in my life I regretted that Annette was to spend the evening in the bosom of her family. The new book belonged to Annette!

"'But it's mine—it was given to me,' came to me in Annette's icy accents.

"'It's mine now, since possesion is nine points of the law,' chuckled Jack, who is studying to be a lawyer.

"It's always wise to obey Annette. She flounced to the piano and began pounding out Chopin's funeral march.

"During the bombardment I crept into the room and took a copy of my favorite, Mrs. Browning. We were the most suspicious looking crowd. All of us were pretending to be busy, and all were secretly watching Jack.

"Suddenly the telephone bell rang.

"'Jack!' Annette announced, who had answered the bell, 'it's for you.'

"Jack sprang from the divan, ten eyes following him. Father glanced furtively over the top of his paper. The twins forgot their game. Annette was tired of the funeral march and I was false to 'Aurora Leigh.'

"'Yes,' Jack was calling, sweetly, 'I'll be there in 15 minutes.'

"Presently Jack came to the door dressed for the street.

"'Where did you put the bood?' demanded Annette.

"'Where is it?' chimed in the twins.

"'Book?' temporized Jack. 'Book? Are you folks all waiting for it? That's too bad; it's great. But I'm going to take a run over to Helen's, and I promised to take it along.'"

The tired-eyed little mother smiled determinedly. "Next Christmas I shall see that we each get at least one book apiece," she said.

THE FORUM.

Mr. Stevens Explains.

Editor, The Daily Press:

If you will grant me space in your valuable columns, I may be able to expel an erroneous impression which is harbored by at least one of our kind-hearted women of Plainfield.

This morning a lady stopped one of my drivers and told him his horse was loaded too heavily. The fact is the horse has been in my possession just three months, has worked every day except Sundays and has gained during that time 300 pounds. I hardly think such a record justifies the supposition that the animal has been overworked or underfed. The lady may not be sufficiently acquainted with our faithful four-footed friends to distinguish between clumsiness and being overladen.

At the same time any intimation of excess weight is a rare compliment to a dealer in the coal line.

GEORGE L. STEVENS.

HAVING SEEN THE WORLD HE WILL SETTLE DOWN.

John Wearren, of Rock avenue, completed his four years' service in Uncle Sam's Navy today, was paid off and terminated his enlistment. Within a short time he will engage in the plumbing business in New York for himself. Mr. Wearren enlisted four years ago as a plumber on the U. S. S. Kansas and was later transferred to the Connecticut, on which ship he remained during the rest of his service. He made the famous trip around the world which began December 16, 1907, and ended February 22, 1909, and says he would not have missed the experience for anything.

Mr. Wearren has planned to bring two hundred of Uncle Sam's sailors to Plainfield on July 4. In the morning the baseball team from the Connecticut will play the Plainfield team at Crescent Oval and the Dunellen nine at Dunellen in the afternoon. In the evening the sailors will hold a dance at Saengerbund Hall.

Prepare to Open Baby Camp.

A committee from the City Union of the King's Daughters will visit the baby camp on the mountain Monday for the purpose of planning to reopen the camp for the summer season. Before this can be done many repairs will be necessary. The Union is still in need of funds with which to carry on this work, and all sums contributed to the organization for this purpose through The Daily Press will be promptly acknowledged. This paper acknowledges the receipt of contributions aggregating $28.00.

Union Lodge Entertains.

Union Lodge, No. 4026, United Grand Order Odd Fellows, colored, held its annual entertainment and dance in Saengerbund Hall, last night. The affair was largely attended by members of the order and their friends. The entertainment comprised vocal and instrumental selections, after which dancing was continued until an early hour this morning. John Murray was chairman of the general committee.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, will occupy the pulpit at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, tomorrow morning.

Wonderful Dog at Proctors.

"Karnel," the wonderful dog actor appearing in the sketch, "His Best Friend," is the big hit at Proctor's theatre. The dog goes through his difficult part without a mistake, being ready for every cue. "Robbin," the comedy tramp juggler, is clever. Josephine Claremont & Co., in the comedy sketch, "The Pantaloon Skirt," is a scream. Alma Pickard, comedienne, is a good character artist and the pictures are better than ever.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., June 20, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

To vacate an unused street on property of Eric N. Erickson and others, extending from West Seventh Street to West Eighth Street, between Central Avenue and Division Street, and being a part of New Street.

Whereas, It is alleged and appears that the hereinafter described unused street, which is referred to and shown only by parallel lines, on a map made by Thomas B. Stillman, Clark Rogers, Nathan Rogers, and Nicholas Rogers, and which said map was duly filed in the office of the Clerk of Essex County, in the State of New Jersey, in the year Eighteen Hundred and Fifty-three, although dedicated as a street, by the filing of the aforesaid map, and although accepted by the City by Ordinance approved November first, Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-one, (in connection with that part of New street lying northwesterly of West Seventh Street and extending to West Fifth Street), has never been opened to public use; and
Whereas, It appears that Delia D. Erickson, widow Julius E. Erickson, Jean E. Hallock, Roger W. Erickson, Eric N. Erickson, Louise K. Green, Thomas H. Leggett, Bessie T. Hubbard and Ethel L. Titsworth, John W. Murray, Helen R. Swan, Frank L. Clark, Mary Horan, widow, Bridget T. Horan, Mary Horan and Helena E. Horan are all of the owners of abutting lands on said street, and that all of the said owners of the abutting lands, together with Delia D. Erickson, as executrix of the last will and testament of Eric N. Erickson, deceased, William C. Hubbard, as executrix of the last will and testament of Sarah P. Potter, deceased, Frank J. Hubbard, the husband of the above named Bessie T. Hubbard, and John J. Swan, the husband of the above named Helen R. Swan, have applied to the Common Council of the City of Plainfield to vacate said street pursuant to Chapter One hundred and thirty-nine of the Laws of Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-seven; and
Whereas, the said street has not been opened to public use for more than twenty years since it was dedicated to public use; and
Whereas, It appears that the opening of said street to public use would involve a large expenditure of public funds and that the opening of said street to public use would be of no public benefit; and
Whereas, All of the owners of the abutting lands on such unused street, which is sought to be vacated, have consented in writing to such vacation by filing in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, such consent duly acknowledged as in the case of an acknowledgement to a conveyance of lands; and
Whereas, It appears that it is to the interests of the City that such street should be vacated:
The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council, do enact as follows:
Section 1. That the unused street hereinabove referred to and more particularly hereinafter described, and which is shown by parallel lines on a certain map made by Thomas B. Stillman, Clark Rogers, Nathan Rogers, and Nicholas Rogers, and filed in the year Eighteen Hundred and Fifty-three, in the County Clerk's (now Register's) Office of the County of Essex, in the State of New Jersey, and which street was accepted as a street by the City by an Ordinance approved November First, Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-one, and which said street lying between Central Avenue and Division Street, and leading from West Seventh Street to West Eighth Street on properties of Delia D. Erickson, widow, Julius E. Erickson,

"Too Late"

By L. B. G. M.

"So you won't marry me?"

"I do think it's a sin, Jack, for you to insist, when you know this is my first season, and I have looked forward to at least two years more of freedom."

"Very well, Dorothy, I won't say another word. I trust your seasons will be bright, and I will endeavor to do my best to make them so."

"Oh, Jack, you are a dear! We'll not be sweethearts for some time; we'll pretend we're only chums."

Dorothy Madden was considered the prettiest girl in the state, tall and slender, with laughing eyes, auburn curls and a chin and mouth that were the envy of all the girls around.

Col. Madden had at one time been prominent in politics, but after losing his wife his health had failed and little by little his immense fortune had disappeared. It was quite a blow to the family when they found they had only their home and a few thousands left.

Jack Churchill was the heir of his uncle, Robert Vaughn, the Michigan millionaire, and was much sought after.

Two gay seasons had passed. Jack did everything to make Dorothy have a pleasant time. The many late evenings, dancing, etc., began to show on Dorothy; she was thinner, her eyes failed to have the brilliancy that at one time made them so beautiful. And Jack had never in the entire two years mentioned marriage to her.

Col. Madden, seeing the change in his daughter, and knowing that Jack had not been to him to ask for Dorothy, supposed she was grieving. Calling his daughter to him one morning, he said: "Dorothy, does Jack seem to be as attentive as ever, or have you lost your heart to another and refused the boy? You know, my dear, how we're situated. Margaret is old enough to 'come out.' You were a year her senior when you made your debut, and it isn't doing her justice. You must make up your mind to marry, and give your sister an opportunity. I cannot keep two daughters in society."

"Father," said Dorothy, "two years ago Jack asked me to marry him; I begged him to wait; I hated to settle down; since then he has never mentioned it, but I will try to look my prettiest to-night and see what I can do."

While Dorothy and her father were talking in the library, Margaret was in the summer house—but not alone!

"Sweetheart, though you haven't made your formal debut, you can marry me and we'll tour the continent and you'll have just as nice a time as any of the debutantes."

It was Jack who was pleading, and the girl he wanted this time was not Dorothy, but her younger sister.

"Well, Jack, dear," said Margaret, "guess you're right. Dad hasn't the money to keep us both in society, and Dorothy won't marry. Come, we'll go to the house and tell them the news."

There was quite a contrast between the sisters; Dorothy, tall and fair, Margaret, petite and dark, with large gray eyes and the beautiful Madden mouth.

Dorothy had just finished her talk with her father, when the door suddenly opened and Jack and Margaret, hand in hand, stood in the doorway.

"Father, Col. Madden," called both of them, "we've come to tell you," continued Jack, "we're going to be married."

Col. Madden tried to hide his surprise, for he had thought it was Dorothy, not his little Margaret, whom Jack wanted.

"Margaret," said her father, "you couldn't have looked the world over and have pleased me better. Jack," he continued, "you can have her, but remember, she is nothing but a child."

Dorothy, in the meanwhile, was trying to control her feelings. It seemed as if her heart would break, for she loved Jack dearly.

"We're to be married on my birthday," said Margaret, "which is two months from to-day."

"I am glad you have appointed an early date," said Dorothy, "for my advice to you is not to be foolish, like I was, and wait until it is—too late."

Scattered Joss Worshipers.

A peculiar accident happened at San Francisco recently, when an immense box kite used for advertising purposes, suspended high over the city suddenly broke loose from its lofty mooring and sailed with great confusion down into the heart of Chinatown. It fell with a thundering crash on the roof of a Chinese josshouse, and instantly, its wire having crossed several live wires, there began a terrifying spluttering and flying of sparks. The whole building jarred when the mighty kite struck the roof, and the fireworks that succeeded sent terror to the hearts of priests and worshipers, who made a mad rush for the street.

Goose Thirty-Two Years Old.

John Henry Mattox, whose home is in Goosepond district, is possessor of a goose 32 years old. Its next birthday comes in June. The goose stands a good chance of living quite a while longer. And, doubtless, Mr. Mattox would not part with the fowl that has been a member of his barnyard family for so long for any consideration. There is also among his collection a peafowl that if he lives to celebrate its next birthday, will be 35 years old. —Oglethorpe Echo.

A Kitchen Necessity—

BOYNTON'S

Single Oven

Newport Range

Undoubtedly, Mrs. Housewife, you know the *dis*advantages of the ordinary kitchen range, but do you know the *ad*vantages of the famous Boynton Single Oven NEWPORT Range?

We haven't space for the whole story, but will tell you part; and first—as a cooker, the "NEWPORT" is the "best yet." Its design is classical (see cut) with smooth, perfect castings and highly finished nickel parts. This means a clean stove and less kitchen work.

Some cooks like the fire box on the right side of the oven, some on the left—"NEWPORTS" are fitted both ways. "NEWPORT" dampers are convenient—the "NEWPORT" water back is large and effective. Every good feature of other ranges is incorporated in the "NEWPORT" and some that are exclusive. Don't buy a range until you see the Boynton man in your town and learn about "NEWPORT" Ranges.

Rare Gems Owned by Indian Rulers.

Magnificent as are the pearls worn by the wives of many American millionaires and by some women belonging to wealthy and aristocratic families of Europe, none can compare in point of magnificence with the marvelous gems possessed by some of the native Indian rulers, of whom none possess such a magnificent collection as the Maharaja Rana of Dholpur.

Arnold's Repentance.

Mortology might bear coinage as a word to be defined by "death-bed utterances." In the whole American catalogue there is nothing more pathetic than the prayer of Benedict Arnold, repentant traitor: "Let me die in the old uniform in which I fought my battles for freedom. May God forgive me for putting on any other." —Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Utmost Utilization.

Putting every acre land to its best use is the idea about which the whole policy of the conservation of national resources revolves, and in the future the planting up of waste tracts in the United States is sure to be carried on extensively by private owners as well as in the national forests and on state lands.

Harvesting a Fortune.

Relatives sought to have declared insane the millionaire who planted Michigan barrens with thousands of apple trees, but now the trees are harvesting a fortune and taking state fair prizes and the barrenness has been transferred to the relatives' codicil in the crazy man's will.

Remedy for Croup.

An old-wife remedy for croup is an application of roast onions mashed and laid upon a folded bandage of muslin, with sweet oil or even lard poured over the onions, and the poultice put on as hot as can be borne comfortably to the throat and chest.

Symphonic Shirt and Dotty Solo.

The musical young woman who dropped her peekaboo waist in the piano player and turned out a Beethoven sonata, has her equal in the lady who stood in front of a five-bar fence and sang all the dots on her veil.—Everybody's Magazine.

Common Sense View.

Instead of dissipating social energy in feeble attempts to cure poverty we should direct our combined strength toward the prevention of poverty, for if poverty is prevented it will not have to be cured.—From an article in the Metropolitan Magazine.

Not Strictly Orthodox.

Young David insisted on trying his primitive weapon on the giant Goliath. At length the generals consented. "Youth will have its fling," they remarked resignedly.—Boston Transcript.

Don't Fill Lighted Lamp.

Don't fill an oil or other kind of stove or lamp when it is lighted. This seems superfluous advice, but the casualties constantly recorded as a result of this procedure indicate that a reminder is not out of place.

Appearances.

"Jedgin' people by appearance," said Uncle Eben, "is purty much like choosin' a chicken by de color of its feathers, 'stid o' weighin' it."—Washington Star.

Inconsistent.

A man will stand and lecture his wife by the half hour on what she ought not to buy, but if she asks him to go shopping with her he will run like a jack rabbit.

Atmospheric Qualities.

The earth's atmosphere extends some 40 miles in height, but becomes, at only a few miles from the earth's surface, too thin to support any form of animal life.

True Wisdom.

Wisdom does not show itself so much in precept as in life—in a firmness of mind and mastery of appetite.—Seneca.

Woman and Time.

A woman thinks clocks were made for the purpose of enabling her to tell just how much she is going to be late.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Philosopher's Pessimism.

A woman is the most inconsistent compound of obstinacy and self-sacrifice that I am acquainted with.—Richter.

Two Sorts.

Hospitality is for the benefit of those who don't need it. For those who need it we have a cheap substitute called charity.—Puck.

His Faith Shaken.

"I saw a Jap smoking a short clay pipe to-day," says the Philosopher of Folly, "and after this I won't bet on anything!"

Undeniable.

When a man is a human jellyfish, it stands to reason that he hasn't an honest bone in his body.

The Only One.

The burglar's business is about the only business in which it doesn't pay to advertise.

Monster Halibut.

A 400-pound halibut was recently displayed in London.

Bread in Politics.

From the days of Joseph down the only well populated country which had enough grain to satisfy its own consumers was Egypt, rich beyond the record of any other soil this side of Paradise. Ferrero, in his history of Rome, shows the transcendent political importance of corn in all times. Feed your people, king or demagogue, else they will overthrow you. For the masses from furthest antiquity to most recent days, there has never been any torch of dissatisfaction, rebellion and anarchy like a shortage of bread.

The Unemployed.

The legislation of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries abounds in bills concerning the unemployed. In the reign of Edward VI. several laws were passed against "idlers"—most of them such because they could get nothing to do. In the reign of Henry VIII. the kingdom was infested with "rogues," "vagabonds" and "idle persons," and it is said that during Henry's reign more than 70,000 of this unfortunate class were hanged.

Truth in Jest.

When the French Revolution broke out, a number of scientists lost their lives; but Lalande, the astronomer, only paid the more attention to the skies and its constellations. When he found, after the Reign of Terror, that he had escaped the fury of the mob, he exclaimed gratefully: "I may thank my stars for it"—would any apparent jest possess more genuine truth?

Cruel.

"Your wife wants you to wear a beard, doesn't she?" "'Wants' scarcely expressly it." "I wonder what the idea is?" "She has an idea that my beard would be gray if I permitted it to grow, and she thinks she would look younger by contrast."—Houston Post.

Of Course.

"Don't you like that quotation from Shakespeare. 'The friends thou hast, and their adoption tried, grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel'?" he asked, soulfully. "I think hoops of gold would be better," said the girl shyly.

Ink for Monuments.

An excellent permanent ink for monuments and tombstones is made by mixing together one pound of lampblack and ten pounds of pitch, with sufficient turpentine to make a liquid of about the same consistency as paint.

Not So Black.

The devil isn't as black as he is painted. A good bit of his blackness has been rubbed off on the people who have tried to investigate the truth of that comforting proverb.—New York Times.

A Preliminary Step.

"Why in emigrating to America have you planned to leave your youngest son behind?" "Oh, I guess he'll follow later. He has just been appointed cashier in a Berlin bank."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

A Woman's Way.

A Woman Has Just as Much Right to Vote As She Has to a New Easter Hat or a Pet Poodle Dog, But She Would Insist on the Ballot Matching Her Gown.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

At Commons.

Sore Stude—"See here! I found a collar button in my soup!" Head Waiter (soothingly)—"That's all right, sir. I'll have it put on your term bill."—Yale Record.

The First Spat.

She—"If I had known that you would scold I never would have married you." He—"If I had known that you would marry me I would have scolded."—Ulk.

A Tongue Twister.

The watch that watched the watch that watched that watch, watched the watch that watched that watch that watched that watch watch that watch.

Generally.

Generally the man who tries, by acting in an eccentric manner, to appear to be a genius is merely imitating another's faults.

Lifeless.

That's my chief objection to most o' the new labor-savin' machines; they're so senseless an' cold.—Ruth McEnery Stuart.

Where Silence Is Golden.

"You are an American, and yet you don't believe in free speech. How's that?" "I'm in the state department."—Newark News.

One Source of Knowledge.

A novelist can learn something from everybody—and a great deal from women; perhaps more than he thinks from these latter.

Superstition.

A strong man may be superstitious, but he would be stronger if he could overcome his superstition.

Misleading.

A tailor on Thirty-ninth street has a sign: "Clothes mended in the rear."—Chicago Tribune.

Easier.

It is just about a thousand times easier to call a man a liar than to prove it.—New York Times.

The Husband Explains

She threw the letter on the table and looked over at her husband.

"That's just like a woman," she said. "Anybody would suppose that I had been trying to do her a mean trick from the tone of her letter, and I thought I was doing her a favor."

He went right on reading the newspaper, devoting the rest of his attention to his coffee.

"Don't take enough interest in my affairs to read the letter, I suppose," she went on, getting dangerously near the teary stage. "Well, you needn't, then."

"You just tell me what's in it, dear," he said. "That will be sufficient."

She seemed mollified and picked up the rejected letter.

"I can tell you what's in it," she went on. "It's just in answer to what I wrote her about the flat. You know Jenny Smith told me that she would always like to take this flat off our hands if we were tired of it; that she had never seen a flat anywhere so good; that she would regard it as a great favor if we did let her know and that she wanted just such an apartment.

"I did that and now she writes back that she is very appreciative of my offer, but that under the circumstances she thinks she will not be able to take it off our hands, much as she would like to be of service to us. She writes as if I had implored her to rent it as a great favor to me.

"That's just the way with people when you ask them to do what they have said they are very anxious to do once they get the idea that they are doing you a favor. It's just the same thing that happened when I asked the Joneses if they wanted my cook.

"Every time they came to the house last winter they used to rave over Emily. They would be so happy if only they could get such a cook, they said. Yet when I wrote to them that we were giving up keeping house and that they could have her if they wanted her they seemed to be actually embarrassed about the matter, as if they were having a servant forced on them willy nilly.

He had not indicated any great interest at the beginning, but listened more attentively as his wife's narrative proceeded. Then he put down the paper and began to talk himself.

"Don't you remember the time you bought that old side table at auction and Mary asked you to let her have it if you ever wanted to sell it?"

She nodded.

"Don't you recall also how patronizing she was when you told her you thought you might let her have it because you didn't want to crowd your dining room? Surely you have not forgotten how she tried to wriggle out of taking it just as if you were determined to hold her to a bargain."

She admitted that she had not forgotten a detail of this transaction. Then she also admitted how provoked she had been when her cousin Helen had asked her to give her the refusal of her old horse Sally if she decided to sell her when they went to town in the autumn.

"Then how can you," he asked, "with these things fresh in your mind, put yourself in the way of being patronized again in such fashion? You ought to learn that what they do not possess often seems very attractive to persons so long as it remains the property of others. It is quite a different thing when it becomes attainable to them.

"It almost invariably happens that they have ceased to care for it and it is only human nature for them to give themselves the satisfaction of showing the owners that they are now in possession of the situation. So remember that trait the next time you offer to anybody a similar kindness."

A Monkey Trick.

Curator Raymond L. Ditmars, of the New York zoo, was praising the intelligence of monkeys.

"A Philadelphia man," he said, "was hurrying out Powellton avenue one afternoon when, all of a sudden, an organ grinder's little monkey dropped dead. The poor grinder's grief was pitiful. The Philadelphian, touched, gave him a half dollar and hastened away.

"An hour later, returning through Market street, he saw the same organ grinder, and, just as he passed, the monkey again dropped dead, and the grinder's grief was even more pitiful than before.

"The Philadelphian gave a loud laugh. The grinder, recognizing him, laughed, too, but made no motion to return the half dollar."

Two Sides to Great Actress.

Mrs. Siddons was, on and off the stage, "two different people." On the stage she was a pythoness, nightly hypnotized into passionate emotions by the sight of the drop curtain and the boards, says a writer. In her home she was, at all events to the casual observer, more than a thought too much a mere mother and British matron, loving to be seemly and of good report, shut in the tower of an unimaginative nature. Had she not been an actress she would have made (such an observer might have said) an ideal bishop's wife.

Doing Things Differently

If only the Criswells were content to live according to conventional rule existence doubtless would be much smoother for them. Also for others. It principally is others who rebel against the Criswells' cheerfully eccentric method of conducting themselves, their household and their affairs in general, because when things go wrong the Criswells are never bothered nor upset, having a childlike and joyous interest in whatever is unusual.

When a couple who have been married eight years get energetic enough to go to a ball the usual method of procedure after the dance is over is for the masculine member to yawn, mutter wearily that he has to get up at seven in the morning just the same and why the dickens doesn't the taxi get them home faster—while his wife says her head aches and somebody else's gown was far prettier than hers and oh, my, but she is sleepy!

Not the Criswells, however! When they reached their home shelter at two o'clock the other morning after dancing since nine they surveyed one another meditatively.

"I'm starved," said Mrs. Criswell.

"So'm I," agreed Criswell.

With one accord they made for the kitchen. When the light was switched on and disclosed a disguised and startled mouse scurrying wildly for shelter Mrs. Criswell did not faint. Both she and her husband gurgled joyously. She grabbed a broom, Criswell seized the poker.

Probably there is some costume appropriate for the pastime of killing mice, but whatever it may be it assuredly is not trailing lavender satin and a brand new dress suit. Still, the consciousness that they were inappropriately clothed had no deterring effect on the Criswells. A boiler factory in full action was the only thing that possibly could have made more noise than did they with broom, poker, overturned chairs and falling dishpans.

Finally, the intruder was dispatched and swept outdoors, the Criswells repaired personal damages and once more attempted a frugal lunch. They got it with some minor mishaps. Criswell knocked over a jar of preserves and his wife in pulling out the silver drawer pulled it too far, spilling a peck or so of table implements all over the hardwood floor. Still, they laughed so much that their troubles more than paid for themselves.

Just as Criswell pushed his chair back from the table a point of light glittered at him from the library. Diving toward it, he quickly emerged with a large toy engine in his hands.

"Elmer," said his wife, "I hate to appear inquisitive—but would you mind telling me if you have quite lost your senses? Have you still at this hour of the night such an insatiable thirst for amusement that you have to fall back on Tommy's toy engine? Isn't a dinner party, a dance, a mouse-killing bee—and a supper enough—"

"That's all right, Minnie," said Criswell, soothingly. "You know you're just as crazy over this fool thing as I am and it's never worked right since Tommy got it Christmas—and I don't know of a better time to fix it!"

The engine was an affair run by gas, so the Criswells with much labor got it attached to the gas fixture. Then on hands and knees they watched it plunge madly across the hardwood floor, chugging in a very business-like manner. It was while they were thus occupied that a noise interrupted them. Raising their heads from their absorbing occupation they saw enter what Mrs. Criswell afterward said was the biggest policeman she had ever in all her life beheld. Behind was a policeman still bigger, who in turn was trailed by the biggest policeman of all. They regarded the two persons in evening garb with suspicion.

"Whatchu doin' here?" demanded the biggest policeman.

Even the Criswells could see how foolish and inadequate it sounded to explain that they were running a child's toy engine at three o'clock in the morning. That was why they were meek when they had to explain the mouse-killing in the kitchen and the crash of silver in the dining-room and why they insisted piteously instead of wrathfully that they lived there and had a right to run toy engines in the middle of the night if they wanted to. It was not till Nora and Mary, the maids, who, roused from slumber by the weird noises downstairs, had telephoned the police station that there were burglars in the house and their employers were out, peered in timorously, that the Criswells finally cleared themselves of suspicion.

"We convinced those policemen that we weren't burglars," Mrs. Criswell says, "but nothing in a thousand years ever will convince them that we aren't lunatics, and dangerous ones, at that!"

"I don't care," says Criswell comfortably. "I think it was a very pleasant evening."

Winning Pa Over.

Angry Father—Perhaps you didn't throw that snowball through the window, young man, but I've a good mind to thrash you on general principles!

Johnnie—If I kuew dead sure it wouldn't hurt me as much there as on some other places I wouldn't mind the thrashin', pa.—Boston Herald.

Crash Cushion Covers.

Cushion covers of crash, embroidered with some simple design in raffia, are os attractive as any for the porch. Such a cover makes a gift that will be appreciated by the traveler on the sea or taking a long journey by land. Fitted with its cushion and provided with handles, so that the covered cushion may be hung over the back of the steamer chair or held in place by pins on the back of the chair car seat, this adjunct to a trip will be voted a joy.

A Considerate Host.

"You have sold everything except one cow and one pig."

"Yep," replied Farmer Corntossel.

"Why didn't you let them go with the rest?"

"Well, we thought we ought to have some sort of a menagerie to keep the summer boarders interested."—Washington Evening Star.

Why Not?

"Senator Wombat has just read 'Lucile' for the first time. Says it is a magnificent poem."

"Enthusiastic about it, is he?"

"So much so that he wants to have it reprinted as a public document."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

ANSWERS REV. MR. BROEK

Mr. Fairchild Replies to Sermon Attacking Christian Science Teachings.

HE EXPLAINS HIS BELIEF.

In An Official Letter to This Paper Today. Believer in Mrs. Eddy's Doctrines Defends the Faith.

As an answer to the sermon delivered by Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, last Sunday night, in which Christian Science was denounced, H. Coulson Fairchild, of Passaic, chairman of the Christian Science Committee on Publication, on behalf of the sect, sent this official communication to The Daily Press today with a request for publication:

Repues to Rev. Mr. Broek.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In your issue of June 20th I notice some quotations from the sermon said to have been preached by the Rev. John Y. Broek in which he attacks, from his standpoint, what he believes to be the teaching of Christian Science.

It is hard for any Christian Scientist to understand how a Christian minister can so far forget himself as to declare any doctrine anti-Christian which heals the sick by spiritual means alone and has for its foundation the science and proof of the religion of Jesus Christ. Mr. Broek is quoted as saying "I oppose Christian Science because it denies some of the fundamental truths of the Bible. It denies the reality of matter, the personality of God, the personality of Jesus Christ, the very plan of salvation, the reality of sin and the reality of prayer." I reply that in denying the reality of matter, Christian Science exalts the supremacy and reality of Spirit; since Spirit and matter are necessarily opposites, we believe that the denial of matter is more Christianly consistent than to admit that God, Divine Love, is the author of matter, and hence of all human discord. To Spirit there can be no matter, and the kingdom of God for the Christian here and now begins with this biblical premise, "It is the Spirit that quickeneth. The flesh profiteth nothing, (is of no profit to man.)

Regarding the personality of God, if our critic means this in the sense of infinite personality, I answer that Christian Science endorses the thought of God as infinite personality. If our critic means that God is a person after the manner of an enlarged human personality, Christian Science cannot endorse such a view. In the Congressional Library at Washington, a number of reproductions from famous Italian painters may be seen. One pictures God as an old man, with a flowing robe passing through space, having around him a few human personalities which he is supposed to have created. He is represented in the act of placing Adam upon this sphere. Surely our critic cannot have this kind of a God in mind when he speaks of the personality of God. Surely he is not unmindful that in the Westminster Confession of Faith, God is indicated as a being without body, parts or passions, supreme, a most pure spirit, etc. A finite and physical conception of God is detrimental to human progress and Christian Science repudiates such a view.

Replying to the assertion that Christian Science denies prayer, be it known that prayer in Christian Science is not a petition to a "God afar off," but is the realization that "God is at hand a very present help in time of trouble." In the words of a well-known hymn:

"Prayer is the heart's sincere desire, uttered or expressed;
The motion of a hidden fire that trembles in the breast."

For the information of our critic and the public I may say that Christian Science accepts the science of the Immaculate Conception and the Virgin Birth of Jesus and follow as we believe, "The very plan of salvation," set forth in the life of Christ Jesus, that of healing the sick and overcoming sin through the power of God, Good. We believe that in order to fulfill the Christian declaration of faith, we must prove it by healing the sick as well as reforming the sinner. This is the Christian Science plan of salvation and I do not see why it should not receive the endorsement of every Christian clergyman.

Our critic says, "But if its prime object is to alleviate the sufferings of mankind, it should receive our Godspeed." Are we to assume from this that our reverend critic objects to the work of Christian Scientists in reforming sinners? In this science we understand that the same

JEALOUSY CAUSED FIGHT; CITY TREASURY WINS $20

The green eyed monster played the thrilling part in a near tragedy on Thursday night in which Harold S. Platt, an employee of the United Cigar Stores Co., was the victim. Judge Runyon fined Joseph Reardon and William Morton, whom Platt claimed had beaten him, ten dollars each this morning.

According to the stories told by both complainant and defendants in court this morning Miss Addie Harris, of West Front street has decided that she does not wish to continue the friendship of Reardon. Mr. Reardon said to Judge Runyon that he had been "keeping company" with Miss Harris for more than a year, and that they had a spat, but he evidently did not believe that her love had cooled entirely. However, when he noticed that Mr. Platt seemed to be his successor in the affections of Miss Harris, jealousy instigated an assault on the person of Mr. Platt during which Miss Harris fainted on the lawn in front of the house.

The stories told by both Reardon and Morton did not impress the judge as being strictly truthful. Hence the sentence.

OPENING SERVICE AT SALAVATION ARMY TENT.

Tomorrow will be a very special day at the local corps of the Salvation Army. It will be the occasion of the opening of their summer tent meetings. The tent is situated on Watchung avenue near Fourth street.

At 4 o'clock the Rev. Gabriel Maguire, of the Park avenue Baptist church, will conduct the opening service. Chester Chambrelain, the boy soprano, will sing. There will also be special vocal and instrumental music.

Major Lyon, the New Jersey divisional officer, will be present all day and conduct the service in the hall on East Second street, at 11 a. m., and will speak at the great evangelistic service to be held in the tent at 8 p. m. He will be assisted by a newly organized songsters' brigade and several well known musicians.

A cordial invitation is extended to all these great opening services.

Scott—Blake.

Miss Clutha Louise Blake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Blake, of Newark, was married to George W. Scott, of this city, on Thursday night at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Scott is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Scott, of Newark. The bride was attended by Miss Myrtle Scott, sister of the bridegroom, and the best man was Huber Scott, brother of the bridegroom. After a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Scott will make their home in this city.

Purchased the Knight Farm.

William Kelley, of Oak Tree, being of the opinion that real estate at that place will soon increase in value, has purchased the Knight farm of 37 acres, adjoining W. E. VanCourt's farm. The property had been sold by Mr. Knight, before his death, to a New York party, and a small payment was made on the sale, but the New York party failed to take the property at the time agreed upon, hence Mr. Kelley purchased the farm land.

Miss Wildey and Partner Winners.

In the women's doubles, semi-final round tennis tournament at Philadelphia yesterday, Miss Edna Wildey, of this city, and Miss Browning defeated Mrs. W. H. Pouch and Miss Carrie B. Neely, 6—4, 0—6, 6—2. It was a remarkable match, dropping the second set without securing a single game, but winning the first and third.

Mrs. Josephine Cody Injured.

Mrs. Josephine Cody, aged 41 years, of Bound Brook, employed at the Ideal Steam Laundry, this city, caught her hand in a mangler, and it was crushed to such an extent that she may be obliged to lose the hand by amputation. The woman was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where she is now under treatment.

Graduated From Cornell.

MAYOR WARNS FRIENDS

His Signature to Fraternal Order Promoters' Letter Totally Unauthorized.

USE OF IT IS UNWARRANTED.

His Honor Takes Prompt Action When Loyal Order of Moose Organizers Fail to Make Public Retraction.

Justly indignant that his name should be used by a couple of professional organizers without his authority, or even his knowledge, Mayor Charles J. Fisk through these columns today warns his friends not to be deceived by a circular sent out in the interests of a fraternal organization.

The Mayor's letter, which this paper galdly gives prominence, follows:

Editor, The Daily Press:

In your issue of June 21 there appeared a news article on the first page in which you stated that I was chairman of a committee for the institution of a lodge of the Royal Order of Moose in the city of Plainfield. Since then I find that a circular has been sent broadcast soliciting members and stating that at a meeting held on June 14 in the rooms of the Knights of Columbus, a petition was presented by myself and others, and a dispensation granted on said petition by the Supreme lodge for the formation of a lodge of the Royal Order of Moose in this city, which circular was signed by my name as chairman of the membership committee.

The above is absolutely untrue as far as I am concerned and the use of my name is absolutely unauthorized. I am not a member of the order, do not intend to become a member and I have no interest whatever in the Royal Order of Moose. It is true that a friend of mine urged me to become a member of this order when organized, and to please him and without much investigation into the matter, I consented to do so, but I have since withdrawn the application.

Several other persons whose names are signed to this petition have stated to me that they knew nothing about it and that their names also were used without authority.

I know nothing whatever in regard to the order or to the two men Charles and Henry Treftz who represented themselves as organizers.

I was away from the city for two or three days and as soon as I returned and heard of the article referred to above and of the circular, I sent word to the above mentioned organizers that they must make a public announcement stating that I had nothing whatever to do with the order and that the use of my name was without authority, and I gave them until today to do so.

Not hearing from them and on account of their neglect to take any action, I ask that you will publish this letter in order that there may be no misunderstanding as far as the public is concerned, and that no one will join the lodge owing to the fact that they think it has my endorsement.

I have no fault to find with The Daily Press for publishing the article as I understand they did so after seeing a copy of the circular letter referred to above.

CHARLES J. FISK.

Perseverance Lodge Elects.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., at its meeting, last night, elected these officers for the coming year: Chancellor Commander,, Leslie Matthews; vice-chancellor, Louis Fisher; master of work, Joseph Baker; prelate, Jeremiah Moore; master at arms, Isaac Williams; inner guard, Jeremiah Douglass; outside guard, Peter Strem, Deputy George Moosebrugger, of Somerville, will install the officers-elect on Friday night, July 8.

Talented Violinist Will Play.

Mrs. Theodore White Lillard, of Elmira, N. Y., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, of Washington avenue. Mrs. Lillard is a talented and accomplished violinist, having won distinction in the world of music on several occasions. She has kindly consented to render three selections at the morning service at the First M. E. church, tomorrow. Mrs. Lillard contemplates removing here in the fall and may possibly open a studio.

SNEAK THIEVES CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS ON

Accused of stealing seventeen dollars in money and several trinkets including a gold ring, Pitwin Robinson, colored, and John Long, an Italian boy of twelve, were arraigned this morning before city Judge Runyon on complaint of Luigi Digiovanni, of No. 213 Richmond street. The Robinson boy was held for the juvenile court at Elizabeth and the Italian was turned over to probation officer Irwin.

Robinson has a record and has been in Jamesburg school and was released from that institution only last April. Another boy, James Ross, escaped yesterday and it is alleged that he is the leader of the band of thieves which has eebn annoying the storekeepers of the East End. De Giovanni was overjoyed at the return of his property this morning. The arrests were made by Patrolman Meyer.

MAY DAY PAGEANT NET RECEIPTS $1,743

The report of the treasurer of the May Day pageant has been audited and shows a net amount of $1,743.87 having been turned over to J. A. Gavett, treasurer of the Play Grounds Commissioners. The report was submitted by Herbert E. Parker, who was elected treasurer at the meeting on May 23. The statement includes items as follows:

Recived from ticket sales, $2,665.40; from booths, $461.72; from vo oing contest, $881.51; sale of programs, $84.75; advertising in programs, $276.50; hand organ collection, $7.18. Among the greatest items of expense was the payment to the Misses Florance, $793.67, as directors of the pageant and the band, which necessitated an expenditure of $472. The total receipts were $,377.06 and expenses, $2,633.19.

Probationer's Meeting.

Twenty-five probationers attended the "probationers" meeting n the city court this morning reporting their moral progress to Captain Irwin. The captain seemed to be pleasat the progress made by the youthful delinquents.

They Like the Luxuries.

Burglars broke into Philip Ackor's ice cream parlor in North Plainfield last night and got away with several quarts of cream, some cigars and cigarettes. The proprietor would be glad if the empty cream pans were returned.

List of Those to Leave and Those to Come for the New School Year in the Fall.

Superintendent H. C. Krebs announced to-day, that Miss Edna M. Wilkes, the teacher of science in the Borough High School, has received an appointment to the department of physic in the Girls' High School, Philadelphia. She will be succeeded by Miss Roxana Love, a graduate of the Plainfield High School and of Mount Holyoke College who has taught the past year in the Battin High School, Elizabeth.

Mr. F. Eugene Seymour leaves to become a member of the faculty of the high school at Montclair. His department, mathematics, will be in charge of Mr. George C. Baker, a graduate of Bloomsburg, Pa., State Normal School and of Lafayette College, who has taught five years in high schools in Pennsylvania.

Below the high school there are six new teachers. Miss Katherine Nelson, of the Oneonta State Normal School, of four years' experience at Newton, N. J., will succeed Miss Grace G. Van Patten, who retires from the profession. Miss Malvina Rittenhouse, also retires to be succeeded by Miss Mame Barrow, a Bloomsburg graduate of three years' experience.

Miss Lucia McClintock, a Genesee graduate who has taught at Wellsville, N. Y., succeeds Miss Daisy T. Freeland, who takes a course at the Montclair Normal school.

Miss Elizabeth Conkling will teach next year at her home at Flemington, N. J. Her successor has not yet been named.

Owing to the transfer of Miss Jane Crawford to the sixth grade, her room will be taken by Miss Sadie Tiffany, a Trenton Normal graduate, who has taught in Newton, N. J., the past two years.

Miss Amanda Tyler, of the Watchung school, expects to teach next year in Buffalo, N. Y. Her place will be taken by Miss Bessie Dunham, a graduate of the Plainfield High School and of the Westfield, Mass. state normal school, who has taught the past two years at Red aBnk.

The board has appointed this year none but college or normal graduates of approved experience, and feels confident that they will accomplish good results.

Supt. Krebs to Go Abroad.

Supervising Principal H. C. Krebs and Mrs. Krebs, Misses Lillian A. Eldredge and Mabel C. Trembath, all of the Borough schools, together with Misses Belle C. Shaw and M. Alma Worden, of Somerville, form a party of six that leaves on the Steamer Lusitania next Wednesday for a tour of the British Isles. The party will coach through the Doone Country and Salisbury Plain, visit London and the Shakespeare district, the English Lakes, Scotch Lakes, Staffa and Iona, Giant's Causeway, and the Irish Lakes returning on the Mauretania, August 26.

In Police Court.

Judge Runyon had to decide between the complaint of Clifford Waldron and the defense of Walter Marienschenck this morning and adjusted the question without leaving in doubt the veracity of either. Waldron claimed that Young Marienchenck had struck him with a stone lacerating his face. Marienschenck declared he threw the missile in self defense. Sentence was suspended.

Miss Christina Rennemann.

Miss Christina Rennemann, daughter of Mrs. Lena and the late John John Rennemann, died at her home, 33 Coddington avenue, yesterday. The funeral will be private.

PHYSICIAL DIRECTOR TENDERS RESIGNATION

Physicial Director G. L. Listman has presented his resignation to the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association. He leaves to accept the call of the Montclair Association to become its physical director. His resignation will be considered at the next meeting of the local Board on Thursday, July 7.

The position offered Mr. Listman by the Montclair Association is exceedingly attractive because of his long experience as an Association worker in the suburban field and because of the problems of organization which the new field presents. He expects to assume his new duties on September 1.

Mr. Listman come to Plainfield from the Twenty Sixth ward branch of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. in June, 1906. Prior to entering the service of the Brooklyn Association, where he remained as physical director for three years, he was physical director of the Association at Winsted, Conn., for three years. He has shown marked ability in the conduct of the work of his department of the local Association and is regarded as one of the most efficient of the physical directors who have served it.

OLD FASHIONED "SKULE" AT MONROE AVE. CHURCH.

An audience which tested the capacity of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church gathered last night to hear "an old fashioned synging Skule" in which the leader was Professor Mathew Hale Apostle Paul Cabel After All Bowall, who is known in private life as Charles L. Lewis.

The songs were sung with an inspiration imparted by the presence of an enthusiastic audience. The novel entertainment was a success. Harvey Lude made a distinct hit with his rendition of "When the Corn is Waving Annie Dear."

MISS GRACE CRANSTON NOW MRS. A. DRESSELT.

Miss Grace Cranston, of Grandview avenue and Alexander Dresselt, of Lincoln Place, were quietly married this morning in Warren Chapel. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey and was witnessed by Edward Cranston, a brother of the bride and Henry Dresselt, a brother of the bridegroom. The bride was gowned in a traveling dress. Immediately, after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dresselt left for a honeymoon trip. They will return after July 4, and will go to housekeeping in Jersey City.

The Fourth at P. C. C.

In view of the generous response on the part of the members in subscribing to the affair, the Plainfield Country Club has decided to hold an elaborate celebration of Independence Day at the club from 4 to 11 o'clock. George S. Clay is chairman of the committee. VanBaar's Old Guard Band, of New York, will play afternoon and evening and for dancing after the fireworks. Dinner will be served at the clubhouse at 6:45 o'clock and requests for reservation of tables may be made to John Hilton, superintendent.

New Bible Class Teacher.

Howard McWilliams, who succeeds City Judge William N. Runyon as teacher of the Bible class at Hope chapel, was the guest of honor at an informal reception and supper at the chapel, last night. BORO HIGH GRADUATION

Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton as Commencement Speaker Says "Watch, Fight, Pray."

DIPLOMAS GIVEN TO TWENTY.

Yale Cup Presented by Judge Runyon to Preston Dunning—The Valedictory and and Salutatory.

No greater compliment could have been given to the teachers of our public schools than that paid to them last night by Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton in his address before the class of 1910 of the North Plainfield High School. Dr. Eaton declared that he was in favor of making the school teacher the highest paid employee of the State. Because they are the most patient, and untiring class of people in the world they are entitled to the highest consideration. Their influence does not end with the exit of the child from the school, but it goes on from year to year, always working for the good of the pupil in whatever sphere of life he or she enters.

Preston Markham Dunnning received the cup presented by the Yale Club for supremacy in study and athletics. Judge William N. Runyon presented the cup accompanying the gift with a witty speech. After the invocation by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, Miss Mabel Townley delivered the salutatory address, the text of which follows:

Members of the Board of Education, Teachers, Parents and Friends, the class of 1910 extends to you a hearty welcome to its commencement exercises. We have come to the climax of our school course; we have now come to the end of those four long years yet seemingly short years. We are glad to see you here tonight for we realize that your presence is a manifestation of the interest you feel in us.

Of all the instincts of men, none is more deeply rooted than his desire to beautify his work and possessions. As we study the heirlooms which have come down to us from the many ages, we see this instinct expressed in statuary, architecture, music, poetry and paintings. This desire for the beautiful represented in a way best suited for its purpose, we designate by the general term of art. The painting which conveys a beautiful thought best expressed in color, is worthy art. The music which stirs the emotions impossible to produce by any other medium is art. The poem which inspires us as neither line nor color or any other medium could do, is art.

In Greece and Italy at two periods in their history, the periods of Pericles and the period of the Renaissance, everything touched yb the hand was turned into thing of beauty. Ssulpture and art absorbed the people's thoughts. In the Middle Ages, the palaces and cathedrels were perfected and beautified. The The Elizabethan Age left us its heritag in matchless literature. The creative instinct of the eighteenth centurp found expression in music which will probably never be surpassed in the future. All generations have loved the beautiful to some extent and monuments, statues, coins and other works of art they have left behind, proves it.

This age is known as a scientific and practical age, deeply interested in things that pertain to the mind and in invention. It is only natural that the practical age should have its influence upon the art of its people. This influence is seen in its tendency to make art more practical, more democratic. Today it has been said that one fourth of man's labor satisfies the demand for food and raiment. The remainder of his time is spent in beautifying the home. Art now has ceased to limit its influence to the favored few. It is widespread through all the cities. Its influence has been felt in every cottage. In former ages when art flourished, only temples and cathedrals were beautified. The streets of Athens were narrow and dark, without side-walk or pavement. The majority of her homes were made of sun-dried bricks, with a roof of straw, a marble floor of dirt and rooms bare of beauty. In that age, beauty was too precious to be wasted on the common people.

This age is distinguished for the diffusion of art as a means of universal culture as it is for its love of liberty and invention. The time has come when an artist no longer concentrates his skill upon a single picture or statue; he distributes his genius upon ceilings and walls of halls, libraries and sleeping rooms. Man labors not that he may live, but that he may live beautifully.

We live in a pragmatic age when Exploded in His Hands.

A horrible death was that which befell Lewis Frederick, foreman for Mitchell Brothers, contractors, of Spokane, Wash., who was blown to atoms by a stick of dynamite which accidentally exploded in his hands. Frederick was superintending the placing of the sticks of dynamite close to a bonfire. The body of the foreman was blown a distance of 40 feet.

Safeguarding One's Health.

The surest way to keep in good condition is to watch the beginnings of a breakdown. When you feel tired most of the time, when your work is an effort, and you are so "stupid you cannot keep awake," then is the time to take account of stock and find out what you are doing to break the laws of health.

The Soulful Florist.

"I don't believe that God ever made the flowers to sell," said the Broad street florist. "If I was rich I wouldn't sell a one. I would raise the beautiful things to give away to people who need them, to the poor and the sick and the tired." The florist looked as if he meant what he said, too.—Newark News.

Poetry.

I must deplore the scant attention paid nowadays to the first of arts. Poetry is the real source of music, painting and sculpture, and the way it is neglected or put to scorn these days is one of the many signs of national decadence.—Marie Corelli.

Life.

Metaphysicians say that life beyond the grave has been proved by mediums. Other people who have attended seances say they are assured there was life behind a convenient curtain from which hands and things emerged at intervals.—Exchange.

The Smiths of Ireland.

One fact in the report of the registrar-general for Ireland is calculated to surprise the average Englishman. The 33,700 "Smiths" of Ireland, we learn, outnumber the "O'Briens" by 300. It should make Ireland stare, too.—Westminster Gazette.

Use the Nut Cracker.

Just a little nick out of the enamel of a tooth made by cracking a nut in the mouth may spoil a tooth forever. When you have nuts to crack use a hammer or a nut cracker and save your teeth.

The Philosopher of Folly.

"The reason auctioneers make money," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is that so many people think it only costs 'em a nickel to raise the other fellow's bid five cents."

To Improve Light of Lamp.

A small lump of camphor dropped in the oil receptacle of a lamp will improve the light and make the flame clearer and brighter. A few drops of vinegar will have a similar effect.

Wants to Be Praised.

A man who doesn't eat things which would, if he consumed them, make him sick always feels that his self-sacrifice has been in vain if other people do not regard him as a hero.

Hint to the Wise.

When both feet fly out from under you and you have a presentiment that you're going to fall don't turn around to see if anybody is looking.

True Wit.

Wit consists in knowing the resemblance of things which differ, and the difference of things which are alike.—Mme. de Stael.

Food Remnants Delivered.

All of the food served to a guest at a Japanese banquet and not consumed by him at the time is taken to his home by the servants of his host.

RARITAN.

Miss Rose Winters was the successful pupil of St. Bernard's School to receive the prize of $5 in gold, which was offered by the General Frelinghuysen Chapter, D. A. R., for the best examination in American history.

This evening the Epworth League of the Methodist church will go to Mt. Horab to attend a group rally. Rev. M. D. Church, of Somerville, will make the address.

The bands of marriage between Miss Freda Kaiser and Edward Conshay, of Plainfield, have been published in St. Bernard's Church.

The Sunday-school of the Methodist church will hold its sessions hereafter at 11:45.

Mrs. Charles Melrose, of New York, is the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wyckoff.

SOMERVILLE.

Representatives of the Cott-a-Lap Company of New Haven, Conn., were in Somerville Thursday and concluded arrangements with the Board of Trade for the transfer of the plant to this place. The company will occupy part of the old plant of the Somerville Manufacturing Company, using that part facing on Doughty avenue. The concern will employ about fifty hands. Former Governor Woodruff, of Connecticut, was one of the representatives of the concern.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Ann Dickerson was held Thursday, from the A. M. E. Zion Church on Davenport street. Mrs. Dickerson died in Somerset Hospital on Tuesday, after an operation.

Charles F. Cartwright, of New York, has rented a property on West Summit street and will move his family there next week.

Peter C. Ven Nuys has rented a cottage near Millstone and will occupy it the first of July.

Eugene T. McCarthy, who has been ill for several months, is almost fully recovered.

Miss Elizabeth Bagg left yesterday morning for Brattleboro, Vt.

Miss Maud MacAfee has gone to Blackwood for the summer.

WESTFIELD.

Funeral services of Henry G. Cooke were held at his late residence, Summit avenue and Park street, last night at, 8:30 o'clock. Mr. Cooke had been a resident of Westfield for about twenty years, and was well known among the church and club people. He was in his sixty-seventh year, and was formerly a broker on the Produce Exchange. He is survived by a widow and one daughter Mrs. H. B. Tremain.

A team of truck horses belonging to a Newark truckman were so badly overcome by the heat Thursday on North avenue that an officer compelled the driver to turn them loose in a field until sun-down.

A large party of Westfield Royal Arcanum members went with their families to Bellwood Park Thursday to celebrate the anniversary of the organization.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Rene P. F. VonMinden counsel for Marshal Benson, of Dunellen, Thursday, instituted certiorari proceedings in the Supreme Court to set aside the verdict awarded Michael Gallagher a week ago. At that time Benson was directed by Justice Suydam to pay Gallagher $10 and the cost of prosecution of a suit which Gallagher instituted to recover $18 for damages done a carriage which he had hired to Benson.

This afternoon the Dunellen baseball club will play a game with the Marathon club, of Newark, and on July 2 the Y. M. C. A., of Plainfield, will oppose the village team. Independence Day the Westfield team will play here in the morning and in the afternoon a team composed of blue jackets from the battleship Connecticut.

C. Wesley Blaine, Adem Herlick, John Smalley, Dideon Smalley, Theodore Voorhees and States Titsworth, of Dunellen, left today in an automobile for Wilkes-Barre, Pa. They expect to reach there by 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

At a meeting of the directors of the Dunellen Coal and Supply Company Thursday afternoon John Y. Wilson was elected president; Theodore Shirley, vice-president, and M. T. Moynihan, secretary and treasurer.

Tomorrow evening, L. V. F. Randolph, of Plainfield, will lecture in the First Baptist Church of New Market on the Holy Lands, which he visited recently.

Gustavas Ramsey will return to his home here in a day or two from the Long Branch hospital, where he was taken after an automobile accident.

Theodore Williamson of Dunellen, returned home Thursday night from Syracuse, N. Y., where he had spent three weeks with relatives.

The trial of Michael Gallagher for running an express business without a license will be held Monday before Mayor Sanford.

The sewerage problem of the borough which has been discussed for some time past is practically at a standstill now.

Thomas Finneran has secured a position in the Pond Machine Tool Works.

Special aquatic events will be a feature on the New Market lake July 4.

The Central Railroad gang tidied up the local depot park this week.

Alfred Day has secured a position in the new laundry company.

Charles Tinsman has been visiting out of town friends.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours. Morning preaching by pastor at 10:45; Bible study meeting, 4 o'clock, and B. Y. P. U. meeting at 7:15 p. m.

Albert Hollingsworth, who has been spending a week with his wife, who is spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. John R. Marsh, has returned to his home at Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Voight, of New York, are spending the summer with Mrs. Voight's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Demarest, of Front street.

The Knights of Columbus carnival being held at Plainfield is drawing well here, a number from town being in attendance every night.

Briant Johnston, of Westfield avenue ,has returned from a two weeks' stay at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove.

The condition of Mrs. George Alberts, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, remains about the same.

Rev. Mr. Hollingshead will lead the weekly prayer and praise meeting tonight at the Methodist church.

The local ball team has an off day this afternoon, Manager Alberts being unable to schedule a game.

RIBBONS ON DINNER TABLES.

While the fussy period of table decoration came to an end some years ago, and we do not now serve salad in finger rolls tied with pink ribbon, yet it is sometimes possible to use ribbons with good effect.

It is always in order to have bunches of flowers tied with ribbon at the women's places at a formal luncheon or dinner, and nothing is prettier for a child's party or gives more pleasure than a huge paper rose whose petals conceal little gifts with a ribbon streamer connecting each with the place for its future owner.

At a luncheon for only one guest the centrepiece was a low sage green basket, with a handle at one end, filled with pale pink roses. A wide sash ribbon in a blurred floral pattern in pastel colors, blue, pink and green, was knotted into the handle with a cleverly tied bow, one of the ends crossing the table and hanging over the table cloth at one corner in loose loops and ends.

Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, of this city, will preach at the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel, tomorrow morning.

Rev. Charles H. Fountain, of West Seventh street, is supplying the pulpit at the First Baptist church, White Plains, N. Y., where the pastor recently died. Mr. Fountain will preach there tomorrow.

WE ARE NOW TRIMMING HATS FREE OF CHARGE.

It's good news to the woman who needs a new Summer Bonnet and knows she can select her materials here and have the trimming done free of charge. We do this to keep our workroom busy during the dull period. Women know that we carry the biggest stock either in season or between seasons for their choosing. For instance, we just received a good stock of small and medium Black Hair and Chip shapes, also White Chip Hats. Most millinery houses have little to show you now, but you can find your choosing easy here, and save money on the shapes and flowers. We don't buy up jobs of undesirable styles, its our aim to have what you WANT in the millinery line and sell it at a lower price than any other house hereabouts. Come to Tepper's for your midsummer hat.

EDITORIAL.

"What we mean by preparedness." To be always ready, whatever the season or the stage of the season, with merchandise of a character best suited to meet your immediate requirements, is the definition of the word "preparedness" as we interpret it.

And this is not a simple matter.

Goods must be always new—absolutely down to date—the best that the foreign and domestic markets have to offer. That means that not a single article in the stock of any department can be carried over from one season to another, yet even at the end of the season when preparations for the ensuing period engross most of our attention, stocks of merchandise for your immediate wear—to supply your needs during the transition time, as it were—must remain fully adequate.

This is but one of the many difficulties that we have been obliged to surmount in order that "preparedness" might merit a place among the attributes that characterize this business, devoted to serving your interest.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. W. A. Schutt, of Bayonne, has been visiting relatives in the borough.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fluck, of this city, have been visting relatives at Raritan.

Edmund Kenney is detained at his home on Watchung avenue with scarlet fever.

Miss Belle Hurd, of New York, has taken possession of her summer home at Watchung.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Whitall, of this city, have been viisting relatives at Somerville.

Mrs. J. B. Probasco, of Washington avenue, has gone to Chattanooga, Tenn., for the summer.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Randall, of Somerset street, has returned from a sojourn at Asbury Park.

Mrs. William H. Riley, of Myrtle avenue, has taken possession of her summer cottage at Watchung.

Miss Marjorie Cooley, of Westervelt avenue, a student at Barnard College, has returned home for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Groendyke, of the borough, who have been spending some time at Magnolia, Mass., have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown, of Sycamore avenue, the borough, are spending the summer at their cottage at Bradley Beach.

Mrs. William D. Parlin, of Cleveland, Ohio, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, has returned.

The Misses Elsie and Anna Moldenke have returned to their home, "Castle Elisnore," Watchung, from the Mary J. Drexel School at Philadelphia, where they are students.

ARTISTIC BOOT AND SHOE CHESTS.

Nothing makes a room look more untidy than various boots and shoes standing around in the corners, or under the dressing table or chairs. Sometimes, it is true, they are tucked away under the bed, but that, although out of sight, is still far from an ideal resting place. A boot box or chest is much the best for keeping them in, and, if properly made, would make quite an artistic addition to the room.

A good imitation of a beaten copper or brass chest would look well. First produce a good-sized, strong box, and after taking off the lid and one of the long sides, saw off the corners of the short sides to form the slope for the top lid. A shelf must now be inserted.

Part of the lid is replaced and screwed or nailed in position. The two doors or flaps open reverse ways, one upwards and the other down, the bottom one requiring a catch to fasten into the shelf when shut. The top door will fall naturally into its place, and would only require a handle to lift it by.

Now cover the whole outside with some imitation stamped leather wall paper, a dull gold for brass, or a copper one if preferred. Many beautiful shades can be had in these papers. A plain white one may be used and painted an oak color. The pattern of the paper would then make a good imitation of carving.

The consturction of the second chest is the same as the first, the difference being in the exterior decoration. If you have been lucky enough to secure a good wooden box it would perhaps be better to keep the beauty of the natural graining of the wood. The box should be well glaze-papered to make it as smooth as possible and a good wood stain applied, green or brown being the best. Edge round the sides and doors with short brass-headed nails and fill in the panels with any design fancied in the same way. Some good brass hinges will help to give this chest a very handsome and finished appearance.

Spanish Lace.

Spanish lace which shows signs of wear may be utilized by transferring the figures to a new net ground. If the lace is black and rusty, freshen it by dipping lightly in coffee or vinegar and water. Very handsome lace should be dyed; then, with the new grounding, it is almost as good as new. Fill in openings with lace stitches. When time is plenty and patience abounds, very attractive results may be achieved by holding a fine gold thread around the lace figures, of either black or white, and overcasting it firmly but sparsely with embroidered silk, either matching the lace or the thing it is meant finally to adorn.

GOLF.

The annual championship tournament under the auspices of the League of Connecticut Golf Clubs will be held on July 6, 7, 8 and 9 over the links of the New Haven Country Club. On the first day a thirty-six-hole qualifying round will claim attention, and coincideat with this will be a team championship competition, for which teams of five must be named before starting. All match rounds, with the exception of the final, will consist of eighteen holes. Prizes have been provided for as many completed sixteens as return cards.

Fred Stone, the Forest Hill Field Club golfer, who has improved wonderfully this season, won the June cup in the Class B division recently by defeating W. J. Vance, 6 up and 5 to play, in the final round. Since early in May Stone has won three cups.

The twelfth annual championship and tournament of the League of Connecticut Golf Clubs will be held at the New Haven Country Club, July 6 to 9. There are twenty clubs in the league, four of which are M. G. A. members, and there are over two thousand playing members.

Frank B. Barrett of the Fox Hills Golf Club, who was the only representative of the United States last week at the International Horse Show, London, had an opportunity to golf at Sandwich and Deal. He writes that they are the greatest courses in the world.

The ninth annual tournament of the Vermont State Golf Association will be at the Mount Anthony Country Club, Bennington, on August 4, 5 and 6.

principle which heals sickness also destroys sin. Our critic does not hesitate to endorse mental suggestion, but I think he will find it difficult to reconcile any system of suggestive therapeutics with the religion of Jesus Christ who said, "If I by the finger of God cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out?" He further states, "The Father who dwelleth in me, He doeth the works." Mental suggestion, hypnotism, Spiritualism, and all efforts of carnal mind or human will are not comparable with the healing power of God.

The point of view determines our judgment of Christian Science. Our critic says, "When it brazenly denies the reality of matter, we must stop and think what it means." The Christian Scientist would put it this way: When error brazenly declares for the existence and reality of matter we should stop and think that this is equal to charging God with all physical and moral disasters, for sin disease and death originate in a belief in the reality of matter. The Rev. rBoek says, "One of the foremost followers of Mrs. Eddy claimed that the Slocum horror occurred only in the minds of a few people." As our critic does not give the name of the Christian Scientist to whom he refers I am unable to take up this question.

Christian Science is not pantheistic and for a full explanation as to why it is not pantheistic, Rev. Broek and your readers are respectfully referred to a pamphlet written by Mrs. Eddy entitled, "Christian Science vs. Pantheism." Such a book may be read or obtained at any public Christian Science Reading Room.

Christian Scientists do not feel that they are "throwing overboard" any of the essentials of the Christian religion in accepting Christian Science; and they feel sure that this Science will stand the scriptural test, "By their fruits ye shall know them." For this reason Christian Science will not fall into oblivion, but on the contrary, will grow in the grandeur of universal goodness and will everywhere be sought and taught. Our great Master said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel." "Heal the sick."

THE FORUM.

A Just Complaint.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The last report of the Board of Health referring to scarlet fever makes the following remarkable statement: "The third outbreak occurred in the summer months and a careful investigation showed that the patients were principally boys who had been in the habit of viisting a swimming pool below Grant avenue."

Is Greenbrook a polluted stream? Does sewage enter it? If not why should a boy get scarlet fever from swimming in it. The Board of Health caution us against flies, and rightly so, yet they allow a pest hole for flies at the city dump, where only ashes are supposed to be. But these flies feed on more than ashes. Let the president of our Board of Health inspect this nuisance, also get a whiff from it any evening at about 8 or 9 o'clock. There is work for the board here.

IT WAS HIS FAULT

"I shall never set foot in Blankington's store again," declared Mrs. Wedderburn in such a tone of fierce determination that Wedderburn looked up from his evening paper in surprise.

"I was actually insulted there, Harry," she went on. "I had intended to ask you to start an account at Blankington's, but after the treatment I received there to-day I shall certainly not patronize that firm any more."

"I don't believe we need any more charge accounts," said Wedderburn, easily. "But I'm surprised that you should have met with any discourtesy at Blankington's. What happened, anyway?"

"Well, when I went down town this morning I thought I'd just take a five-dollar bill with me. I knew that would be plenty for the few little purchases I intended making and for Beulah Russell's and my luncheon. I telephoned Beulah to meet me at Blankington's and lunch with me and, do you know, she simply insisted on paying the bill. She said it was her turn, and all that sort of things, so, of course, I had to let her pay.

"I was kind of glad afterward, for I saw a splendid sale of lingerie blouses for only two dollars apiece, and it was nice to know I had plenty of money in my pocket to buy one and the other things I wanted, too.

"I selected a perfect beauty and I knew you'd be awfully pleased with it, because it buttoned in front, Harry. I told the saleswoman to send it and then we looked around at all the other waists and I didn't see any I liked better than mine, and, after quite awhile, I went to the girl who had waited on me and asked her if my change hadn't come yet.

"'Change!' she repeated. 'There isn't any change. You gave me the right amount—a two-dollar bill.'

"'I couldn't have done that,' I said, 'for I didn't have a two-dollar bill with me. I had just one five-dollar bill.'

"She called the manager of the department and we both told him of the error. I was careful not to say anything critical about the saleswoman's carelessness, for I know everybody is liable to make mistakes. The manager went down to the cashier and, after I had waited until I was getting tired, he came back and said there had been no five-dollar bill paid into that department for some time before I had bought my waist.

"'Then you doubt my word?' I said.

"'No, madam,' he replied, 'but it is possible that you paid a two-dollar bill without noticing it.'

"'How could I,' I asked, 'when I had only a five-dollar bill with me?'

"'Are you quite sure that you had no two-dollar bill?' he returned.

"Don't you think, Harry, it was impertinent of him to question me in that way? Beulah was incensed at his rudeness, I can tell you.

"'I certainly am positive,' I replied, 'for I remember thinking this morning that I'd take a five-dollar bill for my day's expenses, and as I had but one bill in my purse, that must have been it, for I haven't even seen a two-dollar bill for a long time. And,' I went on, very firmly, 'I wish you would refund my three dollars at once.'

"'That's just what we can't do, madam,' he declared, 'but if our cash balance to-night should show that we owe you three dollars we'll send it to you to-morrow.'

"'To-morrow!' I repeated, scornfully. 'In the meantime I am left without a cent of money in my purse and am practically accused of trying to cheat Blankington's out of three dollars, when the shoe is really on the other foot.'

"Then I demanded back the money I had spent on the blouse, for I knew after all that fuss I should never take any pleasure in it. As I told you at first, Harry, I've decided never to go into that store again."

"Have you looked for the five-dollar bill since you came home?" Wedderburn asked, stretching an arm toward his wife's desk.

"No; why should I, when I know I took it with me this morning?"

Wedderburn did not argue the question, but quietly pulled out the little drawer of the desk. There lay a crisp, green bill.

"Why, I couldn't have taken it out, after all!" exclaimed Mrs. Wedderburn. "But where did I ever get that two-dollar bill? I can't understand it at all."

"This morning I took a look into your purse, my dear, and, as it was empty, I put in the two-dollar bill, which was all I happened to have with me."

"Oh, Harry, why didn't you tell me? Just see all the trouble you have made for me! And that was such a beautiful blouse for the money at Blankington's! And now I shall be ashamed to go there and buy it again!"

The Wrong Kind.

"Mayme had a terrible fit yesterday."

"Goodness gracious! What caused it?"

"Her dressmaker. Who else do you suppose?"

Courtesy in Young Girls.

Young girls are apt to be somewhat thoughtlessly discourteous, and are quite oblivious of the irremediable evil often wrought by want of thought. Such girls should bear in mind the lesson in courtesy given by a father to his daughter. "My child," said he, "treat everybody with politeness, even though they are rude to you. For, remember that you show courtesy to others, not because they are ladies, but because you are one."—Home Notes.

Rice Market Yields $200,000,000.

The world's market for rice, measuring this market merely by the imports of the principal countries of the world, amounts to from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 per annum. The imports of rice into the principal countries of Europe in the latest available year amounted to about $82,000,000 value; into Asia and Oceanica, $88,000,000; into North and South America, exclusive of the United States, $12,000,000, and into Africa, $6,000,000.

Ho, Girls!

"Don't be concerned because of your lack of good looks," says a writer. It's the real dope, girls. OFFICIAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS.

The regular meeting of the Board of Freeholders, of Union County was held on June 2, 1910, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. Roll call showed the following members present: Director Cady, Freeholders Adams, Crane, Darby, Garrison, Gruener, Haviland, Jones, Krouse, Martin, Meisel, Perry, Randolph, Smith, Swain, Thompson and Wilbur—17. Absent—Freeholders Freeholders Doane and

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur it was ordered that the minutes of the meeting of May 5 be approved as per printed copies on members' desks.

Communications.

Communications were read from the City of Summit, Township of New Providence, Borough of Kenilworth, Borough of Mountainside, Township of Linden and Borough of New Providence, expressing approval of the project under consideration by the board regarding the building of tuberculosis hospitals. Also a letter from the Township of Union stating that the township was not in a position to favor same.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the communications were received and placed on file.

From the Borough of Garwood requesting favorable consideration of bridges over Foster's brook at Oak street, East street and Willow avenue, stating that these roads had been accepted as borough roads.

On motion of Freeholder Thompson received and referred to the committe on said bridges.

From the citizens and property owners of Union Township, stating that a certain storm sewer being erected by the City of Newark threatens to do great damage to property in Lyons Farms, and asking the board to protect their interests.

On motion of Freeholder Crane received and referred to a committee of three and the County Attorney. The Director appointed as said committee Freeholders Crane, Smith and Krouse and Attorney Codington.

Committee Reports.

Report of Committee on County Roads.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on County Roads would report having received bids for the macadamizing, with a top course of amiesite, of Palisade avenue and Madison Hill road; and have awarded the contract to the Weldon Contracting Company (subject to your approval) at their bid of $39,219.30, that being the lowest figure received; of Raritan road and Lake avenue to the Weldon Contracting Company at their bid of $41,083.30, that being the lowest figure received. Of the Shunpike road, to the Weldon Contracting Company for $37,232.60, that being the lowest figure received. Of the Springfield avenue and Turkey road to the Weldon Contracting Company for $31,836.45 that being the lowest figure received for this work. And we recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the contracts for the improvements of the above named roads be awarded to the Weldon Contracting Company at their figures as above specified.

HENRY KROUSE,
CHARLES A. SMITH,
PETER H. MEISEL,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
Committee.

Feeholder Gruener moved that the report be received and the recommendation adopted, which on roll call was so ordered.

Committee on Race Street Bridge Rahway.

Your committee on Race Street Bridge, Rahway, respectfully report that bids were received for the work on May 7, 1910. The contract was awarded to James Moran for $562, he being the lowest bidder.

Respectfully submitted,
W. H. RANDOLPH,
W. H. GARRISON,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Swain received and placed on file.

Auditor's report.

Gentlemen—Your Auditor respectfully reports:

I have examined the books and vouchers of the Surrogate, Sheriff Registrar and County Clerk and find the same correct.

The net receipts are: Surrogate, $807.47; Sheriff, $588.59; Registrar, $2,051.75; County Clerk, $395.15; which amount has been turned over to the County Collector.

Yours respectfully,
BENJAMIN KING,
Auditor.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener received and placed on file.

Committee on Marion Avenue Bridge.

Gentlemen—Your committee on Marion Avenue Bridge respectfully report that they have received bids for the construction of said bridge on May 28. The contract was awarded to George Bauman and Louis Vannetti for the sum of $590, they being the lowest bidders.

BRADFORD JONES,
W. H. SWAIN,
ELSTON DARBY,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Guener received and placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

Gentlemen—Whereas the undersigned County Road Committee by and with the approval of the State Commisioner of Public Roads, have changed the location of the county road proposed to be built, leading from Two Bridges to Rahway at the point known as Goodman's Crossing and by reason of said change it is necessary to construct a bridge over Robinson's Branch of the Rahway River at said point: and

Whereas the contract for the building of said road has been made and let, and your committee deeming it advisable that no time should be lost looking to the erection and construction of said bridge, have proceeded to advertise for bids: and

Whereas said bids have been received, and the lowest bid being made by Arthur E. Smith for the sum of $5,490 aforesaid, subject to the approval and ratification of your honorable body; and this committee would therefore recommend the approval and ratification of said action, and the adoption of the following resolution, to wit:

Resolved, That the action of the County Road Committee in proceeding with the advertising, accepting of bids and awarding the contract to Arthur E. Smith for the building of the bridge at Goodman's Branch of the Rahway River for the sum of $5,490 be, and the same be hereby ratified and confirmed; and be it further

Resolved, That the Director of this board be, and is hereby authorized, and ireected to execute a contract with said Arthur E. Smith for the building of said bridge for the amount aforesaid, at such a time as it is decided to construct the aforesaid State Aid Road; and be it further

Resolved, That the building of said bridge be done under the supervision of the County Road Committee, the Engineer in charge, and W. J. Thompson, member of this board from Clark Township.

Dated June 2, 1910.

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY KROUSE,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
PETER MEISEL,
Committee.

Freeholder Swain moved that the report be received and the recommendation adopted, which on roll call was so ordered.

By the Committee on Chestnut Place Bridge.

Gentlemen—The undersigned committee having been appointed to examine the site and report as to the necessity for a bridge on Effingham place, Westfield, would report that they visited the location and find that said Effingham place has been graded and open to public travel by the Town of Westfield and that the bridge originally built over the stream on this street has fallen in and the street is in consequence closed to travel.

We therefore recommend that a bridge be built at this point with concrete abutments and a beam and concrete top at a cost not to exceed $700.

JOSEPH PERRY,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
W. H. RANDOLPH,
Committee.

Freeholder Gruener moved that the report be received and the recommendation be adopted, which on roll call was so ordered.

By Committee on Chestnut Place Bridge.

Gentlemen — Your Committee would report that they have made an examination of the bridge and find it too short to meet the needs of travel. Your committee would respectfully recommend that the bridge be extended about ten feet at each end, and wing walls be built, the cost of the work not to exceed the sum of $850.

AARON D. CRANE,
ELSTON DARBY,
Committee.

Freeholder Wilbur moved the report be received and the recommendation adopted, which on roll call was so ordered without dissent.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Adams.

Whereas action has been brought and judgment obtained in the New Jersey Supreme Court by Eunice Ward, by her next friend, Mary Mc Lean, against this board for the sum of eight hundred ($800) dollars, for damages alleged to have been sustained by her at the bridge over the Cranford River, on North avenue, in the Town of Cranford, which bridge was being erected and constructed by William E. Warren under contract with this board; therefore be it

Resolved, That the County Collector be and hereby is authorized to pay and satisfy the same and be it further

Resolved, That the amount so paid be and hereby is directed to be deducted from any moneys due to the said William E. Warren under and by virtue of his contract with this board for building of said bridge.

Freeholder Swain moved the adoption of the resolution, which on roll call was so ordered without dissent.

By Freeholder Darby.

Resolved, That the committee on Publications be authorized to have printed three hundred copies of the report of the Probation Officer, at a cost not to exceed fifty dollars.

Freeholder Smith moved the adoption of the resolution, which on roll call was so ordered.

By Freeholder Crane.

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the culvert at Union road and Grant avenne, Roselle Park, and report to this board the advisability of extending the culvert to the proper width of the street, in anticipation of the laying of the proposed sidewalks on Union road and Grant avenue, and probable cost of same.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener the resolution was adopted without dissent. The Director appointed as said committee Freeholders Crane, Perry and Darby.

By Freeholder Jones.

Whereas the bridge over Greenbrook on the Washington Valley road, which brook is the dividing line between the counties of Union and Somerset, has been destroyed by reason of one John Lewis, attempting to cross said bridge with a heavy traction well driver; and

Whereas by reason of the emergency and the necessity of prompt action, the Director of this board has directed a special committee of this board to take action looking to the rebuilding of said bridge; and

Whereas said committee have met with the Bound of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Somerset, and in the judgment of said committee and said board of Somerset county, it was deemed advisable to proceed to advertise for bids for the building of a new bridge at said location; and

Whereas it is proposed to reconstruct said bridge using the old abutments and furnish a permanent superstructure of steel I beams and reinforce concrete roadway; and

Whereas plans have been prepared and advertisement duly made for bids to be received on the third instant; therefore be it

Resolved, That the action of the Director of this board and the special committee appointed by him, be, and the same is hereby approved and ratified; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee, in conjunction with the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Somerset be, and are hereby authorized to award said contract, the cost of said bridge not to exceed the sum of $1,800; one-half of which is to be borne by the County of Union and the County of Somerset respectively.

Dated June 2, 1910.

BRADFORD JONES,
S. P. T. WILBUR,
C. A. SMITH,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the foregoing preamble and resolution was adopted on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Krouse.

Resolved, That the resolution of this board passed March 3, 1910, authorizing the issuance of $150,000 renewal county road bonds be and the same are hereby repealed.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Smith.

Whereas under the authority of the provisions of an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled "An act to enable Boards of Chosen Freeholders to acquire, improve and maintain public roads," approved March 19, 1889, and the acts supplemented thereto and amendatory thereto and amendatory thereof, this board has heretofore legally issued bonds of the County of Union; and

Whereas certain of said bonds of the second series, numbered from 1 to 150, inclusive, of $1,000 each, will become due and payable on the first day of July, 1910, said bonds bearing date on July 1, 1890 aggregating in amount $150,000; and

Whereas the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union is desirous of renewing said bonds; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union does hereby authorize and direct bonds of the County of Union to be issued for the purpose of renewing the bonds above referred to, falling due on July 1, 1910, aggregating in amount the sum of $150,000, and numbered from 1 to 150 inclusive; and that said renewal bonds be issued under the corporate name, and under the corporate seal of the County of Union, and be signed by the Director, and attested by the clerk of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, and that said bonds be designated "Renewal County Bands;" and that said bonds be in the amount of $1,000 each, and in number 150, and aggregating in amount the sum of $150,000; that the same be dated July 1, 1910, and made payable in ten (10) years from the date thereof, with interest at the rate of four and one-half (4½) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, principal and interest payable at the National State Bank of Elizabeth, New Jersey, and that said bonds shall be numbered 1 to 15, both inclusive, and said bonds to be coupon bonds; and that said coupons be signed by the Collector of the County of Union and numbered to correspond with the bond to which the same shall be respectively attached; provided that the facsimile signature of the Collector may be engraved or lithographed on said coupons in lieu of actual signing; and be it further

Resolved, That the Director of this board and the County Collector be and are hereby authorized to cause said bonds to be prepared, printed and executed.

Said bonds and the coupons thereto attached and the provisions for registration for the bonds shall be substantially as follows, to wit:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.
STATE OF NEW JERSEY.
COUNTY OF UNION.

RENEWAL COUNTY BOND.

Know all Men by These Presents, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union in the State of New Jersey for value received hereby acknowledges itself indebted and promises to pay to the bearer, or if this bond be registered, then to the thousand dollars ($1,000) on July 1, 1920, with interest thereon at the rate of four one one-half (4½) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on January 1 and on July 1, on presentation and surrender of the interest coupons hereto annexed as they severally become due, both principal and interest payable at the National State Bank of Elizabeth, New Jersey.

This bond is one of a series issued under and pursuant to the provisions of an act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled "An act to authorize the counties of this State to renew matured and maturing bonds," approved April 24, 1902, and other statutes of the State of New Jersey in such cases made and provided, and resolutions and proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union duly passed and taken for the purpose of renewing bonds legally issued by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of said county.

It is hereby certified, recited and declared that all acts, conditions and things required to be done, existed, happened and been performed in regular and due form and manner as required by law, and that this bond together with all the other indebtedness of said county does not exceed, and the bonded indebtedness renewed hereby together with all the other indebtedness existing at the

By Freeholder Smith.

Resolved, That the $150,000 Renewal County Bonds this day authorized to be issued shall be and are hereby sold to John D. Everitt & Company at the price of par and accrued interest.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution, which on roll call was so ordered without dissent.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Whereas it is deemed advisable that the County of Union acquire the properties adjoining the Courthouse property on Rahway avenue, known and designated as No. 27 Rahway avenue and Nos. 29 and 31 Rahway avenue; and also the property on Union street adjoining the same; and

Whereas options have been secured for two of said properties, to wit, Nos. 27 to 31 Rahway avenue for $4,000, and No. 27 Rahway avenue for $4,027; and

Whereas negotiations are under way for the purchase of the property adjoining the same on Union street; and

Whereas it is estimated that the total cost of said several properties will aggregate the sum of $13,000 or thereabouts; therefore be it

Resolved That the Board of Chosen Freeholders be authorized to proceed to purchase said properties, to have the titles examined, and if found perfect, to take the deed for the same in the name of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union; and in case the said Board of Chosen Freeholders be unable to agree upon the purchase price with the owners thereof for the property above referred to facing on Union street, that the County Attorney is hereby authorized and instructed to proceed for the appointment of commissioners to condemn and appraise said lands in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act to authorize the Boards of Chosen Freeholders of the respective counties of this State to acquire by purchase or condemnation, lands for the public use in such counties, and to provide for the issue of bonds to pay for the same," approved April 21, 1887, and the several supplements and amendments thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That for the purpose of raising the necessary funds for the payment of said purchase price of said properties, that this board cause thirteen bonds to be issued and prepared in the sums of $1,000 each, payable in fifteen years after date, with interest at the rate of four and one-half percent., payable half yearly; that said bonds be signed by the Director of the board, and the County Collector; and that the seal of the county be thereto affixed; said bonds to be coupon bonds and that said bonds be sold to the highest bidder as provided for in the act aforesaid provided the same shall not be sold for less than par value thereof; and

HAPPY RESULTS.

Have Made Many Plainfield Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Plainfield citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Plainfield by Dona's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. C. Manchester, 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says. "I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble for a long time. I doctored a great deal but failed to find a cure until I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and made up my mind to give them a trial. Good results followed their use and my kidneys were seen restored to a normal condition. I believe my cure is a permanent one and I will always give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement when an opportunity occurs."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Millburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

He Met It on the Road.

He didn't wait for prosperity to come. The very minute they told him it was on the road, he said: "Maybe the horses'll get stalled, and the driver all froze up; so I'll just meet it halfway, and help get the wheels out the mire, and give it a fresh start; then, when it looks like smooth sailing, I'll hop on, and take a seat by the driver, and we'll go whistling into town!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Bamboo.

It is possible that the world's future supply of paper pulp will be derived from the bamboo forests of the tropics instead of being drawn from the forests of the temperate zones. Successful experiments have been made in Japan pointing in that direction. A company has obtained a perpetual lease of 8,000 acres of bamboo forest in Formosa, enough to provide 600 tons a month.

Iron.

Pure iron is only a laboratory preparation. Cast iron, the most generally useful variety, contains about five per cent. of impurities, and the curious thing is that it owes its special value to the presence of these. Pure iron can be shaved with a pocket knife; impure iron can be made almost as hard as steel.

Book for Family Record.

The old habit of chronicling births, deaths and marriages in the family Bible is not yet obsolete, but like many others, has not been altered. There are certain family occurances which, though important in themselves would appear out of place in close connection with Holy Writ, and those people who are desirous of keeping a complete record of the chronicles of their family will appreciate the handsomely bound volume in which all kinds of family particulars can be recorded.

BOROUGH HIGH GRADUATION

everything is tested by the question, "What is it worth?" If art is not able to meet its test, then many will say that it is useless. To them a thing of beauty must be more than a joy forever or it will be considered a waste of time. Looking at art form the lowest standpoint—the financial one—we see that it has a definite value for every man and corporation. The humble clerk dressing a show window and the wealthy firm lavishing thousands yearly on its advertising, must each employ art's principle to succeed. In the commercial war which nations wage ever more keenly, it is the man behind the designer's pencil who leads towards supremacy.

But another and higher value that art has, is its moral influence—the effect of the beautiful upon the character of the beholder. This principle is now recognized by our social settlement workers and they are trying to introduce the beautiful in art and music in the tenement districts. Instead of fighting sin, they are teaching love of purity by appealing to the sense of beauty and harmony. Men who have surrounded by beauty, begin to feel the inconguity of living like savages or slaves in their spiritual life. For the modern youth who is educated to appreciate beauty, to become a reeling drunkard or thief seems a grievous form of sin against the law of the eternal fitness of things. The distribution of the beautiful in daily life unconsciously is an incitement toward beautiful thoughts and a beautiful character and a barrier against ugliness of mind and the deformity of morals.

Another important work that art has accomplished to-day is the training of good citizens. Men and children are taking fore interest in the appearance of their cities and towns than ever before. This movement has been felt in the European countries for some time but America is just awakening to its importance. Among those who have essayed to fill the child's mind with direct and definite knowledge about his own locality through acquaintance with its true history and meaning, we may first mention Boston and its Old South Work. Many meetings have been held in this church for the purpose to excite by educational methods, loyalty to Boston, inspiring a true appreciation of local history. Since 1896 New York has had a City History Club which has been called a Kindergarten of Citizenship—having for its object—"The Study of the History of New York" in the hope of awakening an interest in its traditions and in the possibilities of its future. Perhaps the most systematic work towards good citizenship is being done by St. Louis. Here it has been introduced into the public schools and has become a regular part of the school work. Prizes have been offered on essays on beautifying the city and for home gardening. Efforts of a more or less organized character are being introduced in all the large cities of the United States and there are few towns of any size in this country that do not have a local improvement society.

Formerly we were regarded by the other countries as a nation in which the practical side had been developed to the detriment of the higher qualities of the mind and soul. In fact we have been called a nation of shop keepers. The time has come when this is most unfair and unjust. One of the most hopeful signs of our country is the new enthusiasm for the beautiful. We are told that there are more than twelve thousand American students of art residing in Paris. This number exceeds the sum total of the students of all other nationalities.

It may be that, as true art is never fixed but always flowing and developing, we may in time develop a new art along distinctively national lines that may place us upon a higher plane than many of the older nations.

After a well rendered song by the High School chorus Miss Henrietta Englehardt gave the valedictory address:

Our country has been saved for us, not without much loss of life, and it is our duty to use it wisely, and not leave it barren for future generations. Conservation opposes the waste of natural resources, and believes in a business-like and far-sighted management of our country's possessions. It stands against private monoply, and holds to the opinion that every American citizen should derive a fair benefit from these resources both now and hereafter.

The great National resources are the forests, the water powers, the mineral deposits, and the soil. They belong to the people, and it is the sacred trust of the Government to protect them for the people. But this cannot be done if there is not National ownership of National resources, and if the resources are sold or given away. The Federal Government has given away much land in small lots to settlers, who would cultivate the soil, and build up a prosperous agricultural district. It has also sold large tracts to railway corporations, who have made the way easier for settlers. This method has been found every satisfactory since it is not the material resources, but the proper utilization of them, which build up our nation. But we cannot call it the homestead policy, when valuable water powers are given away to capitalists under the pretense of giving quarter-sections to settlers, and when great corporations receive mineral lands, ten and twenty times as large as a quarter-section. The corporations pay small and often insufficient wages to actual settlers, and become very rich at the expense of the community. Nearly two-thirds of the public domain has gone over to private ownership. Some has been properly settled, and developed, but too much has passed into the possession of corporations.

The navigable value of our streams has become of slight importance in comparison with their value as transmitters of motive power, hydraulic and electric, thus economizing our failing coal supply. Falling water is our greatest unfailing source of power. Therefore, if a few men monopolize it, as it is feared, since it is passing so rapidly into private ownership, they will control industrial labor as well. Moreover, in spite of the manifold value of our streams, the mountains are being recklessly deprived of their timber, thus impairing our watersheds. The lack of growth permits the water to descend more freely, and in 1908 the power plant of the city of Augusta, Ga., for the first time in the fifty years of its operation, was disabled by the floods of the Savannah River.

In New York State for the sake of preserving the timber, the New York Forest, Fish and Game Commission has condemned for the purpose of purchasing, forty three thousand acres of private woodlands. They were justified in this action on account of the determination of a paper-making and wood-working company to build a railway through this property and found a town. In doing this the lands would be denuded and the nearby possessions of the State exposed to fire. Those whose lands have been taken must receive a fair price for them, but they have demanded almost sixty-nine dollars an acre on an average. And these Adirondack lands the State has been accustomed to obtain for less than ten dollars an acre.

Our soil is a very important resource, since agriculture stands foremost as a support of the nation. It is realized now that, as James J. Hill says, when the forests are all cut down and the mines are nothing but empty holes in the ground, our farm lands will be capable of renewing their bounty forever. The soil is far better here than in Germany, yet we produce fourteen bushels an acre to their twenty-eight. Does this show that our soil is being properly cared for? If our crops were doubled, the question of how to meet the increasing demand for food would be answered, the price of food would be cheaper, and the wealth of the Nation increased. The Forest Service can be of use in this work, since the floods cannot carry the soil away so easily if the mountainsides are not left deforested, and water can be stored in the roots, and deep soil for irrigating arid lands.

During the past few years a movement has been started for conserving our natural resources. While Theodore Roosevelt was Governor of New York, the question of the conservation of the Adirondack forest, and some bills with reference to the water power in the Adirondacks were brought before him. Feeling that he should have definite facts for guidance he sent for Mr. Pinchot who advised him to consult also with Frederick H. Newell, since Mr. Newell had recently made investigations along that line. These two men were a great help to Mr. Roosevelt, and finally in January, 1900, New York State and the Federal Government made an agreement, which allowed the latter to make a systematic measurement of the streams of that State, and to find out the ture of that State, and to find out the true he became President, Mr. Roosevelt wished to discuss the subject further, so summoned Mr. Newell and Mr. Pinchot. Later, the President appointed these two men with W. A. Richards as a Public Land Commission. This commission deserves as much credit as the Governors' Meeting at the White House in arousing a desire for reform legislation, which has caused the present National movement for the conservation of our natural resources.

The movement has not progressed rapidly on account of many hindrances and delays. At the Conference of the Governors, it was decided that a careful investigation should be made into the condition of our resources in order that there might be some foundation upon which o base a plan for their proper utilization. This plan was never carried out. An amendment was made to the bill which cut off all the funds of the commission, and forbade any government employee to assist it in his official service. As a result, the Commission has been greatly handicapped in doing the work laid out for them.

The head waters of half our streams are found in a small area in the Appalachian Mountains. This section contains very few vested interest of much value, and its hardwood forest protects the water-sheds. Yet the plan which was considered for a short time, of making an Appalachian Park has been completely abandoned.

An example of what has been done in conservation and its excellent results is shown in California. The San Bernadino Valley in Southern California is encircled by the range from which it derives its name. The few streams from the mountain supply a thousand irrigation ditches, fill the artesian basin beneath the surface of the valley, and running on to the sea pass through Riverside and Orange counties. Since these streams have to supply so many, water is very scarce and much money has been spent in attacking and defending water rights. At last the people have awakened to the fact that the lack of water comes from the condition of the source of their water supply. Every winter, great quantities of water rush down the deforested mountain slopes, and flooding the lowlands in Orange County are wasted. A few men from the three counties spent their own money in preventives from fire, and in a nursery which new raises millions of young trees annually. This method was not quick enough, and in order to save this flood-water for the natural reservoir, they bought a square mile of land on the debris cone of the Santa Ana River, built a head-gate and diverting system, and turned the water on this quare mile. The land, consisting of sand and gravel quickly absorbed the water, which gradually worked its way into the artesian basin. As a result the water plane of the basin has risen one foot, at a time when it usually becomes lowered. This mass of water is worth $200,000 to these people.

The importance of the conservation of our natural resources is a duty to which the country is awakening. There is the conservation of other resources which is as important. I mean by this the conservation of our individual powers. If we do not preserve our health, we cannot make active and energetic citizens. Some of the most common ways of impairing our nervous and intellectual energy are by needless worry, lack of self control and tendency to nourish our passions, rather than to overcome them. Our physical strength is also needlessly dissipated. The injuries caused by using drugs, headache remedies, tobacco and intoxicating drinks cannot be overdrawn.

It is fitting that the man who started the movement for the conservation of our national resources should also present the grandest example of the value of conserving the natural powers. He has not saved his energy for selfish aims, but that his life might be of the greatest use and service to his country men. Let his example stand before each one of us, urging us ever to devote our conserved moral and physical powers to the welfare of our fellowmen, wherever duty may direct our lives.

Classmates of 1910, the time has come for us to say farewell. These four long years we have striven side by side, developing our souls and bodies together, till now at last we are to leave the harboring arm of our Alma Mater, and say farewell to all that has been most dear to us for the past four years. We go from school life through which we have been carefully guided and enter life's school, where the responsibility will be largely our own. We feel that words are inadequate to express our gratitude to our principal, teachers, superintendent and Board of Education, who have provided all the interests that we here enjoy. Classmates, may our future life prove that we were worthy of the interest that they took in us. May we ever advance! And now, whether we are to enter higher institutions of learnin, business or home life, let us stand firm in our motto, "Successus constantia." Let us be true to ourselves and faithful to our school. And now farewell—to each dear member of our class we say farewell.

Another song by the chorus preceded the principal address of the evening by Dr. Eaton.

In his opening words Dr. Eaton said that Plainfield must be a splendid place because it was so near to Washington Valley. Everybody in Plainfield ought to be thankful that they were so near to and yet not quite over the line. After congratulating the graduates Dr. Eaton said in part: "The home, church and school form the blessed trinity of our country. He who would work against it is a traitor and he who works for its support is the greatest of patriots. We ought to remember our great natural resources more perhaps than we do, but let me say to you young women that you ought to get married just as soon as you can or at least as soon as you can support a family (laughter). Another thing I want to impress upon you is that you ought to be just as good in the dark as you are in the light. Remember that no sect holds the key which opens the door to God.

"The problem of education today is not so great as it was twenty years ago. Then there were difficulties which modern science has overcome and today we stand in a more brilliant light and we see more clearly. But it must be remembered that success does not come easily. No, we must fight for it. Let us teach our boys to fight. Fight hard for what they want. The elements of a rugged manhood must be retained in order to attain success in whatever vocation or profession youth enters. I am in favor of making the school teacher the best paid officer of our modern civil life. The great influence the teacher wields over the lives of the youth of our land is conceivably the greatest thing we can boast of. I give you a text on which to base your future lives, but you will have to search the Scriptures to locate it. 'Watch, Fight and Pray.'

"Remember, too, that when you are conscious of having done something for somebody else you are happy. It is this consciousness of good works which is the real source of happiness. But it is not what you do that counts so much as what you are. What we need today is men, men who are willing to lose money for the thing that is right. Don't imitate. I want to see the growth of individuality in both men and women. The man who indulges in the luxury of doing without a religion is like a broken electric light wire. He fails to connect himself with the universe or with God. Come into the valley if you want to see life. Leave the city and get out into communion with nature and God. O, yes, come over into the valley where the sky is the element, the very source of everything beautiful."

The Plainfield Theatre was filled when the exercises began. On the stage with the twenty graduates were superintendent of schools, H. C. Krebs, Principal Benjamin J. Phelps; Nelson A. Miller, president of the Board of Education; Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson and Dr. Eaton. The boxes on both sides of the theatre were occupied and the stage setting was a bower of green.

These received diplomas:

Harold Pierson Bailey, Lillian Maude Bolton, William Russell Conroy, Douglas Wilson Demler, Edna Augusta Dilts, Preston Markham Dunning, Henrietta Alice Englehardt, Helen Carr George, Margery Godden Hart, Stella Kline, Anna Louise Layton, Edmond John LaPorte, Lillian Frances Mundy, Dorothy Dewhurst Randall; Edythe Ribble Schenck, Annetta Martin Steiner, Mabel Townley, Ruth Weinberger, Henrietta Jacobs Winn and Leon Peter Zeglio.

Junket Variation.

That time honored dish of the invalid, junket, would scarcely be recognized when prepared with an egg. Beat the milk until luke warm, then stir in a lightly beaten egg to every pint. Pass through a strainer and add the rennet in the usual way. Sugar, wine, vanilla or other flavoring is added to the milk before rennet. This gives consistency enough to turn from cups as a custard. Heap top with whipped cream in coils or roses by passing through a pastry tube.

SELFISHNESS A DISEASE

Pastor Maguire Says Morgan, Rockefeller and Carnegie Have It

HE STIRS THE SALVATIONISTS.

First of Religious Army's Gospel Tent Meeting Services is Largely Attended.

Taking for his text Luke 23:33 Rev. Gabried Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, preached before a large audience in the Salvation Army tent yesterday afternoon and such a powerful and eloquent sermon the frequenters of these services have seldom heard resulted. Pastor Maguire's explanation of the meaning of the three crosses on Calvary charmed and captivated his hearers and many a burdened heart was lightened.

It was the first meeting of the summer season under the Army tent on Watchung avenue and the tent was crowded. Master Chester Chamberlain, the boy soprano sang at the offertory and other music was rendered by the army choir, assisted by Martin A. Korff with violin.

Several interesting announcements were made by Captain Hewitt among them being that Captain Fowler, whose magnificent bass voice made such an impression during the visit of the Army band two months ago, will be heard again here a week from Saturday when a talk on the poets will be given.

The three crosses of the sermon were depicted as representing selfishness, self-surrender and self-sacrifice; the first two being the two thieves who died with Jesus and the third being that upon which Jesus sacrificed his life for the sins of the world. The speaker's word pictures of the death without hope, the death with salvatiaon promised and the final giving up of the Lord who died giving life.

Selfishness, declared Mr. Maguire is the soil from which all sin springs. It is a disease which has blighted and blasted mankind from the beginning of time. Although we are all proud, and justly so, of the Star Spangled Banner, there are men and women living under that flag today who are monsters of selfishness. Five men own all the railroads in the country, he said, and yet they are not satisfied. Morgan, Rockefeller and Carnegie are in this category. They are monarchs of selfishness in this country.

There is even selfishness in that old little prayer, "Now I lay me down to sleep." How different that is from the Lord's prayer! There is no selfishness in His prayer. It includes more than one person. It is meant for everybody. Sin is a disease. It is like the cancer which if not entirely removed leaves the poison to continue the dreaded work of death. Get rid of your sins by coming to the foot of the cross upon which Jesus sacrificed Himself for you.

Pastor Maguire's sermon was illustrated with pointed pleadings none of which was more potent in its effect than a story about some free fish. This anecdote related how an evangelist in his endeavors to show some of the citizens of a Georgia city how free is salvation, bought from a fish peddler his entire stock. Then sent the man through the streets shouting his wares with the story that they were free.

Windows were opened and sniffs rent the air but no one would take the fish as a gift. On the evening of the day in which the experiment of giving something for nothing the evangelist asked his big congregation if they had heard the offer of the fish man. Hundreds of hands went up. When he asked whether any one had accepted the gift no one dared to lie and not a hand was raised. Then said the preacher "I have simply tried to show you how many of you are throwing away your most precious gift of freedom from sin. Because it does not cost you anything you refuse it. Learn the lesson from this experience. God's love, mercy and forgiveness are free. Take it as it is offered—for nothing."

The services were in charge of Major Lyon, Division Commander of the Metropolitan district as were the evening services which began at 8 o'clock last evening. From the indications present yesterday the Salvation Army is to have a successful outdoor season.

"Little Elk" Wins a Blue.

Fred Moore's toy poodle, "Little Elk," sister of "Sonny Lad," won a blue and reserve winner in the dog show at Morris Plains, on Saturday, against a number of competitors. "Little Elk," although a puppy, was placed in the novice class, making the competition more difficult.

Union Services for July.

Several local pastors have arranged to hold Union services Sunday evenings during July, and the preachers have been decided upon. Next Sunday night, the service will be held at Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring will preach. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss will preach at the service on July 10, at the First M. E. church and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson will preach at the service at the First Presbyterian church, July 17 and Rev. John Y. Broek will be the preacher at the First Baptist church, July 24. On July 31, Rev. Dr. Pogson, of New York, will preach at Trinity Reformed church.

Found Dead in Bed.

Mrs. Mary Louise Totten, widow of Captain Benjamin Totten, of the 30th N. J. Vols.; daughter of Rev. Dr. J. A. Van Doren, a well-known Reformed church minister, and mother of George Totten, county detective of Somerset county, was found dead in bed at her home in Middlebush on Saturday, aged 70 years. She was well-to-do and had a large number of friends. She is survived by several sons.

HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE

The Pythian Knights of This Section Gather at Bound Brook.

REV. PFANSTEIHL PREACHES.

Over 200 Members of the Order Attend the Impressive Service in the Presbyterian Church.

Under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias Lodges, district, No. 20 of the Grand Domain of New Jersey, a memorial service was held in the Presbyterian church, Bound Brook, yesterday afternoon. The lodges in the district which were represented by more than two hundred members comprise Perseverance and Unity, of this city; Somerset, of Bound Brook; Lodge of the Castle, Somerville; Crescent Lodge, of Flemington, and Neshanic Lodge, of Neshanic.

The memorial address was delivered by Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl, of Somerville. The music was a pleasing feature. A quartet comprising Miss Ruth Harris, soprano; Miss Hazel Hattfield, contralto; William Holmes, baritone, of the First Baptist church choir, and Wyckoff Suydam, tenor, sang two anthems, "Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me," and "Saviour, Thy Children Keep," while Mr. Holmes sang as a solo, "Looking Unto God." His singing was enjoyed by the large congregation, while the work of Miss Harris and Miss Hattfield added to the enjoyment of the music. Miss Orrel Wrench, soprano, was to have appeared with the quartet, but illness prevented and Miss Harris kindly consented to take her place.

The instrumental numbers were by members of the Bound Brook Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Herbert Lloyd, and this was also a feature of the program.

The deceased members in whose memory the service was held were Frank Wheeland, Philip Diehl, No. 56; Asa D. Pope, George Moorehouse, No. 74; Charles VanCleef, Peter Struve, A. B. Conover, I. N. VanCleef, Sylvester Smith, No. 82; O. P. Chamberlin, Dr. John H. Ewing, No. 93.

COUNTRY CLUB PLANS SANE 4TH CELEBRATION

The Plainfield Country Club has appointed a Fourth of July committee and that committee announced today that by reason of the generous response of the club members to the invitation to subscribe the necessary funds, there will be a celebration at the club on Independence Day from 4 to 11 o'clock. The celebration promises to exceed any held here in recent years.

Van Baar's Old Guard Band, of New York city, has been engaged for the afternoon and evening. As soon as practicable after sunset there will be a display of fireworks under the direction of Paine, of New York, and it will be an elaborate one. The band will furnish music for dancing after the fireworks display.

Dinner will be served at the club house at 6.45 o'clock sharp; requests for reservation of tables may be made to the superintendent, John Hilton, until June 30. Free stages will connect with the trolley cars throughout the afternoon and evening. This committee has charge of the arrangements:

George S. Clay, chairman; Harry V. Borden, Thomas M. Day, John R. Greason, Jr., George M. Holstein, Henry C. Irons, Howard G. Lapsley, Chester B. Lawrence, Jr., Edward A. Lyon, George P. Mellick, J. Hartley Mellick, John P. Stevens, A. Willis West and Henry Williams.

Edith Adele Chargois Baptized.

Edith Adele, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Chargois, of 52 Elm place, was christened yesterday afternoon at the German Lutheran church, by the pastor Rev. John Duerschner. Afterward the guests proceeded to the home of the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. August Wersing at Watchung, in a stage, where a reception was held. There was a large attendance of relatives from New York, Perth Amboy, Brooklyn, Watchung and this city.

Triplet Dallia.

Frank Neidig, of Manning avenue, is showing a freak dallia, which blossomed in his garden yesterday. The dallia is a triplet; the three stems and the three hearts of the blossoms are all together. Mr. Neidig will have the dallia preserved artificially and then will send it to Luther Burbank, the wizard horticulturist.

ARREST 3 AS BURGLARS

Chief Weiss Believes He Has Men Who Have Looted Several Places.

WOMEN GAVE THEM AWAY.

John Polan, Lewis Fulton and George Francisco to Be Given a Hearing Before Justice Snape Tonight.

Through the clever work of Borough Chief of Police George Weiss, light has been thrown on a series of petty burglaries perpetrated in the borough during the past week. The peculiar circumstance in the case is that Lewis Fulton, one of the suspects held, was arrested through a clue given by a woman; and the news of Fulton's confinement so reacted on another woman that she began to talk—her talk led to the detention of Fulton on a wholly new charge, and also to the arrest of John Polan another alleged burglar. Furthermore, neither of the women are aware that they have been the means of aiding the police—unless, perhaps, they read this article.

While investigating the robbery at George Bremmer's house on Harrison avenue, Chief Weiss found a clue—furnished by a woman—which led him to arrest Lewis Fulton as a witness. Then another woman came up to the chief and asked him why Fulton was being confined. "I knew that it was because of those cigars that he stole," she said. Now the peculiar circumstance is that no cigars were stolen from Bremmer's house; but some were stolen from the store of Philip Ackor, on Somerset street; so the chief said, "Yes, that is one of the reasons.' When the woman had departed he had a quiet little "third degree" talk with Fulton who confessed to the Ackor burglary; but denied being implicated in it directly. John Polan, he said, had led him to rob the Ackor store with him. Polan was then arrested. Fulton denied all complicity in the Bremmer robbery, but through him George Fancisco was arrested this morning and the police say he has confessed. He was taken with two others. All three were brought before another woman who could furnish an opinion as to the looks of the man who entered the Bremmer house. She pointed to Francisco. He has been held together with Fulton and Polan. They will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Thomas Snape this evening. Polan and Fulton are under twenty-one years of age.

Will Hold Lawn Festival.

The annual strawberry and increase festival will be held on the lawn at Warren chapel, Thursday afternoon and evening. If the weather is stormy it will be held the following day. There will be a brass band in attendance to play, and many other features have been arranged. Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, who has charge of the waitresses would like to meet them at a meeting to be held tomorrow and Wednesday nights at the chapel, to acquaint them with their duties.

Walter C. Linbarger a Delegate.

Walter C. Linbarger, of the borough, has been appointed a delegate to represent the New Jersey State Civic Federation at the coming meeting of the Newark Board of Trade to be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Newark Public Library at Newark, to consider the question of the raise in commutation rates on the railroads of this State. The appointment was made by Adolph Roeder, president of the New Jersey State Civic Federation.

L. T. L. to Hold Picnic.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will hold a picnic on Wednesday, in place of the usual closing exercises. The children will meet at the W. C. T. U. rooms at 9 o'clock in the morning and take an Arlington avenue trolley to a grove, where the day will be spent playing games, and where dinner will be served. Members of the W. C. T. U. are invited to bring their lunch and enjoy the day with the children.

Chas. McDonald Gets Contract.

Charles MacDonald has been awarded the contract for the carpentry work in connection with the extensive improvements to be made at Trinity Reformed church. His bid was $1,258. W. C. Smith, who has the contract for the mason work, expects to begin operations, tomorrow morning, H. C. Van Emburgh, civil engineer having completed his work.

JUNIORS HONOR THE DEAD

The Four Local Councils of the Order Hold Services at Hillside.

TWO CLERGYMEN OFFICIATE.

The Graves of Thirty-six Departed Ones Are Decorated, Following the Religious Ceremony.

The members of Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., held their first annual memorial service at Hillside cemetery, yesterday, in memory of departed Juniors of the four councils. The service was held at the grave of Rev. E. E. Roberson, former pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, who was a member of the order, while the graves of other members in this and other local cemeteries were also decorated with flags and flowers. About two hundred Juniors of this city attended the service, which was in charge of Geo. Watts, chairman, and Guy Thomas.

Rev. Ora J. Shopp, of Grace M. E. church, offered prayer, and Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church, conducted the memorial service, following the ritual of the order. It was a long service, but the large assemblage appeared deeply interested.

Franklin Council reported the loss of twenty members, Somerset Council, eleven members; Benevolent Council, five, while Plainfield Council has been fortunate in not losing any members during its existence. The service was such a success that it has been decided to hold one annually in the future.

The members of the order met at Junior Hall at 2 o'clock and made the trip to the cemetery by special trolley cars. The service began at 3 o'clock, and attracted a large number of friends of the order. The other graves throughout the city and borough were decorated on Saturday so that the members could attend yesterday's service at Hillside.

MISS CLARA L. GULLBERG WEDDED AT ST. MARY'S

Miss Clara Gullberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Gullberg, of South avenue, and William O'Loughlin, of Park avenue, were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the rectory of St. Mary's church. Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Eleanor Gullberg, as bridesmaid, while Martin O'Loughlin, brother of the groom, was best man. Others present to witness the ceremony were Miss Carrie Martin and Edward O'Loughlin, of this city.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, where a large number of relatives and friends gathered to congratulate the couple. The Plainfield Baseball Club, of which the groom is a member, was present and remembered the bride with a handsome gift. Later in the evening the couple left for a two weeks' trip to Niagara Falls.

Mr. O'Loughlin is well-known as a baseball player, having been identified with the Plainfield Baseball Club for many years. He is popular among his friends. The bride also has a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Mr. O'Loughlin is employed at the Spicer Manufacturing Company plant.

Mail Carrier Resigns.

Andrew Winrow, colored, who has been carrying the mail between the postoffice and the railroad station, for several years, has resigned because he wants more pay. He has given thirty days' notice and will serve until his successor is appointed. Potsmaster Bird is today advertising for a man to succeed Winrow.

Old Offenders in Trouble.

Charles Long who was arrested by Marshall Culver and Sherdon Jones who was arrested by Marshall Keller yesterday for being drunk and disorderly are being held in the borough police station for trial this afternoon before Recorder Dolliver. Both are old offenders.

Will Walk to Sea Girt.

Battery A, of East Orange, of which Dr. H. D. Corbusier, of Park avenue, is planning to go into camp at Sea Girt the latter part of July. The battery will make the trip both ways overland, and it did a few years ago, camping out over night en route.

RAPS X-SCIENCE AGAIN

Trinity's Pastor Asks the Cult's Press Agent Some Questions.

ANSWERS H. C. FAIRCHILD.

Jesus Healed the Body to Save the Soul. And He Healed Not Only the Rich, Says Minister Sarcastically.

Having read the reply made by H. Coulson Fairchild, of Passaic, to his sermon on "Christian Science," as published in this paper on Saturday, Rev. John Y. Broek filed his rejoinder yesterday. At the morning service at Trinity Reformed church, the minister made brief reference to the article in The Daily Press and concluding his remarks by propounding some questions to the chief of the "healers" publicity bureau. It is not long since that Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring denounced the Mary Baker Eddy sect doctrines as strongly as did Rev. Mr. Broek a week ago Sunday night and the press department of the "Christian Scientists" got to work then as now at once to reply.

Here is what Rev. Mr. Broek has to say by way of rejoinder to the press agent of the Christian Science cult:

"My sermon on Christian Science of last Sunday was attacked in the daily paper on Saturday evening by one of the representatives of Christian Science.

"Several thoughts came to me as I read the article. I deplore the fact greatly that there was apparently no Christian Scientist in Plainfield who was competent to make a comprehensive answer, but I feel flattered that the sermon was sent to headquarters for a reply.

"Another thought came to me that I might reply in a sermon tonight. I felt, however, I could not conscientiously give a half hour of time devoted to the worship of God to answer such an illogical article.

"I thought I might reply in the paper tomorrow, but I did not think it worth while.

"I would, however, like to ask my honored critic a few questions. Why does not a Christian Scientist believe in the Atonement. Why does not the celebrations of the Lord's Supper take place in a Christian Science church. Why does a Christian Scientist believe that many Christs may still come. Why does not a Christian Scientist believe in the Apostles' Creed in which Christians from almost apostolic time have believed as containing the fundamental truths of Christianity? I would like to ask my critic to give an exegesis and define the Greek word 'Katallage' as used in the gospels, and the Hebrew word 'Nasa' as used in the Old Testament.

"I would like to tell my critic that Jesus said: "Go into all the world and preach the gospel.' He did not say, 'Go and preach Christian Science.' And any boy in Sunday school can tell you that the heart of the gospel is atonement.

"I would like to tell him that the prime mission of Jesus was to save souls and not to heal the body. The sole reason Jesus ever healed the body, gave sight to the blind, cured the leper and the lame man was to save his soul. And whenever Jesus healed a man, his sins were immediately forgiven.

Jesus healed the poor and he did not cater to the rich as a class. The healing of Jesus and the apostles was instantaneous, and He did not say, 'I will give you a Christian Science reading today, and another one tomorrow, and possibly on the following day, you may be feeling just a little better.

"And there are a number of other things that I would like to tell my critic, but I do not think it necessary to discuss the matter further."

McNeely the Speaker.

George McNeely, of Newark, who conducts effective noonday shop meetings was the speaker at the Y. M. C. A. open air meeting held in the grove next to the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon. There was special music.

Enjoyed Sunday Outing.

A company of about fifty young people including the younger members of the T. A. B., and their young women friends, enjoyed an outing at Bellewood Park, yesterday. They report having had a fine time.

Belated Announcement.

COMMUTATION RATES INCREASE POSTPONED

More Than Likely Now That Jersey Central Will Not Make Raise Until August 1 at Least.

Confirming, as it were, the report published exclusively in The Daily Press ten days ago, that the Jersey Central would not put its proposed increased commutation rates in effect on July 1, as announced, official statement was made to this paper today that not until tomorrow will the company decide the matter definitely. From information, which appears reliable, it seems safe to say that the Plainfield commuters will not have to pay an extra twenty-five cents a month for their commutation tickets until August at least.

When General Passenger Agent W. C. Hope was asked by a representative of this paper, over the telephone this afternoon about the rumor that the proposed increase would not go in effect until August 1, he stated that he had nothing to say at this time. He would neither confirm nor deny the story.

"We are considering the matter now," said Mr. Hope, in his usual polite way. "We will make an official announcement tomorrow." Beyond this brief statement, Mr. Hope could not commit himself.

Governor Fort yesterday invited the officers of the Commuters' League of New Jersey to meet him in Trenton tomorrow and incidentally map out a plan of action to fight the intended increase in passenger railroad rates. Governor Fort issued the invitation to the officers of the league in a conversation over the telephone with Thomas R. Creede, one of the vice presidents of the league.

Now that the Railroad bill has become a law and the Inter-State Commerce Commission is anxious to investigate the need for the increases in commutation rates, the Jersey Central appears to be the only road that wants to do what is right and just.

MR. AND MRS. LUDGATE TWENTY-FIVE YEARS WED.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ludgate, of Evona avenue, were given a surprise party at their home, in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. There were more than fifty guests and all enjoyed the affair. Music was furnished by the Misses Dorothy Hutchcroft, Helen Taylor, Grace Ludgate and Mrs. John W. W. Ludgate, piano; James Hallard, guitar and Mrs. A. B. Drake, violin. George Ledbetter, of Poughkeepsie and Mr. Everitts, of Brooklyn, rendered several pleasing vocal solos.

Mr. and Mrs. Ludgate received many gifts, among them a silver table set presented to them by Friendship Lodge, No. 4, Daughters of Rebecca, of which Mrs. Ludgate is past noble grand. Refreshments were served during the evening.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The trustees of the Baptist church are still endeavoring to find out the ones who defaced and placarded the parsonage fence, several weeks ago. A secret session was held Saturday night in the church parlors, which was attended by the trustees, Marshall Logan, of the borough, and one of the boys in town. Just what was done at the meeting has not been given out, but it is reported that Marshal Logan presented evidence he has gathered against the ones implicated and arrests may be made of the guilty ones in the near future.

One week from to-day is the big celebration. The event will be a new departure in celebrating the Fourth in town, but every one has come forward and did all they could to make the affair a success. The committee in charge has been assured of enough funds to pay all expenses and all that is needed is pleasant weather for Scotch Plains to enjoy a sane but glorious Fourth.

The local fans were without a game Saturday afternoon, some of the most ardent ones took in the game at Crescent Oval, while others witnessed the defeat of Rahway by Plainfield.

HEAVENLY REST CHURCH MID-SUMMER FESTIVAL

The second annual mid-summer festival of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Saturday afternoon and evening at the church was largely attended. In the afternoon there was a baseball game between the Ochiltree Oak Splitters and the Babcock Ringlers, in which the former team won out by a score of 12 to 8.

It was an exciting contest after the second inning. There were a few errors and the players put up a fine game. The Oak Splittters took advantage of the opposing pitcher and coupled with errors secured ten runs in the second inning. The score by innings:

Splitters	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	x	12

The grounds were illuminated, hundreds of incandescent lights being used. In the parish house the Men's Association planned an elaborate program of entertainment. It included Professor Henderson, in a series of amusing magical tricks and illusions; Madame Aimee, a spiritualist, who gave a demonstration of the so-called "communion with spirits"; Harry and Vincent Keffer, in a musical act, including musical flower pots, sleigh-bells, guitars, xlyophone.

The floor was then cleared and dancing was enjoyed. Arthur Caleen and William Ochiltree were the floor managers.

Outside on the lawn were many handsomely decorated booths in charge of the Women's Guild and Young People's Society. They had charge also of the fish pond, candy booth, lemonade well and art gallery. Russell Vail and Ganesvoort Van Alstyne dispensed lemonade; the Misses Susan and Jane Bennet sold candies; an art gallery was in charge of Samuel Kriney and Frederick Clark; Japanese bowling game was in charge of Miss Blanche Thorn. The guessing contest was directed by Miss Julia Lee. The Women's Guild was in charge of Mrs. Wiggs' Cabbage Patch, the coffee and sandwich stand, the cake and fancy tables.

The general committee comprised Mortimer Givens, chairman; J. A. Babcock, Charles C. Graves, William Ochiltree, and Rev. C. H. Mallery. The dance committee comprised William Ochiltree and Arthur Caleen. James Harris and Alfred Maynard were ushers; ice cream and strawberries, John Kriney and Joel Pennington. William Siegelin had charge of the decorations.

Mrs. I. M. Pelletier, Mrs. A. B. Drake and Miss J. Tabing served coffee and sandwiches; Mrs. C. J. Stace was the "Mrs. Wiggs," selling cabbage for ten cents a head; Mrs. Chas. Borden, Mrs. John Taylor, Mrs. Alfred Maynard and Mrs. Galloway were the saleswomen at the fancy table. A feature was the grab bag in charge of Miss Jennie Galloway. She was very successful.

THE COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

ONCE upon a time there was a man named Strang who called himself King and began a Mormon monarchy on Beaver Island, near the head of Lake Michigan. A young American named Plum began the dangerous experiment of interfering with the king's love affairs, and what Plum had planned should be but a diverting adventure, became a desperate matter of life and death—love instantaneous, lilac-scented, mysterious and ardent.

SHE WAS WARNED

"I've discovered it," announced the young man, sitting on the end of the small seat behind the palms and ferns.

"What?" asked in alarm the pretty girl who sat next him. "Is there too much powder on my nose, or do you think this is a last year's party dress made over? Because it isn't!"

"Nothing so banal," said the young man. "I don't quite know what banal means, but I like the sound of the word. No, what I've discovered is your New Year's resolution! You resolved to make me as miserable as possible!"

"How funny!" cried the pretty girl. "You aren't rehearsing for a parlor play or anything like that, are you?"

"Why should you jest with me?" the young man asked, reproachfully. "I don't have to rehearse set speeches with you—my remarks are spontaneous. They bubble forth of their own accord without any effort or control on my part."

"I should think it would make you terribly nervous," sympathized the young woman. "Never knowing what you were going to say, I mean. Why, you are likely to make all sorts of rash assertions or promises—and it's so hard to explain to people afterward!"

"I'm never that way with anyone but you," explained the young man.

"Oh, well, it's all right, then'" said the girl. "Of course I never pay any serious attention to what you say!"

"I'm quite aware of that fact," said the young man. "It's the thing which really worries me. I think you do it on purpose, as I said before, just to keep me unhappy."

"Why," said the young woman in a grieved tone, "I wouldn't make a fly unhappy if I could avoid it!"

"Of course you wouldn't," said the young man. "There aren't any flies at this time of year, and you know it. Besides, I'm not at all interested in the emotion of flies. What is engaging my attention wholly at present is the state of my own feelings, and they are what you might call harassed. Or harrowed."

"You speak as if you were a cornfield," remarked the pretty girl. "What have I ever done to you?"

He shook his head gravely. "I couldn't begin to tell you in the limited time at our disposal," he said. "Besides, if you had a particle of sympathetic tenderness in your nature you would know without any definite arraignment. Your conscience would be curling up in agony and making you so uncomfortable that you couldn't avoid saying, 'This is the result of my inhuman treatment of that deserving young man! It serves me perfectly right!'"

"You have plenty of self-conceit, haven't you?" remarked the young woman, with interest.

"Well," admitted the young man, "I couldn't stand being with myself so much if I didn't admire me. And really I'm an exceptional young man. I don't see why you shouldn't be kind to me. It isn't as though I went home Saturday nights and beat my mother and broke the furniture. I tell you I'm a worthy—"

"Well," cried the pretty girl, "what can I do more? Am I not sitting here in a secluded corner devoting my time and thought to you when the next waltz has started and there's a distracted man out there searching for me?"

"Exercise is good for him," declared the young man. "He'll feel better for a half-dozen sprints around the room. It's Spangden, I suppose. It must be Spangden, because every time I've seen you this evening you've been dancing with him—"

"I have not!" denied the pretty girl.

"Well, deny it if you choose," said the young man, with stern sadness. "One can't always believe what one sees. That's why I said you had resolved to see how miserable you could make me. Every time I saw you with Spangden I rushed off and pounded my head against the wall in baffled fury. If you keep it up there's no telling what will happen to me."

"As though it made any difference," scoffed the pretty girl, getting to her feet and shaking out her skirts.

"You don't know anything about it," said the young man with tremendous gloom. "Isn't that Spangden coming for you now? Oh, this is adding insult to injury!"

"We part friends, I hope?" said the young woman, with a prettily worried arch to her eyebrows.

"On the surface, yes," said the young man. "For your sake I promise not to dash out from behind these palms and things and strangle Spangden before he reaches you. But, girl, beware!"

"I think you're perfectly lovely!" laughed the pretty girl. "This talk has been real fun!"

"For you, perhaps!" amended the young man, darkly. "Hello, Spangden!"

A Trained Rooster.

Walter Adams, of Skowhegan, has a rooster which has been trained to do many odd and interesting things. The bird comes at Mr. Adams's call and when told to crow puts its head on one side and sends out a ringing challenge. Mr. Adams has trained the rooster to jump through his hands, and after he does any trick he is as proud as a child would be and will immediately crow. The rooster appears to delight to have his picture taken and will stand on a box or table and pose in a very knowing way. —Kennebec Journal.

When Candy Is Good for a Child.

The average, healthy child of 10 or 12 should be able to eat of pure candy the equivalent in weight of two or three lumps of sugar after his midday meal. This, however, should not be given him unless other proper foods, in sufficient quantity, are eaten, and should never be allowed between meals. Butter taffy and molasses candy, made at home of pure materials, are especially to be recommended, and may be considered valuable articles of food.—Jean Williams, M. D., in the Woman's Home Companion.

Peculiar Contract Upheld.

In a Belfast breach of promise case the man, a farmer, won. He agreed to marry a spinster if she could raiase $500. She was able to get together only $300, so the farmer called it off, despite the fact that he had ordered the clergyman to be on hand to marry them. The judge said that the promise to marry was conditional and the condition had not been fulfilled.

How to Clean Plaster.

When plaster casts become soiled with either dust or finger marks make a creamy solution of dry starch and cold water and apply it with a soft brush, carefully wetting all crevices and depressions. Set the cast aside to dry, then remove the starch with a stiff brush, and it will look as if fresh from the studio.—Harper's Bazar.

Task for Reporter.

"Covering a story" is a newspaper expression with a wide range of meaning. The other afternoon a facetious city editor stretched it a bit. "Mr. Jinks," he said to one of his reporters, "some one down on —— street has just been seriously hurt by falling into an open manhole; will you go down and cover it?"

Horrible Pun.

In the rathskeller a crowd of students were bawling out popular songs, keeping time with their beer mugs. "Those boys are good in mathematics," said the man who was safely entrenched behind a stein and a limburger sandwich. "They are very fond of lagerrhythms."—Gateway.

Told of Traveling Men.

A traveling man who evidently had much to square with his wife bought $50 worth of dainty waists. Said he was getting something nice for her each place he stopped. Another traveling man bought his wife a mink scarf for $50 and tucked it in his grip without even a paper covering.

Denatured Kicking.

New Jersey has a mayor who asks the citizens to come around once a week and register their kicks. Yes, and no doubt he has a bulky chief of police and several brawny patrolmen standing around to intimidate the kickers.

Why Pat Didn't Pay.

An Irishman refused to pay his doctor bill, and when asked his reason for it he said: "And, sure, what shall I pay for? He didn't give me anything but emetics, and niver a one could I keep on my stomach at all, at all."

Foolish Men.

"Everything is going all right with me," a man occasionally says to himself, without knowing he is saying it, "and things are getting monotonous; I believe I will go out and hunt trouble."—Atchison Globe.

He Failed to See It.

Mr. Closecoyne (during his wife's reception)—She gives 'em lights; she gives 'em music; she gives 'em food, flowers, champagne, and that's what she calls receiving!—Puck.

An Ancient Drum.

Frederick Wettig of Lancaster, Md., has presented to his grandson a drum over 100 years old. It was used when Buchanan was inaugurated, and carried during the civil war.

Facts.

Facts without principles are lumber without nails, stones without mortar, materials without a plan, body without life. Facts become science when arrayed in the order of principles.

Not Surprising.

"The way of the transgressor is hard." It ought to be, after all the travel that's passed over it.—Smart Set.

Wonders of Science.

Insanity is growing among servant girls, declares an eminent alienist. Thus does science confirm our suspicions.

Fortunes from Small Sums.

People do not always realize the value of small sums of money that have been sometimes the seeds of fortunes.

Need of Originality.

No matter how hard one may work, hard work will probably not achieve any striking success unless originality be intermingled with it.

Only Two Ways.

One must either be famous or a rogue to get photographed free.

A Foolish Practice.

Foolish people often go out of the way to meet the inevitable.

Greatness.

The great man is he who does not lose his child's heart.—Mencius.

MAYOR FISK ORDERS A NUISANCE ABATED

Acting promptly on the complaint made against the use of the public dump at the foot of Compton avenue, Mayor Fisk this morning instructed Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett and Assistant Health Officer John O'Brien to see that the nuisance is abated. At his honor's suggestion, Mr. O'Brien ordered the dump closed for the summer months.

Mayor Fisk also ordered Police Chief Kiely to see that the licensed ash wagon drivers who have emptied garbage at the dump be brought before City Judge Wm. N. Runyon for punishment. The first complaint of residents of the neighborhood was made through this paper on Saturday and the first official notice that the Mayor had of the condition was yesterday when one of the enarby residents lodged a complaint before him.

PERSONAL.

Her Capable Management

"Mrs. Jones and I had just a lovely time to-day," said Mrs. Deeson, coming in with a happy smile and rosy cheeks. "I know I'm a little late, dear, but you don't mind, do you?"

Deeson assured his wife that waiting an hour for his dinner was a mere bagatelle compared to her enjoyment. Deeson had not been married long enough to see the seriousness of establishing a domestic precedent.

"Found some extra bargains, eh?" said her husband, patting her on the cheek.

"You always take things for granted. How do you know we were shopping?"

"Deduction, my dear. First, you asked me for money this morning, which I cheerfully gave you with the cheerless remark that it was all I had, because I had loaned some to a friend. Secondly—"

"Papa used to say that it took moral courage to refuse to loan money to a friend. You ought to have refused. I can't see what men are always wanting to borrow money for."

"Their wives, my dear. Secondly, breakfast was on time—"

"Yes, Mrs. Jones and I wanted to get downtown ahead of the crowd. But we had to stand all the way. I don't believe all those women on the car had finished washing their breakfast dishes. It's awful the way some women do."

Deeson gave a wistful glance at the dinnerless dining-room table. Then he said, since his wife seemed to expect him to go on talking: "To continue my deductions: thirdly, Jones told me his wife had been reading the alluring advertisements and wanted to take advantage of the unparalleled bargains. Fourthly, he wanted—"

"Bargains! I should say so," interrupted his wife. "You could almost get things for nothing. Mrs. Jones certainly knows how to shop. I don't see how she can afford to spend so much money. She always acts as if she had a lot. I wish she wouldn't insist upon paying the car fare—implying that Mr. Jones gets more salary than you. I just told her that it wasn't likely the employer of both of you would pay one man more than another—right in the same office. So we both held out the car fare and when the conductor came for it she to reach over me and made me drop mine on the floor and then every one had to move. The conductor was impatient and took her fare—"

"How about the joy of shopping?"

"Oh, the start doesn't count. I wanted her to go with me to Martin's to look at suits, but she said she must go to another place first and get some knowledge of the prices. Such crowds! We had to elbow our way into the elevator, for we were determined not to wait for another car. Somebody stepped on my dress and tore it off the band, so we had to go back to the notion counter and buy some pins to hold me together. I discovered then that I had forgotten to bring the money you gave me this morning. Now, don't look so anxious—I'll show you what a financier I am.

"When we got to the suit department, there was a perfect love of a gown—entirely too small for Mrs. Jones. I put it on to show her how it would look if it hadn't been too small. She said I looked so nice that I really ought to have it—and it was only $17.49."

"Well, what did you do?"

"Of course she couldn't take it without first going to the store where I wanted to go. Jack, dear, the suits in that other store were ever so much more—not a thing under $18. Having seen the one for $17.49 at the first store, we went back for it. Would you believe it? That suit was sold. A woman had it on and wouldn't take it off, though Mrs. Jones explained that it was really my dress. So we went back to the other store and I bought the expensive— Don't laugh. It always seems a lot more where the price is marked in even figures. Mrs. Jones was going to get one for herself, but I explained that I had forgotten the money you gave me and asked her to lend me her money. I think I'll run over there now and pay her and get it off my mind."

"Never mind that twenty you borrowed of her. It will keep. Let's have some dinner."

"You clever thing! How did you know it was twenty that I borrowed?"

"I loaned it to Jones last night."

Mrs. Appleton Sniffs.

"The lure of a dab of rouge and a fluff of chiffon is as nothing to a man's heart compared with a bowl of onion soup,' was a decision handed down by the New Wifehood guild of New York and, when Mrs. Lysander John Appleton read of it she sniffed so hard she fell down in it. "I know the men," said Mrs. Appleton. "A man likes a good cook before dinner, but after he has eaten his onion soup and all that goes with it he doesn't want a hardworking woman to come around him, tired out, with her hair uncurled and her eyes still red from peeling the onions; he wants some light, fluffy creature, with the rouge and the chiffon, and who doesn't know an egg beater from a carpet sweeper. These women's clubs can't tell me anything; I know the men." Then she sniffed so hard she burst all her corset strings. And, when a woman sniffs so hard she bursts her corset strings, the sniff is the climax of con-

Her Boy's Book.

A certain woman is going to keep a diary of the clever things said and done by her boy. She expects to buy a large book and jot down all the interesting events in the child's life, keep it a secret, and give it to him when he is of age. The mother is of literary turn of mind, and this book, if ever completed, will be valuable to the owner, as many pleasant little childhood incidents occur that one forgets.

Iron Cross of Prussia.

The iron cross is the Prussian order of knighthood instituted March 10, 1813, by Frederick William III., and conferred for distinguished services in the war when carried on. The decoration is an iron cross with silver mounting. The grand cross is one of double size, presented exclusively for the gaining of a decisive battle or the capture or brave defense of a fortress.

Relic of the Past.

The modern housewife if she now sees an old clothes pounder in the collection is apt to ask: "What is that for?" It was used for pounding clothes in a barrel on washing day in the everlasting fight with dirt. It is far removed from the modern laundry or the washing machine of the present day.

Bricks from Anthills.

Excellent bricks are made of the soil of anthills in central Africa. The natives tread it with water into a doughlike substance, which is shaped in rough wooden molds. It is then dried in the sun, and afterward baked in native kilns.

Universities Then and Now.

Francis I., visiting the Spanish university of Acala de Henares in the sixteenth century, found 11,000 students. Bologna university had 10,000 students at the early height of its prosperity. It is now flourishing with 1,500.

Another Fling at the Poet.

"I'm a toiler in life's vineyard," wrote a Buffalo poet, and the linotype man made it "tailor." Still, this isn't so bad. Most poets would be glad if they could make their own duds.—Exchange.

To Loosen a Wick.

When a lamp wick is too large for the burner, and does not turn up readily, instead of cutting down the side to make it smaller, which makes the ravelings, draws two or three threads from the middle of the wick.

How to Spot 'Em.

"I shall not wed until I can marry a hero." "Well, you show the first man who proposes to you a schedule of the cost of living and if he still asks you to take him for your meal ticket he is a hero."

Appertaining to the Knocker.

"Sometimes de knocker is mo' foolish dan malicious," said Uncle Eben. "He's liable to be sacrificin' friendship an' respect foh de sake of intertainin' a mighty ongrateful audience."

Electricity at White House.

Electricity is the only illuminant used at the White House, and in many respects the electrical installation is the most elaborate and complete in any residence in the country.

No Snow on Highest Peaks.

Snow does not fall at a greater hight than 16,000 feet above the sea level, there being no moisture in the atmosphere. Therefore the highest mountains are not capped with snow.

Blood Will Tell.

"Mrs. McManus, you're a lady and your husband is a gentleman; but thot son Moike av yours, be hivins, he comes from a family of robbers, so he does."—Boston Transcript.

Observation by the Cynic.

"The closest the average man ever gets to thinking," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is when he thinks he's thinking."

Saved in Time.

Clerk (run into by somebody in the dark)—Stupid ass—(perceiving it is his employer) that I am.—Fliegende Blatter.

Eve's Chief Distinction.

Eve had the satisfaction of thinking, anyhow, that her husband was the best man in the world.—Somerville Journal.

Once Enough.

She—"History repeats itself, you know." "Not always. You never heard of a man eloping more than once, did you?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Uncle Ezra Says:

"The bald-headed man hez this satisfaction: His friends don't remind him uv it ev'ry time he's hed a hair cut."

Great Surgical Achievement.

"And what do you regard as the greatest triumph of modern surgery?" "Collecting the bills," promptly responded the great practitioner.

Crushing.

"Do you think that actor can sink his personality in his part?" "His acting is heavy enough to sink anything."

Therefore, Forget Them.

The troubles of to-morrow disqualify us for the duties of to-day.

Wonder of Mechanism.

A German shoemaker spent 15 years of his leisure moments in constructing a clock of the grandfather shape, nearly six feet high, made entirely of straw. The wheels, pointers, case and every detail are exclusively of straw. The most remarkable fact is that it is reported to keep perfect time, though the durability of this strange piece of mechanism is a matter of doubt.

Bee's Recognition of Landmarks.

There can be little doubt that so intelligent an insect as a bee has a long memory and a keen eye for landmarks. This is testified to by the fact that almost all bees fly by day, whereas such creatures as moths—of no fixed home or occupation—fly in the darkness. A bee would be lost at midnight because it could not recognize its surroundings.

Swing of the Pendulum.

"Many works of the highest literary excellence went begging among the publishers!" said the reminiscent person. "Yes," answered the man who doesn't care for best sellers. "But the publishers appear to have learned their lesson. Nowadays they seem willing to put almost anything into print."

Riches in Aspirations.

An aspiration is a joy forever, a possession as solid as a landed estate, a fortune which you can never exhaust and which gives year by year a revenue of pleasurable activity. To have many of these is to be spiritually rich.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Pillars of Fire.

Great men are the fire pillars in this dark pilgrimage of mankind; they stand as heavenly signs, everlasting witnesses of what has been, prophetic tokens of what may still be, the revealed embodied possibilities of human nature.—Carlyle.

Getting It at First Hand.

Penley—"For my new story I require a vivid description of the feelings of a man who has been drugged and robbed." Parker—"Easy enough to get that. Go and have a prescription filled."—Boston Transcript.

Justifying the Laugh.

"When you have the slimmest chance to smile take advantage of it," says the Chicago Post. We feel excused after reading this for having smiled yesterday at the skinniest woman we ever saw.

Alarming Symptoms.

"My wife has taken up the use of Indian clubs; what do you think of that, doctor?" "Well, really, if my wife began the use of any kinds of clubs I should consider them alarming symptoms!"

Revolution.

Our greatest thinkers and writers tell us we are breathing the atmosphere of revolution—not of blood—but of ideas, as become twentieth century folk.—Jessica Ford Reynolds.

Those Poignant Regrets.

When a man in church gets ready for the contribution basket and finds his smallest coin is a quarter, the bad taste in his mouth lasts all through dinner.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

The Decision.

"Has the new automobile or the old-fashioned buggy the best chance in courtship?" "Well, the automobile has a sparking plug."—Baltimore American.

Marriage.

Take no thoughts as to whom you shall marry. Marry whom you please, and you will discover that you have somebody else.—Smart Set.

Not Quite Clear.

"I gave a hint to Binks that in going into that enterprise he was skating on thin ice." "What did he do?" "Oh, he tumbled."

Astronomical Note.

Student of astronomy—I have discovered a new star, professor. Professor—What's she playing in, my boy?

Look to the Future.

What have the dinners of yesterday to do with to-morrow? Why spend your time turning over old straw?

The Bachelor.

A bachelor is a man with enough confidence in his judgment of women to act on it.—Puck.

Nugget of Truth.

A person who is very set in his way has to stumble over himself to get anywhere.—Puck.

The Wiseheimer Says.

Because a dark man happens to be a dinge, a dark room is not necessarily dingy.

Cloying Sweetness.

People who have no opinions are uninteresting; they never quarrel.

One of Life's Problems.

It is often more difficult to forget than it is to remember.

Happiness.

Happiness means to be with nature, to see it, to commune with it.—Tolstoi.

"The Fool Hath Said!"

Maxim of the bachelor: "The women never get the best of us."

A "Necessity" Sale of Men's Wear

Why do we call this a "Necessity" sale? We'll tell you: A year ago today we advertised the stock of Nichthauser & Co., the Sixth Avenue haberdashers. A tremendous week's business ensued. Now then, it is no easy matter to pick up such a plum as this every day. We searched high and low but nothing really worth these presented itself. Great, big figures stared us in the face, and not wishing to run behind, we set out for a big week's price cutting of regular goods. We've taken some of our best lines and reduced them and we shall continue to reduce all week. We don't want to do this but we have to—it's a "Necessity" sale in the strictest sense and we have every reason to believe that we will not only equal last year's figures but actually beat them—and beat them by a good, big margin, too. Come and help yourself and help to make this a record week.

What Everybody Says

The following is what it is said after the engagement is announced of almost any girl to almost any man:

The Girl Herself—I'd like to see Lillian's face when she reads the society news—if she ever does anything so intellectual as to read! She's always been perfectly crazy about Bob and she'll be utterly furious! She'll try to make people think she could have had him if she'd wanted him, but every one knows how she has chased him for months. I wonder if any one will send Arthur a paper. Poor boy! It will be such a blow to him! If ever a man was devoted to a girl he was to me. I'll always feel that I've ruined his life. He's one of the constant kind that never gets over such a disappointment. I wish I could decide whether I want a white satin or a crepe meteor wedding dress.

The Man Himself—Yes, they've got my name spelled right, after all. Gee! It's something like reading your own obituary notice, it's so formal! Anyhow, it's nobody's business but ours and I don't see any use of all this foolishness in print! Every idiot I know'll be around to see me to-morrow and tell me how to be happy though married! Well, it will settle McKenzie all right—he won't be sending Edith flowers now in that airy, oh-I've-got-a-chance-yet way of his. I always wanted to kick him. Robert Rogerson Fairburn—yes, that's me, all right. Well, life begins to look real and earnest now. I wonder if Ethel won't kind of think when she reads this that maybe she wasn't so bright after all running off and marrying Smith just because she had quarreled with me. She's had three years of pretty rough sledding with him. Of course it's all for the best so far as I'm concerned, but—I wonder!

Lillian—What! You don't tell me Bob is really engaged to Edith! Well, what do you think of that! It's most remarkable how men do these weird things when they are reduced to desperation, isn't it? Poor Bob! Of course Edith is a very nice girl—so capable and domestic and all that—but, my dear, did you ever see a girl so dowdy, and with so little style? I am sure Mrs. Noah did her hair up in precisely that same way in the days of the ark. Bob always did love pretty things—that's one reason he hung around me so much. Some men never notice a new gown or a smart hat, but he always does. No, I'm awfully fond of Bob, but mercy! I never could fall in love with him! Never! I suppose he realized it at last! Poor Bob!

Arthur—Hello! Edith's going to marry Bob Fairburn! Well, well! Nice little girl, Edith! Seems to me I had a crush on her myself once. She had the biggest brown eyes—no that wasn't Edith—it was Mabel. I remember now that Edith's eyes were blue. Or were they hazel? Where in creation did I put that tobacco? Hey—Ferguson! Got any tobacco?

McKenzie (who sent flowers to Edith)—One by one the roses fall! So Edith is going to shake us all for Bob Fairburn! It was worth the florists' bills, getting him mad. He seemed to think that every one was in a conspiracy to take his girl away from him. Edith's too quiet for me. But it paid to stand in with the family—her father's tips on the stock market were all right.

Ethel (who married Smith)—Oh, Teddy! Guess who's going to get married now—one of my old beaux! No, not that one—Bobbie Fairburn! Why, of course you remember him! He took me to that party where I first met you and was crazy mad because you had four dances! I used to think I rather liked him, but that was before you came along! I can't imagine why I ever was so foolish. Goodness! What if I had really married him! I had an awful time working up a quarrel with him so as to let him down easily. I hated to be downright brutal and drop him, so I seized on the first chance for a fight. It was awfully funny, now that I think of it! Well, Bobbie was a nice boy in his own way. I wonder who she is—I never heard of her.

Edith's Relatives (individually and collectively)—Well, I suppose this means another wedding present. It was perfectly idiotic of grandfather to start that custom of always giving the brides in the family solid silver. Something less expensive would do exactly as well. I suppose Edith will expect a huge tray just because her cousin got one from us. Maybe we can strike a sale. Anyhow, she is throwing herself away on Bob Fairburn. His family are simply nobodies. Well, she's 26 and I suppose she had to take what she could get.

Bob's Relatives—And when he had such a good chance to marry Senator Goldmine's daughter! And her shaky social position and her father and all! Why, he's simply burying himself. Bob always was stubborn. What can he see in Edith? She simply angled for him, that's all, and a man is so helpless! Poor Bob!

This country could no doubt be run a great deal better if it wasn't for the constitutional objection an American has to letting anyone run him.

Twirlers Battle Between Mac Laughlin and Knoth Won by the Former.

"WARRY WAS IN GREAT FORM.

Plainfielders Made But One Error While Seven Hits Were Credited to Them—A Rattling Good Game.

The Plainfield Baseball Club went to Rahway, Saturday afternoon, and whitewashed the local aggregation in a pitchers' battle between "Warry" MacLaughlin and Knoth, of Newark, formerly of the Pittsburg Nationals. The score was 6 to 0. Only a scratch hit in the ninth inning prevented "Warry" from being credited with a no run, no hit game. It was one of the best contests witnessed at Rahway this season.

The Rahwegians were helpless before the fine twirling of the Plainfield pitcher. He had everything on the ball and perfect control, while Knoth was touched for seven hits throughout the contest. The score:

ARIONS ARE DEFEATED BY THE GESANG NINE.

The Gesang and Turn Verein easily defeated the Arions of oSmerville on Saturday, by the score of 8 to 4. Van Droof pitched for the locals until the fifth inning, when he injured his arm and was forced to retire, N. Luthman taking his place. Frolick and Jackson was the battery for the Arions. The game did not start until after 4 o'clock owing to the late arrival of the Arions from Somerville. The line-up:

DUNELLEN WINS FROM NEWARK IN THE NINTH

Dunellen conquered the fast Marathon Club of Newark by the score of 7 to 6 in a fast game on the Lincoln avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon. The game was won in the ninth inning when Dunellen scored two runs. The game started with a lead of three runs for Dunellen in the first inning which was held until the fifth inning when two more were scored. The Newarkers, however, tallied three runs in this, one in the next and two in the seventh giving them a lead of one run. Neither scored in the eighth and in the last part of the ninth Dunellen tied the score and edged in one extra run. Montross pitched his usual good game. The summaries follow:—

FINALS NEXT SATURDAY IN SPRING CHAMPIONSHIP

In the semi-final round for the Spring championship cup at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, R. B. Titsworth won from Rev. C. L. Goodrich by default and W. V. Byard won from S. St. John McCutchen by default. Mr. Titsworth and Mr. Byard will meet next Saturday in the finals and an interesting match should result, because both players are nearly at the top of their game.

Several exceedingly good scores were returned for the President's, Club and Summer cups, and the play was close. The leading scores:

U. G. Tingley, 104, 28—76; W. R. Faber, 102, 22—80; W. V. Byard, 108, 24—84; C. B. Morse, 105, 19—86; A. M. Morrell, 117, 30—87.

The best scores for the Ladies' Summer cup, nine holes, were as follows:

Miss Grace A. Ten Eyck, 63, 16—47; M'ss Bess R. Ten Eyck, 80, 30—50; Mrs. Frank W. Jones, 64, 11—53; Miss Alice L. Morgan, 91, 30—61.

BARRISTERS BATTLE FOR GOLF SUPREMACY

The semi-final round for the June trophy, was an interesting event at the Plainfield Country Club, on Saturday. Arthur Murphy beat C. C. Burke, 1 up, but the exciting match of the day was between George S. Clay and Hugh F. Fox. They met in the morning and at the end of the round were all even, neither one having an advantage. In the play-off in the afternoon, Mr. Fox defeated Mr. Clay, after a close and exciting round, by 2 up.

The day's program also marked the termination of the play for the Spring Handicap cups, Classes A and B. Arthur Murphy was the winner of the Class A cup, and George S. Clay won the Class B trophy. The leading scores for the day were as follows:

Class A—W. Lester Glenney, 78, 4—74; R. G. Morse, 89, 13—76; William T. Glenney, 89, 6—83.

Class B—B. F. Kraffert, 97, 19—78; A. W. Kleinecke, 107, 26—81; Hugh F. Fox, 100, 18—82; Dr. F. E. DuBois, 108, 20—88.

The social features at the club on Saturday were enjoyed by an unusually large number of members and friends. In the evening there was the weekly dinner-dance and Superintendent John Hilton served dinner to sixty guests. The dancing was continued until 11.30 o'clock.

AARON B.'S GREAT RACE

T. S. Miller's Miss Syracuse is Beaten by Adam C. Blair's Trotter.

ON FAIR ACRES CLUB TRACK.

An Exceptional Card Attracted a Big Crowd at the Westfield Park on Saturday.

The free for all trot and pace at Fair Acres track, Westfield, on Saturday afternoon proved a surprise to lovers of light harness racing. The race was the prettiest ever witnessed in this section of the State and was won by Aaron B. owned by Adam Blair, of this city, defeating Miss Syracuse, owned by T. S. Miller, of Newark, in two straight heats. The time for the first heat was 2.16 and the time for the second heat 2.15, breaking the track record of 2.15½.

The second heat showed Miss Syracuse and Aaron B. side by side, a single blanket could have covered the horses from wire to wire. Aaron B. was driven by Adams Blair, his owner, while John Stearns handled the ribbons over Miss Syracuse. The race also exhibited great skill upon the part of the drivers who drove a perfect race. Intense excitement prevailed in the grand stand and when the finish wire was reached Aaron B. shoved neck and head under the wire to win.

The pretty track was in excellent condition for the sport. Igo, owned by I. G. Stelle, of Newark, captured the 2.20 trot. Ravenwood owned by H. P. Cortelyou, of Princeton, won the 2.30 trot, and Tramway, owned by W. Wortendyke, of Westfield, the 3 minute trot. The prize of the 2.30 trot and pace was a handsome cup, donated by W. B. Hutchings. A similar cup was donated by Edward D. Floyd for the 2.20 trot and pace, and a third cup was donated by J. S. Irving for the free-for-all. The first prize in the 3-minute race was a set of horse clothing, donated by Harry W. Evans. The blue, yellow and red ribbons were awarded in each race.

The afternoon proved ideal for the sport, and the grandstand and field were comfortably filled with spectators who came from many sections of the State in automobiles and carriages. The races were started by Ray Edwards, of Westfield, who was recently appointed a licensed professional starter by the National Trotting Association. J. Wesley Johnson, of this city; H. W. Evans and Dr. C. M. F. Egel, of Westfield were the judges, and timers. It was the first matinee of the season under the auspices of the Westfield Riding and Driving Club. Following are the results:

2.30 Trot and Pace.

Ravenwood Cortelyou, Princeton. 1 1
Colin, Keenan, Elizabeth. 3 2
Mary Wilkes, Stelle, Newark. 2 3
Alasia, Irving, Westfield. 4 4

Proctor's New Show.

Russell and Reid, a pair of classy singers, dancers and comedians, will present a bright up-to-date act at Proctor's theatre, today. Minnie Stanley & Co., will appear in a comedy sketch, "My Hero;" Sylvia Wayne, a chic comedienne, will entertain with songs and Brown and Scheftall, the colored politicians, are good. The pictures are good, as usual.

Papa Did the Rest.

Odd evidence against an inattentive schoolboy was delivered to the parents of an urchin the other day by his teacher. It seems that while the history class was in session the youth, instead of paying attention to his teacher, was looking up toward the ceiling with his mouth wide open dreaming. The teacher did not disturb him until after he had drawn a sketch of him in that position. After the class was dismissed the teacher mailed the sketch to the parents, adding a caption which explained all. Next day the boy was unusually alert.—New York Sun.

"Reduce Your Fat."

James Flynt of Idaho was 14 years old on the first of July and weighed 190 pounds. He was so fat that the doctors feared for his life. Then he took a walk, got lost in the mountains, and was not found for a month. He had lived on roots and berries, and slept in a cave, and his weight had come down to 105 pounds. If you are too fat the remedy is to get lost. If you are not eaten up by the bears you will come out all right.

Busy Isthmian Railway.

The railway across the isthmus of Tehuantepec is 190 miles long. It was constructed chiefly with British capital and is controlled in part at least by the Mexican government. It was built especially for the purpose of handling freight between the Atlantic and Pacific, and, although opened at the beginning of 1907, has already carried about $100,000,000 worth of merchandise passing chiefly between the Atlantic and Pacific ports of the United States.

Styles in Languages.

My little German maid said to me one day: "Susie Jones is going to start to high school to-morrow, and she asked me whether she should take German or Latin." "What did you tell her?" I asked. "Well, you know," replied Mary, "Latin is going out; they don't talk that much any more, so I told her I would take German."—Exchange.

Saving One Storm.

When a certain Atchison man visits another town, his wife complains and so does his mother. Therefore, in order to avoid it, he says he is going out to get shaved and doesn't return until the visit is over. When he returns there is a storm, but under the old plan there were two storms, one before he went and another after his return.—Atchison Globe.

One Kind of Heaven.

"Do you know what will be heaven enough for me when I get there?" asked the printer as he read the proofs for the 'steenth time. "To see a large bonfire made of these writers who make us read proofs of these books and things that nobody else ever reads."

Ferry Bridge Over the Rhine.

The ferry bridge continues to find favor in Europe. One of this type, with a span of 910 feet, is planned for erection across the Rhine at Koblenz, Germany. The floor, with its double track, will be carried by a steel arch.

AN AMERICAN KING

A Romantic and Well-Nigh Forgotten Incident in American History Recalled in "The Courage of Captain Plum," Our New Serial by James Oliver Curwood.

On the curving shore of Beaver island, not far from Mackinac, in Lake Michigan, an irregular row of low cabins struggles along a single street of deep and drifting sand. Here a few dwellings, three or four stores and warehouses, and several cooper shops form a hamlet, which is clothed by law with the dignity of a county seat. This is St. James, where once a "Royal Press" executed kingly commands, and its name preserves the self-canonization of one who founded and maintained in the United States a monarchy absolute during its brief term and within its narrow and isolated limits—an imperium in imperio in democratic America.

The king of Beaver island in his plebeian days bore the name of James Jesse Strang. He was the son of a sturdy farmer of Cayuga county, New York. As a young man he is described as possessing eccentric ideas and a voluble tongue, and as being entirely reputable in life, with large confidence in his own capacity, and morbidly anxious for distinction. In 1843 he was caught in the tide of western emigration and borne to Burlington, Wis. Not long before Joseph Smith had founded on the banks of the Mississippi the Mormon city of Nauvoo, and was welcoming young men of energy and plausible speech to spiritual blessings and earthly honors. Strang felt this influence, was baptized into the church on February 25, 1844, and became an elder less than ten days after.

When Joseph Smith was murdered by the mob that stormed the Carthage jail, Strang laid claim to the succession, and exhibited what purported to be an autograph letter from Smith dated nine days before "the martyrdom of Joseph," in which his heirship was declared. The officers of the church at once proclaimed the letter a clumsy forgery and drove Strang from Nauvoo as a presumptuous impostor. So he started things on his own hook, founding the city of Voree, in Wisconsin, and organizing the community on a socialistic basis. Thence the colony migrated in 1846 to Beaver island, and the socialistic community ended in a monarchy. Strang was proclaimed king, established a "Royal Press," took unto himself five wives, allowed three to each of his followers, made all the women wear bloomers and short skirts, prohibited tea, coffee, tobacco and liquor, and ruled with a high hand generally. His tyranny was the cause of his own downfall. Two of his followers, whom he had horsewhipped, shot him in the head.

Mr. Curwood makes King Strang the central figure of The Courage of Captain Plum, which will appear in this paper in serial form.

Pianos and Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

MEDICAL SOCIETY MEETS

SOME IMPORTANT PAPERS.

Noted Doctors to Be Heard on Topics of Interest to the Profession —Plainfield is Represented.

Beginning today and continuing three days the one hundred and forty-fourth session of the State Medical Society of New Jersey will be held in the Hotel Chalfonte, Atlantic City. Several Plainfield physicians are already registered. Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, secretary of the society, is among the number. Last night there was a meeting of the board of trustees, but nothing of importance transpired.

The first regular session of the convention was held this morning, wh enreports of committees were made.

At the afternoon session there was an oration. "When and by Whom Should Surgery Be Advised?" by John B. Deaver, Philadelphia; "Empyema," Irwin H. Hance, Lakewood; "The Early Recognition and Diagnosis of Oragnic Diseases of the Nervous System," by William M. Lesznsky, New York; "Acute Pyelitis in Children," George B. Philhower, Nutley; report of the delegates to the International Medical Congress at Budapest; also of the delegates to the convention of the ninth decennial session of the United States Pharmacopoeia.

The evening session program includes the annual address by the president: "A Plea for a Higher Standard of Medical Education;" oration in medicine, "The Broader Aspects of the Science of Medicine," W. Gilman Thompson, New York city. "The Significance of the Agglutinating Power of the Blood Serum During and After Typhoid Fever," George T. Welch, Passaic; reading of the prize essay, subject, "Ophthalmia Neonatonum."

For tomorrow these are the features: Meeting of the secretaries and treasuers of the important societies; "Contribution to Stomach Surgery," Edward Staeblin, Newark; "Surgical Mishaps," Frank D. Gray, Jersey City; "The Spontaneous Cure of Maglignant Disease, with the History of a Very Unusual Case," Alexander Marcly, Jr., Riverton; "Stenosis of the Respiratory Vestibule," Emery Marvel, Atlantic City; "Myasthenia Gastro-Intestinalis," Henry A. Cossitt, New York city; meeting of the House of Delegates address at general session by the third vice-president, Norton L. Wilson, Elizabeth; "The Relation of the Public to and the Obligation of the Physician in the Development and Spread of Bacterial and Epidemic Disease," Philip Marvel, Atlantic City; "Hilk," Alexander McAllister, Camden; "Adenoids: Their Influence Upon the Mental Condition of the Patient," Joseph Koppel, Jersey City.

Thursday this program will be followed: "Medical Expert Witness: The Alienist or an Expert Witness," William H. Hicks, Newark; "Relation of Water to Malarial Fever; Cistern versus Well or Spring Water," John Walters, Wharton; "The Nasal Accessory Sinuses and the Eye," G. Harold Ward, New York; "Military Hygiene and Sanitation for Troops When in the Field," Major Henry Allers, Harrison.

PLAYING WITH MATCHES CHILDREN SET HOUSE AFIRE.

Children playing with matches near an oil stove is believed to be the cause of a fire which did about $25 damage at the home of Mrs. J. Kellogg, 273 Watchung avenue this noon. Mrs. Kellogg has to go out for work and as a result three children, the oldest of whom is twelve years, are left in the house alone.

About 11:15 o'clock a passerby saw smoke issuing from one of the rear windows. An alarm was turned in and the borough fire department responded, finding some clothes in the kitchen in flames. They extinguished the blaze with chemicals before serious damage was done to the woodwork.

Will Present Interesting Papers.

The mid-week meeting tomorrow evening at the First Baptist church will be under the direction of the Women's Missionary Societies. Two papers prepared for the societies will be preesnted, the readers being Mrs. Martin I. Cooley and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss. The meeting will be, as usual, for all men and women, boys and girls. The Wednesday night services at this church are always largely attended and of much interest.

SOLD EMPLOYEE'S WHEEL TO PAY A $2.50 BILL

Charles Smith, colored, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was held in $100 bail by City Judge William N. Runyon this morning to await the action of the grand jury. Smith was arrested last night by Patrolman Kelly in the act of selling a wheel, which Smith had borrowed yesterday afternoon from Augustus Clark.

Both are painters, and Smith told the judge that he had hired Clark to letter a wagon. The price of the job was to be $2.50. Smith did not have this, so tried to sell Clark's wheel in order to raise the money to pay Clark. Later in the evening he expected to collect $5 from another job which would enable him to buy the wheel back. In this way he would be able to pay Clark on time. The judge considered that the negotiation had been conducted without the owner's consent, and that inasmuch as Clark had filed notice of the theft of his wheel by Smith with the police, he held the latter in bail to await the action of the grand jury.

NO LICENSE NEEDED BY MIKE GALLAGHER

Michael Gallagher is happy today because the proceedings instituted against him by the borough of Dunellen for conducting an express business without a license were dismissed by Justice Suydam yesterday. Gallagher admitted that he had done some carting work for William J. Winges, of Bound Brook road, but that it was purely as a neighborly act. The business was not solicited and no payment was made for the work.

When the testimony had been given, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., counfor the borough, moved for a dismissal of the case on the grounds of no cause for action. Lawyer Cooper, of New Brunswick, represented Gallagher. There was considerable difficulty in drawing a jury to hear the testimony in the case.

Another case which was brought by Gallagher was held over until a later date. This action was one in which Gallagher charged Charles Saueracher, a driver for the People's Transportation Company, and Edwin Blasis, a driver for the Greater Plainfield Express Company, with selling liquor in Dunellen without a license. The complaint was made by Gallagher before Justice Suydam, of New Brunswick, and the warrants were served Saturday night by Constable George Dougherty. Harry Cook is counsel for Gallagher; William Newcorn for Blasis and Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., for Saueracher.

POOR YOUNGSTERS ENJOY AN AUTO RIDE.

The first annual automobile outing given to the children from the Children's Home and The Day Nursery on Saturday afternoon, proved a great pleasure for the children, as well as those who donated the use of their cars for the trip. Thirty-five children in all, twenty-one from the Children's Home and fourteen from The Day Nursery, enjoyed the ride, which included Metuchen, Oak Tree, Stelton, New Market and other nearby places.

Among those who donated the use of their cars were A. E. Force, Wm. Price, F. H. Ball, H. W. Marshall, F. J. Hubbard, Edmund Rushmore and Arthur E. Smith, and the committee in charge, of which Mr. Rushmore was chairman, desires to thank the autoists.

At the conclusion of the ride the children were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Dryden on DeLacey avenue, where refreshments were served and a good time was had by the whole party.

Allee—Johnson.

The marriage of Miss Hilda Johnson, of Elizabeth, and Joseph Allee, of Brooklyn, took place at Elizabeth on Wednesday, May 25, and the couple will reside at 66 Norwood avenue, this city. The couple has lleased the house at 66 Norwood avenue and will reside there after July 4. The couple are spending a couple of weeks at Atlantic City before taking up their residence here.

Auto Hit Bicyclist.

Antonio Diorcho, of Cottage place, while riding his bicycle on East Fourth street, last night was struck by an automobile and thrown to the ground. The auto kept right on its way without stopping. Aside from several bruises Diorcho was uninjured.

Miss E. B. Hartridge, of West Seventh street, has gone to Europe for the summer.

STATE PLAYGROUND ASS'N

Representatives of Movement Attended Meeting in Newark This Afternoon.

PLAINFIELD NOT REPRESENTED

Local Playground Commission Holds Important Meeting Tonight—City Will Join the State Association.

As his time is occupied in preparing for a meeting of the local Playground Commissioners this evening, President H. W. Marshall was unable to attend the meeting held in Newark this afternoon, which was held for the purpose of forming a New Jersey State Playground Association to advance the movement in New Jersey along intelligent lines. Plainfield, however, will join the association and work with the commissioners from other parts of the state in the plan to promote interest in the project.

The matter of organizing a state association has been under advisement for more than a year, and all throse to whom Supervisor William J. McKiernan, of the Newark Playground System, has written in the past about it heartily concurred in the plan. During the recent Playground Congress at Rochester, the delegates from New Jersey held an informal meeting and it was then and there that the movement took tangible shape. Judge George H. Dalrymple, of Passaic, was chosen temporary chairman, and Lincoln E. Rowley, temporary secretary. The latter sent invitations to the various playground commissioners throughout the state and to those at the head of playgrounds to attend the meeting. Permanent officers were this afternoon selected and a committee on organization was to outline a policy to govern the proposed State association.

In a general way the state association will have for its object a combination of effort so that the work may be carried on in the most efficient manner. The question of available employees, their character and qualifications was discussed. While there are hundreds of young men and women desirous of entering the playground field as workers, the number of competents is lamentably small. The question of the best kind of apparatus, the most durable, economical and serviceable was another question to be covered.

The extension of the playground movement in the smaller cities and towns where it has not yet been introduced was taken up and means and measures discussed whereby other communities may be helped to playgrounds. Legislation for the benefit of the movement was also among the details attended to, and certain educational and civic features of the movement were discussed.

IMPERIAL MILITARY BAND ENGAGED FOR CELEBRATION.

Charles Suhr's Imperial Military Band has been engaged to furnish the music for the Fourth of July celebration at Scotch Plains in the evening of that day, and he has arranged to have his full band out on that occasion. The program in two parts, will be as follows:

Part I. Star Spangled Banner; march, "Hostrauser's," W. Paris Chambers; overture, "Lustpiel," Keler-Bela; "The Sunny South," Lampe; cornet solo, "Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland," Rossiter; medley selection, "Bits of Remick's Hits," Lampe; "Dance of the Clowns," Marceline, Jacobs; characteristic, "Sissy Giggles," Jacobs.

Dumped Garbage on City Grounds.

Edward Thomas, a driver for the Endress Company, was arrested yesterday for dumping garbage on the city dumping ground on Compton avenue. When arraigned this morning before City Judge Runyon, Thomas said that he merely took the garbage in barrels without knowing what was in them. He was released and the police will take the matter up with his employers.

Corporation Counsel Going Abroad.

Corporation Counsel and Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, of West Eighth street, leave tomorrow on their annual trip to Europe. They will be abroad six weeks.

BIDS RECEIVED FOR ADDITION TO A SCHOOL

Bids for a two-story brick addition to the Franklin school were received at the meeting of the Board of Education in the board rooms last night. The bids received were from the Ross Bush Company for $7,501; and from John Abbott for $6,181. The addition includes toilets for both boys' and girls' departments. The matter is now in the hands of the building committee and work will probably be started and completed this summer.

The request of the playground commission for the use of the toilets during the summer for the children was granted and a request to put in two drinking fountains at each of the playgrounds in this city was also granted.

MONEY SORELY NEEDED FOR THE BABY CAMP

The officers of the City Union of the King's Daughters hope that the recent bequest of Mrs. Minnie E. Edgerton of $5,000 for its work will not confuse the minds of the friends and supporters of this charitable work. The organization is very much in need of funds with which to carry on the work at the Day Nursery and the summer camp on the mountain. Plans are now being considered for the building of a new Day Nursery, one that will adequately meet the requirements, and it is the intention to use the $5,000 bequest for that purpose.

The Union owns the property on West Third street, now used for Day Nursery, purposes, and it may be decided to dispose of that property and build one in a more suitable locality.

A committee of the charitable organization went to the summer camp yesterday to prepare for the annual opening within a short time. Eighteen babies it is known now, will be guests. Many more will wish to send their little ones there during the hot summer days. The expense of operating the camp is considerabe, and the Union hopes that the people will be as generous as they can in their contributions. Any money sent to the Daily Press for this object will be acknowledged and sent to the proper official. Already $28 has been received by this paper for the purpose of defraying current expenses at the camp.

OFFICIALS MUST PAY THEIR TROLLEY FARE

New Jersey county and municipal officials, including many Plainfield municipal officials, who now ride on passes furnished by the Public Service Railway Company, will pay their fare after July 4. On that day the new public utilities bill will become operative and this provides that these officials shall not be furnished complimentary tickets.

For many years the Public Service, which controls the greater part of the trolley lines in New Jersey, has been very liberal with its passes, the most humble office holder and ward politician being supplied. Last year the list of complimentaries was cut down, but the apportionment remained very liberal.

The new law does not provide any penalty for its enforcement and the officeholders had hoped in the absence of this the passes would not be disturbed. The Public Service, however, will issue a letter to pass holders that it proposes to observe the law.

The act provides that only county and municipal officeholders shall not receive free transportation, so that state officials or whose appointment is made by the Governor will not come under the prohibition of the act.

Salvation Army Meetings.

The meeting tonight at the Salvation Army tent, on Watchung avenue, will be in charge of Captain and Mrs. Hewitt. There will be bright singing, including solos. The tent is on a high elevation and is free from any dampness. Tomorrow night the meeting will be in charge of Adjutant Jackson, and Thursday night, Mrs. Isabella C. Davis, one of the ten founders of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, will deliver an address.

CONFESS AS BURGLARS

Two Youths, Louis Fulton and John Polan Admit Serious Offenses.

FRANCISCO IS EXONERATED.

Counsel for George Francisco has no Difficulty in Clearng Client of the Charge—Others Held Without Bail.

A prison sentence of from three to ten years at hard labor confronts two borough boys. They are Lewis Fulton, aged 16, and John Polan, aged 17, who pleaded guilty to the charge of burglarizing the store of aged Philip Ackor on Somerset street near Johnston's drive last Tuesday.

When the youths were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Thomas Snape last night, the court room was crowded. Neither was represented by counsel; and neither seemed to understand the seriousness of their crime.

"You are charged with a serious offense—burglary with intent—how do you plead?" said the court.

"Guilty," was the answer in each case.

"Held without bail to await the action of the September sitting of the grand jury," said the court.

Then for the first time, Fulton the younger of the two betraved emotion. His rather effeminate mouth twitched as he turned and asked the court:

"But, can't we have bail?"

"Not unless the county prosecutor lets you have it."

The youth seemed a trifle dazed for a moment and his mouth twitched considerably; but he accepted the court's decision without a murmur and was led back to his cell. Today he was taken to the Somerville County jail where he may have to spend the remainder of the summer. The court's decision had a less visible effect on Polan.

When this case had been disposed of George Francisco who was arrested on suspicion for being complicated in the burglary at the home of George Bremmer on Harrison avenue was given a hearing. William G. DeMeza, who represented Francisco so completely shattered to pieces the alleged case against his client that Francisco was a free man in twenty minutes after having spent nearly two days in the borough police headquarters.

One of the sensational features of the hearing was the introduction in the testimony of a black hand letter. This was sent to Fulton, who was concerned in the burglary of Ackor's store. It commanded him to appear in front of the Babcock building with a hammer, a screw driver and a knife on the midnight that the burglary at Bremmer's home took place. Fulton said that he had burned the letter so that his mother would not see it. The attempt to show that Francisco had been concerned in the threat in any way failed. The court dismissed the case. Fulton, it appeared, had told a Mrs. Dean, an aunt, that he thought Francisco did the job. He could give no reasons why he thought so. Mrs. Bremmer stated that the night of the burglary she had seen a man with black hair in her room. Accordingly when Francisco offered himself to the borough police Saturday for identification purposes, he was among the three young men who were placed before her. When asked who she thought was the man, she pointed to Francisco. Accordingly he was held from Saturday night to last night for the hearing. The assertion of Fulton that Francisco was at all complicated in the black hand letter incident or the robbery at Bremmer's house was thrown out because Fulton under cross examination fire by William DeMeza repeatedly contradicted himself.

Plainfield Council Elects.

Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., at its regular meeting, last night, elected these officers: Past Councilor, William F. Richards; councilor, Harvey VanPelt; vice-councilor, Daniel G. VanWinkle; financial secretary, Joel Pennington; recording secretary, Arthur J. Spicer; assistant recording secretary, Walter Muller; treasurer, Julius G. Williams; warden, Frank W. Downs; conductor, A. K. Fleming; outside sentinel, Garret Ackerman; inside sentinel, Walter P. Kennedy; trustee, Fred E. Sebring. The officers will be installed Monday night, July 11, as there will be no meeting on July 4.

ROMANCE IN BAKERY ENDS IN A WEDDING

"A romance which began in a Flushing bakery," said the Brooklyn Eagle, of Sunday "had a satisfactory ending last week, when Miss Jessie Zych, who came from Poland three years ago, was married to Joseph Smith, of Plainfield." The wedding took place in Blackstump, in the outskirts of Flushing, at the home of a mutual friend.

"For some time Miss Zych was a waitress in a bakery and managed to save about $1,000 of her wages. She declared to her employers that she would never marry, but recently when young Smith accepted a position in the same establishment Miss Zych changed her mind on the question of matrimony. As a result the Flushing bakery is now minus two employes, and the bridal couple intend to go into the same business on their own account with the capital that they both have saved from their earnings."

EJECT FREEMAN STRAIT FROM UNDERHILLS' FARM

The case of Gerard H. Underhill and his wife Mrs. Anna Underhill, against Freeman Strait in an action of ejectment in the Supreme Court was tried yesterday at Somerville before Judge Vail.

The lease gave a farm of 100 acres to the defendant for five years with the privilege of five years more unless notified to the contrary by the owners. The plaintiffs claimed that the defendant had engaged in other business and had neglected the farm and that for nearly three years they had received no profits. They were called on, it was alleged, to meet the expenses and the defendant had planted crops too late and hadn't properly cultivated them; but had let them waste and had let the farm run down.

The defendant claimed that the farm was poor and wouldn't produce good crops and that it was not his fault that there were no profits.

The case had been tried before a justice of the peace and a jury, before and the plaintiff's won. This decision was appealed to the Supreme Court and the defendant then applied to the Court of Chancery for an injunction to enjoin this suit but the Court of Chancery would not permit it unless the defendant would give a bond of $1,000 to the plaintiff to indemnify him against costs. The bond was not given and the suit came to trial; and after a full day the judge holding the jury until 6 o'clock to complete the case, rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs.

Codington and Swackhamer and Winfield S. Angleman represented the plaintiffs and Joseph Stryker, of Trenton, from the Attorney General's office, represented the defendants.

The defendant will deliver possession to the plaintiff on July 6.

Gratifying Report.

The officers of the Plainfield Mining Company feel that congratulations are in order since receiving the report of Prof. T. C. Hopkins, geologist, of Syracuse University. Last week Prof. Hopkins spent two days at the company's property in Virginia, where he made a thorough and exhaustive examination. In his report just received by Charles L. Moett, Prof. Hopkins states that undoubtedly large ore bodies exist on the property. The company has purchased a core drill and will drill for ore at the points indicated by Prof. Hopkins, while on the ground. The full report can be seen at the offices of C. L. Moffett or J. T. Vail. The officers of the company are: President, J. T. Vail; vice president, Floyd T. Woodhull; treasurer, C. L. Moffett; secretary, J. P. Powers.

Will Celebrate First Anniversary.

The Netherwood Reformed church will be a year old on Sunday, and on Friday night it is planned to hold a service of special interest. It will be of patriotic nature, and former Assemblyman Swackhamer has consented to make an address. The church will be appropriately decorated for the occasion. On Sunday the services will also be appropriate to the first anniversary, the program for which will be announced later.

Jones Gets 20-Day Sentence.

Sheridan Jones, colored, was taken to the Somerset county jail this afternoon by Chief Weiss for a 20-day stay there. Jones is an old offender in the borough, and was arrested Saturday for being drunk and disorderly. He was sentenced to the 20-day stay at the county expense by Recorder Dolliver this morning.

COMMUTATION RATES NOT TO BE INCREASED

Jersey Central Road's Official Statement Confirms The Daily Press' Exclusive Announcement.

The Daily Press was the first newspaper to inform the public that the Jersey Central Railroad had decided not to put its increased commutation rates in effect on July 1, the announcement having been made in this paper exclusively yesterday. General Passenger Agent Hope practically confirmed the Daily Press report before this paper went to press yesterday and promised to make formal announcement today. That he has kept his word is borne out by this message in the form of a statement, directed to and received by the city editor this afternoon:

"Notice to commuters.

"The following telegram was received by the president of this company at 9.10 a. m., the 24th inst.

"Received at the Western Union Building, 195 Broadway, N. Y., June 23, 1910, 5.38 p. m.

"Washington, D. C.,
"June 23.

"George F. Baer, President Central Railroad of New Jersey,
"143 Liberty street, New York N. Y.

"Several complaints have been filed against advances in commutation rates between New Jersey points and New York city and commission is urged to suspend the same. The new law has not been carefully examined and some of my associates are absent. Under the circumstances and to afford opportunity for proper consideration both as regards our power and the propriety of its exercise, the commission requests your company to postpone until August first the effective date of tariffs announcing these advances. Your compliance with this request will be highly gratifying and permission to postpone will be granted on application.

"MARTIN A. KNAPP,
"Chairman."

"President Baer immediately telegraphed the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission that, under the circumstances, he thought the chairman's request a reasonable one, and that the Jersey Central would promptly comply with it. On the 27th Chairman Knapp advised that his request should be modified by substituting July 20th or August 1st as the postponed effective date of the new tariffs.

"This action concerns in no way the merits of the question, but has been taken out of deference to the very corteous request of the Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission. This company has accordingly duly filed a tariff postponing the effective date of the increased rates until July 20th. Tickets will be on sale until July 20th, therefore, at the regular rates prevailing hitherto.

"All persons who have already bought commutation tickets, for July at the advanced rates will receive a refund of the difference between the advanced rate and the old rate upon their filing a claim in writing, directed to the undersigned at the address given below, stating address to which refund should be sent.

"The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey."

"by W. C. HOPE,
"General Passenger Agent.

"143 Liberty street, New York, N. Y. "June 28th, 1910."

The Interstate Commerce Commission has fixed July 12 as the date of the beginning of the hearing of the complaints brought by Jersey commuters against the railroads which propose to increase their commutation rates. On Saturday all the railroads, with the exception of Erie, agreed to postpone the effective date of the new rates until July 20 pending an investigation. The president of the Erie declined to postpone new rates on that road, and they would have become effective yesterday, but the commission late on Saturday night, following the refusal of the Erie, suspended the rates pending investigation. This suspension of rates was the first under the new railroad law.

All railroads doing business between Buffalo and Chicago have placed on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission new tariffs showing increased rates for the carrying of the six classse of freight. The new rates are similar to those of the Lake Shore road, notice of which was given on Saturday.

MADISON AVE. and FRONT ST., Opposite P. O.

July by parading through town and giving an informal band concert. Scotch Plains should have plenty of music between this and Suhr's Imperial Band which has been engaged for the celebration.

The cake, candy and ice cream sale which was to have been held on the lawn of the Bapt'st church on the afternoon of the Fourth has been postponed until a later date.

Mrs. Albert Hollingsworth and child, who have been visting her mother, Mrs. John R. Marsh, of Park avenue, have returned to their home at Buffalo, N. Y.

Edward Meyer, who has been enjoying a two weeks' vacation, has returned to his position with the Metropolitan Insurance Co., in its New York office.

Mr. and Mrs. David R. Clark, of Newark, have been spending the week end with Mr. Clark's mother, Mrs. Benjamin Clark, of Prospect avenue.

Isaac Cruse, of Rahway, was the guest over Sunday of his nephew, George Baldwin, of Front street.

If the township committee intends to oil the streets, it is about time something was done toward it.

PERSONAL.

Miss Clarissa Lissignolo, of East Front street, is detained at home by illness.

Mrs J. Edgar Corlies, of Road Ending, left yesterday for Bisby, N. Y., where she will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker, Jr., of Duer street, will leave next week for Lake George, where they will spend their vacation.

Miss Blanche Derry, of Westervelt avenue, is entertaining her friend, Miss Frances Caldwell, of Riverside Drive, New York city.

Mrs. A. C. L. Lissignolo, of East Front street, is planning to take possession of her cottage at Belmar for the summer.

Principal Lindsey Best, of the Plainfield High School, accompanied by Mrs. Best, left yesterday for their summer camp in the Adirondacks.

David J. Carney has returned from Morris Cove, Long Island, where he spent a few days enjoying ocean breezes, as well as yachting on the Sound.

Hugh Gormley is planning to go to his old home in Ireland for his vacation. He will leave here on July 20. Mrs. Gormley has been abroad for several weeks and she will return with Mr. Gormley.

SHOOTING VICTIM IS STILL UNIDENTIFIED.

Elizabeth, June 27.—The body of the man who was found near Townley Station, in Union township, Saturday morning, with a bullet hole through his head and another through his neck, still lies unidentified at Engel's morgue, here. County Detective John A. Gallatian, of Union, started today for Shenandoah, Pa., to see if he could find any clue to the dead man, who wore a cap bought in that place. The cap bore the dealer's name.

Michael Marona, who was shot in the leg on Saturday morning by Constable Michael Murphy, of Union township, who surprised him stealing brass journals from Lehigh Valley freight cars at Townley, and stopped his flight with a bullet while the man was trying to escape, was removed late Saturday night from Elizabeth police headquarters to the county jail. There the prisoner gave his age as thirty-six; occupation, laborer; said he was a native of Italy, single and boarded on Miller street, Newark. The police authorities as yet have been unable to establish any connection between him and the morgue victim.

Marona informed Warden Dodd yesterday that he was hired by a man in Newark on Friday night to come to Union township and help him load 300 pounds of brass into a wagon and that he would pay him $2. He did go, with the result that he is now in jail. His companion, who was caught by Constable Murphy and handcuffed to a wire fence, from which he subsequently escaped, is still at large and his name is not known. The horse and wagon are in the possession of the Union township authorities, but the rig is not worth much.

So far as Elizabeth's police chief is concerned, he is taking no action in the matter, as he claims it is outside his jurisdiction.

Epworth League Officers.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. Church has elcted these officers: President, Arthur R. Humble; first vice-president, Irving Dodge; second vice-president, Miss Ada B. Stark; third vice president, Mrs. D. R. Sherwood; fourth vice-president, Miss Elsie Horne; secretary, Harry Little; treasurer, Edwin Brown.

New Central Station.

The Jersey Central Railroad announced yesterday through Chief Engineer Joseph Osgood that there would be a new station at East Ferry street, Newark, before December 1. The building and improvements will cost $40,000.

GOLF.

Bretton Woods will again be the scene of the annual championship tournament of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests. The tournament will open on Monday, July 11, and will continue through the week. An attractive program has been mapped out, and the participants will have few idle moments if they take advantage of their opportunities.

There will be best ball foursomes on Monday, July 11, as a starter. This event will be run off under handicap conditions, and prizes will be given for the best gross net scores. On the morning of the following day there will be an eighteen-hole medal play qualifying round of the main tournament. A gold medal will be awarded to the person with the low score. The players will qualify in three sixteens.

A qualifying round for women at eighteen holes medal play, with prizes for the two best gross scores, will be held on Tuesday afternoon. A driving competition for both men and women is also listed for the same afternoon. The first match play round will be run off on Wednesday, July 13. Play will be continued on a handicap basis, with the exception of the first division. In the afternoon the women will hold forth in their first match play round. All of their rounds will be decided along handicap lines. From 3 to 6 o'clock will be held an approaching and putting contest for men and women.

The second round of match play will take place on Thursday, July 14, while in the afternoon the third round will be played and will be followed by a putting contest for men and women between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock.

STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET AT ASBURY PARK

Edward W. Dunham, chairman of the Publicity Committee of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, has issued an interesting bulletin regarding the coming work that is being planned in the state. The first important series of meetings is the 17th annual session of the School of Methods of the State Association, which meets at Asbury Park, opening Tuesday, July 5 and closing Tuesday noon, July 12. A number of Plaindfielders will attend. The sessions of the school will be held in the High School building there and special preparations have been made to accommodate the large number of students who are expected to attend this year's School of Methods.

There are 20 instructors engaged during the week. Each one of the instructors is an expert in some particular line of Sunday school work. Professor Herman Harroll Horne, of the New York University, author of "The Pholosophy of Education," will lecture each day at 3.30 o'clock. "Studies in Pedagogy" will be the basis of his lectures. These lectures will be divided as follows: "The Way of Study," "The Art of Telling a Story," "The Art of Asking a Question," "The Pedagogical Methods of Jesus." Professor Roger W. Swetland, principal of Peddie Institute, of Hightstown, will conduct conferences on the Adult Bible Class work. Miss Margaret Slattery, of Fitchburg, Mass., will conduct a series of Bible studies each morning during the week at 11.20 o'clock. Miss Martha K. Lawson, president of the New York Grade Union and Supervisor of the Elementary Grades in one of the largest Sunday schools in New York city, will talk to the Primary Department workers. Miss Nannie Lee Fraser, of Louisville, a writer and lecturer of wide experience will lecture to the Junior Section each day. Other instructors of the school include Rev. Staley F. Davis, of Elizabeth, N. J.; Rev. Arlo A. Brown, Miss Alice B. Hamlin, Miss Josephine L. Baldwin, Miss Elizabeth D. Paxton, Miss Florence H. Darnell, Miss Marion Thomas, C. A. Brown and others connected with the organized Sunday school work in the state.

The work to be accomplished at this year's school will cover every department of the modern Sunday school, including beginners', primary, Junior, Intermediate, Senior and Bible Class work. Department sections have been provided for each morning and afternoon, and the delegates will choose the section for their own individual work. One of the attractive features of the school is that of mission study in the department sections, and an hour each afternoon is to be given for this study. Every Sunday school in the state, large or small, is urged to send students to this summer school of methods. The registration fee for the week's work is $2. Sunday schools who contemplate sending students can get full particulars and programs by writing to the New Jersey Sunday School Association, 835 Broad street, Newark, N. J.

Another important and interesting feature of the week's work will be a banquet and reception to be given to the newly elected general secretary, Louis Hayes Koehler, on Saturday evening, July 9. Following this on Sunday, July 10, a special observance of Sunday School Day will be held in the Asbury Park churches and Sunday schools. In the afternoon, at 3 o'clock, a Sunday School Mass Meeting will be held, under the direction of the New Jersey Sunday School Superintendents' Union. One or two speakers of note in the Sunday school world have been asked to take part in this meeting.

After the work of the Summer School the attention of the school workers throughout the State will be directed in the line of he county conventions. A schedule of the convention has been arranged, and is as follows:

In September the following counties will hold their conventions: Thursday, the 8th, Middlesex; Wednesday, the 14th, Somerset; Thursday, the 16th, Sussex; Wednesday, the 28th, Morris; Thursday, the 29th, Monmouth. Warren, date not chosen. In October these counties will hold their conventions: Tuesday, 4th, Hunterdon; Wednesday, 5th, Salem; Thursday, 6th, Gloucester; Friday, 7th, Cape May; Tuesday, 11th, Mercer; Wednesday, 12th, Essex; Thursday, 13th, Cumberland; Friday, 14th, Ocean; Thursday, 20th, Union; Friday, 21st, Bergen; Thursday, 27th, Burlington. In November Camden county will hold its convention on the 3rd, Atlantic county on the 4th and Passaic and Hudson counties on Tuesday, November 8.

These county conventions will be followed by the great Sunday school feast of the year, the 52d annual convention at Atlantic City, November 15 to 17.

Disastrous Fire at Paterson.

Fire which threatened to destroy the entire business section of Paterson, last night, called out every fireman and fire engine in that city. Within twenty minutes from the discovery of the blaze the big five-story building at 298-300 Main street, owned by Van Dyke & Co., stored with thousands of dollars worth of furniture was in ruins. At 1 o'clock this morning the firemen got the better of the flames and a few hours later had them under control. The total loss cannot be estimated.

THE PERVERTED GERM.

C. Griscom Pratt, the insurance expert, says the Washington Star, talked at a dinner in New York about success.

"Success," he said, "comes to the man who sees the public need for new things and supplies this need—in the shape, for example, of moving picture shows, or aeroplanes or microbes to ward off old age.

"A blackleg had a kind of perverted success germ in him when he complained to another blackleg:

"'I suppose you heard about the scrubwoman at the Fiasco Theatre? Well, she found last week a magnificent diamond stomacher in a box in sweeping up. The honest old soul determined to restore the stomacher to its owner, and the owner, of course, wasn't long in turning up—a young woman, splendidly dressed, and on the verge of hysteria.

"'Oh, have you found my stomacher?' she cried. 'It is a chef d'oeuvre of Lalique of the Place Vendome.'

"'Calm yourself, madam,' said the scrubwoman. 'Here is your stomacher.' And she produced it from her pocket.

"The other took out a $50 bill pressed it on the honest scrubwoman and departed with her stomacher, hurriedly.

"But an hour later another lady called.

"'Have you found my stomacher?' she asked smiling. 'I think I left it in my box.'

"'Why, yes, madam; but if it was your stomacher,' said the scrubwoman, 'a thief has got it. She got it this morning. She gave me $50 reward.'

"'Why, the stomacher was imitation,' the lady said. 'It only cost $5. Your thief is $45 out.'

"Then for a long time, in silence, the two blacklegs shook their heads sadly over this episode. Finally the first resumed:

"'What times these are! You can't do your work, even if it's crooked work. I tell you, Bill, there's urgent need today of an insurance company that will issue policies protecting flimflammers from being flimflammed!'"

Got Over Looking That.

He—Not the age she says she is.

Rev. F. St. John Fitch will speak on "The Gospel in Japan," at the regular weekly prayer-meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tomorrow night. He will tell of his personal experiences with missionaries in the Flowery Kingdom. There will be special music and other features.

SUMMER FURNISHINGS.

Summer furnishings have a charm that is quite foreign to the more pretentious appointments of winter, and every season they seem to grow more attractive.

The new toilet china shown in the shops are extremely decorative. The quaintly shaped little bowls are adorned with equally quaint, conventional designs, and there are lovely foreign looking copper jugs, with wicker handles, for carrying the morning hot water.

Colored or white tiles or squares of glass mounted on a flowered material matching the room hangings are provided to set the pitcher of ice water upon, and if a room is to have two occupants all of these fittings are to be duplicated. For fastening back the window hangings the old-fashioned brass rosette has been revived.

Speaking of bedrooms suggests breakfast, for it is becoming more and more the custom to have the first meal of the day in one's own room, and thoughtful hostesses always provide one of the charming little breakfast sets which are now so common in the shops for the guest room, along with a tray of wicker, brass or wood

CHARCOAL AS A PURIFIER.

Not enough attention is paid to the purifying effects of charcoal. It should be a household remedy, and will be found equally useful in kitchen, bathroom, garden and medicine chest.

In this day of germs and much talk of sanitation no housekeeper should fail to have a dish of powdered charcoal on an upper shelf of her refrigerator. It absorbs unpleasant odors and keeps things sweet-smelling. Change the charcoal every other day.

A little pulverized charcoal should be among the toilet articles. Oddly enough, it makes an excellent tooth powder to whiten the teeth and sweeten breath. The teeth must be thoroughly rinsed until no trace of black remains.

Where one is troubled by dyspepsia nothing equals a charcoal tablet for quick relief. One is especially good to remove the taste of onions, cabbage or other odiferous food.

Rompers for Girl's Wear.

There are two kinds of rompers in general use, those fashioned in the regular bloomer way, worn by girls and boys alike, and those intended especially for girls and cut upon the circular pattern. The latter may be made very attractive in madras, or chambray.

His Status.

"Well, my little man," inquired a visitor pleasantly, "who are you?"

"I'm the baby's brother!" was the ingenuous reply.—Truth Seeker.

PROBATION WORK REPORT

Major Charles W. Irwin Says That Crime Has Not Decreased.

MAKES SOME SUGGESTIONS.

Advocates Establishment of a Work Farm—Playground as a Remedy for the Delinquent Ones.

A report of the Union County Probation office, showing the work that has been done from the date of the last report of Mrs. Emily Williamson, in February, 1907, to June 1, this year, has been compiled by Major Charles W. Irwin, who succeeded Mrs. Williamson, after her death, as probation officer. The report has just been finished and will be circulated within a few days. It contains some interesting data regarding the history of juvenile crime in the county. One of the announcements made by Probation Officer Irwin is that juvenile crime is not decreasing. The question of how to keep the girls of the city off the streets is declared to be an important problem. In the report the probation officer advocates the establishment of a work farm, in a place away from the thickly settled parts where young men whom the judges do not want to send to jail could be sent to work. The vegetables raised on the farm could be used, it is suggested, for the feeding of inmates in county institutions.

Since February, 1907, there have been 389 persons of all ages, and of both sexes, committed to the probation office. The majority of these were males under the age of 14 years.

Most of the offenders were committed to the care of the probation office for larceny. During the period of the report thirty-four of those placed in charge of the probation office were sent to institutions, twenty-two were sent to the State Home for Boys, two to the State Home for Girls, five to the Arlington Protectory, three to the Rahway Reformatory and two to State Prison.

Major Irwin's report in part follows:

"Crime has not decreased. This probably is due to the increase of population among the foreign element, as those brought up before the police courts are mostly of this class. The great trouble which we had to contend with in the lower wards was coal stealing. This has to a certain extent ceased. Fining was the remedy.

"There is a remedy for all delinquency—a playground, but this must be under a proper and competent instructor. Otherwise we could accomplish very little. Play is what the boy wants. A boy is compared to an engine by the well-known philanthropist, Jacob Riis, of New York. If he cannot let off steam, something is going to break. On the street a gang is formed and a leader chosen. The leader is willing to do what is to be done. He must show the rest of the gang what to do. He enters the back window of a grocery store, takes a few trifles, tries the safe, but cannot open it. He goes out through the window and the gang awaiting greets him as a robber chief. This is not imagination; it is life. If these delinquents had some place to go to exercise and where they would be taught hygiene, they would probably develop into strong and healthy citizens.

"The Woman's Reformatory will soon be built in Elizabeth. It is an institution long needed. There has been no place to send young women over 19 years of age except jail or prison. An institution of this kind, with the proper training and discipline will no doubt do good work. There are many cases where liquor has gotten the upper hand of women. To this institution can be sent these poor, unfortunate dipsomaniacs, where they can receive treatment and no doubt after a few years, return cured.

"The Farview Training School for Boys, at Frenchtown, is beautifully situated one mile from the Delaware River. The home is located on the top of one of the highest hills. You can see for miles in every direction. The air is pure and healthful. It would be an ideal place for the poor youngsters who live in crowded and dirty quarters, where the white plague sooner or later claims them.

"The last Legislature passed a bill permitting each county to erect a cottage on these grounds, the cost of which was not to exceed $3,000. Each cottage will accommodate fifteen boys. Unruly boys will be sent there. It is to be an intermediate place to Jamesburg. The amount to be paid for the board of each boy is to be $1 to $3 per week. The boy will receive schooling and industrial training. This colony will be under the direction of Mr. Kight, who is a man of great energy and intelligence and who knows boys thoroughly.

"If the various counties of our State should decide to erect cottages the freeholders of Union county will no doubt do the same. Our freeholders are always trying to better conditions. We are fortunate in having their co-operation and hope that all probation officers receive the same valuable assistance from their freeholders. We appreciate very much the courtesy and kindness shown to us by our board.

"All the police justices throughout the county now hold juvenile court. Judge Mahon holds this court every Monday afternoon, and by his good judgment and tact handles the different cases to the satisfaction of everyone. Judge Runyon, of Plainfield, appears very severe when a young delinquent is brought before After he talks to the youngster, the boy looks up at the judge through his tears and promises he will 'never trow anoder brick at the cop.'

"We have a probation association which meets several times during the year when we endeavor to improve our work by comparison of methods. A complete system of co-operation has been entered into by which each county is able to look up probationers who may have removed to another county. Fines are collected, information furnished of the whereabouts of probationers and any help rendered that may be called for. At the present time seventeen counties have probation officers.

Rushmore, general secretary of the First-Day schools; "Conditions That Make for War," Edward Clarkson Wilson, principal of Friends' school, Baltimore.

TRAMPS' BENEFACTRESS IN SUIT THROUGH NIECE.

Paterson, June 27.—Following the deeding over her $3,700 home at Totowa Borough to Albert C. Canning, action has been started against the wealthy but eccentric Jennie Sanderson, aged seventy-six, of Lincoln avenue. The action has been started by the woman's niece, Mrs. Nellie Sloane, of Glenwood road, Flatbush, L. I., through her counsel, James A. Harmon, to show that the woman's mind is affected.

Ten years ago Mrs. Sanderson disappeared from the home of Mrs. Sloane with whom she lived and the latter never heard of her until two weeks ago. Then she learned that after leaving her, Mrs. Sanderson had removed to this city, where she built her home, living alone in the big dwelling. One of her eccentricities was her generousness to tramps. Neighbors declare that the woman not only supplied food to any straggler that applied to her, but took them in and allowed them to live on the first floor of her home for weeks. A tramp would come to the house and live there for a few weeks and upon becoming tired of the life would leave. It would not be long before the first floor of the fine residence would again be occupied by another tramp.

This became known among the Knights of the road and neighbors say that for the past few years the first floor has never been unoccupied by a tramp.

The Misses Olga Anderson, Elizabeth White and Mary Cleaves, pupil nurses at Muhlenberg Hospital, have returned from their vacations. Miss Bessie Randall, also a pupil nurse, will start on her vacation the last of the week.

BLACK HAND THREAT COMES OVER 'PHONE.

Mt. Holly, June 27.—Answering a call from Philadelphia Sunday night, Dong Gain went to the telephone at Allen's drug store and received the following message: "If you don't get out of business at once, we will kill you!" The conversation was carried on in the Chinese language, but Dong translated the message to those present.

In response to this threat Dong replied: "I won't sell out and I won't quit."

The authorities were notified and steps taken to protect Dong. He slept with one eye open and a revolver in his hand, while his place was guarded by officers. This precaution will be continued, and orders have been issued for the immediate arrest of any Chinese belonging to the Tong Society who might appear in town.

Failing in their offer of money to induce Dong to quit, Mock Ock and Mock Bow, who conduct a rival laundry, made an offer through their counsel, James M. Daves, to give the proprietor of the building $100 and $8 per month over the present rent not to let Dong remain. Tun Sing and two other Chinese, of Philadelphia were her yesterday in efforts to put Dong out of business. They returned to the city and the threat followed.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mrs. Esther Craig will tender a reception to her brother and his bride, at her home this eevning.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

In a fall Sunday, L. W. Seamon, forty-eight years old, of 431 Spruce street, Camden, had an injured spine attended to at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Alexander Banks, an aged negro, who claimed to be the principal heir to the Banks estate, inherited by his family from their former owners in the South, was buried in Burlington Sunday. He was a victim of heat prostration during last week.

Borough Solicitor Harry S. Scovel has drawn up the resolution calling for an election on the proposed bond issue for street improvements in Haddonfield. It calls for $150,000 and will come up for adoption by the Council at the meeting on July 5.

Thieves entered the home of Frederick Schwartz, 639 Cooper street, Camden, during the absence of the family Sunday and carried away a number of highly-prized medals. The police are investigating.

Although he fell less than ten feet from a tree, Stephen Schmieg, aged sixteen years, of Richfield, has both bones of his left leg broken and a compound fracture of the left forearm. He is being treated at St. Joseph's Hospital, Paterson.

Police in Camden Sunday raided the alleged disorderly house of Michael De Grande and Marie Gilorine at 906 Locust street, and arrested the alleged proprietors and eleven witnesses. A large quantity of beer was confiscated.

In Bayonne Sunday the Centreville and Tearaway Athletic Clubs played a baseball game, the proceeds of which will go to a fund to purchase a monument for the grave of Samuel Berne, captain of the Centreville team, who was recently killed by a railroad train near Scranton.

St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, the handsome new structure at Cooper and Euclid streets, Woodbury, was dedicated Sunday, the services beginning shortly after 10 o'clock in the morning. Bishop James A. McFaul blessed the outside wall, then the inside, then the altar.

In the Bayonne police court next Thursday Herman C. Rocktoff and Thomas Furlong, dog catchers employed by the Hudson County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, will be arraigned on a charge of having assaulted Mrs. Ida Shock, of 550 Broadway, Bayonne, when she tried to prevent their carrying off her dog, which they did.

William E. Burk, street commissioner, trimmed all the shades trees along West State street, Trenton, Saturday, so that the lower branches would not interfere with floats in the coming Independence Day parade. He did this by direction of the street committee of Common Council. Now the residents of the street, who are the wealthiest in the city, are much vexed over the cutting of the trees.

Jacob Risley, forty-five years old, of Risleytown, was run down and killed Saturday night at New road crossing, above Pleasantville, by an express train on the West Jersey electric line. Risley, who was a farmer, saw the train approaching and whipped up his horse in a desperate attempt to get over the crossing. The flyer reduced his wagon to kindling wood and tossed Risley forty feet in the air.

The Gloucester Board of Health was notified Sunday of an outbreak of anthrax among cattle on the dairy farm of Joseph Wyley, near Mount Ephraim, and at once took steps to prevent spread of the terrible disease. Wyley was notified to send no milk out, but he had already taken that precaution as soon as he discovered the presence of the disease. The State Board of Health will probably aid in work of fighting the outbreak.

Thousands of loose lemons and scores of crates of the same fruit are being washed ashore all along the Barnegat City portion of the coast as far south as Beach Haven, and are being literally gathered by the wagon loads. Many, however, are afraid to use the fruit, fearing it has been condemned and is from the New York garbage scows dumped at sea, or that it had been thrown overboard from an infected vessel.

Uniform legislation upon subjects of importance to the commercial interests of Pennsylvania will be urged upon the attention of the lawyers in session at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Bar Association at Cape May, from today to Thursday inclusive of this week. Walter George Smith, chairman of the committee on uniform State laws, will present its report recommending the passage at the next session of the Pennsylvania Legislature of two bills, the first authorizing the transfer of stock, certificates as negotiable instruments, and the second authorizing a uniform bill of lading.

—While Archie Hains, of 204 Somerset street, was riding his motorcycle on West Front street toward this city at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, he crashed into the mail wagon driven by Herbert Glaentzer. Hains turned to avoid striking another vehicle and in so doing struck the mail wagon. The accident took place near Liberty street. No damage was done.

LEARNING TO REST.

Anyone with the will to do can learn to work, but very few learn how to really rest.

Sleeping is not always resting, neither is doing nothing a good form of rest. There are certain forms of indolence that are more fatiguing than hard work. Real rest preposes sufficient sleep and enough of the loafing spirit to get off tension, but it means more than that.

One of the surest rests is in relaxing; change of occupation is resting; so also is change of scene and viewpoint.

If you live in the city, especially if you are a worker, get into the country once a week. You can exercise or loaf, but you will come home stimulated. The country girl needs the excitement of a day in the city.

Many a woman has found going to the theatre the greatest rest she knows. This is particularly so for brain workers or for women given to worrying about their household duties.

Some girls make it a practise to keep a little knitting and a good book within reach. When they feel themselves getting nervously tired they knit a few rows of read a page.

The girl who cultivated the "catnap" habit has discovered one of the secrets of keeping rested. An afternoon of sleep makes for sluggishness; totally different is five minutes' oblivion snatched when sitting upright in a rocking chair or stretched flat on your back.

Most restful of all is the power to let things go. One rarely hears of a woman getting nervous prostration who has the blessed faculty of sitting down in the midst of confusion to finish a good book, or of snatching a day for pure pleasure though duties press.

Such a girl will probably be called irresponsible, but she has learned how not to live at tension, which is the crying evil of our sex.

AN ORDINANCE

Regulating and Prohibiting the Discharge of Fire-Arms and Fireworks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the City of Plainfield fire or discharge any cannon, toy cannon, gun, revolver, or toy pistol or other appliance for discharging metal or paper caps such as are used in toy pistols, or fire-arms of any description whether the same be loaded with blank or full charge; provided that this section shall not apply to persons engaged in military exercises or to members of the Police Department while on duty, or to the use of a revolver, pistol or other fire-arm in defense of life or property.

Sec. 2. No person or corporation shall fire or discharge any fire-cracker, torpedo, fireworks of any character, or any other thing containing or composed of powder or other explosive or combustible material, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, upon any street, ane, highway or public place of the City of Plainfield.

Sec. 3. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the City of Plainfield fire or discharge any firecracker, torpedo, or firework, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, except that firecrackers made of soft paper loosely wrapped containing no other explosive but black powder and not over five inches in length and torpedoes not over three-quarters of an inch in diameter and fireworks other than sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, may be set off and discharged upon private property on the Fourth day of July of any year, unless the Fourth day of July falls on Sunday and in such event then on the Fifth day of July, between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and twelve o'clock midnight, but at no other time, provided, however, that at any time the Mayor may upon written application made at least twenty-four hours before the time when said event is to occur, give permission for the display and discharge of fireworks except sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, at a time and place to be specified and under the direction of a person or persons to be named in the written permit issued by the Mayor.

Sec. 4. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections one, two and three of this ordinance shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding Twenty Dollars for each offense.

Sec. 5. That section one of an ordinance entitled "An ordinance concerning fire-arms and other deadly weapons," approved April 9, 1895, as amended and all other ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Adopted by the Common Council, June 20, 1910 approved by the Mayor, June 20, 1910.

Baby Jim, Baby Teddy and Kitty Kate

"Why don't you marry one or the other of us?" said Teddy. "Lord Knows, we have asked you often enough; at least I have.

Thompson, who had invited Kate and Teddy to share a homeward-bound journey in his automobile, was busy getting his machine under way. Teddy Walton and Jim Thompson had long been suitors for the hand of "Kitty Kate," as dainty Katherine Comstock had been quaintly nicknamed by her friends.

A good-natured girl, she was pretty and playful—maybe that's why they called her "Kitty Kate."

At any rate, said Kitty Kate to Teddy: "The reason I don't put one or the other of you out of misery is this: Neither one of you babies knows what he wants or why he wants it."

Thompson heard what Kitty Kate said, and he laughed. "That's another one she handed Teddy," he thought—then again:

"I guess it was handed me just as well." And the car was shooting along now at a speed that was faster than the ordinances allowed and Thompson wasn't steering the car very well, either, because he was trying to hear what Kitty Kate and Teddy were saying.

"Crash!" the car had run plump into a big brewery wagon. There was a noise of rending wood and metal. When Thompson regained consciousness he was in a room in a hospital. Teddy was in the next cot to his own.

"She?" asked Thompson.

"Never touched her," said Teddy.

"Good!" but you are a tough looking object," said Thompson.

"A horse apiece," said Teddy.

Of course Kitty Kate came with a great big bunch of American beauties, and oranges, and cigars with crimson bands on them—which the doctor secretly threw under the bed. Teddy was not badly hurt and was taken home. It was different with Jim. That fractured leg of his was bound up, a rope attached to it, and a bag of sand held it in place over a pulley.

A little child was brought in and placed in the cot that had been occupied by Teddy. "Poor little thing," thought Thompson.

Night came on. Thompson had fallen asleep, a fitful sleep, awakened by an unending, annoying repetition of a phrase, "Mamma, dwink; please give baby dwink."

He looked over at the child. "Mamma, dwink," she repeated.

"By —, you'll have it, kid," said big Jim Thompson. He felt the rope that bound his incased leg to the foot of the bed, pulled himself across the iron table and reached the next cot. The pain was fierce.

"Here, old man," he said to the baby, handing her a cup, "take a drink." The baby put her lips to it and cried: "Mamma, I want a dwink!" There was nothing in the cup. "D—— it!" exclaimed big Jim, "I drank that water myself. I forgot."

It was a real hell for Jim to struggle back to bed, but he didn't mind; he heard but the child's voice: "Mamma, a dwink," but it had sung away, vanished forever.

They took Jim home two days after. It was weeks before he could hobble on crutches. His first visit was to Kitty Kate. "I want you to marry me," he said.

"Have you forgotten," she said, softly, "about the baby that cries for a drink that it does not need?"

"Ah," he replied, "they told you of that incident of the hospital. I did not know it was known, but I suppose I spoke of it in my delirium. Poor kid, I couldn't even reach the button to call the nurse. I was all in, Kitty Kate, all in, or that kid would have had that drink—but what has that to do with you—or—me—or—"

"Oh, Jim," said Kitty Kate, "it made me decide; it made me take one of two big babies—Baby Jim or Baby Teddy—and I'm going to take Baby Jim, and Babby Teddy says that if I couldn't take him, he'd rather see me have Baby Jim than any one else."

A Mill Worth Seeing.

Some of the local admirers of Joe Grim, the Italian pugilist of Altoona, have been telling a new story on him lately. It is a well-known fact that Joe will fight most anybody who comes along and that he is absolutely fearless. He pays no attention whatever to class and he appears to regard almost every new name that he hears as that of a fighter he ought to meet. Not long ago they were arranging a fight for Joe in Altoona, and there was some bickering over the percentages. Finally it was pointed out to Joe that Altoona was a good show town.

"Why, Maxine Elliott played to a $4,000 house here the other night," said one of the fight promoters.

Quick as a flash Joe snapped back: "I'll fight that 'Max' Elliott, too!"—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

"Foolish Question" of Queen.

Queen Amelia was out in her touring car lately when she lost her way. They got from one country road into another without getting their bearings or meeting anyone. Finally they met a countryman and the chauffeur hailed him and asked the way. The man looked at the magnificent car and then at the company, and then gave a smile of great shrewdness.

"Just as if you didn't know," he answered.

State Senator and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth street, left last week for their annual trip abroad. They will be away most of the summer.

THE VOTING MACHINES ARE BEING ABOLISHED

Voting machines in the elections of New Jersey are almost a thing of the past. The legislature passed an act that gave each voting precinct the right to say whether the machines were wanted, and where the vote has been negative, as it nearly always has been, the machines have been sent elsewhere.

The vote has been tremendously against the machines. Last week two precincts of Camden held a special election. There were four votes in favor and sixty-nine against in one precinct, and nine in favor and sixty-one against in the other.

The machines are not difficult to understand to the average voter, but to the man whose literary attainments are somewhat limited, he is mystified by the galaxy of names and little knots that confront him Then, when he has selected his ticket and pulled the knob, he is not sure his vote is registered. The machines sometimes get out of order, and again there is always the possibility in the mind of the voter that the machine may be manipulated. He has no way to know his vote has actually been counted as he desires.

The politicians do not favor the machines, for in the absence of a printed ticket he is unable to hand a cut ticket to a voter, and is never sure of what the latter may do when in the booth.

JR. O. U. A. M. DECIDE AGAINST GOING TO CAMP

Owing to uncertain weather conditions the proposed camp of the uniformed bodies of the Jr. O. U. A. M., of New Jersey, which was to have been held at Verona Lake, conjunction with the demonstration in Montclair on the Fourth of July, has been abandoned.

The Jersey Junior Mechanics, several hundred in number, together with a large delegation from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., had planned to go into camp at Verona several days before the Fourth of July, and then march to Montclair on the holiday and take part in the parade. The uniformed branches, however, will take part in the parade, as scheduled.

Good Comedy at Proctor's.

Russell & Reid, the clever comedy pair at Proctor's theatre, are doubtless the funniest pair seen at that popular house in a long time. Russell is an eccentric comedian and his impersonations are great. Jean Ward comedienne, takes well for she distributes a pound box of candy at each performance. Minnie Stanley & Co., in "My Hero," pleases all in the funny situations. Brown & Scheftall, colored comedians just off the "big time," are exceedingly funny. The dancing is good and the jokes bright and wholesome.

Troops A, B and D of the Fifteenth Cavalry, under command of Captain Barnhardt, and Batteries E and F, of the Third field artillery, under command of Captain Locke and Lieutenant Miles, have reached Gettysburg.

Nine companies of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, from Forts Niagara, Jay and Porter will arrive today. They marched from New York State, and left Harrisburg yesterday, camping last night in Carlisle.

Maryland and Virginia troops will be in the maneuvre camp from July 1 to July 9; Pennsylvania and New Jersey, July 11 to 18, and District of Columbia Guardsmen, from July 18 to 31.

Will Hold Industrial Fair.

It has been decided to hold an industrial fair at Hope chapel the latter part of October, under the auspices of the ways and means committee. Committees will be appointed soon so that all the details can be perfected during the summer months. It will be held one afternoon and three nights, the proceeds to be for the benefit of the renovation fund of the chapel.

Successful Cake Sale.

The Home Department of Trinity Reformed church held a successful cake sale at the church, Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. Henry Van Name and Mrs. George Saums were in charge and a large number of cakes were disposed of at good prices. The proceeds from the sale will be used to purchase flowers to be sent to the "shut-in" members of the church.

Got Borough Dog Licenses.

Charles Carr, colored, of Jefferson avenue, Mrs. Emmeline Connet of Jefferson avenue, and James Calloway were haled to the borough police court this morning to give reason why their dogs were unlicensed. On a promise to secure a license immediately, sentence was suspended in each case by Recorder Dolliver.

To Play Double Header.

The Y. M. C. A. team of this city will play Somerville at Somerville Saturday morning. In the afternoon the Dunellen Field Club will be the opponents of the locals at Dunellen. Slocum and Peacock will be used to twirl for the locals.

Howard Colby an Editor.

Howard Colby, of Evergreen avenue, makes his first contribution this month as the associate editor of The Self-Masters Magazine. The publication is issued in the interest of Andress S. Floyd's institution at Union, Union county.

Sunday School Excursions.

The annual excursion of Hope chapel Sunday school to Asbury Park will be held on Saturday, August 13. The First Baptist and Temple Baptist Sunday schools will go to Asbury Park on Thursday, July 14.

L. P. Starkweather, of Second place, is spending the summer at Ocean Grove.

ELECTION LAW CHANGES

Some Important Features Relating to Primary and General Elections.

THE AMENDMENTS OF 1910.

Secretary of State Samuel Dickinson Soon to Issue Pamphlet Containing All the Revisions.

Many changes made in the election laws by the legislature of 1910 will be shown in the annual election pamphlets soon to be issued by Secretary of State Dickinson which will interest all Plainfield. They will relate to the acceptance of nominations, the delivery of ballots and ballot boxes to the election officers, the time for filing petitions, a change in the method of printing names of candidates on the ballots, pay for special elections, the publication of notices for the primary election, the return of discarded voting machines to the Secretary of State and other new statutes.

One of the laws changes the time for the filing of the petitions indorsing candidates for any county office. Formerly such petitions were required to be filed with the county clerk at least fifteen days before the primary election. Now they must be filed twenty days before the day for the primary voting. Another change made by this law, which is Chapter 146, is that the county clerk must certify all the nominations to the various municipal clerks at least fifteen days before the primary election. Formerly the time was ten days.

Chapter 40 of the new laws provides that if candidates do not file certificates accepting nomination the name of such candidate shall not be printed on the official ballots, unless he shall within ten days after the primary election, file in the office of the county clerk a certificate that he is qualified to hold the office and accepts the nomination.

The two new laws regulating the delivery of ballot-boxes and ballots were passed because of the confusion which has arisen in the past over the question of whose business it was to deliver them. Chapter 78 requires the clerks of all the boards of election within a municipality to call at the office of the clerk of the municipality and get the boxes and ballots and give a receipt therefor. This must be done the day before any election, and the receipts must be preserved one year. Chapter 79 requires the county clerks, not less than three days prior to any election, to cause to be delivered to the clerk of each township, city or other municipality the official ballots and envelopes.

Another change is made in Chapter 80 of the new laws. This provides that all petitions nominating candidates for office in a single borough, ward or township, and all petitions indorsing persons for the position of delegate to the ensuing state of congressional convention, shall be filed with the municipal clerk not less than fifteen days prior to the primary election.

The act introduced by Assemblyman Walsh is an important one. It prohibits the printing of the term of office on the ballot on the same line with the name of the candidate. The aim of the new law is to prevent the covering of the term of office when affixing a paster on a ballot. In a certain recount many Democratic votes were excluded because pasters on them covered the term of office for which the councilmanic candidates were named.

Another amendment to the primary election refusal to stand as a candidate the vacancy shall be filled by a majority of the persons filing the petition for the nomination. Formerly such declination could be filed seven days before the primary election. The new law provides that the new petition to fill such vacancy must be filed within three days after such vacancy occurs.

Further provision in the case of death, removal or resignation of a candidate is provided in Chapter 255. This provides that in case such vacancy shall occur prior to the general election but subsequent to the day fixed by law as the last for filing the appropriate petition, the county committee, as the case may be, may select a candidate for the office and file a statement of such selection with the clerk of the municipality.

The new law regulating the publication of notices of the primary election is chapter 2720. This provides that in addition to the five notices required to be posted in conspicuous places, the municipal clerk shall, at least two weeks preceding the primary election, cause a notice to be published in not more than two of the newspapers of the county, as such clerk shall select, a general notice of the election and of the registration days. The expense of this advertising is to be borne by the municipality, and the law requires that the money to meet this expense shall be raised in the general taxx levy.

Under the new voting machine law all discarded voting machines are to be returned to the secretary of State, and it is expressly provided that the secretary of tSate shall not be required to re-locate them.

Still another new law, Chapter 87, provides that all "lawful" expenses heretofore incurred within any body in the county, in special elections that the secretaary of State shall not shall be paid by the board of freeholders, unless otherwise provided by law.

INFORMATION FOR YOUNGSTERS

What Will Be Allowed and What Will Not Be Allowed—Permits for Displays May Be Obtained.

In a communication to this paper information is sought as to the exact provisions of the "safe and sane" Fourth of July ordinance. As the subject is timely and of general interest, the measure as passed by the Common Council and signed by Mayor Fisk on Monday night, June 20, is published in full. The penalty for any violation of its provisions is $20 fine.

The ordinance follows:

Section 1. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the city of Plainfield fire or discharge any cannon, toy cannon, gun, revolver, or toy pistol or other appliance for discharging metal or paper caps such as are used in toy pistols, or fire-arms of any description whether the same be loaded with blank or full charge; provided that this section shall not apply to persons engaged in military exercises or to members of the police department while on duty, or to the use of a revolver, pistol or other fire-arm in defense of life or property.

Sec. 2. No person or corporation shall fire or discharge any fire-cracker, torpedo, fireworks of any character, or any other thing containing or composed of powder or other explosive or combustible material, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, upon any street, lane, highway or public place of the city of Plainfield.

Sec. 3. No person or corporation shall within the limits of the city of Plainfield fire or discharge any fire-cracker, torpedo, or firework, or set in motion any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, except that firecrackers made of soft paper loosely wrapped containing no other explosive but black powder and not over five inches in length and torpedoes not over three-quarters of an inch in diameter and fireworks other than sky-rockets having sticks attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, may be set off and discharged upon private property on the Fourth day of July of any year, unless the Fourth day of July falls on Sunday and in such event then on the Fifth day of July, between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and twelve o'clock midnight, but at no other time, provided, however, that at any time the Mayor may upon written application made at least twenty-four hours before the time when said event is to occur, give permission for the display and discharge of fireworks except sky-rockets having stick attached or any balloon containing a lighted torch or burning material of any kind, at a time and place to be specified and under the direction of a person or persons to be named in the written permit issued by the Mayor.

Sec. 4. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections one, two and three of this ordinance shall on conviction be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Clare Higgins Injured.

Clare Higgins, a carrier for The Daily Press, received a bad cut in the back of his head yesterday afternoon, the result of a collision while riding his bicycle on West Second street, near Trinity Reformed church. He was carrying a bundle which he expected to deliver, when another boy on a wheel ran into him and knocked him off his mount. The lad was assisted to Armstrong's drug store, where Mr. Armstrong rendered "first aid to the injured" until Dr. T. S. Davis, the family physician, arrived. The boy was able to carry his newspapers last night.

Mayor Buys Farm.

Mayor J. H. L. Todd, of Fanwood, has purchased a large farm in the upper part of New York State, where he expects to move with his family. At preesnt, Harold Todd, who was graduated this spring from Columbia University is in charge of the property. Mayor Todd is the second Fanwoodite to buy a farm in the upper part of the Empire state this spring. The other one is William S. Mygrant who moved to Saugerties.

SEEK $30,000 DAMAGES FROM PUBLIC SERVICE

Theodore A. Ball, a Westfield florist, and Leonard Lott, also of Westfield, through their counsel, Craig A. Marsh, yesterday filed papers in the Union County Court, in suits against the Public Service Corporation. Mr. Ball seeks to recover $25,000 damages and Mr. Lott's suit is for $5,000 damages.

The actions are brought as the reseult of an accident at Westfield on Sunday, April 10, of this year. The two men were out riding in an automobile in the vicinity of Westfield at that time when they collided with a trolley car. Both men were severely injured, it is said, Mr. Ball's injuries being of a serious nature according to the bill of complaint. The suits will probably be tried at the October term of court. Mr. Marsh left today for Europe, and will be away six weeks.

Y. W. C. A. DELEGATES GOING TO SILVER BAY

The Plainfield delegation to the Eastern City Conference of the Y. W. C. A. will leave Monday afternoon for Silver Bay where they will spend ten days enjoying life on the shores of Lake George. In the party are: the Misses Amy Tapping, secretary, Lizzie Joss, Florence Prior, Myrtle Fedderman, Mary Gray, Laura Hanglighter, Helen George, Nettie tSeiner, Clara Runyon and Maud Van Blarcom, who was assistant secretary last year. She will return to the local association August 1, to take up the work of the association for the year. Miss Reba Kline and Miss Margaret Mosher, the physical director, are also planning to attend the conference.

The party will leave this city July 4 for New York. From there they will take the night boat up the Hudson river to Albany. At Albany they will visit the New York State executive building and capitol which are located on the summit of the hill near the boat landing. A short trip by rail will then be made to the foot of Lake George, and from there the trip to the head of the lake will be made by lake steamer. The scenery along the trip is beautiful; and the night trip up the Hudson is especially interesting.

They will be met at Silver Bay by the other delegates there. Monday the students who have been in conference there representing the various colleges and universities, will leave. Hence, when the delegates from this city and other cities arrive there will be ample room to accommodate them. The Plainfield delegation hopes to have a cottage. All sorts of activities including trips to nearby places of interest, such as Fort Ticonderoga, will be enjoyed by the girls. One of these activities will be the "stunts." Each delegation will perform some stunt supposedly characteristic of a state from which they come.

At the meeting of the local delegation in the association rooms last night the girls decided to dress themselves up as mosquitoes and go through some simple calesthenics indicative of the Jersey "eagle." Final plans for the trip were also made then. The Plainfield flag, made of gray letters on a crimson background, will be taken along. The delegates will remain at Silver Bay until July 14. The return trip will be made a feature of interest to the girls.

Scotch Plains Pastor, Editor.

In the July issue of the "Daily Bible," edited by the Rev. Franklin Mathews, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, the publication reaches probably its highest pinnacle of direct forceful usefulness. It is full of suggestive comments and is terse and readable.

Will Give a Dinner Party.

Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann will give a dinner at his home this evening in honor of the anniversary of his birthday. A number of guests have been invited, including Dr. Torrek, a well known physician from New York.

No Bids Given.

At the meeting of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, last night, bids for the new building were opened. Until the committee in charge of the affair has made a decision, no contracts will be awarded.

"Citizens of Heaven."

"Citizens of Heaven," will be the topic of the prayer meeting at the Temple Baptist church, tonight. Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor, will be in charge.

'TAG DAY' IS CONDEMNED

New York's Mayor Takes Same Position as Mayor Smalley in the Matter.

CHILDREN SHOULD NOT AID.

Gaynor Says the Idea of Having Youngsters Raise Money for Charity is Wrong—Vetoes a Resolution Therefor.

The practice of permitting children to go about the streets collecting money for a charity was condemned by Mayor Gaynor, of New York, yesterday, when he sent a veto to the New York Board of Aldermen of a recent aldermanic resolution permitting "tag day" in Richmond borough for a day nursery there. His action is of interest here, particularly because he takes the same view as Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, did some time ago in a similar case.

When Mayor Smalley declined to give his personal and official endorsement to the Plainfield Patrolmen's Association scheme to raise money for the hospital by providing competitions in the schools and offering prizes to the winners, his action met with criticism in some quarters. But when the mayor came out in his usual courageous fashion in a letter, condemning the plan because it was turning the schools into a collection agency and would mean that the youngsters would go about asking people for money, his position was understood and met with the warm commendation of many. Mayor Smalley stated that he was opposed to having children used for such a purpose for not only did it detract their attention from their studies but it was wrong in principle.

Mayor Gaynor yesterday voiced the same opinion when he sent this message to the board of aldermen with his veto:

"This resolution would authorize the ladies of the Day Nursery in the Borough of Richmond to accost people in that borough 'for the purpose of extracting coin and other monies from every possible citizen on the occasion of a Tag Day.'

"Such an authorization is of doubtful legality and of more than doubtful propriety. The collection of money on tag days is usually made a success by the aid of small children—a practice which should not be permitted."

FIRST BAPTIST BATTALION HAS MEMBERSHIP OF FORTY.

The First Baptist church battalion, recently organized among the young men of the church, is meeting with great success. Thus far the battalion has a membership of about forty young men and meetings for drills are held on the church lawn every Friday night. Recently field music was obtained and this has greatly encouraged and interested the members. Lewis Matlack, who served in the Spanish-American war, has charge of the battalion as drillmaster, and is getting good results.

A little later the young men will purchase uniforms and otherwise fully equip themselves. The battalion is a part of the Sunday school and is being fostered by its officers. After awhile when the young men become more efficient they will give an exhibition drill to which their friends will be invited.

Dog Ordinance Violated.

Despite the severe penalty which follows a violation of the state law forbidding the drowning of dogs in brooks, the borough health authorities found one dog wrapped in a bag with a rock tied to its neck in Stony brook yesterday. The dog had been drowned several hours, and the authorities believe that it was dropped in the brook at midnight. If the owner is found a fine of over fifty dollars will be imposed.

Winkler Got an S. S.

George Winkler, of Elm street, received a suspended sentence from Recorder Charles M. Dolliver when arraigned for being drunk and disorderly on Pearl street last night. He was arrested by Marshal Keller last night.

Y. M. H. A. Musicale.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association will hold a musical and dance at its hall on Grove street, this evening, it being one of the monthly affairs of this kind planned for the summer.

Health Board Postpones Meeting.

Owing to the fact that next Monday is a holiday, the borough board of health will not meet then. The meeting will be held one week from Monday.

PASTORS' SUMMER PLANS

When and Where Local Ministers Will Spend Their Vacations.

MANY TO BE AWAY IN AUGUST.

The Pulpit Supplies for a Number of the Plainfield Churches Are Already Announced.

The pastors of the Plainfield and North Plainfield churches are busily engaged in making plans for their summer vacations, and although a majority of them are yet undecided as to where they will go and who their supplies will be, not a few have completed arrangements for their outing.

As recently stated in The Daily Press, the ministers at their last association meeting took up the vacation question and it was decided to so arrange it that some of the pastors will be here throughout the summer to answer calls in their line of duty, in other words all of the pastors will not be away at the same time as has frequently been the case.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbtyerian church, will be away during August and the first Sunday in September. His supplies for the first three Sundys in August will be Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, of this city; Rev. Dr. A. S. Zimmerman, of Newark, and Rev. Charles E. Bronson, of Philadelphia. There will be no services the last Sunday in August and the first Sunday in September.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will be away during July and August, during which time he will deliver many lectures. The complete list of supplies have not been made as yet, but Rev. F. St. John Fitch, of this city, will preach next Sunday, and Rev. A. E. Finn, former pastor, now of Rochester, Pa., will preach one Sunday. The other supplies will be announced later.

At the First M. E. church, the pulpit supply committee has not completed its work. It is hoped to make the announcement on Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, has not yet decided where he wil spend his vacation, but it will probably be at some place within easy reach of home.

Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will spend the month of August at Ocean Grove. The pulpit supplies will be announced within a short time. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Groce M. E. church, has not yet announced his plans, neither is the pulpit supply committee ready to make its announcement.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, has not decided upon his summer plans except that he will be away during August. Rev. Elory Bowers, the curate, having had his vacation, will be at home all summer to look after the work of the parish.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, has not yet announced his plans for the summer. He will be away the four Sundays in August and the first Sunday in September. Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, will be at home during the summer and will attend to all work of the Crescent Avenue church parish, while Dr. Zelie is away. The supplies for the Sundays of August will be as follows: Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel; Rev. J. A. Ingham, of New Brunswick; Rev. J. Lovell Murray, of Summit; Rev. Mr. Schutlz, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, is another one of the pastors who has not decided on the place for spending his vacation, neither has all the supplies been arranged for. The committee will announce the list within a few days.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss pastor of the First Baptist church, has arranged to spend his vacation in Europe, chiefly in the British Isles. He has several appointments to preach in England and Scotland. He will be away during August and the first of September. The list of supplies will be announced in a few days.

Rev. George A. Warner, rector of Holy Cross church, is spending his vacation at Camp Comfort, Hedges Lake, N. J., where he has opened a camp for boys. Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, has arranged to look after Mr. Warner's work, together with his own, while the latter is away. Rev. Morgan Ashley, rector of St. Stephen's church, has not decided upon his plans as yet. Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, is not ready to make his announcement, his plans not be-

FOURTH IN THE SUBURBS

New Market, Dunellen and South Plainfield to Have Celebrations.

PROGRAMS ARE ANNOUNCED.

Baseball, Athletics Generally, Dancing, Band Concerts and Fireworks to Comprise the Entertainments.

While Plainfield is enjoying a safe and sane Fourth of July, the suburbs will celebrate the day in gala style. New Market, South Plainfield and Scotch Plains have all planned athletic and other events that bid fair to attract large numbers of Plainfielders to the border towns next Monday.

At South Plainfield the celebration will be held in the afternoon and in the evening. At 1.30 o'clock a ball game will be played, followed by a field meet. Among the events scheduled in this field meet are the following: 60 yard dash for juniors, 100 yard dash for seniors, running broad jump, standing broad jump, shot put, 220-yard run, three legged race, two mile bicycle race, and an aquatic feature in the nature of a canoe race. Dancing, too, will be a feature to interest many. This will be held in the afternoon and evening in a covered pavilion. A Perth Amboy orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music. Refreshments will be served on the grounds and drawings for the events will be taken at 10 a. m. One of the features of the day will be the shot put by William Hamilton. Mr. Hamilton challenges any one in the country to meet him in this event—not excepting Donald Fitzgerald, the unknown athlete who took the laurels from Hamilton, on July 4, 1908. This feat is still talked about in South Plainfield social circles and on Wall street where Mr. Fitzgerald is a broker in railroad bonds.

At New Market Friendship Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. will be in charge of the celebration. The order has arranged an aquatic and athletic program. The athletic events includ running races and other field athletics and the aquatic events include boat and tub races. The affair will be held in Vail's grove. Refreshments will be served on the grounds, and a special band has been engaged to furnish music. Fireworks will be a feature in the evening.

The program at Scotch Plains includes a baseball game, athletic events and fireworks in the evening. Suhr's orchestra of this city will furnish the music for the celebration there.

MISS FLORENCE COLEY, GRAHAM GIDDES' BRIDE.

Mrs. Florence Emma Coley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emiel Coley, of 317 Somerset street, and Graham Giddis, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Giddis, of 180 Duer street, were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, in the presence of a company of relatives and friends. Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, officiated.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Inez Coley, while George Giddis, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man. Following the ceremony, an informal reception was held and the couple received congratulations. After a short wedding trip the couple will reside in the borough.

To Wed in Rome.

Anton Sylvester, a 24-year-old graduate of the University of Rome, who came to America this spring, claimed his bride, Miss Domenica Rock, of Richmond street, Saturday and departed Sunday for New York, from which place he and Miss Rock will sail with Mrs. Rock for Italy. As soon as they arrive in Italy the couple will be married. The wedding will be a military one, for Mr. Sylvester holds a post in the army.

Will Visit the Pope.

Mr. and Mrs. David T. Kenney and children, left today on the Steamship Adriatic for Europe. They will be abroad some time. While away they will go to Rome, where they will be received by Pope Pius X. Mr. Kenney is now a member of the Papal household, and this will be his first visit to the Vatican since the honor was conferred upon him by the Pope.

Lecturing in the West.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, left on Monday for Iowa, where he will deliver several lectures this week. During Mr. Maguire's vacation in July and August he will deliver lectures in fourteen different states.

RUNYON BIBLE CLASS MEMBERSHIP CONTEST

The William N. Runyon Bible Class Association of Hope Chapel, at its regular meeting, last night, decided to divide itself into two bands, one called the reds, under the leadership of James Penny, and the other the whites under the leadership of Arthur Fluck, for the purpose of conducting a membership contest. The bands will have until September 25 to increase the membership by this means.

At the termination of the contest, the losing side will give a watermelon supper to the winning band and the new members. A committee comprising Charles Vincent, George Broadbent, Harry Keen, W. S. Terry and Allen Snyder, with the executive committee of the class was appointed to complete arrangements for a chicken supper for which a small charge will be made. The proceeds will go toward the H. C. Squires' Memorial Fund.

Announcement was also made that an industrial fair will be held the latter part of October under the auspices of the ways and means committee, and a committee was appointed to represent the association.

THOMAS M. MUIR'S RAM'S HORN CAMP

Having declined some flattering offers to do a turn in vaudeville at various houses in this State and in New York, Thomas M. Muir, who was stricken blind, a year ago, while a member of the reportorial staff of The Daily Press, will conduct a model camp for young men during the summer months. Mr. Muir, who has had much experience in camp life, has leased one of the ideal spots at Lake Hopatcong and has christened it "Ram's Horn Camp."

Already, Mr. Muir has registered a number of guests but his accommodations are large and his bookings are still open. Any young man, of good character who wants to enjoy camp life during his vacation, will be welcome at Ram's Horn. The rates are reasonable; the food fine, and the entertainment "immense." When it comes to having a good time, Tom can go some in that line and he assures the Daily Press readers that there will not be a dull moment at his resort.

Mr. Muir left today with his good cook, Archie Davie, for the camp. If you want his number, address Thomas M. Muir, Ram's Horn Camp, Nolan's Point, Lake Hopatcong. If you want a good time, during your vacation, young man, consult him. Tommie says that he has instructed Archie to fill up his larder every Saturday night because he intends to make a feature of his Sunday dinners. He says Sunday excursionists will be accommodated at his resort and they will not go away hungry nor with the feeling that they have not had their money's worth in the line of entertainment.

Y. W. C. A. Officials' Vacations.

Miss Margaret Mosher, physical director of the Y. W. C. A. will leave next week for her annual vacation. She may spend a part of the time at Silver Bay with the delegation from this city, but most of the time will be spent at her home in Oberlin, Ohio. Her vacation will extend until September. Miss Amy Tapping, the secretary, will begin her vacation, August 1.

Sunday School Teachers' Picnic.

The Plainfield Graded Sunday School Teachers' Union met at the Y. W. C. A., Monday afternoon. Miss Edna French taught the beginners' lesson; Mrs. J. A. Powlison the primary lesson and Miss Ida Spicer the junior lesson. The annual picnic of the Union will be held tomorrow at the home of Mrs. C. Frank French on Washington avenue.

Stole Shoes from Coal Office.

The Rogers coal office at Dunellen was entered by burglars last night and six pairs of shoes were stolen. Shoes, in addition to other sundries are sold at the coal office. Entrance was gained by a rear window. Mr. Rogers notified the police of the theft this morning but so far there is no clue to the burglar.

Juniors Going to Church.

The members of Franklin, Somerset, Benevolent and Plainfield Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., will attend divine services at Grace M. E. church, Sunday night, when the pastor, Rev. Ora J. Shoop, will preach a patriotic sermon.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Beebe, of Stelle avenue, are at Easthampton, L. I., for the summer.

PLAYGROUND SUPERVISOR

Miss Harriet Moe Chosen by the Commission for the Position.

ANOTHER YET TO BE NAMED.

The Apparatus Placed at Bryant and Stillman School Yards—Places to Be Opened in the Afternoons.

One supervisor for the Bryant School playground was chosen by the Playground Commission at its meeting last night. She is Miss Harriet Moe, who was chosen after careful consideration from about seventeen applicants and fulfills all of the commission's exacting requirements for the post.

Miss Moe has had four years experience as a playground supervisor in New York city playgrounds and is a teacher in Public School No. 8, New York. In the words of Secretary Herbert Parker, she is "easily the best qualified of all the applicants who have been considered by the commission." Miss Moe is a sister-in-law of Rev. Elory Bowers, of the Grace P. E. church.

The other supervisor for the Stillman School playground will be chosen sometime this week. Preparations for the opening of the playgrounds next Tuesday will have been completed then. The Board of Education has granted the commission power to erect drinking fountains for the children, and has agreed to open the school toilets for their use during the summer.

The apparatus to be used is in position and the grounds have been cleared up and put in condition for the opening. The rules of the playgrounds will be posted in a conspicuous place in each one. These are of a simple nature, and relate to the opening and closing of the grounds. This clause states that the playgrounds will be open from 2 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. The playgrounds will be open only on week days. Other clauses relate to the conduct of the children.

MEADOWVIEW KENNELS MAKES A GREAT SWEEP.

At the North Jersey Kennel Club show held at "Yales Ronald," the beautiful country seat of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Conklin, at Morris Plains, the Meadowview Kennels won first open and first winners, dogs, with Meadowview Gleam O'Dawn, and first open, first winners, bitches, with Meadowview Vassar. They also won the English Kennel Club medals, and in the unclassified specials the medal for best bred and owned by one exhibitor as well as the White Star trophy offered by Mrs. A. R. Dodd, of Long Branch, for best brace of any one breed; the Dr. A. C. Daniel special for best sporting dog; the James Watson trophy for best brace; it making the third time these kennels have won this special. They also won the North Jersey Kennel Club cup for best sporting dog.

Closing Up Restaurant Business.

The restaurant formerly conducted on North avenue by Charles Miltner, has been closed up and today a chattel mortgage sale is being held. George Valentine, who at one time was proporietor of the place, sold out to Mr. Miltner, taking a chattel mortgage. The latter was unable to make the business a success and decided to close. P. H. Latourette is conducting the sale. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represents Mr. Valentine and Francis J. Blatz is looking for Mr. Miltner's interest.

Adjutant Jackson to Lead.

Adjutant Jackson of the industrial department will be in charge of the meeting tonight at the Salvation Army tent. He will speak on the topic, "We are not saved." The adjutant requests that friends of the army who have been contributing their waste to kindly drop a postal, or 'phone if possible, to the Home and the wagon will be sent out promptly. The driver will furnish postal cards.

Census Takers to Get $88.

Local young men who took the census between April 15 and 30 will receive their pay for the work some time next week. The vouchers have been forwarded to Washington and payment has been started alphabetically. The compensation is 2½ cents for each name and 10 cents for live stock in stables.

Two Bands of Music.

There will be two bands of music at the lawn festival to be held at Warren chapel, tomorrow afternoon and evening, and the women of the chapel who have the affair in charge promise many attractive features.

NEWARK N.J.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Rev. J. Calvin Krause has left the Williamstown Presbyterian Church, after serving ten years, and gone to Greenwich.

An ordinance forbidding the use of everything except the common firecracker on July Fourth in the borough of Vineland went into effect Monday.

The Grangers of Salem, Cape May, Cumberland, Gloucester and Atlantic counties will have their first annual picnic at Wildwood on July 14.

Mrs. Julius Morvay, of Vineland, barely escaped death from the horns of a pet cow recently. The animal knocked her down and tore a hole in her stomach several inches long.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Kern and family of Jersey City, formerly of Vailsburg, have gone to their cottage at Keansburg for the summer, returning in October.

Suffering with typhoid fever, pneumonia and Bright's disease, Fred M. Horner, a popular young officer of the Beverly company of the National Guard, died in agony Sunday night.

Five candidates are hustling for support for the Republican nomination of Mayor of Millville, and rumor has it that two more candidates at least will be in the field before the primaries open.

Robert McGlester, of Williamstown, died in the German Hospital from cancer of the jaw. He was operated upon over thirty times and the bones on the left side of his face had all been removed.

While chopping down a tree, John Parent, of Burlington, leaned against the limb he was sawing, forty feet from the ground. It broke, dropping him to earth. Parent's skull was crushed and several ribs broken by the fall and little hope is entertained of his recovery.

The coroner's jury at Millville investigating the killing of Lucius Lutz, five years old, by the touring car of H. S. Van Leer Monday exonerated the automobilist, but recommended that the city authorities enforce more strictly the law regulating the speed of motor vehicles.

Knocked about by the heavy sea pounding off Haverford Inlet, the steamboat Bradford Smith went ashore on a bar near the mouth of the harbor while trying to make port Monday night. Captain Ludlam, of the live-saving station there, and his men rushed to the aid of the disabled craft and removed the crew, but was unable to float her. The boat may be gotten off at high tide.

Caught in the strong undertow and heavy surf just off Virginia avenue, Atlantic City, Monday, Charles Brennan, twenty-four years old, of Philadelphia, came within an ace of being the season's first bathing victim. Quick and daring work on the part of Guards Hall and Davis and two hours resucitation work by Beach Surgeon Beckwith and Captain Berke saved his life.

Much anxiety is felt for the safety of Miss Irene Shute, of Swedesboro, for whom diligent but unsuccessful search has been made since she disappeared two weeks ago. Miss Shute is the daughter of Atley Shute, and was teacher of the public school at Barnesboro. The school closed two weeks ago, she received a check for her salary and left for home but did not reach there.

County Prosecutor Atkinson has been asked to investigate the escape from the Burlington City jail Sunday of William Lovell, arrested Saturday night for wife beating and remanded for trial by Magistrate Smith. Lovell had been indicted on a similar charge and was on probation. His wife charges that while intoxicated last week he knocked her down with his fist and again beat her.

In Jersey City, Police Captain Charles Harrington, of the Central Avenue Station, is confined to his home in Belmont avenue with a broken nose. He was chasing a sixteen-year-old boy who stole some fruit from a stand, when the boy turned suddenly and his head struck the captain's face. Despite his injury the captain held on to his prisoner, John Benedick, of 347 Spring street, West Hoboken.

A telegram from Congressman Loudenslager, at Washington, Monday, announced that the War Department has decided to retain two companies of coast artillery at Fort Mott, the post along the Delaware, five miles from Salem. The companies now stationed there were recently ordered for duty in the Philippines and it was intimated that only a few men were to be left to garrison the place, probably about thirty in all.

Coroner Henry Maier, interred at Cumberland County's burial ground Monday the body of an unidentified man found on the shoal of Delaware Bay, between the mouth of Cohansey Creek and Sea Breeze Sunday. Only a penknife, a cigar holder, card case and a Philadelphia and Reading timetable were found on the body.

Evidently taking notice of the pointed charge of Supreme Court Justice Garrison last Saturday, the Camden County Grand Jury Monday returned indictments against Winfield Stevenson and Joseph Yinger, Fourth street and Kaign avenue;

Pennsylvania Railroad

AEROPLANE RACES

AVIATION WEEK AT ATLANTIC CITY

It is not a far cry back to "Darius Green and his flyin' machine" when aerial navigation was considered impossible.

Today Atlantic City is preparing for a great Aviation Meet from July 2 to 11, when three of the greatest flyers of the modern world will demonstrate their mastery of the air.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the holder of the world's record for speed, will fly daily from July 4 to 11.

Walter E. Brookins, who holds the record for high flying, will give exhibitions July 7 to 11 in a Wright aeroplane.

This is the first contest between the Wright and Curtiss machines.

It is also expected that Charles K. Hamilton, the great long distance aviator, will be present and race from July 7 to 11.

There will be prize events each day, including a fifty-mile flight over a five mile circular course, and prize high flying, July 7 to 11, directly over the beach front and ocean.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is the direct route to Atlantic City, and excursion tickets are on sale from all points.

Howard Buck, Front street and Kaign avenue; William Lippincott, Fourth and Market streets, and George Sevege Jr., on charges of keeping disorderly houses in allowing poker playing at their places.

nI Bayonne James Morgan was being led Monday to a cell in police headquarters, when he darted through an open door to a driveway and thence to the street. A dozen policemen, 200 men and boys and a score of dogs chased him half a mile before he was caught.

Robert Corson, of Cedarville, was arrested Monday upon a charge made by Harry Wisham, of assault with attempt to kill. Wisham says the assault was the result of a feud of fifteen years' standing. Wisham was driving home in a buggy Saturday and in a dark spot along the road there was an explosion of a gun and his wagon was riddled with buckshot. The occupants escaped unhurt. Wisham says that he will be able to show that Corson shot off the gun when the examination is held before the justice of the peace.

The Bayonne Independence Day Association, which has practically won its fight for a safe and sane Fourth of July and will give an industrial parade, games, music and fireworks on the holiday, is now striving to establish a hospital zone and to prevent the explosion of fireworks within one block in every direction of the City Hospital, in Thirtieth street, in order that the patients may not be disturbed. Mayor John J. Cain and Council will be requested to have policemen stationed about the hospital to prevent explosives being shot off during the day.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Plainfield Graded Sunday School Teachers' Union will hold its annual picnic tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Frank French on Washington avenue.

The members of the Loyal Temperance Legion are enjoying their annual picnic today at the Ohl farm on Central avenue, under the direction of superintendent, Mrs. Henry Thomas.

The annual strawberry and ice cream festival will be held at Warren chapel, tomorrow afternoon and evening. A band of music will be in attendance. The affair will be held on the lawn adjoining the chapel, and the decorations will be elaborate.

The officers of the Temple Baptist church are planning several improvements in the church property, which extends from East Third to East Second streets. A large arch was reecntly erected at the entrance to the property on East Second street, indicating a short cut to the church.

Great Annual Sale New Blankets

Many thousands of dollars worth of cash bought blankets, representing large orders, placed long before the steep advances in wool, will enter this sale at prices that will cause a decided sensation among those realizing the intrinsic worth of the blankets involved. The advantages are immense. This great sale is brought about by our being in a position to handle great quantities at a time when the mills want orders—securing them at lower prices and greater discounts than could possibly be obtained in the regular season. This sale includes every imaginable size, quality and style blanket that could be desired; including grays, whites, scarlets, plaids and fancy novelties of every description. The savings are very substantial and we can truthfully state that at no time will blankets be as cheap as they are in this great sale. A deposit secures any purchase until December if desired.

Jack Martin, who is now playing shortstop for Dave Driscoll's fast New Brunswick team, is making many friends in that burg, as shown by the following taken from the New Brunswick Home News regarding last Sunday's game with Altoona:

"The feature of the game was the work of Jack Martin although it was his low throw in the ninth inning, after two were down, that paved the way for Altoona to tie the score. But his fielding was really sensational, and he engineered two double plays. His hitting was also a feature, although every member of the team, except Driscoll and Gauven, took a hand in this department of the game, coralling a total of fifteen hits off McCloskey.

The New Brunswicks defeated McNulty Bros.' team at the former place on Saturday by a score of 5 to 4. "Bill". Dalton, formerly of this city, making the hit that won the contest.

Walter Nelson is doing fine work behind the bat for the Plainfield team these days. His catching at Rahway on Saturday was a feature of the battery work, in which "Warry" MacLaughlin figured so conspicuously.

"Billy" O'Loughlin is the first member of the Plainfield team to become a benedict in a long time, and his team-mates gave him a great send-off at his wedding on Saturday.

The Plainfield Baseball Club is playing fast ball these days, and has made a record of which it can be proud.

The team will play the nine from the U. S. S. Connecticut on Crescent Oval Fourth of July morning and it should be a rattling good game. In the afternoon the sailors will play at Dunellen.

The Y. M. C. A. team will miss George L. Listman very much when he leaves Plainfield. His hard work has been the means of infusing spirit into the team and getting the best results. The best wishes of the team as well as every member of the physical department will go with him to Montclair.

GOLF.

After an absence of more than ten years from the open tournament game the Ardsley Club will once agfain claim attention. The attraction will be an invitation golf tournament to be held there on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. In the old days, when the Intercollegiate Golf Association first held its championship contests there, Ardsley was quite well known to the tournament regulars. It was in 1898 that the women's national tournament was also decided there, the meeting in question marking the third and last successful effort of Miss Beatrix Hoyt.

In the coming tournament a start will be made with an eighteen-hole medal play qualifying round, and, according to the conditions, contestants will classify themselves in four sixteens. There will be a beaten eight division in the first set, and all rounds will consist of eighteen holes, except the final in every division, which will consist of the double route. The handicap on the last day will likewise be at thirty-six holes. Gardiner White, the interscholastic champion, has entered.

On Friday, July 15, the finals in all divisions will be played. In the first division the play will be at thirty-six holes, while in the other divisions and in the women's tournament, it will be at eighteen holes. A team match, East vs. West, will be held in the afternoon. The lowest gross score man from the West will play the lowest gross score man from the East in each of the three divisions, medals being awarded to the winning team. The scoring in this event will be on the Nassau plan. This competition will be closed to finalists. A women's handicap, with prizes for the best two net scores, also will be held.

An eighteen-hole handicap will be played on Saturday, July 16, a gold medal being offered for the lowest gross score and prizes for the four lowest net scores. The winners of low gross and net score prizes in the qualifying round of the regular tournament will be barred from this event.

TO GATHER MATERIAL FOR ANOTHER VOLUME.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, will leave Saturday on the Steamship Finland, of the Red Star Line, for a two months' trip abroad. Their travels will take them away from the "beaten path" of tourists. It will include a stay at Flanders, where Mr. Edwards will make a special study of the people and conditions with a view to writing a book which will be published a year hence.

Mr. Edwards speaks the Flemish language fluently and this will add greatly to the interest and attractiveness of the trip. He and Mrs. Edwards will also spend some time in and near Switzerland, where he hopes to collect some material for literary work. His last book on Holland was one of the best sellers of the year, having gone into several editions to supply the demand.

MR. McINTYRE'S PUPILS HEARD AT A RECITAL.

The singing of Miss Susan Wharton and Mrs. George S. Ring was a feature of the recital given by pupils of Joseph McIntyre at the home of the latter on Watchung avenue this morning. The house was thronged with lovers of music and all thoroughly enjoyed the fine program, which displayed the proficiency of the pupils and the efficiency of their teacher.

It was a charming social affair, and the program had particular merit. Miss Wharton was heard in Indian songs by Cadman, while Mrs. Ring gave a group of songs by MacDowell and Greig. Another pleasing number by Miss Wharton was a Gavotte from Mignon.

HIGHER FREIGHT RATES, 150 R.R.s ON AUGUST 1.

New York, June 29.—An advance of freight rates from one to sixteen per cent. will be made on August 1 by 150 roads in the Central Traffic Association, according to word received yesterday. This association embraces territory south from the lakes to the Ohio River, west to Chicago and east to the seaboard.

The railroads are informed, says the report, that the Interstate Commerce Commission will not interfere, and they justify the increased rates on the ground of higher operating expenses.

GOV. FORT CONDEMNED BY STATE PHYSICIANS

Governor Fort's veto of the bill making all osteopaths pass a stricter examination before being licensed by the state medical board, was severely condemned at the opening session of the 144th annual convention of the Medical Society of New Jersey at the Hotel Chalfonte, Atlantic City, yesterday.

Dr. L. M. Halsey, a member of the society and of the state board, who was scored by Governor Fort for his activity in behalf of the bill, was upheld by the reports of the county societies, which compose the main body. And the governor was condemned for his attack on Dr. Halsey, as well as for killing the bill which it is said by the doctors, practically every physician in the state—allopathic, homeopathic or electric, believed to be a necessity.

A resolution formally, committing the society to an official condemnation of the governor, has been prepared by the board of trustees. It probably will be presented and adopted tomorrow.

The bill has been urged by physicians for years. It provided that osteopaths, if they wished to be classed as masseurs, need not take an examination on materia medica and diagnosis. But if they wished to be considered full fledged doctors, with the power to sign death certificates, they should show themselves as well qualified in determining diseases as they were in anatomy.

The almost total elimination of the "contract evil," not a reputable physician who is a member of the society now doing work of that sort, and marked activity in pushing new legislation towards the prevention and cure of consumption were features of the report of the Judicial Council, by Dr. William H. Izard.

The county societies came in for criticism from Dr. Joseph M. Rector, chairman of the committee on scientific work. He declared many of these societies neglected their duties grossly, failed to show any interest in the efforts to prepare an interesting program for the annual convention, and did not even take the trouble to report to his committee that they would not aid in procuring some interesting papers to be read. Dr. Rector also took a shot at members, who, he said, "would rather walk on the boardwalk than listen to papers of absorbing interest."

"It is doubly difficult to obtain good speakers when they know by experience that only a corporal's guard will stay to hear them," said Dr. Rector.

He drew a laugh by stating that one president of a county society had not even known that an annual meeting was held. And, after expressing surprise inquired what such a session was for and where it was usually held.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

NEW MARRIAGE LAW IN EFFECT SATURDAY

The new marriage law goes into effect tomorrow night, at midnight. Every applicant to marry, whether resident or non-resident, must secure a license from the register of vital statistics. This official is authorized to question the applicants under oath rigidly as to their capacity to marry, any false statements subjecting the applicants to a penalty of from one to three years' imprisonment.

Among those to whom the issuance of a license are forbidden are such as at time of application are under the influence of intoxicating liquors or narcotic drugs, or are imbecile, or epileptic, or who possess an unsound mind. If they have ever been inmates of an insane asylum or an institution for indigents they must display a satisfactory certificate of discharge.

Any minister or public official authorized to marry who performs a ceremony where no license has been issued is subject to a penalty of $500 and imprisonment for six months. For failure to return the completed form to the official issuing the license within five days of the ceremony the officiating minister or justice is fined $50. If he knowingly certifies as to any false statements there is a further penalty of $100.

EPISCOPAL CLERGYMEN MEET AT ASBURY PARK.

Fifty Episcopal clergymen connected with the Convocation of New Brunswick, one of the two diocesan missionary organizations in the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New Jersey, met at Asbury Park yesterday in Trinity Episcopal church and discussed missionary matters. The convocation was presided over by Bishop John Scarborough, of Trenton, and among those present was Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, this city.

The holy communion was celebrated yesterday morning and the remainder of the day devoted to discussing reports. Last evening there was a public meeting in the interest of missions. Among the speakers yesterday were the Rev. Dr. A. B. Baker, of Princeton, dean of the New Brunswick Convocation, and the Rev. Dr. C. M. Perkins, of Burlington, dean of the Burlington Convocation.

Close Call for Fast Train.

One of the sleepers attached to the Federal Express, from Boston en route south on the Pennsylvania Railroad, jumped the track near the Clinton street station, Trenton, yesterday morning. One woman, Margaret P. Jackson, of Dorchester, Mass., was injured, but was able to continue her journey. Passengers in berths were thrown around the car in confusion. Though the car went off the track it did not part company with the rest of the train, nor telescoped. Traffic was delayed nearly two hours.

Young Burglars in Good Humor.

John Polan and Lewis Fulton, the youthful burglars, who robbed the store of aged Philip Ackor, were taken to the Somerset county jail by Chief Weiss yesterday afternoon. The boys will be held there, pending possible bail, to await the action of the grand jury in September. Both boys seemed to take the trip in a good natured fashion and joked on the way up.

All-Day Lawn Festival.

An all-day lawn festival will be held on the grounds of the Ebenezer Baptist church, East Third street and Fillmore avenue, July 4. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the church. There will be all kinds of refreshments and a band of music. Rev. G. E. Scruggs, pastor, will be in charge.

—The floor of the Plainfield Trust Company is being repaired. Several of the circular tiles became worn and uneven. These were torn out this morning and new ones will be put in.

Rev. Dr. F. A. Holtzhausen will lecture this evening in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church, on "The Monk that Shook the World." No admission fee will be charged. The lecture is an interesting one and the public is invited.

Varied Mental Diet.

Monotony of thought is the destruction of the brain. Watch yourself and give your mind a varied diet. Force yourself to put away all thoughts of your life work for a few hours every day, and for a few weeks every year. Learn to be frivolous if you are engaged in serious work, and learn to be serious if your work is of a humorous or light character. The brain, like the body, needs more than one kind of food to keep in health.

Pen Point Material.

Iridium is a hard, brittle, silver-white metallic element belonging to the platinum group, discovered by Tennant in 1803. Sometimes found native and nearly pure, but generally combined with osmium. It is, with the exception of osmium, the heaviest metal known, and is used for pen points, contact points in telegraphy and points of scientific instruments liable to wear. Its specific gravity is 22.4

Pity She Waked Him.

Maj. Young went to sleep Sunday in church just before the hat was passed. He snored for awhile in a lady-like manner, but suddenly let out a few links that sounded like a trombone solo. At that point in the program his wife jabbed him one in the slats with her elbow which awakened him sufficiently to remark: "Get up and build the fire yourself."—Riverton (Wyo.) News.

Court Dress of Laureate.

Tennyson's court dress, when he received the laureateship, did not cost him much, for it was the same court dress worn by Wordsworth, who in turn had it from the old poet Rogers, and it is still in the Wordsworth family. It is a wonder how Tennyson and Wordsworth got into it, for Rogers was a little fellow. Tennyson had no passion for courts, and so he went in second-hand to save cost.

Pneumonia Most Fatal Disease.

Health Commissioner Ritchie, of Boston, declares that pneumonia is now the most fatal disease in his jurisdiction. According to the present figures of the board of health, pneumonia comes first, heart disease second and tuberculosis, which was first in 1900, third.

To Keep Lemons.

Lemons may be kept a long time, even months, under glass. If you are not going to use them immediately lay them on a flat surface and invert a goblet over each one. After six months' imprisonment in this way they will be found to be fresh.—Woman's Life.

Bad Taste.

We have quit objecting to anything on the ground that it is wrong. When we wish to be particularly unpleasant we say in a sneering way that a certain action or thing is in very bad taste.—N. Y. Press.

Daily Health Hint.

Poisoning by inhaling chloroform or ether may be treated as for suffocation and artificial respiration should be induced. The great thing in all cases of poisoning is to get rid of the poison by purging or vomiting.

Real Meaning of Tact.

The read meaning of tact is thinking about others. It means considering what others will think and feel, instead of considering only what we ourselves think and feel.—Home Chat.

Still to Be Determined.

The dealer was busy filling bottles from a hogshead of wine. "What kind of wine is that?" queried an innocent bystander. "Don't know," answered the dealer. "I haven't labeled it yet."

Unsanitary Headdress.

In eighteenth century England the fashionable woman's headdress often had to be left untouched for weeks at a time.

Seems a Law of Nature.

Pauperism, destitution, ought to become extinct; but the poor, the wretched, the bereaved, the mutilated, we shall always have.

Self-Made.

A large majority of the good and respectable women in this world have succeeded in being so without the assistance of chaperons.

Guests Carved for Themselves.

It was the custom in medieval times to serve roast meat on a spit, and to pass it round the table for each guest to cut off what he liked.

Compulsory Reading.

Some of the ministers are asking again why the church attendance is small. Perhaps it is because the Sunday papers are so large.

Law of Compensation.

That which we acquire with most difficulty we retain the longest.—Colton.

Easy Information.

If you would know just what people say of you behind your back, listen to what they say of others.

Boy's Definition of Wind.

"Wind," wrote a little boy in his composition at school, "is air when it gets in a hurry."—Everybody's.

Public Notice.

The public is hereby warned that the Board of Health will take steps for the prosecution of any one responsible for mixing garbage or offal with ashes or rubbish. This is in direct violation of Section 10 of Article No. 4 of the Sanitary Code of the Board of Health of the city of Plainfield.

Lately, a considerable quantity of garbage and offal has been found to be mixed with ashes and rubbish which is used for the purpose of filling in low ground in different parts of the city, and as this putrescible matter renders the dumps very offensive, this practice of the householders and stroekeepers, must be discontinued at once.

Confusing to Lucinda

"Now this for a time," said Lucinda, "seemed to me a very complicated experience, but my brother Claude says it was really very simple. I'll tell you about it and you can see what you think.

"Three of us girls started to come down town on a surface car. There was I and a friend of mine and a friend of hers who was with her. Now usually, you know, we girls pay each her own fare, but my friend wanted to pay the fare of her friend, and what my friend wanted to do was to give me a dime for herself and her friend and have me pay for all three; and what I wanted to do was to give my friend my nickel and have her pay all three fares. I hope you understand this as far as I've got, for it's going to get more complicated right away.

"Well, the car was crowded when we got aboard, and we all had to stand up, and we tried to arrange that fare business as we stood there in the crowd, so that everything would be all right and ready when the conductor came around, and so I dropped my nickel in her handbag so she could pay, and she tried to hand her dime to me at the same time so I could pay, but in the crush somehow the dime was dropped between us and it fell down between the slats on the floor of the car, and there we let it rest, because we couldn't get at it in the crowd.

"Then pretty soon my friend and her friend came to the street where they were to get off, which they did; and this, you understand, before the conductor had got to us to collect our fares. So, you see, they got off without anybody paying their fares, they or I or anybody. And now things began to get more mixed up.

"Pretty soon after they had got off the conductor came along for my fare—I had got a seat by that time, near where I had been standing—and I told him I had dropped a dime on the floor and he could take it out of that. But there were some people still standing in the car and the conductor couldn't get the mat up with people standing on it, but evidently he believed me about the dime, for he didn't ask me again for my fare but went out and stood on the platform. And then more things happened.

"Sitting next to me was a mother with her little daughter, a very pretty little girl and handsomely dressed, as for that matter her mother was, too, and presently the mother spied that dime down between the slats on the floor, and she told her little daughter, and of course the little girl at once began to dig for it. But she couldn't get it out with her fingers and in a minute she looked up and said:

"'Mamma, give me a hairpin.'

"And mamma smiled at that, but she gave her a hairpin, and in a minute more the little girl had got the dime—which she handed over at once to me. I don't think the mother knew it was mine, but somehow the little girl did.

"So now I had the dime back, and when we came to the street where I was to get off I handed it to the conductor as I passed out, telling him that there was the dime that I dropped, and he took my fare out of it, and gave me back a nickel.

"And then I tried to cipher out who had paid, and how much, and with whose money; and the more I ciphered the more I got mixed up. I had certainly paid two fares, one to my friend when I gave her my nickel, which, if she knew it at all, she had forgotten all about, and then I had paid another five cents to the conductor.

"I had paid twice and yet I was really out only five cents, for that nickel to the conductor was paid out of my friend's dime, and of course the change from it belonged to her. My friend had lost a dime, but I had given her five cents with which to pay my fare, which she couldn't do, because the conductor didn't come for it, and she would get from me five cents more, the change out of the lost dime, which I had recovered.

"So who had paid and how much had anybody paid or lost, and the more I thought about all this the more confused I got, till I got so I just couldn't think, and then I asked Claude if he could figure it out.

"My brother Claude is great on figures, he can do sums with signs and all that sort of thing, and he said, as I told you, that it was all simple enough, that all I wanted to bother about was what he called the net result, and he said that when I had given my friend back the nickel out of the dime the net result of the entire transaction would be that this party of three would have paid out one fare, the fare paid by me, and that the company would be out two fares.

"And I think I can understand it now, but I hope I shall never have another experience like that, because trying to get this one straight in my mind actually made my head ache."

A Miss.

"She says her face is her fortune."

"She is deceiving you."

"Why, has she money?"

"No, but the kind of a face she carries is never a fortune."

Mean.

"Mr. Flipper tries to kiss every pretty girl he meets."

"He hasn't tried to kiss me yet."

"You heard what I said, didn't you?"

"Sure to be there when wanted"

SHAKE IT OFF.

Rid Yourself of Unnecessary Burdens. A Plainfield Citizen Shows You How.

Don't bear unnecessary burdens.

Burdens of a bad back are unnecessary.

Get rid of them.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure bad backs;

Cure lame, weak and aching backs;

Cure every form of kidney ills.

Lots of local endorsement to prove this.

Mrs. John Driscoll, 753 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The public statement I gave several years ago concerning my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills was correct and still holds good. I suffered from a dull pain across my back which clung to me incessantly. Hard work increased my misery and at times I also had headaches and dizzy spells. I tried plasters and remedies of various kinds but without relief. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I finally procured at Randolph's Pharmacy relieved me and for that reason I heartily recommend them.'

New Kink in Advertising.

The latest trick of the cinematograph, says the London Pall Mall Gazette, is to show scenes from a fashionable thoroughfare, theater or driving park. After the little drama has been played, there appears in the gateway whence the crowd issued the words: The dresses worn by the ladies in the last picture were made by the celebrated ——," whoever the dressmaker may be who is advertising her establishment.

Hate and Love.

We hate each other because we are ignorant of each other. Mutual understanding tends to mutual good will and peace. Our steamships, railroads, automobiles, telegraphs and telephones, by annihilating the distance between men and by means of the interchange of thought and knowledge that they afford, are fast creating the dominion of a large human confidence and love.—Rev. Thomas B. Gregory.

Roundabout Way to Happiness.

If everything in the holy state of matrimony went on too smoothly we should not be aware of how happy we are. We should not realize that a horse was well trained if horses never never ran away. We should never know that marriage makes for long life were it not that there are incidental troubles which sometimes shorten it.

Golden Silence.

One of the children in the Lysander John Appleton family is named Vassar for the college from which their mother was graduated. Mrs. Appleton says: "He has went," and uses many other strange expressions for a Vassar graduate, but she is a Woman, and none dare say a word of doubt.—Atchison (Kan. Globe.

Melody of the Turbine.

In a turbine steamer the rhythmic thumping of the pistons disappears and instead the engines give out a thin soprano song that rises or falls in key with the speed, sometimes suggesting a continuous squeal from the struggling giants of steam striving to escape from their close confinement inside the big iron jackets.

Siberia.

Siberia is one of the largest and most productive agricultural regions on the face of the globe, the greater part of the land being fertile and capable of yielding abundant crops and of sustaining large flocks and herds. Then, too, the mineral resources have hardly been touched.

Daily Thought.

No man can justly censure or condemn another, because indeed no man truly knows another. This I perceive in myself; for I am in the dark to all the world, and my nearest friends behold me but in a cloud.—Sir Thomas Browne.

The Father of Newspapers.

What's all this talk about the father of newspapers a few centuries back? The first newspaper was published and circulated by Julius Caesar. I suppose the Chinks will now claim a beat on Julius, the father of newspapers.—New York Sun.

An Expert.

Prim Aunt—"My dear nephew, were you wise in your choice of a wife? Can she cook? Can she make good stew?" Nephew—"She can make a stew all right. The only trouble is that she always puts me in it."

Marsupial Youth.

A Pennsylvania boy saved himself from an imminent operation for appendicitis by coughing up a needle. Everything a boy can't put in his pockets he puts in his stomach.

Biggest Eaters.

The Korean is the greediest and the biggest eater in the world. Most any man in Korea will eat anything he can get, and he will take a dozen meals a day if he has the chance.

Bridesmaid's Tragic Fate.

A girl, aged nine, one of the bridesmaids in a wedding procession that passed through the woods of Sabanti, was seized by a wild boar and killed before the guests could interfere.

Mothers Attend Night School.

One of the most remarkable sights in America is the attendance of mothers with children in their arms in the Philadelphia night schools.

The Happy Husband.

Wife—Sebastian, I just heard you sigh again. Now, you must understand that once and for all I forbid you to sigh.—Fliegende Blaetter.

A Guarded Answer.

"I got my wife through advertising." "Then you'll admit advertising pays?" "I'll admit that it brings results."—Mail Order Journal.

Hospitable Folk.

Under no circumstances, and in no locality, it is said, will a Cuban eat and drink without first having invited his neighbors to partake of his fare.

Wanted Inspiration.

People who have inherited money are often inspired without paying the least attention to the inspiration.

Vigorous in Old Age.

An old Jersey farmer, 90 years old, followed the hounds through a whole day, walking 25 miles.

Women at Thirty.

Women begin to be socially tolerable at 20, and improve until the deepening of their consciousness is checked by the decay of their faculties. But they begin to be pretty much earlier than 30, and are indeed sometimes at their best in that respect long before their chattering is, apart from the illusions of sex, to be preferred in serious moments to the silent sympathy of an intelligent pet animal.—Shaw.

Store Built of Paper.

A store in Atlanta, Ga., has been built entirely of paper. The rafters, weather-boards, roof and flooring are all made of thick, compressed paper boards, impervious to water. On account of the surface of the paper being smooth and hard, it cannot catch fire as easily as a wooden building. It is found warm in cold weather and cool in hot weather.

Good Word for the Departed.

It is said by the author of a recent volume of biography, that his verdict on the great of his chosen period is much that of the New Hampshire parson at the highly approved funeral of a parishioner: "Brethren, we must agree that our deceased friend was mean in some things,—but let us in Christian charity allow that he was meaner in others."

Plant Trees.

All land owners should plant some kind of trees. There is always some waste land about the farm—some hillside or swamp that is not cultivated, which, if planted to some kind of timber, would soon return a profit and would also improve the looks of the farm, as nothing adds more to its beauty than a well-kept grove or woods pasture.

Chinese Currency.

Business transactions between Chinese merchants and foreign firms are usually in taels. The tael is not a coin, but a Chinese ounce of silver. It varies in different places both as to weight and "touch" (or fineness), and the exchange between the tael and the dollar, or between the former and the copper coinage is constantly fluctuating.

True Success.

If the day and night are such that you greet them with joy, and life emits a fragrance like flowers and sweet-scented herbs, is more starry, more immortal—that is your success. All nature is your congratulation and you have cause momentarily to bless yourself.—Henry David Thoreau.

Not Adjuncts of Happiness.

An exchange wonders how people got along without the telegraph, telephone, etc., etc. Well they did get along, and so far as anybody knows they were just as happy as are the people who are surrounded with all these "adjuncts of civilization."

Famed Violin in Chicago.

The renowned Stradivarius with which Fritz Kreisler has entranced the world for several years and which is known far and near as the greatest concert violin, was purchased the other day by a Chicago music house. The violin is valued at $15,000.

Prize for Truthfulness.

A feature of the prize distribution to the children of the Portuguese Jews' schools at London, England, was the awarding of a gift of $55 to the most truthful boy and girl attending the schools.

Pertinent.

"Ignorance of the law," said the judge, "is no excuse for crime." "May I inquire of your honor," asked the prosecuting attorney, "whether your honor's remarks are directed at the defendant or his counsel?"

Nothing Doing.

"Miss Milyuns, Angeline," he pleaded, "could you, oh, could you marry a poor, penniless chap like me?" "Sure I could," replied the fair Angeline, coldly, "but let me inform you right here and now that I'm not going to."

Trade in Beeswax.

British manufacturers of blacking purchase large crates of beeswax. The beeswax imported from China is in large cubes, each done up in a written guarantee of purity and quality.

To Heights Sublime.

If making two blades of grass grow where but one grew before is a noble accomplishment, what proud word will fitly name the mantic heroism of reforesting a nation?

Cultivate Courage.

Let doubt and fear once clutch thee, and death be thine; but thy glory shall be as a flaming sky, and everlasting, if thou but once look deep into the eyes of courage.

A Profesional Proposal.

The Banker—I respectfully request that you deposit your love with me to bear interest daily until death.—Judge.

Uncle Ezra Says:

"Experience is a dear teacher, but gen'ly she ain't the one the av'rige schoolboy fust falls in love with."

Home Life Above All.

Home life is at the root of the nation's well-being.

Golden Silence.

Be silent and safe—silence never betrays you.—O'Reilly.

The Telephone—
A Friend in Need

WITH a telephone at home, the business man does not feel the urgent necessity of being at the office.

Without a telephone, frequently he goes to business when he should stay indoors, sometimes thus developing a serious sickness from a slight indisposition. A telephone would keep him in touch with his place of business, and his place of business in touch with him, so that all ordinary affairs of the day would go on as though he were at his post.

It does not matter how far a man lives from his office, for Bell Telephone Service is both Local and Long Distance.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

The Photograph of a Rival

The girl lay in a wicker chair, between heavy clumps of bramble upon an old-fashioned, undulating lawn.

The man lounged in another chair a few feet away from her. His outline was sulky. Dan, the retriever, rolled between them.

An oak tree of tremendous girth, which filled the background, stretched benedictory arms above their heads.

"Bless you, my children," it seemed to say. Yet neither of them apparently had any use for blessings.

Lucy would have liked to throw things at the man—hard things that would have hurt him.

She would have liked to scream and run into the house. Both courses were denied her.

An overworked father with a sermon to write had bade her amuse his guest for an hour or two, and, generally speaking, she would have been well plesead to do it; but Lucy was mortal, and it is not given to mortals—not women mortals at any rate—to stand the sight of young men whom they consider captives of their bows and spears kissing surreptitiously the photographs of alien women which they have extracted for that purpose from the pockets of their Norfolk coats. Yet all this Lucy had seen just before lunch, as she passed the study window where Dick Fellowes sat waiting for the rector.

She had retired precipitately to the shrubbery to cry, and had emerged with what she flattered herself to be an exceedingly-usual-really-haven't-noticed-a-thing-you-know manner.

Of course, she overdid it.

Dick asked her if she was angry with him, after 20 minutes of baffled effort to find her as usual.

"Angry? Good gracious, me—no! Angry?"

Now, what on earth had Lucy to be angry about? Mr. Fellowes, of all people, never made her angry. She—she never bothered to be angry with people, unless—oh, it didn't matter. No, certainly she was not angry.

She laughed, a laugh so unconvincing that Dan, the retriever, who had followed them out into the garden, barked at the sound of it. For 20 minutes the conversation was so strained that it could scarcely be called conversation at all. Then Dick Fellowes—the afternoon being hot—grew aggrieved and fell asleep, which was rude of him, and made Lucy more furious than ever.

She sat perfectly upright, clutching the arms of her chair, her eyes on the pocket of his Norfolk coat. Her whole soul was surged with one desire to see that photograph, to look for one tiny moment upon the features of that vulgar, fuzzy-haired girl whose outline she had faintly perceived through the study window.

She got up and took an angry turn round the bed of roses. Here and there she snipped off a dead rose as if it were the head of the girl whose photograph was good enough to be kissed—fuzziness and all.

When she returned to her chair, Dick still slept, snoring a little now, and at his feet, Dan, the retriever, worried something which he had unlawfully appropriated in the absence of his mistress.

It was a photograph, and from the wide Norfolk pocket had it been drawn gingerly with Dan's teeth.

Lucy's heart thudded suffocatingly with excitement.

"Good dog," she whispered. "Put it down—good dog."

And Dan, accustomed to obedience, came and laid the photograph at her feet.

She stooped swiftly, and picked it up while the dog gamboled round her skirts.

Minx! The fuzzy-haired girl was asleep on a lawn with an open book on her lap, where she had obviously been snapshotted by the infatuated Dick.

"What a bold hussy—what a—. Good gracious!" She clutched the photograph, looking closer. Why the creature's dress was familiar—and her face—oh, her face!

Quite suddenly and unexpectedly Lucy's heart beat a new tune.

"Dick couldn't have been so absurd—and all that time ago, too. Oh, of all things, what a little fool she's been! Poor, dear old Dick!" And so on, ad libitum.

A mere scribe finds it not within his province to describe Lucy's volte face. She was a new woman, her dimples came and went, her blushes kept them company.

Then he had cared for her all this long time, much longer than she'd fancied, and he was waiting to speak till he'd got promotion.

She tiptoed on velvet feet to his side and dropped the photograph gently back into its gaping home.

Then she touched Dick on the shoulder.

"Dick," she cried—"Dick, you're awfully bad company to-day—do wake up! Here's tea. I want you to see Dan begging for Devonshire cream on Bath olives—he loves it, but he only gets it for a treat when he's been—er—specially good."

And Dick realizing dimly and stupidly, as a man will, that magic had been at work since he slept, sensibly made no reference to the past, but drew his chair near to Lucy's, and beamed all over.

N. J. NAVAL RESERVES GET MONITOR TONOPAH.

Norfolk, Va., June 29.—With a crew from the New Jersey Naval Reserves on board, the monitor Tonopah left the navy yard Monday for the home station of the New Jersey naval militia at Hoboken, N. J.

She will be used as a practice vessel for the regular cruise of the naval reserves of that state.

GOLF COMMITTEE TROPHY PLAY BEGINS SATURDAY

Play for the golf committee trophy will begin at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday afternoon, with a qualifying round, at 18 holes, medal play, handicap. The four players in Class A returning the lowest net scores, and the four players in Class B returning the lowest net scores, to qualify.

Class A and Class B players are to be drawn to play against each other in the first round, match play. The first round, match play, will be played at 18 holes, handicap, on the morning of July 4; the semi-finals in the afternoon of the same day, and the finals on Saturday, July 9. In match play rounds, if the match is not started by 10.30 in the morning or 3 o'clock in the afternoon, on July 4, the player not appearing shall lose by default.

On July 4, in addition to the match play rounds, for those qualifying for the golf committee trophy, there will be an 18 hole, medal play, handicap, with prizes for both classes. This may be played either morning or afternoon. There will also be a driving competition and an approaching and putting contest which will be open to all members of the club.

SENATOR DRYDEN'S NEW BOOK.

Addresses and Papers on Life Insurance and Other Subjects.

There has just been put on file in the larger libraries of the country, a volume containing the addresses and papers on life insurance and other subjects, by former United States Senator John F. Dryden, organizer and president of the Prudential Insurance Company of America.

It will be remembered that President Dryden first successfully introduced and operated industrial life insurance in the United States, and his new book contains much information concerning life insurance for the masses, or what is commonly called industrial insurance.

Mr. Dryden's book is one of the very few books that have been written on this subject. The volume treats of the inception and early problems of the business, as well as the social economy and practice of what the author claims is one of the most effective methods of family protection ever devised. Mr. Dryden also points to the opportunities of life insurance as a career, and in his book brings out clearly that only one-fifth of the population carry legal reserve life insurance. The author tells of the new system of life insurance successfully introduced by the Prudential about two years ago by which the payment of life insurance money through the medium of monthly income checks is divided over the entire life time of the widow or other dependents rather than paying it in one sum directly at the death of the insured. Mr. Dryden believes that this method of distributing life insurance is directly in line with the American ideal of the highest possible degree of economic independence in old age, and that this new plan of the Prudential's marks an epoch in life insurance.

JERSEY COUPLE GET MARRIAGE LICENSE.

Paterson, June 29.—What is probably the first marriage license to be issued in this State under the new law which will go into effect next Friday, was given to Michael Higgins, of Nutley, and Miss Ellen E. Connolly, of this city, by Registrar Charles S. Gall, yesterday morning. The couple will be married after July 1.

The bride-to-be said she was twenty-three years old, that she was the daughter of Michael E. and Teresa Connolly, and that she resided at 393 Sixth avenue. The bridegroom-elect is twenty-four years old and a son of Peter and Bridget Higgins, of Nutley.

TRENTON POPULATION UNDER 100,000 MARK.

Trenton, June 29.—While the official figures of the federal census are not yet obtainable, sufficient fragmentary data has been found to form the basis of a fairly accurate estimate of the population of this city. Trenton enthusiasts and optimists early predicted that the city would pass the 100,000 mark, but present estimates indicate that it will be about 95,700. In spite of the disappointment this will show the remarkable increase of 22,393 since the census of 1900, and an increase of 11,520 since the State census of five years ago.

It has been intimated that some of the districts of the city will show a decrease from the State census, but this is readily accounted for in the fact that the federal census authorities do not permit the counting of the students in the State schools and other institutions of similar character who were counted in the State census.

Trentonians have been awaiting with considerable interest the announcement of the Camden census results, for the rivalry in population between these two cities has always been close and bitter. In the federal census of 1900 Camden exceeded Trenton by 2,628 persons, Camden having 75,935 and Trenton 73,307. In the State census of 1905 Trenton passed Camden by 817, having 84,180 to Camden's 83,363.

There is little doubt that Mercer County will pass the 125,000 mark with the present census, and that Camden county beat Mercer county by 12,278, having 107,643 souls to Mercer's 95,365. The state census five years later gave Camden county 11,520 more than Mercer, the figures being 121,555 for Camden county and 110,516 for Mercer.

PAUL JONES' DUST IN OBSCURE CORNER.

At a reception tendered William A. Marble, of New York, president general of the National Congress, Sons of the American Revolution, by the Newburgh, N. Y. chapter. Mr. Marble said that there was one national disgrace that he hoped to see wiped out before he left office. In a casket, covered by the flag of the nation, stowed away in a vacant room at Annapolis, is all that remains of Paul Jones, America's naval hero. The identity was established by General Horace Porter, a former president general of the Sons, and so great was the veneration of the government for the dust of the hero that a squadron of United States war vessels escorted the remains to the shore of the country.

General Marble has seen Congressman William S. Bennett, of New York, who told him that a bill had been introduced in congress to appropriate $125,000 for a crypt, in which to place the remains. The bill was referred to a committee, and, notwithstanding repeated efforts to get it before the house, the bill still hangs fire, and the body is allowed to rest in an obscure, dust laden corner of a building.

Mr. Bennett stated further that if the bill could be gotten out of the committee it would be passed by a vote of at least 90 per cent. of the members of both houses. It is generally supposed that the body was interred at Annapolis.

ANOTHER DEMAND FOR AN EXTRA SESSION.

If all the requests for a special session of the Legislature were heeded by Governor Fort and the work taken up, there would be a continuous session from the present time until December 31.

The latest call for a special session came yesterday from a delegation from Atlantic county, headed by Senator Wilson, who is desirous of having the lawmakers called together to pass legislation which would permit the building of the shore road between Somers Point and Absecon. The construction of this road was prevented by a recent decision of the Supreme Court.

Senator Wilson pointed out that this is one of the most important stretches of the proposed ocean boulevard. He was very anxious that there should be no unnecessary delay.

Governor Fort heard Senator Wilson's appeal, and declared he would give him an answer later in the day, but he changed his mind and will tell the Senator Thursday what he will do in the matter.

Before calling on the Governor the delegation called on State Road Commissioner Gilkyson and tried to interest him in the matter of legislation on the question.

CENSUS SCHEDULES SENT TO WASHINGTON

The last of the census schedules of Union county were forwarded to Washington today. The office at Elizabeth will remain open, however, for two weeks at least, in order to transact any business that may come from the capital. Although the last of the portfolios was turned in shortly after the first of the month, it was impossible to forward them to Washington at that time.

Supervisor Louis V. Hoagland is forbidden to make any estimate on the results of the canvass.

"I have had a good staff of enumerators to assist me in the work, and this is true in every part of Union, Warren and Morris counties. I have worked night and day at times in an effort to secure proper results, and I feel that I have been successful."

As an example of the conscientiousness of the men who took the census under Supervisor Hoagland, one in Morris county walked three miles up a steep mountain road between Denmark and Newfoundland in order to enumerate a Civil war veteran living alone in a cabin on the mountain road. It meant six miles of the hardest sort of travel for a single name. His pay for this was two cents.

NO FIGHT BULLETINS AT WESTEHRN UNION.

General Manager Brooks, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, issued notice yesterday that the company would furnish no news bulletins either by special wire, by messengers or on its tickers, relating to the progress of the Jeffries-Johnson prize-fight.

Numerous applications have been made for such service in various parts of the country. The Western Union Company will confine itself to the handling of such messages as may be filed at Reno by press associations, by newspapers and by individuals.

ing formulated.

There are a number of retired ministers in the city and borough and no doubt they will be called upon to preach and do pastoral work during the absence of the regular pastors. During July union services will be held Sunday evenings at the First Baptist, First M. E., Trinity Reformed and First Presbyterian churches, the pastors taking turns in preaching.

ABSCONDER TOOK $2,200 FROM B. & L. ASSOCIATION.

Mt. Holly, June 29.—The state examiners of banking and insurance who have concluded their investigation of the affairs of the Industry Building and Loan Association reported at a meeting of the association Monday night that the shortage of its former treasurer, Clifford S. Heller, amounts to about $2,200.

They find that Heller's speculations extended previous to last October, and as his bond for $2,500 did not expire until April, it holds good for all the shortages and the expense incident to the investigation. The examiners announce that the credit of the association has not been impaired. Edward B. Jones was elected treasurer to fill the unexpired term, and a new rule now requires the treasurer to present his bankbook to the directors every month.

Heller, as assistant cashier of the Mt. Holly National Bank, is charged with stealing $18,510.50 from the safe. He may be arrested after a reward has been offered.

Must Not Mix Garbage and Ashes.

The city board of health has just published an announcement that anyone mixing garbage or similar matter with ashes will be prosecuted. For some time past housewives have put their garbage in the same cans with their ashes. This has been used to fill in lowlands in various parts of the city giving an offensive odor.

S. A. CROZER, SEMINARY PRESIDENT, DEAD AT 85.

Chester, Pa., June 29.—Samuel Aldrich Crozer, prominent in Baptist church circles, also manufacturer and capitalist, died at his home in Upland, near here, yesterday, aged eighty-five years.

He was president of the board of trustees of the Crozer Theological Seminary, which his family founded in 1868 and contributed liberally to the other Baptist enterprises. He owned extensive coal lands in Virginia and was the owner of several large textile mills in Chester and Upland.

Mr. Crozer erected many Baptist churches in Delaware County. He was the donor of one of the Chester public parks.

EX-GOV. MURPHY FOR MEXICO'S CENTENNIAL.

Washington, June 29.—President Taft yesterday announced the appointment of ex-Governor Curtis Guild, of Massachusetts, as special Ambassador of the United States at the celebration of the first centennial of the republic of Mexico, to be held in Mexico City in September.

The President also announced the civil members of the commission to represent this country at the celebration. They are Justice Gerard, of the Supreme Court of New York; ex-Governor Franklin Murphy, of New Jersey; Colonel C. A. Rook, of Pittsburg. There are six other members of the commission, three senator and three representatives.

Miss Ruth Harris Will Sing.

Miss Ruth Harris, soprano soloist of the First Baptist church, will sing several solos at the mid-week prayer-meeting to be held at the church, this evening, which will add considerable interest. The service will be in charge of the Women's Missionary Societies of the church, and papers prepared for the societies will be read by Mrs. Martin I. Cooley and Mrs. J. A. Chambliss.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, of East Ninth street, are spending their vacation at Moscow, Pa.

PREPARATIONS FOR CAMP WAYWAYANDA

Parents of the boys who are to go to Camp Waywayanda, the boys' state camp of the Y. M. C. A., met last night in the local association parlors. Most of the mothers of the boys were present and an opportunity was thus given them to get acquainted with one another and to know with whom their sons are to spend the season.

One of the campboxes was on exhibition. This was the center of much interest and offered suggestions to the boys and parents who are preparing for camp for the first time. For many of the parents the meeting afforded an opportunity for the first time to visit the building to get an idea of the work that the boys are doing in the local Y. M. C. A., and under what kind of supervision.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the Boys' Work Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary. Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard was chairman of this committee.

The boys will leave Plainfield on the 6.27 train tomorrow morning. They will be under the supervision of Boys' Secretary William Bingeman and Charles Line. Fifteen boys will go to camp, but only five lads will leave in the first section tomorrow. These are: Joseph Sattels, Robert Day, Benjamin Cooley, Hoyt Tompkinson and Russell Lee. The second section will leave July 15.

TO HOLD EXAMINATION FOR GOOD STATE JOB

Notices have been posted in the office of County Clerk Calvert at Elizabeth for two more civil service examinations. On July 11 an examination for the position of inspector in the utilities division of the Board of Public Utilities will be held at Trenton. Any male resident of the state is entitled to apply for the examination. The position pays an annual salary of $4,000. It is stated, however, that those who apply should have technical education in the construction of electrical railroads and lighting plants.

Another examination to be held on July 11 is for the position of county detective in Camden county. Any resident of the State is entitled to take the examination. The position pays $1,500 a year.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE BECOMES A LIFE SAVER

John Dutcher, who was graduated from the City High School in the class of 1908 has received an appointment as a life saver at Asbury Park. His work in this capacity will not be continuous owing to a boating business which he has established on Wesley lake.

Mr. Dutcher is a strong swimmer and has saved several lives in the Asbury Park surf. Three years ago he saved the life of a man who was attempting to launch a canoe in the surf. As a mark of gratitude he was given the canoe which was worth $60.

Two years ago when thirty people were rescued from a dangerous hole in the surf near the old Ross pavilion Dutcher saved five people. These rescues were witnessed by a large number of Plainfielders who were at the shore on one of the local Sunday school excursions at the time. His work at this time brought him into attention and his appointment followed. He will not be called upon to work every day.

Dutcher played on the City High School baseball and basketball teams and on the Dunellen base ball nine. He is the son of Rev. E. C. Dutcher, formerly pastor of the Dunellen Methodist church. This year he completed his sophomore year at New York University where he made the college crew, the football team, the baseball nine and one of the musical organizations.

Mrs. Isabelle C. Davis Will Speak.

Mrs. Isabelle C. Davis, one of the original founders of the order of King's Daughters, will be the speaker at the Salvation Army tent, Watchung avenue and Fourth street, this evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Davis is a capable and pleasing speaker and last year she attracted one of the largest audiences of the season, when she spoke at the tent. Saturday evening an entertainment will be given by the children, which will include recitations, solos and drills. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

GIVES A BANQUET ON FIFTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY.

Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann, of Watchung Crest, gave a banquet at his home last night, in honor of the fifty-fifth anniversary of his birthday. Covers were laid for twenty-five guests, chiefly from New York, Brooklyn Hackensack and this city. The doctor was generously remembered with gifts, a substantial one being a completely furnished study.

In the afternoon the children of the school presented a fine program of recitations and music, after which they received gifts as a reward of merit for proficiency in school work. Following the banquet in the evening there was an informal dance which was enjoyed until a late hour.

At Hope Chapel.

The final meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Hope chapel until fall was held yesterday afternoon at the chapel. It was a largely attended meeting which was called to order by the president, Mrs G. Herbert Condict. After the routine business was disposed of a request was read from the ways and means committee of the chapel in which the co-operation of the society was asked to make the proopsed industrial fair to be held in the chapel a success. The society decided to assume charge of an apron booth in the proposed fair. Mrs. L. R. Howard presented an interesting report on missions, from notes she obtained at the recent general assembly of the Presbyterian church at Atlantic City. Refreshments were served by the social committee.

Will Close Saturday Noon.

Woolston & Buckle, J .C. Hanson and Harold Hansen, painters and decorators will close their places of business at noon on Saturdays throughout the summer until after Labor Day. The plan will be inaugurated on Saturday.

Did Not Represent Sauerracher.

Walter J. Hetfield, Jr., wishes the Daily Press to state that it was not he who was counsel for Charles Sauersacher, in a recent trial at Dunellen. He is counsel for the Borough of Dunellen, and acted as such in the proceedings.

Board of Health Issues Licenses.

The new marriage law which goes into effect tomorrow, provides that marriage licenses shall be issued at the Board of Health office. In cities of 50,000 population and over the licenses are issued by the city clerk.

YOUNG HARRIS RECOVERS HIS AUTOMOBILE LICENSE

Girard Harris, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Harris, of West Front street, has recovered his license to operate an automobile, which was revoked several weeks ago when he was implicated in a charge of "joy riding," in this city. Mr. Harris recently appeared before Superintendent J. B. R. Smith, of the State Department of Motor Vehicles, and gave a full explanation of the affair.

Mr. Harris, it is said, satisfied Mr. Smith that he was not intoxicated on the night in question, and that if his actions were not what they should have been they were due chiefly to the influence of his companions.

In returning the license to Mr. Harris, the State official took into consideration that no one was injured as a result of the affair and that the only damage was to the Harris car. Mr. Harris is now privileged to operate an automobile as before.

Y.M.H.A. CLOSES ACTIVE SEASON WITH MUSICAL

The Y. M. H. A. of this city, concluded its year's activities last night in the association auditorium when a musical and dance was held. The hall was crowded to its capacity with friends and relatives of the members and a program of much interest was given.

This opened with a duet by Leo Jacobs, a brother of Mrs. M. Schwabach, of Richmond street, who is leader of the Tremont orchestra of New York, and Miss Ruth Weinberger, of Duer street. Miss Weinberger presided at the piano and Mr. Jacobs displayed rare skill on the violin. The second number was a song by the Misses Lena and Frances Kline, followed by a splendid violin and piano duet by the Jocker brothers of New York. Miss Netta Newcorn then gave a skillful piano solo which was followed by "My Hero," a song by Miss Ruth Weinberger, of Prospect place. Monroe Jockers and Miss Leah Hamburger then gave two pleasing duets, "Zamper" and "Infernal."

The second part of the program included humorous readings by Mrs. Mendel, of Park avenue. These were heartily applauded. Mrs. William Newcorn followed with a piano solo and Albert Jockers sang the "Barber Shop Cord." Miss Leah Hamburger then followed with a piano solo after which the Misses Lena and Frances Kline gave a pleasing song. The violin solo, "Mendelssohn's Spring Song," by Leo Jacobs was especially well rendered. A song by Israr Radler accompanied by the Jocker brothers concluded the program.

Light refreshments were then served followed by a brief speech by Samuel Rothberg, the president of the association. He said that this was the second affair of its kind and the last of the season to be held by the association. In the fall, he said, the second series of lectures would be started, and a play would be produced by the association. In the arrangements for the latter affair thus far made Judge and Mrs. Wm. Newcorn and Mrs. Mendel have offered their services as coaches and as members of the cast.

SCHOOL TEACHER WEDS CINCINNATI, OHIO, MAN.

Miss Sadie E. Staats, a teacher in School No. 2, Fanwood township, was married to J. Charles Runyon, at the home of the bride's father, Isaiah Staats, at Port Monmouth, this afternoon. Mr. Runyon is an electrical engineer and holds a responsible position in Cincinnati, Ohio. Miss Staats has been a teacher in the Fanwood schools for some time and is popular among the pupils. Her resignation was handed to the Board of Education early this spring when announcement of her engagement was made. Following a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Runyon will go to housekeeping in Cincinnati, where Mr. Runyon is engaged in business.

Candidate for Sheriff.

Walter Linbarger, secretary of the Somerset County Democratic committee today announced the candidacy of Frank B. Mobus, of North Plainfield, for the shrievalty nomination in that county. Charles Hamilton, of Franklin township, is also a candidate. The present incumbent is Frank Ross, of Bridgewater township.

MAY SUE FOR DAMAGES

Auto-Motorcycle Collision is Likely to Result in a Civil Action.

THE VICTIM HAS RECOVERED.

Harold Hansen Still Retains His License, But Harvey R. Thorn Wants Pecuniary Award for His Injuries.

The failure on the part of the State Department of Motor Vehicles to take any action regarding the auto-motorcycle collision in which Harold Hanson and Harvey R. Thorn figured, in which the latter nearly lost his life, several weeks ago, has caused considerable surprise among those interested in the case. Thus far no complaint has been made in the case, and, in fact, it is understood that Mr. Hanson, who is alleged to have violated a most important section of the State automobile law, still retains his license and has not been called upon to answer for his alleged infraction of the statute.

According to section 22, of the State law, every driver of an automobile who may be in a collision or accident of any kind, must come to a full stop, give his name, number of his license, registered number and the names of any and all occupants of the car. Failure to do this makes the auto driver liable to a fine of $250 or thirty days imprisonment.

It is claimed that Mr. Hanson, after the collision with Mr. Thorn failed to stop, and that the following morning, when interviewed by Sergeant Overbaugh denied on several occasions that he had been in collision with anyone and at first informed the officer that his car had not been out the night before. Furthermore, it is said, that Mr. Hanson did not admit his infraction of the law until Sergeant Overbaugh told him that he had several witnesses to prove that it was his car that was in collision with Mr. Thorn's motorcycle.

The absence of any local complaint against Mr. Hanson is said to be due to the fact that it was clearly thought to be up to the State Department of Motor Vehicles to take the initiative, inasmuch as Mr. Hanson is said to have violated the State law in the instance mentioned.

That some action is to be taken there is no question. Judge William Newcorn is counsel for Mr. Thorn, and it is said that there will probably be a civil suit against Mr. Hanson, aside from any action on the part of the State.

It is furthermore stated that Mr. Hanson did appear before Superintendent Smith, of the State Department of Motor Vehicles, and in explanation of his actions on the night of the accident, said that he was so excited that he really did not know what he was doing. If Mr. Hanson still retains his license, which is said to be true, he must have given a satisfactory explanation to Mr. Smith, but friends of Mr. Thorn cannot understand how the State officials have come to overlook Mr. Hanson's alleged violation of the State automobile law.

It was understood that the hearing in the case was put off pending the recovery of Mr. Thorn so that he could appear in his own behalf and give his testimony. Mr. Thorn is now back to work and is perfectly capable of attending a hearing.

The Fanwood Realty Company.

John Z. Hatfield, Edward L. Hand and George Harper, of Scotch Plains, have formed a partnership under the name of The Fanwood Realty Company. The company has purchased the Marsh property at Park avenue and the trolley line and within a few weeks will erect a commodious office on the property. The company will buy and sell real estate, both improved and unimproved property. It is believed that there is an opening for such a concern in that section and it is the opinion that it will be successful.

Annual Audit of City Accounts.

The work of auditing the city's books and accounts, which is now an annual custom, is progressing favorably and will be completed within a short time. Patterson, Teele & Dennis, certified public accountants of New York, were engeged to do the work, and a staff of accontants under the direction of a member of that well known firm, have been auditing the various accounts during the past few weeks. The accountants will make a report to the Common Council when the work is completed.

MR. AND MRS. BABCOCK'S WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Juan A. Babcock, of Clinton avenue, observed the twelfth anniversary of their wedding at their home, Tuesday night. An informal reception was attended by over thirty relatives and friends, was held from 7.30 to 10.30. The couple was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Babcock's sister, Miss Grace Phillips, of Brooklyn.

The rooms were attractively decorated with flowers, palms and ferns, the color scheme being pink and green. During the reception Miss Alice L. Morgan, Miss Dorothy Langford, Juan A. Babcock rendered classical and modern selections on the piano. Mrs. Bayard Hawthorne and Miss Grace Phillips also favored with vocal solos.

Mr. and Mrs. Babcock were married twelve years ago by Rev. Montgomery Downey, who was then rector of the Church of the Holy Cross. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents on West Front street. They have two children, Juan A. Babcock, Jr., and Miss Helen Babcock.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Arthur Heath, of Cincinnati; Miss Grace Phillips, of Brooklyn and Nelson, Sherman, of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Babcock received a number of handsome bouquets of cut flowers. A collation was served at 10 o'clock, after which the social features were continued.

BITTEN BY MAD DOG GETS PASTEUR CURE

Albert, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert MacCauley, of Westfield avenue, Scotch Plains, was bitten Monday afternoon by a small dog which had been a pet in the family for a long time. Dr. F. W. Westcott was called and cauterized the wound, and the dog was kept under close watch. Tuesday the canine began to act queerly and displayed signs of rabies. It was then decided to kill the animal.

The head was sent to the Pasteur Institute, New York, for examination. Yesterday word was received that the dog had had rabies in its worst form. Mr. MacCauley lost no time in getting his son into New York for treatment at the Pasteur Institute. The wounds are not considered serious, but the family do not want to take any chances.

MISS JENNINGS WEDS JOEL D. DE GROFF

Miss Florence Jennings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jennings, of Dunellen, became the bride of Joel D. De Groff, of Westfield, last night in Dunellen. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride shortly after 8 o'clock, before a bank of cut flowers in the parlor. It was a simple ceremony and was performed by Rev. Ernest Brown, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, of which the bride and bridegroom are members.

The attendants were Charles Windham, of this city, who was best man, and Miss Edna Jennings, a sister of the bride, who was bridesmaid. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride looked charming in a gown of silk mull, trimmed with lace; and she carried a large bouquet of white bridal roses. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. De Groff left for a tour of the upper part of New York State where they will be gone about a week. On their return they will reside in Westfield where they will go to housekeeping.

Mr. De Groff was clerk of the Dunellen common council for many years, was a trustee of the Dunellen Presbyterian church and is a prominent member of Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. in which order he has held several chairs.

Attendant at Cousin's Wedding.

Miss Harriet O. Mattison, registrar at the Board of Health office, has returned from Ossining, N. Y., where on Monday night she was the maid of honor at the wedding of her cousin, Miss Sarah Burdick to William J. Field, also of Ossining. The ceremony took place at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Ossining, and was followed by a large reception at the home of the bride's parents.

SPORTS

News and Notes

GOLF.

Competitions at the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club will begin on Saturday with a match between teams chosen from the members and subscribers. The annual invitation tournament of August 4, 5, and 6, won last season by R. C. Watson, and the competition of July 4, August 27 and September 3, 10 and 24 are open to guests as well as to members. The green committee consists of Adrian H. Larkin, Chester Griswold and Joseph S. Clark. The fairway is in excellent order, due to the heavy rainfall of June and the continual use of the steam roller, which was idle last year.

A match at the Forest Hill Field Club the other day had four caddies as principals, one being Louis Angelo, the most noted one-armed player in the east. Angelo and Geo. Smullen were paired, and hailed from the Essex County Country Club. They lost after an exciting contest, to the local team, Frank Sullivan and Peter Farley, the latter formerly of the Baltusrol caddies, who finished 1 up. The scores by strokes were: Farley, 79; Sullivan, 81; Angelo and Smullen, 82 each.

Up at Utica on July 7, 8 and 9 the Yahnundasis Golf Club will conduct its annual open tournament. T. M. Sherman, who competed at Apawamis last week, stated that entries had already been received from a number of well known amateurs, including Jerome D. Travers, of Montclair; Gilman P. Tiany, of Powelton; Charles H. Brown and Louis P. Myers, of Saegkill. There will be an eighteen hole qualifying round, contestants to qualify in three sixteens. In the tournament there a year ago Walter J. Travis won the chief cup, defeating Sherman in the decisive match.

BASEBALL.

The New York sporting writers are often prone to blame Catcher Meyers, of the Giants, for the loss of games, when as a matter of fact he is doing far better work than other members of the team. Meyers has caught most of the games and his work will compare favorably with that of other National League receivers.

Although the Yankees are fully seventy-five per cent. stronger than last year, they do not strike the expert as being entitled to championship honors. The Athletics cleaned up four games at the Highlander's Park, putting the Yankees to the real test. Besides Stallings' men did not cover themselves with glory in Detroit.

While Devlin is greatly missed at third base by the Giants, his place is being filled in a satisfactory manner by Fletcher, who undoubtedly is of big league calibre.

The New Brunswick team is now playing Saturday and Sunday games, and is drawing large crowds, which is generally the case with a winning aggregation. Manager Dave Driscoll has been securing strong attractions, including many minor league clubs.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Elory G. Bowers, curate of Grace church, returned yesterday from his annual vacation.

The choir of the First Baptist church will take its vaaction during the month of August, according to the annual custom.

Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, will take his vacation during August. The full list of supplies has not been decided upon as yet.

The all-day festival held at the Church of the Heavenly Rest on Saturday netted about $100 for the various societies of the church. The affair was held under the auspices of the Men's Association.

A patriotic service will be held at the Monroe Avenue church, Sunday night. The church will be appropriately decorated with flags and bunting and the pastor, Rev. C. S. Kemble, will preach a patriotic sermon. There will be communion and reception of members in the morning.

—Charles Vermeule has resigned his position at Brokaw Bros.' automobile garage.

—Street Commission Gavett had a coating of tarvia placed on West Front street, between Grant and Clinton avenue, yesterday and the residents hope that it will eliminate the dust nuisance.

—One of the large trees on the First Baptist church property on West Front street has been removed by Ralph P. Gay. The tree has been dying for some time and it was thought best to take it down.

Miss Jennie Little, of Newark, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Plainfield, N. J., June 30, 1910.

THEY WILL STUDY THE S. S. METHODS

An important series of meetings planned by the New Jersey Sunday School Association is the seventeenth annual session of the School of Methods which meets at Asbury Park, opening Tuesday, July 5, and closing Tuesday noon, July 12. The sessions of the school will be held in the high school building and special preparations have been made to accommodate the large number of students who are expected to attend.

There are twenty instructors engaged. Each is an expert in some particular line of Sunday school work.

Prof. Herman Harroll Horne, of the New York University, author of "The Philosophy of Education," will lecture each day at 3.30 o'clock. "Studies in Pedagogy" will be the basis of his lectures. These lectures will be divided as follows: "The Way to Study," "The Art of Telling a Story," "The Art of Asking a Question," "The Pedagogical Methods of Jesus." Prof. Roger W. Swetland, principal of Peddie Institute of Hightstown, will conduct conferences on the adult Bible class work. Miss Margaret Slattery, of Fitchburg, Mass., will conduct a series of Bible studies each morning during the week at 11.20 o'clock. Miss Martha K. Lawson, president of the New York Graded Union and supervisor of the elementary grades in one of the large Sunday schools in New York City, will talk to the primary department workers. Miss Nannie Lee Fraser, of Louisville, a writer and lecturer of wide experience, will lecture to the junior section each day. The Rev. Stanley F. Davis, of Elizabeth, will give a series of addresses to adults using the text book "Missionary Messages of the Bible." Other instructors are the Rev. Arlo A. Brown, Miss Alice B. Hamlin, Miss Josephine L. Baldwin, Miss Elizabeth D. Paxton, Miss Florence H. Darnell, Miss Marion Thomas, C. A. Brown and others connected with the organized Sunday school work in the state.

The work to be accomplished at this year's school will cover every department of the modern Sunday school, including beginners, primary, junior, intermediate, senior and Bible class work. Department sections have been provided for each morning and afternoon and the delegates will choose the section for their own individual work.

Every Sunday school in the State, large or small, is urged to send students to this summer schol of methods. The registration fee for the week's work is $2. Sunday schools who contemplate sending students can get full particulars and programs by writing to the New Jersey Sunday School Association, 835 Broad street, Newark.

Another important and interesting feature of the week's work will be a banquet and reception to be given to the newly elected general secretary, Louis Hayes Koehler, on Saturday evening, July 9. Following this on Sunday, July 10, a special observance of Sunday school day will be held in the Asbury Park churches and Sunday schools. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock, a Sunday school mass meeting will be held, under the direction of the New Jersey Sunday School Superintendents' Union. One or two speakers of note in the Sunday school world have been asked to take part in this meeting.

After the work of the summer school the attention of the Sunday school workers throughout the state will be directed in the line of the county conventions. A schedule of the conventions has been arranged and is as follows:

In September the following counties will hold their conventions: Thursday, 8, Middlesex; Wednesday, 14, Somerset; Thursday, 16, Sussex; Wednesday, 28, Morris; Thursday, 29, Monmouth; Warren, date not yet chosen. In October these counties will hold their conventions: Tuesday, 4, Hunterdon; Wednesday, 5, Salem; Thursday, 6, Gloucester; Friday, 7, Cape May; Tuesday, 11, Mercer; Wednesday, 12, Essex; Thursday, 13, Cumberland; Friday, 14, Ocean; Thursday, 20, Union; Friday, 21, Bergen; Thursday, 27, Burlington. Camden county will hold its convention on November 3, Atlantic on November 4, and Passaic and Hudson counties on November 8.

These county conventions will be followed by the great Sunday school feast of the year, the fifty-second annual convention at Atlantic City, November 15 to 17.

CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL CONSECRATED IN LONDON.

London, June 30.—With impressive and solemn ceremonies, the Roman Catholic cathedral at Westminster was formally consecrated Tuesday, with the participation of one of the largest and most distinguished gatherings of prelates ever assembled in England. The ceremonies brought together the Most Rev. Dr. Borune, Archbishop of Westminster, and the bishops of Liverpool, Birmingham, Shrewsbury, Southwark, Nottingham, Galloway and other sees. The Lord Mayor of London, Sir John Knill, the Duke of Norfolk, Lord Halifax and other noted representatives of the Roman Catholic laity were in attendance. The consecration is to be followed today by a grand celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the re-establishment of the hierarchy of England.

The great cathedral at Westminster was projected by Cardinal Wiseman, the first Archbishop of Westminster, and on his death the idea was taken up by his friends as a memorial of his splendid services to the Roman Catholic church. In 1895 the first stone of the cathedral was laid, and in the winter of 1903 the edifice was opened for daily use. The general style of the building follows that of St. Mark's, Venice, the nave being the widest in England. Excluding the cost of the site, the total expenditure on the cathedral building, hall and cloisters has been enarly $7,000,000.

FAULTS IN GIRLS.

Girls think grown people fretful who try to improve their manners. The time comes when they wonder why they were so silly or are bitterly resentful that bad habits were not corrected.

One of the commonest and most unsightly habits is that of "fingering." Girls who should know better pinch their lips, pull at a lock of hair, the eyebrows or the lobe of the ear, rub the nose—sometimes upward—or pluck at their collars.

This is habit and an ill-bred habit. Besides being bad for the girl herself, distorting her features and making her appear uncouth and ill at ease, it is trying to watchers. It often makes them ready to shriek with nervousness.

Girls should be taught repose. It may cause unpleasantness, but it pays. The face should not be touched with the hands, especially when reading or studying. To rest the chin in the palms of the hand or to press the fingers into the cheek will eventually work wrinkles and ruin the shape of the face.

THE DANGEROUS FLY.

Keep the flies away from the sick, especially those ill with contagious diseases. Kill every fly that strays into the sickroom. His body is covered with disease germs.

Do not allow decaying material of any sort to accumulate on or near your premises.

All refuse which tends in any way to fermentation, such as bedding straw, paper waste and vegetable matter, should be disposed of or covered wih lime or kerosene.

Screen all food, whether in the house or exposed for sale.

Keep all receptacles for garbage carefully covered and the can cleaned or sprinkled with oil or lime.

Keep all stable manure in vault or pit, screened or sprinkled with lime, oil or other cheap preparations, such as are sold by a number of reliable manufacturers.

See that your sewerage system is in good order; that it does not leak, is up to date and not exposed to flies.

Pour kerosene into the drains.

Burn or bury all table refuse.

Screen all windows and doors, especially in the kitchen and dining-room.

If you see flies, you may be sure that their breeding place is in nearby filth. It may be behind the door, under the table or in the cuspidor.

If there is no dirt and filth there will be no flies.

GEMS ON LACE RESTORE GOWN.

For the restoration of an evening gown, so that it may do duty during the summer dancing season, sew gems upon the lace.

Laces when cleaned frequently suver most in the elaborate gown. They are fragile and reach the repair point while the gown is still good.

Then is is that glass gems or large beads come into requisition as beautifiers as well as patches.

Used discreetly they will cover most successfully any small darn or rent, and will at the same time enrich and often recolor the garment.

This adding of a new touch to the half-worn article of apparel is frequently truer economy than the rebuilding of a garment with new materials which usually attain almost the price of a new gown.

Supplies for Bathroom,

The supplies in the bathroom are no less important than those of the kitchen. Besides its hot water bags, big and little, ammonia, collodion, lime water and sweet oil, a 1 per cent. solution of carbolic acid, a box of absorbent cotton and a roll of bandages should be kept on hand. With these ready for use an accident, such as a burn or cut, may easily be treated and pain spared the victim. The acid solution is useful in all cases of injury because of its cleansing qualities.

CHURCH IN CRANFORD TO GET PARSONAGE.

The heirs of the late Benjamin F. Ham, of Cranford, knowing that Mr. Ham intended to help the First M. E. Church, of Cranford in Cranford, in securing the parsonage, which he built upon the church grounds, have decided to deed the $3,500 parsonage to the church society for the sum of $1,500.

The heirs have arranged with the trustees of the church to pay for the building in two payments of $750, one payment to be made this year and the other next year. The trustees were grateful for this act, and the first payment has already been raised. It is proposed to pay the second payment before a year elapses.

The parsonage was built by the late Dr. Ham, who had often told his daughters that he intended donating part of its cost when the church got ready to buy the building.

Taylor, of West Seventh street, leaves today for a stay out of town with his family; and Fred Endress and family left yesterday for an extended stay in Germany; Mrs. R. I. Tolles is at Woodmont Conn.; and Mr. and Mrs. William Peacock, of Putnam avenue, are at Bradley Beach.

Mrs. R. H. Barnard, of Fairview avenue, is spending her vacation in the upper part of New York State, and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Pugh, of West Fourth street, are visiting their son, Ray Pugh, at Seneca Falls, N. Y.; Mrs. L. D. Morris, of Front street, is spending the summer at Asbury Park; and Mrs. H. D. Corbusier and children have just arrived at Sabael, where they will spend the summer; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Davies, of Belvidere avenue, are at the shore. Mr. and Mrs. David Kenney are en route for Europe, where they will spend their vacation. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gulick of Thornton avenue, are enjoying their vacation out of town; and Mrs. H. Vogel, of Fifth street, is spending the week at Lebanon.

PERSONAL.

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, of Watchung avenue, is registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Haynes, of Craig place, leave tomorrow for their summer home at Lake Hopatcong.

Miss Grace Phillips, of Brooklyn, has returned home after visiting her sister, Mrs. Juan A. Babcock, of Clinton avenue.

William Mazzocco, of Cameron avenue, has recovered from injuries received recently in an auto accident and is able to be out again.

Miss Gertrude Abbott, of West Front street, has returned home from Pratt Institute, where she was graduated this year. She was a member of P. H. S. Class '06.

Miss Gertrude Laura Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Hunter, of West Fourth street, is attending the conference of students at Silver Bay. She will be away several weeks.

William D. Anderson, son of Rev. and Mrs. Anderson, of Central avenue, left last night for Hulatt's Landing, where he will spend the summer. Mr. Anderson is a senior at Wesleyan University and will work this summer at Lake George with Leon Maynard, a classmate.

Debele Puts Out Fire Alone.

Prompt action on the part of Howard Debele prevented a serious chimney fire at 22 Lincoln place, yesterday afternoon. A still alarm was sent in to borough fire headquarters at 3 o'clock, but the fire horses were then being used on the street sprinkler. The fire bell was sounded to attract the attention of the driver but the wind was blowing in an opposite direction so that the driver did not hear the alarm. Seeing that no horses were forthcoming, Debele grabbed an extinguisher from the chemical engine and with this on his shoulder ran to the fire where he extinguished the flames alone.

Important Meeting Tonight.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, will meet tonight when the rank of knight will be conferred on one candidate. The nomination and election of officers for the ensuing year will also be held. Deputy Moosebrugger will install the new officers, July 7. The ritual will not be used. The whole ceremony will be secret.

FIRST WEDDING LICENSE UNDER THE NEW STATUTE

The new State marriage law, which requires all persons contemplating marriage, to secure a license, goes into effect tomorrow, and in the future it will not be so easy for couples to keep their wedding a secret, particularly when there is an elopement. Heretofore, the law governing marriages has in many instances been one of the most loosely observed in the State. For the purpose of correcting this trouble a new law was enacted compelling every one in the state, as well as outsiders coming here, to first obtain a license.

The first couple here to take advantage of the new law was Miss Clara M. Bye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Bye, of Clinton avenue, and Martin J. Lynch, of Brooklyn. The couple, accompanied by the mother of the bride-to-be, called at the Board of Health office, yesterday, and went through the formalities required by law, after which Miss Harriet O. Mattison, the registrar, issued the necessary license.

The questions on the printed form were all answered promptly and Miss Bye, as well as Mr. Lynch seemed pleased when the ordeal was over. No date was announced for the wedding, but it is understood that the couple will be married on or near the Fourth of July at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bye. Miss Bye was formerly employed at the local telephone office as an operator.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Dunellen, will conduct the meeting at the Plainfield Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock. Mrs. John Manley will sing.

Miss Ella Herkert, who has been working among the poor whites in the mountains of Virginia, will speak at the German Reformed church, Duer street and Craig place tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 and in the evening at 7:45 o'clock, under the auspices of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

CARVING MEAT.

To successfully carve meat one must know how to control the knife. When carving a slice of meat, after the first incision has been made the angle at which the knife is held must never be altered, or a jagged slice will be the result.

The cut should be direct, sharp and incisive. The sawlike motion should not enter into the operation.

Proctor's Big Attractions.

Renard & Melville, the original college girls, in songs and dances, will be one of the headliners at Proctor's theatre, today and they are said to be good. George Yeoman, a real German jester, is in a class by himself. The stories are bright and clean. Don't forget to hear Maud Palmer Terrell, a clever pianist in a pianologue act. She makes a hit. Brixton & Brixton, in an original playlet, "The Hebrew Recruit," is full of comedy. Special scenery and a fine wardrobe is carried. Proctor's theatre is the coolest place in town and a good place to escape the heat.

STIRRING LECTURE ON MARTIN LUTHER

"The Monk That Shook the World," was the subject of an able address by F. A. Holthausen, of Wittenberg, in Vincent chapel last night. He is an able speaker and enjoys the distinction of having been born in Martin Luther's own city, Wittenberg; of having been confirmed and christened in Luther's church and of having drunk at Luther's well and played under Luther's oak, the spot where the latter burned the Pope's bull of excommunication. In addition to this Mr. Holthausen has visited all the principal places and studied exhaustively all incidents in relation to the German reformer's life.

Mr. Holthausen became enthusiastic in his remarks bringing a ready response from the audience. He first traced Luther's humble birth, his struggle to obtain an education and then took up the significant facts of his life, which he illustrated by many anecdotes. Luther's life and work as a whole was then reviewed by Mr. Holthausen in a comprehensive way, and the effect of his life and work on mankind, was pointed out in its significant phases.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 3, 1910.

Topic.—What is Christian citizenship?—Ps. cxxiv, 1-8; Rev. xxi, 1-3. (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Tomorrow is Independence day, the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It is fitting that upon the eve of such a day our attention should be turned to our duties toward our country, or what we call citizenship, and, going a step further, Christian citizenship. We might ask, "In what does Christian citizenship differ from plain citizenship?" Why should we not simply speak of the duties of citizenship, which all men in general owe to the state or nation to which they belong? It might be truthfully said that there is no difference. One man who enjoys the privileges and protection of a nation owes as much to his country as every other man in the same position. This is really true in fact. But Christians, professing faith in the God of nations and in Christ, the King of kings, are expected to have higher conceptions even of citizenship than others and to perform more faithfully their duties even to civil governments. If duty requires us in any phase of life to go one mile, the Christian should go two.

As Christian citizens today we should remember God's hand in the history of our country. He brought here in the settlement of our land the best Christian blood of Europe, men willing to fight and die if necessary to enjoy both civil as well as religious freedom. In all our internal and external struggles God has been with us as a nation. In the war for independence, in the war for perpetuation and our lesser wars with foreign countries "the God of battles" has been with us. Well may we exclaim with the psalmist, "If it had not been the Lord that was on our side, * * * then they would have swallowed us up quick when their wrath was kindled against us." But God was with us. The Lord of hosts was our King of glory. Remembering these things, we should show our gratitude by keeping our nation a Christian nation and even increasing its faith in God, so that in all future struggles and in times of peace and prosperity God will still be our God, and we shall be blessed, for "blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."

To the end of continuing our nation as a Christian nation we should ever pray for her and those in all places of authority. We should bear our part cheerfully and willingly in performing our duties to local, state and national government. In rendering unto God the things that are God's we should also render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's. The Christian who has the right and does not vote is as much responsible for misgovernment in all its different phases as those who do vote and elect men who will sell their votes and corrupt legislation. The man who is too lazy, too busy or too indifferent to exercise his right of franchise should be compelled to do it or lose it altogether. The best men often neglect their duties, while the worst take perhaps extra advantage of theirs, voting for the ones who do not go to the polls. And who's to blame? Primarily the man who stays away. What right, moreover, have they to complain of bad government if they stay at business or comfortably at home and refuse to perform their duties while the others use their power to put themselves in places of trust and then betray that trust? None whatever. The man who abuses officeholders for 364 days of the year and then on the three hundred and sixty-fifth day remains away from the primaries, where they exist, and, more important, from the election should "put his hand over his mouth." He deserves all he gets. What we need more than anything else today in our political life is that all good men should vote. The time will soon come, then, when all parties will put forth only good men for office, knowing that the other kind will be defeated. Parties want to win, and the people can have just what they want if they put it up to them to nominate good men or face defeat. Let every young man in the Christian Endeavor society after he reaches his "freedom day" vote at every election and for good men regardless of party. Men and not platform measures should largely guide us in voting. A good man with a bad party behind him can accomplish more for civic righteousness than a bad man with a good party behind him. And may the day never come when our Christian Endeavor young ladies will want to vote. They have their rights, and many of them, in this great country. They have their defenders also in their own great land. In no land on earth, though there may be little of red tape about it, have women more true hearted and braver defenders than in this land. Their rights in all their relations to the state are well guarded in the hands of nearly 20,000,000 brave and courageous men.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. vi, 8-10; Neh. ii, 1-5; Ps. xxxiii, 10-22; Prov. xiv, 34; Jer. xxix, 7; Matt. xvii, 24-27; xxii, 15-21; Mark xii, 13-17; Rom. xiii, 1-7; 1 Tim. ii, 1-4; Heb. xi, 8-16.

The Prayer Meeting as a Test.

The activity and spiritual life of a church are gauged by its prayer meeting more than in any other one thermometer. The activity and spiritual life of the individual Christian are gauged in the same way. It cannot be a mere coincidence that the most active and liberal Christian workers are the prayer meeting Christians. There must be here a cause and effect. It is a good test for any church to apply to its own life.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.

Plain Figures
And Square Dealing Go Hand in Hand

Since the days of Barnum the public has changed—modern methods have replaced antiquated customs. The buying public no longer considers it a pleasant sensation to be fooled. No man or woman likes to find that her neighbor has paid less for the same article than they have paid—because one salesman was a smoother talker than the other—as in the elastic-price-x-y-z-hieroglyphic-marking houses. It is to overcome just such annoyances to our customers that

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Three industrial propositions are under consideration by the Lambertville Business League, and one more will probably locate there.

Caught in machinery Tuesday, Stanley Kowkiski, forty years old, of 1014 Sycamore street, Camden, had his fractured right arm attended at Cooper Hospital.

Enormous quantities of gooseberries are being shipped from Moorestown to Baltimore, where canneries are using them for "fillers" in all kinds of jellies and preserves.

Knocked down by a cab, William Martin, fifteen years old, of 1138 South Sixth street, Camden, sustained a fracture of the collarbone Tuesday. He was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

Oil preparation is to be placed on every improved road in Atlantic county used by automobilists, following successful experiments made by Road Supervisor Japhet Price on the highway near Egg Harbor.

With a crushed foot, caused by a copper plate falling on it at the Victor Talking Machine plant, in Camden, Eugene Lutz, twenty-one years old, of 2021 Federal street, was admitted to Cooper Hospital, in Camden, Tuesday afternoon.

While going at high speed an automobile, driven by W. S. Turner, of Hammonton, ran down Samuel Pignatella, a laborer, causing serious, but not fatal injuries, while crossing an overhead bridge on the Atlantic City Railroad, near Winslow.

The feature of the Fourth of July celebration at Woodbury will be a fight of an aeroplane, a contract having been made with the Aero Club of America to take a machine there. The fight will take place at 3 o'clock, but there will be enough other attractions to fill in the balance of the time.

Although his wife relented when he was accused of attacking her in their grocery store at Kaighn avenue and Baring street, Camden, James Morrison was committed to jail for three months from the police court Tuesday. Witnesses testified that Morrison hurled a knife at his wife, while he was on the warpath, because she refused to give him money.

An action to recover $20,000 damages from the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey has been commenced in the New Jersey Supreme Court by former Judge Howard Carrow and William J. Kraft, who represent Mrs. Mary C. Peacock, widow of J. Frank Peacock, who was killed in a railroad collision near Bridgeton on July 22, 1909.

One hundred machinists and carpenters employed by the Standard Motor Company in Pacific avenue, Jersey City, went on strike Tuesday morning, demanding an increase of twenty-five cents per day. They declare that it is impossible to live on the present rate of thirty cents an hour. It is expected that some agreement may be reached today.

Atlantic City's long agitation to make the beach a public playground was completed Monday night, when City Council passed the Buzby bill, formally declaring the strand, seaward of the boardwalk, a public park, and prohibiting conditionally sand modeling, religious exercises, beach ponies, lectures, addresses, hauling away sand and beach chairs.

William Seyler, recently cleared of the charge of murdering Jane Adams, was again released from jail in Atlantic City, Tuesday night, after having been held as a witness to the shooting of his brother Jasper by their father, over a week ago. Magistrate Jagmetty decided that the shooting was accidental, as claimed by the Seylers, and all three were released.

About to dispose of eggs to Samuel Plevinski, a grocer at 1252 Sycamore street, Camden, Tuesday afternoon, Samuel tSeinberg, of Front and Pine streets, Philadelphia, was startled when the grocer said: "Why, these eggs were stolen from my cellar. Here's where I marked them." Plevinski caused the man's arrest. Steinberg says he will be able to prove his innocence.

Complaining of sore throat, Harry Snyder, eighteen years old, of Pennsylvania avenue, Camden, walked into Cooper hospital Tuesday, where it was found that he is one of the latest victims of tetanus. His jaws are nearly locked and he was in a serious condition last night. Three weeks ago Snyder stepped on a rusty nail and suffered a wound of the foot that festered and poisoned the blood. There are now three lockjaw patients in the same institution.

But for the alertness of John Moody, the gateman, Tuesday, a trolley car load of people might have been crushed to death at the Cooper street crossing of the W. J. and S. Railroad, at Woodbury. Moody let down the gates for an Atlantic City express ahead of the Almonesson trolley car as it came rushing up the hill. The car kept on, and crushed through the gate, stopping on the northbound track. Moody quickly got the red flag and brought the train to a standstill within a few feet of the trolley car. The motorman said the brakes failed to work, although coming up grade.

CAMPBELL ASSISTANT TO B. & O. PRESIDENT

Announcement of several changes in B. & O. personnel, may mean that George H. Campbell, of Grove street, will remove to Baltimore, his former place of residence. Mr. Campbell, who is general superintendent of the New York division and vice-president of the Staten Island Railway and the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway ,has been appointed assistant to President Willard, a new office, the same to become effective July 1.

John C. Walber, general superintendent of transportation, becomes assistant general manager and G. W. Galloway, superintendent of transportation, becomes general superintendent of transportation, the former office being abolished. G. C. F. Bent, general manager of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern, has been appointed general superintendent of the New York divsion, succeeding Mr. Campbell as vice-president of the Staten Island Railway and the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway.

HOPE ENDEAVORERS AS BUSY AS EVER

The Christian Endeavor Society of Hope chapel, held a business session and social at the chapel, last night, following the prayer-meeting. There was a large attendance. Miss Lona Becker, president of the society, was in charge. Melville Roseberry and David Wardrop were elected to membership. Walter I. Firstbrook, who represented the society at the Young People's Conference of the Eastern Division of the Presbyterian church, held last year at Pocono, Pa., was again chosen as representative of the society at this year's conference to be held August 3-10, inclusive.

Mr. Firstbrook attends these conferences at his own expence. He was given a vote of thanks by the society for his voluntary and generous offer. Reports from the lookout, social, prayer-meeting and missionary committees were read, showing the society to be gaining in membership, in increased interest in the meetings and an increase in finances.

Miss Mary N. Mortimer reported that Miss Nellie K. Foote, of Elizabeth, secretary of the Union County C. E. Union, would lead the prayer-meeting of the society on Sunday, July 2. Miss Foote attended the International C. E. Convention at St. Paul, Minn., last year and is one of the most prominent Endeavorers in the county. Her subject will be "The Model Christian Endeavorer." The society also decided to take charge of a prayer-meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp during the month of August upon the invitation of the camp's management.

The social committee comprising Miss Laura Hangliter, Miss Eunice Eckert, Donald C. Mortimer and W. Morris Hunter took charge of the social, directing the playing of games and also serving refreshments.

AGENT OF S.P.C.A. DOES GOOD WORK AT WESTFIELD

Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, of Fanwood, special agent for the S. P. C. A., who has caused a dozen horses that have been ill treated during the last two months to be put out of misery, paid a visit to Westfield, yesterday, and caused two arrests.

Mrs. Van Hoesen personally took Frank Caponeti, a baker, of 322 First street, Westfield, in custody for driving a horse with sores under the saddle. She brought Caponeti before Judge W. B. Toucey, in that place, and entered a complaint against him for cruelly treating the horse. Caponeti was fined $10 and costs.

The second arrest was made by Policeman Rosecranz, of Westfield, at the instigatfon of Mrs. Van Hoesen, who told the officer to take Joseph Kadish, of 214 Plainfield avenue, Plainfield, into custody as he was driving an overloaded furniture wagon through the town. Kadish, it is said, had enough on the wagon for two horses to pull. He was fined $10 and costs by Judge J. F. Millett.

Both men paid their fines and promised to treat their horses better in the future.

Leo Keney, of Watchung avenue, and not his brother, Edmund Kennedy, is ill with scarlet fever. He is improving steadily and hopes to be out in the near future.

Miss Marie Finch, of Park avenue, will leave Saturday, July 9, on the Steamer Minnewaska, for a tour of Europe. She will be one of a large party of southerners to make the trip.

Mrs. Bessie Sweeney who since her husband's death has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. William Ochiltree, of Clinton avenue, left yesterday for Millville, Delaware, where she will spend the summer.

COUNTESS QUIETLY WEDS TRUSTEE OF HER ESTATE

Much surprise was expressed here yesterday when announcement cards were received telling of the marriage of Marie Louise Tanciatichi, an Italian countess, whose home is in the Aldene road, near Roselle, and Alphonse Bouchet, a former councilman of Roselle. The wedding took place in Washington, D. C., Tuesday. Today the couple left for Florence, Italy, near which city the bride has a large estate left her by her first husband.

Mr. Bouchet was trustee for the estate, and through frequent calls at the home of the countess became well acquainted with her. The calls increased and there was no surprise when their engagement was announced. The bride is well known in this place and has been active in charity work. It is expected that they will return here to live in the fall.

RAISING THE MAINE TO BE DIFFICULT JOB

Washington, June 30.—Of course, the army engineers will do their best to carry out the wishes of congress twice expressed, that an effort shall be made to raise the wreck of the battleship Maine from the bottom of Havana harbor, where it lies embedded in twenty-seven feet of slime and ooze. But the engineers are frank to confess that they do not know the extent of the task before them, and they believe that the $300,000 appropriation will not be sufficient. So their present idea is to use as much of the money as may be necessary to make a thorough examination of the wreck and the surrounding bottom of the harbor.

The only method known of raising a ship in the condition of the Maine is to surround her with a coffer dam, from which the water can be pumped, allowing the hull to be drained and the holes in the bottom closed. Engineering history fails to disclose a coffer dam of the mammoth proportions that would be required to enclose the Maine, for it must be as long as a city block and as high as a five or six story building—that is, from the bottom of the timbers to the top. Its cost would propably exceed the total appropriation.

So what the engineers probably will do is to make a thorough preliminary investigation. This will cost a good deal of money and occupy much time. In fact, it is reasonably certain that congress will again be in session before the results are known, and the engineers can tell just how much money it will cost to raise the ship. Then if congress should decide to supply the deficiency in the appropriation, the wreckers will go ahead with their work. Otherwise it seems probable that the Maine will be broken up under water and removed piece meal from the bottom of the harbor.

WANTS $2,000 SALARY FOR ELIZABETH'S MAYOR

Mayor Victor Mravlag, of Elizabeth, thinks the salary paid Elizabeth's chief executive is too small, and at the next meeting of Council he will probably send a communication setting forth his reasons:

"Don't you think that the salary of the city's chief executive should be more than it is at the present time?" he was asked.

"Of course I do. But I will not ask that City Council make an increase. I believe that for the services exacted of the mayor and the responsibilty of the office, the salary should be a reasonable one. However, two things are to be taken into consideration in this increase question. Under the present system, and at the present salary, the mayor is not required to be at his office all the time. I should think that if City Council were to make the mayor's salary $2,000 the sum would be such as to exact a great deal more time from the Mayor than is required at present. It seems only reasonable to expect him to give nearly all his time to the duties of the office.

"If the increase is made above $1,200, I believe that the mayor would be required to spend most of his time at his office just the same as the other city officers. I think $1,200 is a reasonable salary under the present system in consideration of the duties of the office and the time the mayor is supposed to give to municipal work."

"Then you had not thought of asking for an increase?" he was asked.

"Why, no," he replied.

The rumor was to the effect that the mayor would ask the Elizabeth council for an increase, not for himself, but in order that his successor might receive it.
